GRAND JURY FEARS FIRE IN COUNTY GAOL

NEWS IN BRIEF

SHORT ITEMS RECEIVED OVER C. P. WIRE.

KEEPER IS MAROONED.

WINDSOR, Ont. — John B. Knapp, keeper of the Colchester Reef Light in Lake Erie, and his assistant, S. Bock, are temporarily marooned on the light, but are not in danger. The beacon is burning regularly, and indicates all is well. The men have a heavy ice boat, but ice drift at present prevents them coming ashore.

BENNETT ATTENDS COUNCIL

LONDON.—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett attended to-day's session of the Privy Council which was presided over by His Majesty the King. The Council engaged in formal business and following the session the Canadian Premier lunched with bankers in the city.

NOT LIFT WAGE CUT.

MONTREAL, December 15 (C. P.). — Rail union chiefs from coast to coast, representing some 40,000 men in the Dominion, have been informed by the railroad companies that the 10 per cent. cut now in effect, will not be lifted on February 1, when the present agreement terminates, it was reported here to-day.

OVER THE TOP.

BARRIE. — Barrie's Central Relief Committee obtained more than 60 per cent. above their $4,000 objective in the recent community drive for relief funds, it was announced to-day. The total will be raised to nearly $20,000 under the Federal and Provincial Government grants.

PROBE STABBING.

MONTREAL. — Fatally injured when pierced by a bread knife while he was cutting bread, Fred Hyde 22, died in hospital here to-day. An inquest is to be held.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH.

BROCKVILLE. — A verdict of accidental death without negligence on the part of the driver was returned by a coroner's jury which investigated the death of Rev W A Meyer, fatally injured when struck by a motor car here. Elmer C Kerley, Westport, driver of the car, was exonerated by the jury.

RAW TOBACCO HIGHER

LEAMINGTON, Ont., Dec. 15 (C.P.)—Tobacco buyers are paying 9 to 12 cents a pound for Burley in this area. Growers say the figure is slightly higher than anticipated.

FUGITIVE BACK IN POLICE CELL

Georgia Wants Man Who Wrote Book About Chain Gangs After His Escape.

STORY MAKES MOVIE.

NEWARK, N.J., Dec. 15. (AP)—Robert Elliott Burns—"I Am A Fugitive From A Chain Gang"—is no longer a fugitive but a prisoner in a police cell.

Burns, who attained prominence by his book and the motion picture based on his experiences was arrested quietly last night. A member of the Georgia prison commission said at Atlanta that the southern state would make an effort to return Burns to that state at once.

Counsel for Burns, however, promised a fight to prevent extradition and word was awaited from Governor A. Harry Moore to learn what action he would take. He previously was quoted as telling the fugitive he would aid him when and if it were necessary.

Burns came here from Pittsburgh Sept. 7, 1930, only a few days after he escaped from the Troup County, Ga., prison camp, and has lived in this vicinity since.

He decided to write his experiences and the book and motion picture dealing with the Georgia prison system followed.

HERRIOT DOWNS CHANCE TO FORM NEW MINISTRY

DEBT QUESTION SHELVED.

British Payment to U. S. is Bank England's Largest Deal in Single Day.

PARIS, Dec. 15 (A.P.)—Premier Edouard Herriot refused a commission to form a new Cabinet this afternoon and President LeBrue immediately called in Camille Chautemps, Minister of the Interior, as his next choice. Chautemps agreed to attempt the task and accepted the Premiership.

"President LeBrun," Herriot told the press, "did me the honor to invite me to form a government.

"I thanked him with the respectful affection which I have for him, but I declined this honor for reasons of confidence to which I am determined to remain faithful.

"I will not enter in any cabinet."

He had gone to the President's Palace at 4.15 o'clock. It was 4.25 when he came out.

He was one of the last political leaders to be consulted by the President. As he went in he said, "This crisis ought to be solved rapidly, but for the necessary solution of important domestic and exterior problems I fear it will not be the last."

Little Attention to Debt

In the midst of the ministerial crisis little attention was being paid in French circles to the ebbing away of the day on which payment was due the United States.

It was stated that any formal notification to the Unitde States would be in the hands of Ambassador Claudel at Washington, while at the Ministry of Finance it was explained that nothing whatever

WITNESS FAINTS GIVING EVIDENCE

HEALTH NOT GOOD.

A dramatic interruption occurred shortly after noon to-day during the trial of Lavern Killingbeck on an indictment of receiving stolen property, when Arthur Gilders who had been brought up from the cells in the County Gaol where he is serving a sentence following his conviction of breaking and entering Prince of Wales' School fell over in a dead faint during the course of a stiff cross examination, to which he was subjected by J. A. O'Brien defence counsel.

The stricken witness was assisted from the witness box, and was taken to the jury room by court attendants where he recovered shortly afterwards. He was then conducted back to the cells by the turnkey. County Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., who is conducting the prosecution on behalf of the Crown intimated to His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke that he did not propose to recall Arthur Gilders. The man, he had been informed, had

Scarboro Defaults Debenture Payments

TORONTO, Dec. 15 (C.P.)—Decision of the Township of Scarboro to default on the principal payment of $250,000 debentures which fall due to-day and to apply for a moratorium on the principal payments brings to nine the total of Ontario municipalities which have taken like action.

During the last session of the Legislature, the Ontario Municipal Board was given power to act in such cases. Supervisory boards are appointed with full power to carry on the business of the municipalities.

The other municipalities at present in default are Tecumseh, East Windsor, Sandwich Town, Sandwich East and West Townships, Riverside, Lasalle and Windsor Sandwich Township and East Windsor school boards have also defaulted.

Amy Johnson is Nearing Home

Here is Amy Johnson Mollison smiling triumphantly as she arrived at Capstown South Africa after her flight from London in four days six hours and fifty-five minutes. The famous English girl flier broke the long-standing record of her husband, Capt. J. A. Mollison by ten and one-half hours. She is now on her way back by air and is expected to arrive today.

'HOMAS CASE GOES TO JURY SECOND TIM'

Morley Thomas is Charged With Criminal Negligence.

DRIVING WAS BAD.

Norman Moncrief Was Permanently Injured in Accident.

Supported by a crutch, Norman Moncrief, North Monaghan Township farmer yesterday hobbled across the well of the court from his seat beside the Crown Prosecutor, to testify in the witness box as to the circumstances under which he received permanent physical injury as a result of a highway crash between a sedan of which he was the driver and a heavy stake-bodied truck, on a stormy winter morning.

When proceedings adjourned last evening, all evidence was in, and both counsels had completed their addresses to the jury. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, who conducted the prosecution on behalf of the Crown pressed strongly for a conviction while defence counsel put up a strong plea on behalf of his youthful client, terming the truck driver's action as having been "an error of judgment."

In driving with his head out of the window, Mr. Gordon maintained, Thomas had done a reasonable thing having regard to the weather conditions, and exactly what Mon-

PENITENTIARY PROBE CLOSES

EVIDENCE INCLUDED.

OTTAWA, Dec 15. (CP) — The report on the riots at Portsmouth penitentiary was handed to Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, early this afternoon.

Containing more than 1,000 pages, findings and evidence included, the document will receive the full consideration of the minister and be placed before cabinet council later.

The report is made by Brig. Gen. D. M. Ormond, superintendent of penitentiaries, and was only completed this morning. Evidence of prisoners and prison officials is attached to the report.

Until the report, which is in the nature of a departmental has received full consideration, no decision will be made as to whether or not it will be made public.

LONDON, Dec. 15. —(AP)— Bernard Shaw's farewell jest to London as he left today with Mrs. Shaw, enroute to the south of France to join round-the-world liner, was "give Ireland to the United States and liquidate all the war debts." The Shaws will visit the Holy Land, India, Siam, China, and America.

"I intend travelling around the world without giving a single autograph," Shaw told a girl who held out an autograph book to him at Victoria station.

5 ROBBERS GET $15,000 IN RAID

GUNS ROAR IN STREETS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (A.P.)—Five robbers held up a branch of the Bank of Manhattan Trust Company at 169th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue shortly after it opened for business this morning and fled with approximately $15 000 in cash.

They covered their retreat by hurling tear gas bombs into the bank as they left and drove away in a waiting automobile. An hour later police cars were reported close on the fugitives' trail, careening madly through the Bronx as the policemen fired their revolvers at the fleeing robbers.

The manager, assistant manager, paying teller and three women employees of the branch were in the bank when the robbers entered. The manager was forced to open the vault while the other employees were covered with the robbers' revolvers. Two of the women fainted when the tear gas bombs were thrown.

The robbers cut all telephone wires in sight, but the alarm was quickly given after they escaped in the waiting car, a taxicab which police said had remained parked near the bank during the hold-up. The cab when over the Washington Bridge over the Harlem River into the Bronx, where its trail was picked up by police cars whose crews received the alarm by short wave from police headquarters.

LANY LAKE M.P. CLAIMS SHIP SUNK DELIBERATELY

REGINA, Sask., Dec. 15 (C.P.)—A picture which he said was taken by the doctor of the Canadian Government convoy just before the British freighter Bright Fan sank in Hudson Straits several weeks ago was produced by Dr. W. D. Cowan, M.P. for Long Lake, to support his contention the steamer was deliberately sunk.

In an address before the Arthur Meighen Club, Dr. Cowan quoted charges made in the House of Commons by Barney M. Stitt, M.P. for Nelson, and then produced the picture. "This is the puzzle," he said. "Find the iceberg and find the fog. Can you see them?"

Dr. Cowan asserted the worst enemies of the Hudson Bay Railway were not in Eastern Canada, as was generally supposed, but were "right in this Province".

AMY JOHNSON NEARS ENGLAND; BEHIND RECORD

Hopes of New Time From Africa Spoiled by Weather in Morocco.

LAST HOP 1,500 MILES.

Young African Flier Trying to Beat Amy's Time, Forced Down in France.

LONDON, Dec. 15 (C.P. Cable).—Amy Johnson, world-famous woman flier, is on the last stage of her Capetown to England flight to-day. A cable was received here by her husband, Captain J. A. Mollison, noted trans-Atlantic flier, saying that the intrepid aviatrix had left Beni Ounif, Morocco, where she had been held up by bad weather, and was flying direct to England.

Record Impossible

It was impossible for her to beat the fast record between England and Capetown she set on the southern flight, but Amy hoped to do better than cut in half the standing record for the northern flight held by Victor Smith, 19-year-old South African flier, who completed his journey last month in 11 days and 15 hours.

Amy's attempt to beat her time of four days, six hours and 55 minutes between the two points was frustrated by bad weather in Northern Africa and fog in Middle West Africa. She had intended flying direct from Gao, French West Africa, to Oran, Algeria, but was obliged to land at Beni Ounif, about 250 miles south of Oran and on the far side of the Atlas Mountains.

Down In France

ST. MALO, France, Dec. 15.—(C. P. Cable)—Victor Smith made a forced landing in a field near here today shortly after the start of what was to have been an attempt to break the record for the flight from England to the Cape.

Smith was unhurt and there was no damage to his machine, but he said he would return to Croydon, London, tomorrow.

Smith was going to follow a different course than Amy Johnson on his attempt to set the Cape Town record. Instead of heading first for Oran, Algeria and then across the Sahara desert he proposed flying down along the western coast of Africa.

Kitchen Stove Is Beyond Repair Grand Jury Says

Condition Should Not Be Allowed To Exist Another Night, Grand Jury Declares In Its Presentment To His Honor Judge Huycke.

HOLDING OF A BOY 15 IN THE JAIL IS ALSO STRONGLY CRITICIZED.

Strong criticism of the danger to life and property that existed due to the impaired condition of the stove in the Gaol kitchens, and an urgent recommendation that the existing condition should not be allowed to exist for another night, was made by the Grand Jury in their presentment to His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke this morning at the December Sittings of County Court and General Sessions of the Peace.

G. A. Brethen, ex-M.P., foreman of the Grand Jury, emphasized the danger of the situation, when in the course of his remarks to the Judge following the reading of the Jury's written presentment by George J. Sherry, Clerk of the Court, he stated: "I would like by way of emphasis to say that the stove is in such condition that none of us would tolerate it in our own homes, and I doubt if there is any hovel in the entire city that has such a stove. The time has come when further repairs to the stove will not satisfy the public who have investigated the conditions of the buildings under the jurisdiction of the County. Not another night should be allowed to pass without a new stove," he urged.

"I am sorry if I spoke out of turn," Mr. Brethen apologized, "but I cannot urge too strongly that if the condition is not remedied the prisoners run the danger of being roasted alive in their cells like rats."

His Honor complimented the Jury on having brought the matter to the attention of the authorities, pointing out that in the normal course of events the matter would have to be brought to the attention of the County Council.

Advised to See Warden.

He remarked upon the delay that such a course would entail, and advised Mr. Brethen, who lives near Norwood, that upon his return to his home, he shou'd see Warden W H Montgomery, and urge upon him the necessity of having the new stove installed without delay.

The Jury were full of praise for the manner in which the Gaol Governor and his staff were discharging their duties, and also spoke appreciatively of conditions as they had found them at all the other public buildings they had visited.

By WILLIAM HILLMAN
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 15—"Can Britain defend herself from an air attack under modern conditions?"

Winston Churchill

Thinking Englishmen of all classes are putting this question to themselves. Since the war, Britain has declined from the power of the world to the fifth. Men so far apart as H. G. Wells and Stanley Baldwin have recently been predicting the dire results of a sudden and unexpected aerial raid on England.

And now Winston Churchill, the statesman who has held so many high administrative posts in the defence forces of Britain, asks the same question: "Can Britain defend itself?"

"Britain has never been so vulnerable in a thousand years as now," says Mr. Churchill.

MORLEY THOMAS IS ACQUITTED ON SECOND TRIAL

Judge Huycke Scores Those Who Permit Boys to Drive Trucks.

MERCIFUL ATTITUDE.

Condition Should Not Be Tolerated Declares Trial Judge in Address.

Morley Thomas was this morning acquitted by a jury, of a charge of criminal negligence upon which he stood re-trial, as the driver of the truck involved in a smash-up immediately west of the city limits o the morning of March 22 last, following a heavy snow storm.

In the course of his charge to the jury upon resumption of court this morning, His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke stated, "if there be a fault on the part of the boy, the primary fault of this accident rests with the Department or the people who licenced the boy to drive a great big, unweildly truck all over creation."

Amplifying his remarks His Honor said, that in itself a truck under the proper control of a driver of experience was a dangerous thing, but that when a mere child was allowed to take the wheel the danger was considerably accentuated. It was a condition that should not be tolerated.

"I don't know who is responsible for such a condition" His Honor continued, "but it should be stopped." The situation was a disgrace to the community, he said.

It will be recalled that Thomas stood trial at the previous sitting of the County Court and General Sessions of the Peace, and that His Honor ordered a re-trial when the jury failed to agree upon a verdict after having been deadlocked over five hours. On the present occasion the jury was absent for a little under an hour.

Merciful View Taken

In discharging Thomas, His Honor urged him to let the experience be a lesson to him to be more careful of his conduct in the future. "You have ruined a man's

NORFOLK READY FOR WOLF HUNT

MANY TRACKS SEEN.

TILLSONBURGH, Ont., Dec. 15. (CP)—Friday or Saturday will be the day of the big "wolf hunt" in Norfolk County. From this southern tip of Oxford county will go a party of would-be wolf slayers to join those in Norfolk.

To-day about 100 men, armed for the chase, await the return of Leo A. Stilwell and Harry Ostrander who last night carried a dead "timber wolf" to Toronto to collect $25 bounty. The animal was shot on the farm of Dr. Wildfang.

Farmers of the Norfolk county district where the "wolf" was killed say there are others roaming about and that the animals have raided sheep flocks.

To-day Chief of Police Alex Reynolds of Tillsonburg said he did not pose as a judge, but he thought the animal was "more wolf than dog. It might be part huskie."

Stilwell and Ostrander, on their return, will be invited to lead the "wolf hunters" to a place where the two men claim they saw tracks of at least three other wolves.

COL. NATHAN W. MACCHESNEY NEW U. S. MINISTER TO CANADA

LACKS SENATE APPROVAL.

WASHINGTON, December 15 (C P).— Colonel Nathan William MacChesney of Illinois was named by President Hoover to be United States Minister to Canada.

Mr. MacChesney was formerly a Chicago judge, and a well-known football star of the University of Illinois.

Colonel MacChesney is senior member of the law firm of MacChesney, Whiteford & Wells of Chicago and Washington. In addition to private and public legal work, Colonel MacChesney has acted on a number of public bodies including service as president from 1922-25 of the National Conference of Commissioners on uniform State laws. During the war he was commissioned as lieutenant-colonel in 1918, and served as Judge-Advocate in the American Expeditionary Headquarters in France. He is the author of several legal and historical studies. He was married in 1904 to Miss Lena Frost, and has two sons.

Col. MacChesney succeeds Hanford MacNider, who resigned the ministerial office in September to campaign for President Hoover. Col. MacChesney's appointment must go to the United States Senate for confirmation. He will hold office during the President's pleasure, and he could be retired when President-elect Roosevelt assumes office in March.

Making Time

SEATTLE, Dec. 15. —(AP)— Headed for Edinburgh, Scotland, for Christmas, William Wright was wasting no time when he passed through here.

He left Shanghai, China, on the last day of November and gave himself just 22 days to get home, he said, by the fastest route.

Arriving here at 10 p.m. Tuesday night, he took the early morning mail plane out and expected to make New York and catch ship there today.

Lake Waters Drop, Farmer Loses $5,000

GRIMSBY, Ont., Dec. 15 (C.P.)—The lowering of the water of Lake Ontario brought a loss of close to $5,000 to Francis C. Jones, Clinton Township farmer, who lives on the lake front north of Beamsville, when failure of the water supply for steam heating of his greenhouses resulted in the destruction by frost of 5,000 tomato plants.

Mr. Jones, with his nephew, J. Jones, endeavored to cope with the unexpected situation from Saturday until Tuesday. The wells and cistern were pumped dry, without avail.

On Tuesday neighbors learned of his plight and volunteered to form a bucket brigade, but it was too late.

The tomato crop was contracted for, and Mr. Jones would have continued to sell other crops until March.

FLOOD WATERS ARE STILL HIGH

Several Families Remain Cut Off From Outside Communication.

ROADS IMPASSABLE.

Flood conditions prevailing over stretches of North Monaghan Township that border the swollen Otonabee River had not altered today. Roads in the inundated area continued to be impassable, and several families remained cut off from outside communication except over the ice of their flooded acres.

Rivermen on the southern extremity of the city reported that rather than decreasing the flood had apparently risen still higher today. Some farmers residing near the river on Rural Route Number 5 have received no mail in five days, the mail man finding it impossible to traverse the flooded roads to their homes.

While the water had risen higher along McKellar Street, the homes in this area were still high enough to be out of the reach of the engulfing waters.

As yet no one has definitely established the cause of the flood. Heavy rains has raised the level of all lakes in the district, and the river has been high for six weeks, but it is thought that the flood is due to the water being dammed back by an ice jam in the lower reaches of the river.

CABINET DEBATE UPON 1932 PACT STIRS FURORE

Lloyd George Would Publish Discussion Held Prior to U.S. Debt Agreement.

HORNE DEFENDS BALDWIN.

"Ghost" Government Rules France—Powerless to Negotiate Payments.

LONDON, Dec. 15 (A.P.)—An appeal to Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald to obtain the King's consent to publish the minutes of the Cabinet's discussion in 1922, prior to the debt agreement with the United States in 1923, may be the outcome of a warm passage of words between members of the aforesaid Cabinet during the Commons debate yesterday.

Sir Robert Horne, who was then Chancellor of the Exchequer, was defending Stanley Baldwin against attacks on his 1923 settlement, which persisted in a section of the press and public ever since, when Lloyd George interjected that one of Sir Robert's statements was absolutely untrue.

Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequor, jumped into the fray, and the exchange of words became hotter.

Mr. Lloyd George, holding in his hand a sheaf of paper, which he said were the actual notes of the aforesaid Cabinet discussion, declared it would be in the public interest if they were published, and asked Mr. Baldwin whether he would object.

Mr. Baldwin replied he would be glad to have the whole discussions of the American debt at that time published.

Mr. MacDonald, who was absent from the Commons, was as yet unheard from, but it seemed the appeal for publication would be pressed. The incident was given much space in morning newspapers.

Government Fall Changes Plans

It was recalled Sir Robert, as Chancellor, would have gone to the United States instead of Mr. Baldwin to negotiate the settlement but for the fall of the Coalition Cabinet.

Sir Robert's point, to which Mr. Lloyd George objected, was that he had been given full discretion by Mr. Lloyd George, then Premier, to deal with the matter, the latter insisting he only had permitted Horne to settle in accordance with the Balfour note.

Faced with the necessity of funding her debt to the United States, Great Brtain was compelled to lay down a principle for dealing with

Celebrate Ninth Birthday Christmas Day

It was Christmas Day in St. John, N.B., The year, 1923. High up in the clouds could be seen the stork, heavily laden. He was carrying four small bundles. As he circled the town he came slowly to roost at the home of Mrs. Lydia Mahaney. One parcel he left; two, three, four. All four bundles of humanity were left at this little modest home. What a Christmas gift! On Christmas Day, 1932, the quadruplets, shown above, Edna Louise, John Douglas, Lydia Christine, and Edith May, will be 9 years old, and all in the best of health. This is most unusual for quadruplets, but the mother of these fine children says she accomplished the almost impossible task by use of pasteurized milk. The picture of the children was taken last year on their eighth birthday as they were singing carols on Christmas Day. At left—Mrs Mahaney.

WHEAT PRICES ALL-TIME LOW

42 CENTS A BUSHEL.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 15.—(CP)—Optimistic in the face of a two-day decline in the value of his product the wheat producer of Western Canada last night looked to his elected representatives to lift him from the economic slough. Bereft of support other than that supplied by a strong "outside" interest and forced to absorb a fresh flood of distress wheat, the market recorded new all-time low prices in each wheat future at the close.

Yesterday's decline was the second excursion into new low ground since the memorable decline of late October. Tuesday artificial support which has led prices to a more or less even keel wavered and prices fell 1 3-8 to 1 5-8 before support reappeared. Yesterday a flood of fresh offerings and general lack of support combined to press prices down 1-8 to 3-8. December wheat closed at 42 1-4 cents—it dropped as low as 42. May wheat's close was 45 and July 46 1-8.

Across the prairies eyes of the farmers were focussed on Winnipeg where the prairie "Parliament" made ready to discuss existing agricultural conditions.

Premier's Gathering

Premier of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba will meet today to pool their proposals with respect to distress in the rural west. Not the least of subjects to be discussed will be that of a curtailment of acreage seeded to wheat.

"Indicative of the fall in wheat prices farmers are turning to the old system of trade to supply their wants for the Winter. The country store which used to be the first stopping place after a visit to the elevator now gets the preferred position. Farmers carry their wheat direct to the merchant. This they trade for fruit and food supplies for the Winter ahead.

Northwest of Alberta's central farming communities farmers in the Peace River district were receiving 15 cents a bushel for their wheat and five cents a bushel for oats.

Adverse rates on export wheat made it difficult for farmers to market their grain for profit. To the south of Peace River farmers were carrying products by truck into neighboring areas of British Columbia. They find it more profitable to barter.

Don't forget the big Midnight Show for relief at the Capitol Theatre, on Friday, December 16th.

Alack, and woe is me; none of the fire putters outers were able to cope with the flames and the experiment ended in smoke and flame, the aeroplane being reduced to ashes.

He gave vent to his displeasure by hurling several bricks through a store window.

BLIZZARDS RAGE ON SUNNY COAST

One Frozen to Death—2 Mining Men Missing Since Saturday.

THREE FEET SNOW FELL.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15 (C.P.).—Weather history was in the making to-day as stories of death and near tragedy came out of the snow-clad regions of "Sunny Southern California."

A man froze to death in the Palo Verde Valley, adjoining the Imperial Valley, where temperatures of 120 degrees are not uncommon durin the summer.

Two mining men, Robert M. Ray and Arthur W. Johns, were missing in Holcombe Valley since Saturday, when they left Los Angeles to inspect a mining property. A blizzard swept the valley Saturday night.

Three residents of Los Angeles attributed their survival in a 24-hour fight against a freezing death in the Big Bear district to the valor of a police dog and the warmth supplied them by the dog's body.

The storm subsided last night, leaving snow to a depth of more than three feet in the mountains and thoroughly drenched lowlands. Frosts followed in the wake of the storm, which was accompanied by unprecedented cold weather for so early in December.

BAD WEATHER DELAYING AMY

Aviatrix Held in Morocco Town With Hopes of Record Almost Gone.

11.56 A.M. DEAD LINE.

ORAN, Algeria, Dec. 15 (C.P. Cable).—Bad weather was thought to-day to have frustrated Amy Johnson's gallant attempt to fly from Cape Town to London in less than the four days six hours and 55 minutes she took last month on her record-breaking flight to the Cape from Lympne, England.

Early to-day no word had come from Beni Ounif, Morocco, about 240 miles south of here and on the far side of the Atlas Mountains, where Amy was forced down last night by unsuitable flying weather.

Miss Johnson was believed still at that desert point as the hours slipped by toward 11.56 this morning the deadline for a landing at Croydon if she were to cut down her time between the South African capital and her homeland.

She still had a good chance, however, to halve the record for the flight between the Cape and England set a few weeks ago by Victor Smith, 19-year-old South African aviator who covered the distance in 11 days and 15 hours.

Officials Claim Efforts to Locate Relatives Were Vain —Son's Story Differs.

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—Admitting that they did not know whether they had any power, statutory or otherwise, to perform an autopsy without first obtaining permission from relatives or friends, two officials of the Ontario Hospital, Queen Street, were subjected to a lengthy cross-examination at the inquest last night into the death of 84-year-old Robert Smith whose wife and children were not notified of his death until more than a week after his death.

Dr. E. A. James who ordered an autopsy performed on the body, declared that he had thought he had the right to perform an autopsy at the time without obtaining permission but now understood that this was not so. He was followed later on the witness stand by Dr. W. C. Herriman, medical superintendent of the Ontario Hospital, who, when asked by the crown if he knew the extent of his powers in the matter of having autopsies performed without first obtaining sanction, replied that he did not know the law on the subject.

The inquest was adjourned by Chief Coroner Dr. M. M. Crawford until next Monday night after half a dozen witnesses had testified.

Tried to Locate Family

Dr. James declared that both before and after the death of Smith efforts had been made to locate his wife and children, but all endeavors were fruitless, as the family had moved from place to place and could not be found.

QUEBEC TOWN IN DIFFICULTY

Aylmer's Secretary Treasurer is Suspended—Irregularities in Accounts.

CIVIC SALARIES CUT.

AYLMER, Que., Dec. 15.—(CP)—The latest development in the financial problems that have been vexing this Quebec town came late last night when after a private meeting of the council, the indefinite suspension of E. J. Whittet, secretary treasurer, was announced by Mayor W. G. Mulligan. At the same time municipal salary reductions ranging from 10 to 20 per cent were announced.

No charges were levelled at Mr. Whittet, who was absent in Montreal yesterday, but Mayor Mulligan said there had been irregularities in the accounts. An audit covering the past three years is being conducted at the present time and is expected to be concluded some time in January.

Inability to meet its interest payments on bond issues, now more than a year in arrears, has been causing the town fathers considerable anxiety of late, and yesterday an unofficial report from Quebec City stated that the municipal commission was about to apply to the Superior Court to have the town declared in default. Aylmer owes the province over a quarter of a million dollars on account of the provincial housing plan, and its interest arrears brings its total indebtedness up to about half a million.

NARROW ESCAPE.

HASTINGS, Dec. 15 (Examiner Correspondence). — Lewis Stinson had a miraculous escape from death of Tuesday while on his way to Cobourg. Mr. Stinson was accompanied by four other passengers, when, owing no doubt to the slippery condition of the road, his heavy car skidded and crashed into a steel bridge about two miles east of Baltimore. The car was wrecked.

100 FLEE BLAZE IN APARTMENTS

Tenants Helped Down Fire Escapes as Hamilton Landmark is Threatened.

FIREMAN IN HOSPITAL.

HAMILTON, Dec. 15.—Fire broke out about 11 o'clock last night in the basement of a store in the Royal Meat Markets, which was formerly the old Royal Hotel, and the dense smoke quickly filled all upper floors of the old building and threatened the lives of 100 or more occupants of small apartments, all of whom were forced to rush to the street by fire escapes and ladders.

All got from the building safely, and the only casualty was Fireman William Waines, of the Napier Street Station, who was struck on the forehead by a falling object in the basement and suffered a severe wound. He also was overcome by smoke, and was rushed to the General Hospital. His condition is not believed to be serious.

Fire Chief James stated that the loss from the fire would not be more than a few hundred dollars, and the damage was due largely to smoke and water.

Starts In Basement.

The fire started in the basement of the premises, occupied by D. S. Kauffman, florist. His stock and fixtures were begrimed with smoke and water, and Gerrie's drug store and the Royal Market's shoe store may also have a smoke and water loss.

The old Royal Hotel building is a landmark in Hamilton, and is constructed of stone and timber. When Chief James and his men reached the scene they realized that the lives of apartment dwellers on the upper floors of the building were in jeopardy, as the entire building was choked with smoke from cellar to roof. Chief James directed his men to save lives first, and see that everyone was removed from the building.

Squads of firemen rushed through the smoke-filled wide halls, and forced doors in some instances to rouse occupants, as it was feared that many might be asleep in bed and ignorant that the building was on fire.

Use Fire Escapes.

So dense was the smoke that it was impossible for those on the upper floors to descend by the stairs or elevator. They were forced to descend by two fire escapes on James Street and a fire ladder on Merrick Street.

All were assisted by firemen, who calmed their fears and averted a panic. An almost zero wind prevailed, but no one suffered seriously.

The fire was extinguished within a few minutes after a hot struggle by Chief James and his men, who realized that if the blaze got a start in the old building it would prove serious.

LINDSAY BOYS TAKE INTEREST IN CADET CORPS

CHANCE FOR PROMOTION

Officers Are Not Picked Until Short Time Before Inspection.

LINDSAY, Dec. 15.—While in Peterborough a Board of Education committee is at present investigating the question of the cadet corps at the Peterborough C.I. and V.S. and the principal has already suggested that the training be done away with since it hinders rather than helps school spirit at the institution, the exact opposite is the case with cadet training here.

Cadet work at the L.C.I. is something which every boy looks forward to according to the figures supplied yesterday by Mr. MacMillan, now principal of the school but for a number of years cadet instructor, which showed that of those eligible to take the work there was practcally a 100 per cent. turnout when training started every year—around 200 boys.

"There is a great deal of rivalry between the different platoons and the sections for the two trophies awarded and the competitive spirit enters the picture quite strongly," he said, and that statement will be verified by any of those cadets or former cadets who have seen the joker of the section become very serious about two days before inspectation so his unit will have a chance at the silverware.

"It's really the boys' corps," said Mr. MacMillan. "That's the big reason, I think, for its success. The cadet instructor really has nothing to do with the actual training of the corps. He only helps in the organization. Then all the work of training is taken over by the officers who only get their positions when they pass tests qualifying them."

Chance For Promotion.

He explained the system of bringing the boys on from privates to corporals to sergeants to lieutenants and finally captains. The officers, he explained, trained the sergeants and the sergeants trained the corporals. The officers themselves have the Officers' Club where the matters are discussed and in which they take a keen interest and their instructor also advises them.

Every boy who enters the corps, Mr. MacMillan said, has a chance of being captain before he leaves school if he wishes to work for it and take his tests. The method of final selection of officers here has always appealed to every person as being eminently fair and is another reason probably for the success of the local unit.

Officers are not picked until a short time before inspection and when they go to work on the field before two officers of the Victoria and Haliburton Regiment and it is the judgement of these experienced military men which finally decides the posts for the year. It is possible in this way for a junior officer to replace his senior providing he shows the stuff.

That is, a cadet who attained his captaincy only in 1933, would, if his performance was better, take the command of the corps away from a cadet who had been captain in 1932 and had actually commanded the corps then. Sergeants also had the opportunity to prove their ability for platoon or section command on the same basis, Mr. MacMillan said.

When Training Begins

Work for the junior boys started in rifle movements in February for the first form lads drill period. Senior boys didn't have to take the training early in the year. Field training for the whole corps up to and including Inspection Day took up three weeks.

This work was carried on from 3.30 to 4.00 o'clock and by shortening the afternoon periods during training, no work was missed at all, Mr. MacMillan said. The training period here had been calculated and had proved to be one where inspection was the climax. That is, interest mounted as the work progressed and since the training period was not too long had no chance to wane.

To this short training period, to the fact that it was the boys' corps that officers were picked strictly on merit, that officers selected in the past few years had been extremely conscientious in their duties as well as popular with the cadets in training was the credit given by Mr. MacMillan yesterday for the success of the L.C.I. Corps. Most complimentary verbal and written reports have been received concerning the Corps.

He would not add, being a modest person,that the cadet instructors of recent years—himself and Mr. Breese—have helped greatly in shaping the policies of the corps and guiding the officers wisely but any person who knows anything of the corps at all knows that the writer is making no wild statement when he says that the two instructors are big factors in the corps' success.

NOT ENOUGH LEGS.

SALEM, Mass., Dec. 15.—(A.P.)—Turkey is out as Christmas Day fare at Salem jail until the bird can be crossed with centipedes, Shereiff Frank A. Ramond said.

"Turkeys don't have enough legs for this jail," he sighed. "It will be roast pork this year." The sigh was in memory of the Yule dinner in 1931 when his guests created some unpleasantness because the turkey legs could not be served to all.

TWO OFFICIALS

used for keeping track of the addresses of relatives and friends was made by Assistant Crown Attorney W. O. Gibson, who asked Dr. Herriman if he did not think it 'shocking' that a better record was not kept of the addresses of relatives and friends, who could be notified in the event of any emergency at the hospital. Dr. Herriman replied that the friends and relatives had a great deal of responsibility in the matter.

George Smith, a son of the deceased, related how he and his mother visited the hospital on learning of the death, which had occurred some 10 days before.

"When I found out what had happened I called up the undertaker and asked him why the relatives had not been notified of my father's death," said witness. "The undertaker said he had been told there were no relatives. I later enquired where my father was buried and was told Park Lawn Cemetery. I went to the hospital with my mother, and asked to see Dr. Mitchell, whom I had been told to see. I met Dr. James, and asked him where I could find Dr. Mitchell. He asked what I wanted to see him about, and I said it concerned my father's death.

"I asked Dr. James how my father died," continued witness. "Dr. James replied: "Oh, he passed out in the night'."

"I was unable to find Dr. Mitchell, so I went back to Dr. James. As I approached his office I heard him say to the attendant who was with us: "I've already talked to these people.

Asked Aid of Police

"I asked Dr. James what steps had been taken to locate relatives, and he said the police of York Township had been communicated with and a man sent to several addresses. When I asked him why he didn't broadcast the fact of my father's death and ask the family to get in touch with the hospital, he replied: "Oh, we can't do that kind of thing'. Later Dr. James became quite hostile and threatened to throw me out. While I was speaking I turned around and saw Dr. Herriman standing near my mother and he was hollering and shouting. I walked over to him and said that kind of thing wasn't necessary.

"He said to me: "We've got more things to do than run around all over thep lace looking for people,' when I asked him why we had not been commmunicated with. He told me my father had been given a decentb urial, but when I asked him how much it cost he didn't say.

"I said to him 'Did you perform an autopsy?" And he said yes. When I asked him by whose permission, he said: 'Oh, things are different to-day from a 100 years ago. I told him that to the best of my knowledge it was necessary to get permission from a near relative. He said he didn't think it was necessary.

her own debtors which she did in the note issued in 1922 by Lord Balfour, President of the Council in the Lloyd George Cabinet.

This note stated Britain would be content with a total sum from her allies and Germany sufficient to cover her own payments to the United States, though this was equivalent to only one quarter of the amount due to her. This policy was maintained at Lausanne, when European powers agreed to practically wipe out German reparations providing equivalent reductions were made in the debts owed the United States.

The United States Funding Commission was created in 1922, and it was arranged that Sir Robert Horne leave for Washington to negotiate a settlement but, when the Lloyd George Cabinet fell, Mr. Baldwin became Chancellor under the Canadian, Bonar Law, and went in Sir Robert's place.

Under terms of the agreement, Great Britain was to pay the United States $4,600,000,000 over a period of 62 years in annual instalments increasing from $23,000,000 in the first year to $175,000,000 in the last.

By the simple process of "earmarking" an imposing pile of gold bullion bars lying in the vaults of the Bank of England, Great Britain was paying the United States to-day the $95,550,000 due on the British war debt instalment.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York was supplying the gold for the actual payment to the United States Government on the date the agreement stipulated and the gold, earmarked here for the Federal Reserve Bank, will be shipped later by the Bank of England, as required by the American bank.

In the foreign exchange markets, further support for the pound and United States dollar caused a steady opening with the pound quoted at $3.28½. The rate eased later but recovered and it was reported the exchange equalization fund was being utilized to maintain the quotation on a steady basis.

Shadow Parliament.

PARIS, Dec. 15 (C.P.)—A "ghost" government ruled France to-day powerless—as acting Premier Edouard Herriot was careful to announce—to make or even to negotiate concerning the $19,261,432 war debt interest payment due the United States by midnight.

Until a new Ministry can be formed, such questions as war debt payments, disarmament and budget balancing must wait. M. Herriot notified Washington last night he was no longer qualified to carry on negotiations concerning the debt, inasmuch as his Ministry had fallen. The Herriot Ministry, defeated on the debt issue when the Chamber voted yesterday to defer payment, was merely carrying on current business to-day.

Principal newspapers insisted that inasmuch as the Herriot Government was defeated only on one point of its policy, the composition of its successor should be similar. The Pacifist, Joseph Paul-Boncour, Minister of War in the Herriot Government, was favored for Premier, provided M. Herriot himself were not. It appeared likely that President Albert Lebrun would ask M. Paul-Boncour this evening to form a Cabinet.

CAMPBELLFORD

NEWS ITEMS FROM THE TRENT TOWN DISTRICT

For towns of 2,500 and over in the Buckingham contest, the Campbellford Rotary club stands first and expects to win the prize of 250 toys, which will be distributed among the poor children of town as a Christmas gift.

The sympathy of the citizens of Campbellford and the district go out to the Rev. C. E. Clark of Toronto and formerly rector of Christ Church, in the loss he has sustained in the death of his wife on Tuesday of this week. Mr. Clark was not only an Anglican rector in town, but a friend to all, and the news of his sudden bereavement comes as a shock to the whole community.

Ladies' Night was featured on Tuesday evening by the Ionic Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, Campbellford, when twelve tables were in play with progressive euchre, which was the game of the evening. The arrangements were under the direction of E. C. Dolman.

The prize winners for the evening were: Ladies: Mrs. O. C. Watson, Mrs. Charles Benor, Mrs. R. J. Allan; lone hands, Mrs. J. O. Benor. Gents.: R. J. Allan; lone hands, Anson Connor. After play a delightful lunch was served by the lodge to their lady guests.

Angry Citizen Wishing To Be Arrested Raps Police On Pooor "Pick-Up" System

BOSTON, December 14 (C.P.). — It's getting so a citizen can't get any service—and Jimmy King is peeved.

Jimmy was enthusiastic over this new idea of placing signal hooks on the outside of police boxes for the convenience of citizens.

Last night he thought he would give the new-fangled idea a whirl.

Jimmy stepped up to a police box and for ten minutes Jimmy waited for the police car in a cold, raw wind.

He finally made his way to the Brighton Police Station, glared at Sergt. Patrick Mahoney, and clung unsteadily to Patrolmen Stelfox and Swanson as he declaimed on the lack of service he had been accorded.

"Yes, sir," Jimmy said, "it's getting so that when a citizen wants to be arrested they won't cooperate."

Sergeant Mahoney apologized, and locked him up.

GERMANY SEES FRENCH DEFAULT EXCUSE FOR HER TO FOLLOW SUIT

Press Claims Failure to Pay U. S. Has Broken Sanctity of Treaties.

OPTIMISTIC VIEW TAKEN.

BERLIN, December 15 (C.P.). — Berlin newspapers reached an almost unanimous agreement to-day that France, in failing to pay the United States, had broken the sanctity of treaties.

One newspaper said Germany might now default its own debts, and another said Germany was no longer morally bound to comply with the Versailles Treaty.

The Nationalist newspaper Boersen Zeitung, referring to the French debt crisis, said: "Nobody would hinder Germany from drawing the logical conclusion from the bloodsuckers' attitude and make a similar declaration, but with really empty pockets."

The democratic Vossische Zeitung, under the headline "Ingratitude" said: "402 angry French Deputies (who voted against payment to-day to the United States) achieved in 14 minutes what a generation of German statesmen and politicians aimed at in 14 years."

This action, it said, was "complete destruction and annulment of the moral basis of the Versailles Treaty."

For this reason, it added, "Germany was not morally obliged to stick to the hatred treaty."

The Socialist Vorwaerts declared it was "dawning upon the capitalistic world to free itself recklessly paying the war costs."

PRYN MAWR, Pa., Dec. 15 (C.P.). —Clothes do make the woman. So states The College News of Bryn Mawr College in a scathing attack on sloppily-dressed women on the campus.

An editorial entitled "tsk! tsk!" calling attention to "laziness and carelessness," the News assails the student body, and asks them to "remember that college is not a shambles, but a dignified institution." Said the editorial:

"Clothes might be sent to the cleaners, buttons might be sewn on and hair might be brushed without any serious reflection being cast on the Bryn Mawr intellect.

"Visitors to the campus are confronted on all sides by the intellectuals with fingernails suffering from intimate contact with the good earth and hair resembling that of an East Indian native after a hard day in the rice fields and clothes that would have brought shame down upon a Belgian refugee.

"The present Bryn Mawr attitude toward dress reveals only an appalling ignorance of the fitness of things and a mistaken conception concerning the qualities of genius. We can and must make an attempt to improve the general appearance of the student body."

A prompt reply from the faculty declared the women dressed as well as other college women, and said there was "no cause or desire for any faculty action in the matter."

December Bride

PAYLESS CHRISTMAS SEEN FOR SANDWICH TEACHERS

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 15 (C.P.) —Teachers in Sandwich may face a payless Christmas unless Essex County pays the Board of Education due for county pupils attending the Sandwich High School and for other purposes.

The board has instructed its secretary to advise the committee of supervisors, town council and department of education, hoping some plan will be possible to circumvent the situation. Monday night the Walkerville Board of Education sent a notice to the county asking $24,805 be paid immediately, covering the tuition of county pupils in the collegiate.

Mental Hazards

ALBANY, N.Y., Dec. 17 (AP)

Nagging wives and bill collectors lower the efficiency of airplane pilots, says Dr. Wade H. Miller of Kansas City, one of the pilot examiners for American airways, Inc.

Dr. Miller, stopping in Albany to examine passenger plane pilots, said that recent research had disclosed the tremendous importance of mental hazards caused by worries.

"Bill collectors, debts or garnishments can make a man less fit" hes aid, "and so can a scolding wife or one who wants to call up every hour to check up on her husband's movements."

OSHAWA'S EXAMPLE.

Following up what The Examiner said last night in regard to the necessity of building up a relief fund through the medium of public subscriptions it is interesting to note that Oshawa, hard hit by the depression, has gone magnificently over the top in a drive for such a fund.

The objective aimed at was $25,000, but the citizens of the Motor City have already oversubscribed this amount by $8,000 and there is reason to believe that the final total will be $40,000 which, with Government augmentation, will give Oshawa a fund of some $120,000 to take care of the hundreds of families at present in distress.

Furthermore it is planned to augment this fund throughout the winter by a series of relief events and various bodies are being asked to co-operate toward that end so that Oshawa's needy families can be fed and sheltered without putting the burden on the taxpayers.

That is the proper method.

To throw the whole obligation upon the taxpayers when many of the latter are close to the relief line themselves is only aggravating the situation and totally ignoring the generous impulses of those financially able and entirely willing to make an adequate contribution towards voluntarily raised relief fund.

This is an aspect of the relief situation that must be kept to the front if the problem is to be handled in a manner that will bring the most effective results and divide the burden in the most equitable way.

PETTY FAULT-FINDING.

In connection with the present call for good men to come forward to fill vacancies on various civic bodies The Examiner has already referred to the fact that one drawback to people entering public service is the knowledge that they can count on an undue amount of criticism.

This point is stressed by the Oshawa Times in the following editorial reference:

"When approached to become candidates for public office, many men decline on the ground that they will not stand for office to become the butt for criticisms from all and sundry. They know, from the experience of others, that the man who is trying to serve his community on public bodies is usually criticized on the street corners and by gatherings of those whom they are serving. That has been just as true in Oshawa as it has been in other communities, particularly in the last year or two, and many of those who have been criticized were entitled to nothing but hearty commendation for their efforts on behalf of the city."

It is evident that conditions in this respect are the same everywhere and that those who serve the public are more often assailed than they are praised for their efforts.

However, in times like these we submit that this petty fault-finding should be overlooked and that the call to service is grave enough to cause patriotic citizens to think only of the opportunity for service.

At the same time it might be suggested that those who make a practise of criticizing everything that public bodies do—would be doing the community a good turn by refraining from unnecessary complaints.

THE MIDNIGHT SHOW.

It is to be hoped that the midnight relief show to be staged at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow night will enjoy the same liberal patronage accorded this event in other years.

Every cent taken in at this decidedly worthwhile entertainment will be devoted to relief purposes, this one hundred per cent. result being made possible by reason of the fact that everybody connected with the effort has donated his or her services.

Through the kindness of Famous Players and of Manager Jack Stewart the theatre and the picture program have been donated free of charge, the ushers and other members of the theatre staff are contributing thir services, those taking part in the stage show are doing so without any charge and the advertising and tickets have been supplied by The Examiner.

This splendid co-operation makes it possible to devote the entire proceeds to relief purposes; the receipts are to be divided among the Salvation Army, the Canadian Legion, the Catholic Women's League, and The Examiner Relief Fund, four organizations which will use the money thus raised for the alleviation of distress caused by unemployment.

The program is a most excellent one, the cause entirely worthy of generous support and this combination should be enough to ensure a capacity audience at the Capitol tomorrow night.

TO AVOID THE "FLU."

An epidemic of influenza has been raging for some time in Northern Ontario and it is probable will sweep through all sections of the Province before long.

While fortunately it has not developed the virulent nature that marked "flu' e'pidemics of other years, the type now prevalent in the centres of New Ontario is very infectious and has confined large numbers of people to bed, playing havoc with business staffs and sharply reducing school attendance.

In the very likely event that this influenza outbreak will visit Peterborough it would be well for our citizens to read and observe the following ten precautions just issued in a special bulletin of the Ontario Safety League which offer a fair chance to escape influenza and colds:

1. Avoid temperatures of over 70 degrees in your working and dwelling rooms (providing manufacturing processes permit). See that the humidity is between 40 and 60.

2. Avoid over-eating Include plenty of milk, orange juice, leafy vegetables, eggs and salads in your diet throught the winter.

4. See that you get the proper amount of rest and sleep every day.

4. Avoid persons who cough and sneeze at you.

5. See that both kidneys and bowels are working well each day.

6. Drink at least six glasses of water daily besides what liquids you use at your meals.

7. Accustom your skin to changes of temperature by dressing according to the weather, and by taking cool shower baths every morning if you can arrange it

8. If possible, arrange to get artificial sunshine through ultra-violet ray exposure, during the winter.

9. If you find your throat sore or your nose running, take a teaspoonful of baking soda in a glass of water three times a day, and add more milk and oranges to your diet.

10. Wash your hands with soap and hot water before each meal and keep the fingers away from the mouth and nose.

INFLATION AND THE WAGE EARNER.

(From the Border Cities Star.)

Inflation of the Canadian currency and deflation of the value of the Canadian dollar has become a common topic of conversation. The theory is adadvanced as one means of getting Canada back to prsoperity. From the platforms, on the streets, and in the clubs, men are discussing inflation and what it would do. The idea has its champions and its opponents.

Canada has already inflated her currency by $35,000,000, but the inflationists want more. Also in terms of the United States dollar our currency has been inflated until the value of our dollar is down by 15 per cent. or more.

There is one group of men and women in Canada who would be hit hard by inflation. It is the large body of those who work for small salaries or wages. And, as a large percentage of the families of Canada depend upon salary workers or wage earners for their bread and butter, inflation would deal them a severe blow.

It is true that supporters of inflation say they are working for the "little fellows," as they call them. Such is not the result when inflation is allowed to run its unhampered course. It brings hardship to those getting small pay, and it brings ruin to that great bulk of the people, to whom many refer as the "middle class," the ones with homes of their own a car, radio, electric washing machines, and such other household aids and enjoyments.

To understand how inflation hits the salaried men and women and the wage earners it is necessary to realize that when the currency is inflated there is a consequent deflation of the dollar. In other words, as the currency is increased, so does the purchasing power of the dollar decrease. You may have a lot more dollars, but the larger number of dollars will not buy any more than the smaller number of dollars did prior to inflation.

Take for example a man earning $35 per week. He gets that $35 and it has a purchasing power of $35. But, supposing the currency is inflated on a ratio of 2 to 1. Some advocates of inflation want it 3 to 1, or even more. But, let us say 2 to 1 for the purpose of illustration.

What happens to the man getting $35 a week when 2 to 1 inflation of the currency is made? At once the value of the dollar is deflated. Instead of having a purchasing power of $35, the money has only a purchasing power of $17.50. So the man really finds that his weekly pay cheque has been cut in half when it comes to buying goods. Certainly, he still gets $35 per week, but he can no longer buy goods worth $35 with the money.

Backers of inflation rush forward to say that salaries and wages will increase. Perhaps so, but they will not go up in anything like the proportion to which the purchasing power of the dollar will go down.

What happens when inflation comes? The man on salary or wages keeps working away. At the end of the week he draws his pay cheque. He takes his $35 out to the stores to buy.

But, in the meantime, the storekeeper has been busy. He knows the perils of inflation. So ne has come down early in the morning, as soon as inflation begins, and where an article is marked $1, he simply takes out his pencil, strokes out the $1 and marks the ticket $2 instead. He has no intention of carrying the load of inflation. He will protect his profits and make the salaried man or the wage earner carry the load.

You say this will not happen. All right, let us go back to the war days in Canada. Men on salaries and wages in those years can tell a sad tale of the costs of living. While their salaries and wages went up, the increases were never anything like the proportion in which the costs of goods soared. Ask any salaried man about his experiences in Canada during the war!! He can tell you that the manufacturers with their price-raising pencils were always several jumps ahead of the increases in the pay cheques.

Inflation would bring a similar chain of circumstances in its wake, while wages and salaries were stationary or going up slowly, the prices of things in the stores and factories would be increasing by leaps and bounds. The industrialists and merchants would be able to keep up with or ahead of inflation by making the salaried man and wage earner pay through the nose. The man on $35 a week would find his REAL WAGES cut to $17.50 a week, and he would be the one to bear the burden. The salaried man or wage earner would be left holding the bag

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of, etc.

Belgium says she can't pay the December quota of her war debt and France says she won't—so that December 15th is not pay day in the case of these two countries.

According to Agnes MacPhail, M.P., currency inflation will cure most of our economic ills, but Canada's woman member of Parliament doesn't mention the possibility of the cure killing the patient.

The Otonabee River has staged an early winter flood which may or may not mean something to the weather prophets.

Automobile cases constitute a considerabl portion of the docket at every assizes. It is not on record that the old time buggy ever caused so much trouble for the court.

A TAX ON MILK!

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Sir,—An ancient writer said that there was no proposition so foolish but that some philosophers could be found to advocate it. This applies to many ill-digested theories of the present day, and apparently to some more material things, for instance, the proposal to put a tax of $25 on milk-dealers in a neighboring town.

I do not know anything of the local circumstances in Hastings, whether there is a milk-war afoot, nor by whom or for what interests the proposal is made—nor do these questions matter—nor am I in any way affected by the price of milk. But there are three overwhelming objections to the tax, which I wish to point out.

(1) This is the most vicious principle of taxation which can be imagined. Why should the local authority, represented by individuals who sell (say) clocks, hats, radios, insurance, or sausages, impose a tax on individuals who are engaged in selling another commodity, viz., milk? Has the local authority power to impose a tax which hits only one particular trade? If so, the power ought to be taken away by law.

(2) Milk is the very last thing which ought to be taxed. It is the most necessary article of diet, and should, if only for the sake of children, be available at the lowest price which gives a fair return to the producer and distributor. One of the most pathetic stories I have heard is of a small poor child in a hospital who was given a cup of milk to drink, and who paused, with the cup at her lips, to ask, "May I drink to the bottom of the cup?"

(3) Apparently it is proposed to put an equal $25 tax on each dealer, independent of the quantity which he sells. This is grossly unfair, and would tend to eliminate the small man altogether. If a tax is to be levied on milk the only reasonable way is to levy it by the gallon, so that it would fall equally on the big and little men.

But the whole proposal is preposterous, and if it were carried out it would call for the immediate intervention of the Minister of Health, or whoever carries out his duties.

Yours etc.,
J. F. M.

THE OXFORD GROUPS

This latest religious movement, a revival of the "Return of First Century Christianity" movement, which fell by the board in the United States after its sponsors were turned out of Princeton University, has certainly taken this country by storm....newspaper publicity, no doubt, is partly responsible....but even the newspapers probably would not have given the meetings such a big play if that Montreal man hadn't come across with his $12,200 conscience money to the Dominion department of commerce for duty on goods he had smuggled into Canada from other countries without paying the duty....that was a good news story, and gave the Oxford movement an early impetus....

Every day there are evidences that its influence is being felt.... an official of the Ontario government tells of going to Ottawa and engaging in conversation with a young man on official matters.... at the termination of the conversation the young man, explaining that he was a newspaper reporter, asked if the facts of the interview might be published...."You know," he is said to have exclaimed, "two weeks ago I would not have told you I was a newspaperman....but since this Oxford Group came to Ottawa I am a different man."

Some Canadian preachers, thinking, no doubt, that the Oxford Group was treading on their toes ....commanding overflow meetings in communities where the local clergymen had been laboring conscientiously for years....sometimes among dwindling congregations.... felt that the new movement would have the effect of still further decreasing church attendance....but on the whole the church seems inclined to regard the movement with sympathy....and many of our most prominent clergymen are lending their whole-hearted support to the cause.

The group, in fact, has already made history in Canada....has established the precedent of pretty young girls appearing in Church of England pulpits in gay evening gowns....and men in dress suits confessing their sins from behind altars, where formerly only surpliced theologians were permitted to dispense the rites of the church.

Canadians are not going to be carried away by the name of the movement. . . . . "Oxford" signifies close association with one of the highest centres of culture in the British Empire .... and through many of its exponents are Oxford graduates, the movement had its origin in the United States.

DEPARTMENT STORE THEFTS

We had often wondered why the large department store did not hale more people into court for stealing merchandise .... thefts of small articles from counters must run into hundreds daily....and then we learned that the big stores have a system all their own....when a culprit is discovered he or she (those of the latter category are in the majority), is taken into a special office and requested to sign a pledge to the effect that the thief will not enter the store again for a certain period....say a year or two years....and the collection of names gathered in this way includes many members of society, the occasional absent-minded professor who makes off with pencils and erasers, and the wives of a few well-known businessmen.

There might be less crime in Canada if the department of justice followed the lead of Italy's Premier Benito Mussolini and compelled prisoners who had the money, to pay their expenses while being kept in jail.

WHO LAUGHED LAST?

The persistence of reporters in trailing Canada's prime minister, R. B. Bennett, to ask him about his rumored impending marriage, has placed Mr. Bennett in an embarrasing position....but not nearly so embarrassing as the position of some of the reporters when Mr. Bennett quietly reminded them that it wasn't etiquette for the gentleman in the case to make the formal announcements of matrimonial events....but he agreed it was all right for him to deny the rumors of impending nuptials.

There is some doubt as to whether Canadian minister to Washington, Hon. W. D. Herridge's statement that Canada will let up on her restrictions governing export of liquor to the United States, if the latter continues to ruthlessly seize British cargoes of liquor, will be regarded in Uncle Sam's territory as a threat or a promise.

REPEATING DECIMALS!

"LIFE," said the Pessimist to me, "is a repeating decimal."

"What do you mean—a repeating decimal?"

"You know what I mean," said he. "Back in your school days, you'd divide a number like 60 into another number like 100,000 and you'd get 1,666.66666666 and you could keep it up all day and all night and never get anything but a long line of 6's. That was a repeating decimal, and I mean that, life is like that."

"Does it depress you?"

"Certainly it depresses me," said the Pessimist, "and why shouldn't it? Life is one thing after another. After every meal you have to do the dishes. After every pleasure comes a dull pain. After every joy is regret. In all happiness is the germ of melancholy. The good die young, or they live long and the good dies out of them. These gay young people you see all around you will be old and weary and disheartened some day. It goes on and on like a repeating decimal and it makes me sad."

"I don't see why it should. If life were the same always, then you might feel depressed, but not otherwise. You ought to be happy over the thought that things change, that there is contrast in life. After you've had a headache you feel much better; the sense of impending loss sharpens the joy of possession, life is a throbing pulsation, and though you lost something forever when youth goes, you ought to gain something else that youth can never enjoy.

"It doesn't hurt me to think of life as a repeating decimal that repeats itself until infinity. That 'infinity' is a far horizon that fascinates more than it terrifies. I like to think of an endless existence with lives following still others and of ourselves being ancestors of all those unknown people of the future."

"I'm afraid you're an optimist."

"So are you, or you wouldn't get out of bed in the morning and you wouldn't lace your shoes and you wouldn't care what you have for dinner and you wouldn't get so much fun out of abusing life."

"Oh, yeah?"

"Oh, yeah."

Pre-War Lady

A ROMANCE by Margaret Widdemer

There were no sad memories about the big wooden Hudson-River-Bracketted mansion. It was merely the house next-door of childhood, a place always known casually to a child. They put her in one of the enormous square guest rooms she remembered as occupied by grown-up ladies visiting Miss Myra or this Esther's pretty young mother. Miss Myra's precise muslined taste still ruled the white-ruffled windows, the pink-lined dressing table, the marseilles spread on the high-crowned mahogany bed. Even the tall cut-glass cologne bottles still stood on either side of the drop-front bureau, empty as they had been since the memory of man, and pink-ribboned little kittens. The big hand-carved mahogany wardrobe stood open to receive her clothes as it had stood open in their days for hoops and polonaises and bustles and leg-o'-mutton sleeves and Gibson shirtwaists and hobble skirts and straight brief war-tunics. Only Esther, wise brown sprite, darting in and out after she had established Miss Myra in a corner armchair, was strange. She threw open the door of what had been a dressing room, and showed a bath.

"It took Roger and me plus brute force to get this house properly bathroomed," she said, patting her grand-aunt casually as she passed her. "As for the swimming pool, you'd have thought George Washington had slept on every inch of turf we dug up. But Myra's a good egg, she likes it now, don't you, Myra?"

Miss Myra smiled benignly.

"She had the men digging before I knew a thing," she said proudly, "and the pump in and working in ten days."

A horn blew below the window; Emilia, leaning there, saw a flash of long tornado-shaped yellow car off which the sun reflected no less than off the polished black head of a youngster in a polo shirt, off his white-metaled wristwatch, his upthrown brown arm with its gold-ringed little finger. The picture, with its sharp contrasting planes of shiny color, held a moment in the raw sunlight, then broke as Esther ran to the window, flung herself half over the sill and screamed, "Hold it! Down in two minutes!"

She made for the door like a terrier; checked, turned, said with her sudden wise gravity, "Now don't string each other up with too much Sad Past. Emilia has to sing tonight. I won't be back for dinner, Myra, but Chester has orders to be at the door for Emilia at eight."

Esther ran the household, that was plain. Was she a little hard? And then Emilia decided that it was a hardness more of mannerism than reality. No, the child who went to sit and think of Robin in the dark among the roses was as romantic as any adolescent of her own day. She was simpler, more stripped for action, that was all.

Emilia and Miss Myra smiled across at each other. Then Emilia sat down on the window seat by her, braced for what emotionality Miss Myra chose to give. But the kind old warrior, leaning back, only said simply, "That's the boy she's going around with just now. They pair off like ark animals, then change just as suddenly. This is one of the Landons from Morristown. The one till two months ago was an Italian college boy. His father's a bootlegger, they say—they bought the old Van Cott estate. Well, it was better than having it turned into a school or convent, like so many of them now.

"It all frightened me, at first, but Esther is its good side," said Emilia gently. (How strange it was, too, to be talking to Miss Myra on a plane of equality!)

"You're not a bit changed, dear," Miss Myra said irrelevantly. "You don't look a day older. Oh, darling, I don't want to stir you all up if you have to sing tonight, but do tell me why you did it. Where were you all this time?"

Emilia went over again the short phrased story.

"My poor child. I suppose you could call it shellshock. Well, we'll talk about it later if you feel able. If you'd like to, that is." She looked wistfully at Emilia, and said no more except, "It was sweet of you to come stay with me, dear."

Stranger than anything that had happened to her since her return was the experience of having luncheon opposite Miss Myra, as she had done so many times as a child: handling the heavy ornate Victorian silver, the big satiny damask napkins with the familiar poppy pattern, the Coalport luncheon plates with the bright little long-tailed birds and flattened flowers: facing the darkened portrait of a Jeffersonian Scarlett, in his black tail coat and lace ruffles and Roger's ice-blue eyes in a narrower face, as she had faced it from her seat whenever they had dined next door since she was able to sit up at the table with grown people.

"I lie down after luncheon always now, Esther makes me," said Miss Myra. "I'm not as young as I used to be. Would you like to rest, dear?"

But Emilia was not tired.

"I'll go out and walk in the grounds," she said.

She knew that ghosts would walk with her; but they would be kind ghosts. Roger and Robin, running on either side of her, shouting boys. And her own little flaxen-maned ghost, perhaps, in a rose-colored corduroy coat and buttoned shoes.

She went out by the side veranda, across the lawn, where the swimming pool shone in the sunlight. There was a curlicued wooden summerhouse down by the river wall on the Scarlett side. She sat there for a long time and watched the river. The inescapable river she remembered from the time she was born; brown and wide and lazily swift, it went past and went past. It did not make her unhappy, now. She was soothed, watching it.

Presently she rose; sooner or later she must do it; she would do it now, on this pleasant sunny afternoon with a glittering wind down the water, making the lilac hedge dance as she passed through the gap to her father's place.

It was all fresh and well-kept in the summer sunlight. The lawns were close cut as they had been in her father's day, the borders and the flower beds were bright. The long path to the water, edged with tall rose bushes, was better kept than she remembered it. A couple of brisk young women in blue cotton uniforms, white-capped and white-aproned, walked down to the water as she stood hesitating in the gap. Another, pushing a wheel chair, crossed the lawn to an awning near the woods on the other side, where she perceived other wheel chairs with men in them. They were chatting to each other, some were playing cards; one or two were reading. Of course—Esther had told her; it had been left for a summer home for invalid soldiers. For a moment the hot resentment of one whose heritage had been taken flooded her. And then as she stood in the gap, watching, one of the men lifted his face and looked curiously across at her. And in that moment her resentment died, and she knew she could never have it otherwise than it was, for he was one of her brother's men.

She slipped back through the gap. Soon, tomorrow maybe, she would pass through again in the sunshine and talk to him. He would remember Robin. But not now.

"I've been over to our place," she told Miss Myra quietly, finding her out on her own veranda: "I want to go again, tomorrow, when I'm more settled in, and talk to them."

"That's a good girl. Roger said you would take it that way," Miss Myra said approvingly. "He spends a good deal of time there. They love him, of course. It's as much of their regiment, you know, as needs it. Perhaps later you might sing to them. They haven't much amusement, you know, most people forget about them. They're a great resource to me."

Indeed Miss Myra would have been lost without them, being as sa lly without a purpose in life as any other reformer whose reforms have succeeded.

"But you'll want a fairly early dinner, if the car is to be ready at eight," she went on. Emilia started. She had nearly forgotten Windward Gardens. She talked with the old lady a little longer, and then went upstairs to dress in her costume for the evening.

A THOUGHT

YOUTH AND WAR

From The Onward

An undergraduate student, appointed to be spokesman for his group in the cause of peace said:

"We never cease to ask, Were those ten million young men, who loved life as whole-heartedly as ourselves, the victims of an illusion when they fell to earth only a few years ago? Must the insanity known as war be repeated within our generation at the cost of our lives? Most important, what is to be our answer to the government in case of mobilization for war?

"We students are literally fighting for our rlives. I stand before you as attorney for the defence, pleading for a reprieve. It is my generation which will be called upon to surrender all we consider worth while in life, in order to become targets for machine-gun bullets and victims for the latest poisonous gas. It is the young men and women of my age who will be commanded to commit suicide. It is my generation which will be requested to destroy the best of human culture, perhaps civilization itself, for causes which future historians will discover to be erroneous, if not utterly stupid or actually vicious. We have thus lost interest n being prepared for cannon fodder.

"Staring down at us is the spectre of death. We desire to live and to ive at peace. We desire to construct a world society providing freedom, equal opportunity and a sense of security. We desire to make possible for every human being full deevlopment of personality in terms of the highest human and spiritual values we know.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Dec. 15. (CP)— Influenced by good export business worked in Canadian wheat overnight and firm cables, wheat prices scored fractional gains in early trading here to-day. Offerings from the start were quite liberal and values shortly after opening eased and for the balance of the first hour held at levels around the previous close.

At md-session prices were holding steady at levels unchanged to ¼ lower. December sold at 42¼; May at 44⅞ and July at 46.

Bulk of the selling came in the nature of hedging and liquidation, while most of the support was credited to sea-board houses. Trading was not active and operations between here and the southern markets were again uninteresting.

Liverpool wheat moved within a narrow range and quotations in the final stages were unchanged to ⅛c higher, while noon quotations at Buenos Aires were unchanged to ⅛c lower.

Black Sea wheat shipments for the past week totalled 500,000 bushels, all of which was of Russian origin. Clearances from the Argentine for the week are estimated at slightly over 1,000,000 bushels.

RELIEF COMMITTEE NOTES.

In the report of the meeting of the Central Charity Board in last evening's Examiner, it stated that rentals and medical bills should not exceed 40 per cent. of the total disbursement. This might be misleading, as shelter, clothing, bedding, medical attention, and boots and shoes all come within the 40 per cent. allowed for these purposes with food and fuel making up the balance, 60 per cent. Then again at the meetings of the Committee it is not intended to hear individual complaints, if any; these should be sent in by letter.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO EXCHANGE

TORONTO, December 15 (C.P.).—Stocks put up a firm front to-day on the Toronto Stock Exchange, but trading was not fast enough to cause any dizziness. Now that the war debt question has been shelved for a time the market sluggishness is blamed on the holiday season.

Buying was a little heavier than usual in Brazilian, and the stock closed ⅜c up at 9½. C.P.R. was nearly a half point better and fair buying in Nickel caused a gain of ⅛.

In the oil group, B.A. continued the active leader in volume and the quotation was a fraction firmer at 7⅞. Imperial was also slightly stronger, while International Pete showed a net gain of ⅛.

The beverage group, Canada Malting, selling ex-dividend 37½c, was half a point lower, while Canada Bud Breweries and Walker's Common chalked up moderate gains.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (C.P.). — Stocks were steady and dull in the late trading to-day, having lost most of a first hour advance. U.S. Steel issues were somewhat heavy and American Telephone was down slightly, but small gains were the rule in Union Pacific, Consolidated Gas, Case and American Can. Aviation Corp., in a substantial turnover, firmed a point. Allied Chemical, General Motors, Santa Fe and Chrysler were virtually unchanged. Sales approximated 1,100,000 shares.

BURNS AWAITS EXTRADITION

Author of Recent Book is Being Held as Fugitive From Justice.

APPEALS TO GOVERNOR.

NEWARK, N.Y., Dec. 15.—(A.P.)—Robert Elliott Burns, chain gang fugitive from Georgia, was held in $25,000 bail to-day to await extradition to the south. The amount of bail was fixed after argument between Burns' counsel and Police Judge Harold Simande.

TRENTON, N.J., Dec. 15.—(C.P.)—Governor A. Harry Moore to-day announced he would hear "on its merits," the case of Robert E. Burns, arrested in Newark as a fugitive from justice in Georgia.

Burns, author of a recent book and photoplay depicting alleged conditions in a Georgia chain gang from which he twice escaped, appealed to the Governor during the summer for assistance. Should the Georgia authorities attempt to return him to prison.

"I will hear the case on its merits," said Gov. Moore.

"Until I have had the facts formally presented to me I cannot say what my decision will be. The situation is somewhat unusual. Georgia has not submitted a requisition for Burns' return to my office."

Mr. Moore reiterated that Burns' statements that he had been guaranteed protection from the Georgia authorities were untrue.

"I have made no promise not to return Burns. However, he has probably served enough time for his offense, which I understand was minor."

GOOD REPORT YEAR'S WORK

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Over seventy members of the W.M.S. of George Street United Church were present yesterday afternoon at their regular meeting, held in the board room of the Sunday School Hall. As this was the Christmas meeting, the program and hymns were of an appropriate nature. A vocal duet, "Silent Night," was rendered by Mrs. S. Wildman and Miss Elma Coon, accompanied by Mrs. D. Howat. Miss Lancaster read a Christmas story.

Announcement was made of the coming Presbyterial to be held in George Street United Church on Jan. 17th and 18th and the serving of dinners was discussed. The matter was left in the hands of the incoming executive, with the president as convenor. The registration of the delegates to be looked after by Mrs. Burch.

Deep regret at the passing of one of the active members of the Society in the person of Miss McCamus was expressed, and it was decided to hold a short memorial service in her honor at the next meeting. Mrs. J. W. Hales for the sick and visiting committee reported 79 calls made during the past month.

Mrs. Hatherley, secretary for the Missionary Monthly, reported a decrease of subscriptions for the coming year.

The secretary, Mrs. J. A. Spencer, gave a fine report of the work accomplished, and after the collection of the envelopes the treasurer, Mrs. H. Dulmage, announced that the Society had reached their allocation for the year.

A recommendation was received from the executive, that each group select its own leader and was unanimously approved.

An interesting feature of the program was the presentation of two life membership certificates, Group F presenting Mrs. W. Flannery with one. Mrs. Morton, on behalf of the group, speaking of the assistance Mrs. Flannery had given for several years in different capacities in the group's work, and Mrs. J. M. Fanning presented the certificate.

Mrs. W. J. Copp was presented by Group A with a life membership, the address being given by Mrs. H. Dulmage, and the presentation made by Mrs. McKee.

Rev. J. E. J. Millyard took the chair for the election of officers.

The report of the nominating committee was presented by Mrs. A. I. Brown, and on motion adopted.

Hon. Presidents—Mrs. J. E. J. Millyard and Mrs. A. I. Brown.

Past President—Mrs. S. R. Armstrong.

President—Mrs. E. W. Coon.

WEXFORD CURLERS WIN IN EXTRA END

Qualifying Play Will Be Completed in Thauburn Bonspiel To-day.

TORONTO, Dec. 15. — (CP) — Qualifying play will be completed today in the annual Thomas Thauburn Memorial Trophy Bonspiel which opened here Monday. In all 64 rinks from all parts of Ontario have viewed with each other to determine the "eights" to meet tomorrow for possession of the primary and secondary honors. Only one extra-end game has been played so far, with Joe Crozier's Wexford rink defeating George McVicar's High Park quartette. At the completion of the stipulated 12 ends today, the score was eight-all.

But Wexford came strongly in the extra and scoring a big four count to win easily. Charles Snow with his Toronto Curling Club gang beat Ed Seagram's Waterloo rink.

Obituary

Abraham Low, well-known business man of this city, died suddenly in Nicholl's Hospital last evening. He had been ill for several months. Born in Austria, he came to Peterborough 30 years ago and engaged in several branches of business. For some years he has resided at the corner of Brock and Stewart streets.

He is survived by his sorrowing widow and one son, Jacob, who was recently called to the Bar and who is now practicing in this city.

The body was taken today to Toronto for interment.

FERRY ARRIVES 12 HOURS LATE

ANCHORED OFF SCARBORO.

COBOURG, Ont., Dec. 15 (C.P.)—After being buffeted for 12 hours by heavy winds and battered by the turbulent Lake Ontario, the car ferry Ontario No. 2 docked here today. She had been anchored at Port Union, 60 miles off her course, awaiting the gale to subside.

Three weary passengers disembarked when the boat docked. They are James McAlpine, Picton, and Mr. and Mrs. John Collins, of Rochester. While declaring it was the roughest trip in their experience, they said they were comfortable and not unduly alarmed.

Huge Trout Rearing Plant In Operation

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 15 (C.P.)—The huge speckled-trout rearing station in Tarentorous Township, five miles from here, is in operation to-day, and the plant, one of the largest and most efficient on the continent, will this year plant 3,500,000 fingerlings in the streams and lakes of Ontario.

Eggs to supply this enormous number of fish will hatch at the institution in a couple of weeks, then all but 1,500,000 of them will be removed to other Provincial hatcheries at Kenora, Pembroke, Wiarton, Glenora and Codrington.

PARENTS SLAIN YOUTH INJURED

Police Discovered Tragedy After Lad Rushes to Market in His Pajamas.

HAMMER, KNIFE USED.

NEWTON, Mass., Dec. 15 (A.P.)—The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jonah were found in their beds to-day in their home in the Newtonville section. They had apparently been beaten to death with a hammer and their throats slashed. Their son, Robert, 19, was taken into custody. His wrist was broken as if it had been struck by a hammer.

The double tragedy was revealed when the son ran into a neighboring market and cried out that he had been hurt. Young Jonah was clad only in his pyjamas. The proprietor of the market summoned police and Jonah was taken to the Newton Hospital.

Policemen question the boy at the hospital, then hurried to his home. There they found the bodies of his parents. Police said they learned that Mr. Jonah had recently been ill.

recently undergone an operation and was still in a weak state of health as a result.

Francis A. Hully, who was also convicted and sentenced along with Arthur Gilders for breaking and entering Prince of Wales School, was also brought up from the cells to testify in the case against Killingbeck.

Both witnesses related the theft by them some time during August last of a diamond ring from the office of Walter M. Fowlds at Hastings. The ring they testified had been given by them to the accused in the hope that he might be able to dispose of it.

Brothers Testify

Fred and Henry Gilders, brothers of the stricken witness were also called to testify against the accused.

Immediately prior to his collapse in the witness box Arthur Gilders was being examined by defence counsel as to his conception of the difference between lying to the police and the statements which he was then making in the witness box.

Witness replied that when he lied to the police he had done so in the knowledge that if he had told the truth he would have rendered himself liable to imprisonment. He was telling the truth in the witness box, he stoutly maintained, because if he were in the place of the accused he would not want anyone to lie about himself.

"Was any suggestion made to you that if you assisted in getting the stolen diamonds back.... Mr. O'Brien's sentence remained uncompleted.... a crash resounded throughout the court room and the witness measured his length on the floor.

Many of the newer dresses for evening are fashioned of chiffon—a charming revival.

Col. MacChesney was born in Chicago and is 54 years old.

Must Have Senate Approval.

His apointment must be ratified by a Senate which has shown a disinclination to approve the President's nominees.

It comes at an interesting moment in Canadian-American affairs when the St. Lawrence waterway treaty recently negotiated by the Canadian minister, Hon. Wm. Duncan Herridge and Col. Hanford MacNider, United States' minister resigned, is about ready to come before the Senate for ratisfication.

Observers note in passing that Col. MacChesney comes from Chicago, a section of the country which has been opposed to ratification because of the clauses contained in the treaty calling for regulation of Chicago's diversion of the waters of Lake Michigan.

If his omination is approved by the Senate Col. MacChesney would according to custom hold office until the change of administration in Washington March 4 next. On this date all heads of foreign missions will submit their resignations subject to the convenience of the incoming administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Hoover's Friend.

MacChesney has long been a friend of the President and is a frequent White House visitor.

He attended Stanford University at about the same time as Mr. and Mrs. Hoover.

After practicing law for many years in Chicago, he was named a special assistant to the Attorney-General in 1911, and later acted as counsel for the Senate in its investigation of the U. S. veterans' bureau and of rents in the district of Columbus.

He was Judge Advocate of the General Headquarters of the American Expeditionary Forces and was decorated by the United States and other countries. He has been General counsel for Siam since 1924.

SENATOR ROSS DIES AT COAST

Has Been Member of the Red Chamber Since 1904.

PIONEER OF THE WEST.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Dec. 15. — Senator Ross, whose death yesterday was reported from Victoria, was the founder of this prairie city. One of a party of four, Senator Ross came here from the Red River Settlement, near Winnipeg, in 1882.

Before coming here he had operated a lumber mill near Selkirk, Man., and farmed near Winnipeg. He was first elected to the old Northwest Territories Assembly in 1883, and was Treasurer, Commissioner of Public Works and Territorial Secretary.

In 1901 he was appointed Commissioner to the Yukon, and elected first member of the House of Commons from the Yukon, Dec. 2, 1902. He was summoned to the Senate, Sept. 30, 1904.

life" the judge solemnly reminded him, "and the jury have taken an extremely merciful view of the case. In one respect I am glad they did take a merciful attitude, and in another respect I regret it. It will be liable to give other child truck driver's the idea that they can go out onto the highways of this Province without a proper regard to the rights of other people" he said.

The defence of the accused was conducted by the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C. He was absent when the jury filed into court with their verdict and had asked Mr. O'Brien to act in his behalf.

Mr. O'Brien moved for formal dismissal of the prisoner, after the jury had made their verdict known.

Georges Gauthier, Archbishop-Coadjutor, at present in Paris.

Those to be ordained Deacons include Alfred Aubert, Sherbrooke; Angus Kerr, Alexandria, Ont., and Charles Carrigan, London, Ont.

Philippe Breen, Haileybury, Ont., will be ordained sub-deacon.

Last minor orders will be conferred upon Jules Pelchat, Apostolic Vicariate of Northern Ontario.

First minor orders will be received by Charles McColgan, Hamilton and Francis Rennick, Pembroke, Ont.

Officers Elected For Twilight Circle

The annual meeting of the Twilight Mission Circle of George St. Methodist Church was held in the Sunday School Hall, proceeded by the regular supper meeting.

The secretary and treasurer's reports read by Miss Ethel Mills and Miss Evelyn Routley showed a successful year's work.

A Life Membership was conferred upon Miss Helen Burns, a former president and last year the secretary, who has recently been transferred to Oshawa.

A report of the tea and sale of home-made cooking held at the home of Mrs. J. E. J. Millyard was given by Mrs. MacMillian.

Miss Florence Glenny read an interesting Christmas story.

Announcement was made of the coming Presbyterial and the Circle accepted an invitation to put on a play for Tuesday evening, Jan. 17th.

The superintendents, Mrs. H. Dulmage and Mrs. W. MacMillian were re-elected and Mrs. Dulmage took the chair for the election of officers, which resulted in the following being elected for 1933:

President—Miss Evelyn Miller.

Vice-President — Miss Grace Burns.

Secretary—Miss Ethel Mills.

Treasurer—Miss Evelyn Routley.

Supply Secretary—Miss Margaret Taylor.

Group Leaders — Miss Grace Cunningham and Miss Irene Cox.

Pianist—Miss Florence Glenny.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Miss Margaret Taylor's group was in charge of the supper arrangements and Miss Florence Glenny's group in charge of the program.

Error Nearly Puts Girl in Uniform

NAPLES, Italy, Dec. 15. (AP) Giuseppa Pastore, 21 years old and pretty, almost got drafted into the army because some one made a mistake when she was an infant.

A policeman knocked at the Pastore home with a warrant.

"Giuseppe Pastore does not exist," said the girl. "I am Giuseppa Pastore."

That was too much for the policeman. He arrested the girl. At the station-house, however, two hours of rapid-fire Neapolitan conversation, established the fact that a careless vital statistics clerk, 21 years ago, changed Giuseppa's sex by writing an "E" for an "A".

was being done in connection with the debt, since the present ministry is merely carrying on current affairs.

Britain Pays.

LONDON, Dec. 15 (C.P.).—Great Britain to-day paid its war debt instalment of $95,550,000 in gold to the United States. Newspapers flared full page banner lines heralding the fact that "Britain pays."

The transaction was characterized as the biggest deal ever carried out in a single day by the Bank of England, and lunch hour crowds around the bank at the noon hour, particularly in the little plaza before the Royal Exchange across the street from the bank seemed larger and more interested in what was going on behind the prison-like facade of the nation's financial stronghold.

Altogether about 11,500 bars of gold, each worth roughly £1,700 and each weighing 28 pounds, a total of nearly 150 tons of the precious metal, were involved in the payment.

Press Comment.

The Evening News confined its comment to the contrast between French and British financial ethics, saying the French default is exactly what might have been expected from responsible Frenchmen, for the French are thrifty in both private and public money matters, while the Briton is at heart an extravagant person, who sometimes practices thrift but never when public money is concerned.

"Had we been financially in France's shoes we should have offered to pay America double. The French in our position would not only have refused to pay the United States but would have considered themselves untrue to their principles and their responsibilities if they had not at the same time made every possible effort to collect all that could be got from their own debtors. It isn't a question of financial ethics or financial interest, it just depends on how one is made," said the News.

The Bank of England report on bullion movements this afternoon reflects in cold figures the United States debt payment. An item in the report reads: "Bars sold, 19,632,831 sterling."

ARROW HEAD IN LUMBER.

OAKLAND, Md. — Albert Sisk of Fortner found an Indian arrowhead embedded in a piece of lumber. A check showed the tree from which the jumber was cut had more than 425 rings. The arrow was 360 rings from the outside of the tree, making it about the year 1572 when some Redskin let the arrow fly.

with the Gaol, concerned the imprisonment of a boy of fifteen years, on remand on a charge of stealing a bicycle. The jurors complained that he was being herded along with other prisoners of more mature years, who had been convicted of more serious crimes, ranging in degree from murder to burglary.

His Honor concurred with the opinion of the Grand Jury that the boy should not be confined under such circumstances, but added, "I do not know the circumstances of the case or whose fault it is, if it is anybody's fault."

He also expressed deep concern at the notice concerning the danger of fire at the County Buildings, which had been called to his attention, remarking, "it is a danger not alone to the property, but to the lives of the Gaol inmates and to everyone else in the building."

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—(CP)—Even with the war debt problem temporarily out of the way the stock markets found it difficult to settle down to business today and the result was an unsteady market with small flurries succeeded by dead spells, on the whole the price level was well maintained on the Standard Mining Exchange, supported by the general sentiment that there will be more activity after the holidays.

Buying was slow in the high-priced gold shares, particularly McIntyre and Lake Shore both of which closed off a few cents. Dome held practically unchanged. Teck Hughes gained a few cents.

Some buying in nickel developed during the afternoon and the stock closed about 10 cents higher while Noranda was down a few cents and the other coppers quiet.

Oils took a day off and silver shares were out of the picture.

BRITAIN NEVER SO VULNERABLE SAYS CHURCHILL

a pinhead compared to the immense number of human beings for whose safety and order we profess responsibility.

Navy Is Weak

"Our navy, although still — and for a few short to years to come—the most powerful in the world, is not capable during the first phase of war protecting our possessions and interests in the far east, still less of dictating—as some people wish—to the most powerful oriental naval power. Our own home food supply would be endangered not only by hostile cruisers in distant oceans, but by submarines in the Mediterranean and in British waters.

"But all these deeply important facts are put in the shade by the peril from the air. Here we must expect no preliminary warning. If we could feed ourselves by sea for the first two years of a war, we could with our unqualified seafaring resources recreate the strength of the royal navy. No such time of preparation would be allowed us from the air.

"The man in the street is entitled to ask his rulers: 'If you put no faith in Kellogg Pact of Peace or in any international agreement; if you believe that men will give up the art of flying; if you believe that an air attack will be fatal to us, indeed to all civilization—what are you doing about it?

"Are you simply going to make fine speeches and elaborate diplomatic manoeuvres in the machine-gun-guarded halls of Geneva, and sign some protocol or other you tell us beforehand you think will be violated, or have you got a plan of action?"

"Let them try to promote peace among the nations by removing grievances and allaying the fears which lie at the root of armaments and are the cause of wars. But if nothing is forthcoming upon the continent of Europe in which they can place their trust, then we must not despair. We must not exaggerate our dangers—they are grave enough. Neither must we underrate the superb resources of man-skill and man-daring of the British race.

"If Geneva fails, let the national government propose to parliament measures necessary to place our air force in such a condition of power and efficiency that it will not be worth anyone's while to come here and kill our women and children in the hope they will blackmail us into surrender."

Dr. Arthur H. Compton, University of Chicago savant, suggests that cosmic rays are not those from far reaches of space, but those from the earth's own atmosphere hundreds of mile above our heads.

THOMAS CASE GOES TO JURY

crief, a man of more mature years and wider experience, had done on that same morning, when it was almost impossible to keep the windshield of an automobile clear of ice and sleet.

In evidence Moncrief said he had first noticed the truck as it rounded Hatton's Curve on Highway 28. He was driving in his car towards his home, having just come from the city where he had been to the dairy to deliver milk. He was travelling at about 10 m.p.h., he said.

When he first realized that a crash was inevitable, it was too late for him to do anything to avoid the truck. "It was so close and travelling so quickly. It was going at about twice the speed at which I was travelling," witness testified.

As the truck aproached him, witness said he could see the head and shoulders of the driver out of the left side of the cab of the truck.

Cross-examined witness testified that on the outward journey from his home to the city, he had stopped to clean his windshield after having proceeded for approximately a quarter of a mile. The windshield soon coated over again and he continued to drive on into the city with his head out of the side of the sedan. To put ones head out of the window was about the only reasonable thing to do under such conditions, Moncrief admitted.

Permanent Injury

Dr. A. Moir who saw the injured man at the home of his mother near the scene of the accident, related that Moncrief was then suffering severe shock. He had extensive fracture of the left leg below the knee joint. The femur had also been forced right out of the pelvic socket and was displaced at the back of the joint. It had resulted in permanent injury to Moncrief, which consisted of the shortening of the left leg by about two inches.

Thomas Robert Sanderson of Charlotte street West had seen Moncrief driving in a westerly direction immediately prior to the accident. He estimated the speed of Moncrief's car at 15-20 m.p.h.

Earl Moncrief, a brother of the injured man was in his own home at the time he heard the crash. He had seen the truck which belonged to Harry Cassein of Port Hope several times before, and knew the truck driver.

Upon objection being raised by defence counsel, the judge ruled the inadmissability of any evidence being provided by the witness, relative to the accused's habits as an automobile truck driver.

Herbert J. McCannan, real estate agent of Peterborough was driving towards the city with his daughter, when he saw a number of people and the car and truck on Hatton's Curve. He went to see what was wrong, he said. His testimony included a description of the relative positions of the two vehicles following the crash, and also as to the condition of the surface of the highway on that morning.

Charles E. Hawkins of North Monaghan Township had been shovelling snow from around his property, he testified, when he saw a red-painted stake-bodied truck pass his house around eight thirty o'clock. He would say the speed of the truck was far too great having regard to weather conditions. It may not have been exceeding the legal speed limit.

Similar evidence concerning the speed of a red truck, which had passed their car on the highway was provided by Miss Clara Dobbin, and her three passengers the Misses Mildred Dobbin, Mary Hendren, and Alta M. Wilson.

Using practically the same phraseology the four occupants of the Dobbin car took the witness stand in turn and gave it as their opinion, "the speed of the truck was fast considering the condition of the road."

Miss Mildred Dobbin related that the car in which she was riding and which was being driven by her sister was stopped in order that witness might clean the windshield. She saw a red truck approaching about a quarter of a mile away. Her sister told her to get back in the car, after which they proceeded for a short distance before pulling into the side of the road for a second time in order to let the truck pass them.

Asked by Mr. Gordon if she could explain how it was that she and two previous witnesses had used practically the same phraseology in referring to the speed of the truck, witness replied, "I cannot explain that." She did know however, that the truck was going at what she considered to be an unsafe speed.

Miss Alta Wilson was not prepared to state the exact speed of the truck as it passed the Dobbin car.

Mr. Gordon for the defence—Could you put the speed of the truck up to 40-50 or 60 m.p.h.

Witness—I think I could.

Traffic Officer Hornick

Describing the damage to the two vehicles, Traffic Officer A. E. Hornick, related that the left front portion of the overhanging rack body showed that it had received the force of the impact. The left side of the rear axle was also bent and displaced.

Damage to the car had consisted in the whole left side of the body having been practically torn out.

Measurements and observations he had made at the scene of the smash indicated that the truck was partly over the centre of the highway on its wrong side.

Cross-examined, he testified that the real damage to the Moncrief sedan car had been caused by impact with the overhanging stake body of the truck. Moncrief, he said, had seven feet in which he could have moved over to avoid the truck, although on account of the snow on the surface of the road there was great difficulty in ascertaining where the edge of the pavement was to the driver of a car.

The Defence

Morley Thomas, said he was 16 years of age at the time of the accident. He was in the employ of Harry Cassein of Port Hope and had been in the habit of driving from that town to Peterborough six times each week for several months. He had driven from Baileboro on that morning, he said, with his head out of the cab window. Between Port Hope and Baileboro he had tried to keep the windshield clear of accumulations of ice and sleet and had found it impossible.

Accused estimated his speed just prior to the accident to be about 20 m.p.h. He had been following in the tracks left by traffic which had preceded him into Peterborough, and had believed himself to be over on his right side of the highway.

The real cause of the accident, accused thought was attributed to the bad weather. Brakes on the vehicle he had been driving were in good condition, he testified.

Under cross-examination by the Crown Prosecutor the accused said his load that morning consisted of shortening and magazines. He denied that he had been carrying newspapers or that he was operating to a time schedule. He had left Port Hope at 5.45 a.m. having been off duty since noon of the previous day. His helper Munro was asleep at the time of the accident.

Character evidence was given on behalf of the accused by several residents of Port Hope including Jesse Broadbent, Alfred William George, Frank Allan and William J. Highfield.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Graded fresh Ontario eggs, in carlots or less, eased a cent a dozen, extras being quoted at 37c to 38c, firsts at 33c to 34c and pullets at 28c to 30c a dozen. Some British Columbia fresh extras sold at 39c, firsts at 34c and pullets at 32c. Storage eggs, in carlots, were firm at 21c to 22c for extras, 18c to 19c for firsts and 16½c to 17½c a dozen for seconds. To retailers eggs, in cartons lost a cent, with the exception of fresh pullets, which dipped 3 cents. Receipts were 1,346 cases.

Butter held firm at 21½c to 21¾c pound for carlots or less of No. 1 finest grass make. Receipts were again light, being only 26 boxes.

Cheese was unchanged, with Ontario current receiuts being quoted at 8¼c to 8½c, current Ontario colored at 9¼c to 9½c and Ontario early season at 10½c to 11c a pound. Receipts were 239 boxes.

Potatoes were steady, New Brunswick or Prince Edward Island Green Mountains selling at 90 cents per 80-pound bag and Prince Edward Island Green Mountains at $1 per 90-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—Unstirred by refusal of France to pay on her war debts, grain markets yesterday turned placidly to other price-making factors, and scored an advance.

At no time did Chicago wheat values yesterday show a decline of more than a fraction of a cent a bushel. Late strength of the New York stock market was credited with helping wheat upward in the late dealings.

With most operators here awaiting the Washington Government final report to-day in 1932 domestic crops, and with trade lacking volume, wheat closed firm at the day's top level, unchanged to 3-8c up, oats unchanged to ¼c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 17c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, December 15. — Further stop-loss selling and a little local pressure combined with weakness in outside markets carried the wheat prices to new low levels here yesterday, and resulted in a decline of ½c to ¾c.

December closed at 42¼c, May at 45c, and July at 46⅛c.

Only about 500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat were bought for export, most of it out of Vancouver and as prices tended downward, farmers began to unload their stocks in the country. Selling volume was not heavy, but in the absence of speculative support there was nothing to halt the steady decline. Interest of a prominent outside agency provided the only buying during the session.

December at 42 Cents

December wheat dropped to 42c, or ¾c under the low point made on Tuesday, and the price to the farmer on this basis is becoming distressingly small.

Meanwhile Argentine wheat has dropped more than 2 cents a bushel in the last two days, and pressure of offerings from the South American Republic forced prices fractionally lower at Liverpool yesterday

Demand for cash wheat and for coarse grains remained dull and indifferent, and spreads were practically unchanged.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—While prices on graded eggs were about steady yesterday on the local market, quotations to country shippers and retailers were reduced 2 cents per dozen as the demand was slow and receipts once again showed signs of increased production at Ontario points. Brokers were content to ask firm prices as reductions were made recently, and wholesalers lowered their prices in an effort to encourage consumption.

Egg Prices

Country shippers were quoted 30c for extras, 25c for firsts, 20c for pullet extras, and 15c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned, 36c for extras loose, 32c for firsts plies at 38c for extras in cartons, 36c for extras loos, 32c for firsts loose, 26c for pullet extras loose, and 21c for seconds loose. Brokers quoted graded eggs in free cases at 36c for extras, 32c for firsts, 26c for pullet extras, and 18c to 20c for seconds, with storage eggs at 23c for extras, 21c for first, and 19c for seconds, recandled.

Butter

Trade in creamery solids was slow and prices were about steady. Buyers were taking sufficient supplies to meet immediate requirements, but as receipts were not burdensome for the market there was no weakness evident. Brokers offered Ontaro makes at 21¼c for No. 1, and 20¾c for No. 2, and wholesalers quoted prnts at 24½c for No. 1 and 24c for No. 2.

Cheese

Trade in new cheese was fair and prices were slightly higher or at the top of the recent spread. Brokers offered new large at 9½c, new twins at 9¾c and new triplets at 10c, while new makes to the trade were 11c for large, 11¼c for twins, 11½c for triplets and 13½c for stiltons.

RYLSTONE FACTORY HAS GOOD SEASON

(Examiner Correspondence.)

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Dec. 15. — Closing a very successful year in every regard except returns to patrons, the Rylstone Cheese and Butter Co., held its annual conclave in the factory on Saturday afternoon, December 10. Orrie Barton is maker, and Thomas Fry is president of this company, one of the largest in Inspector Murray's district, and drawing its supply of milk from both Seymour and Rawdon herds.

Some of the 1932 figures are as follows:

Milk, 2,134,743 pounds; cheese, 181,105 pounds; 11.78 pounds of milk required for each pound of cheese; cheese averaged 9.40c a pound, and butter fat returned 19.06c a pound to the patrons; whey cream returned 39c a standard to the patrons after deducting expenses.

The total cost of manufacturing cheese was 2½c a pound, the maker receiving $1,391.53, while supplies cost $1,030.00.

The wood contract for 1933 has been let to Mr. Victor Irwin. The stock holders are considering the installation of a churn for the whey cream plant to supply the considerable demand for whey butter during the summer.

SIX-FOLD REVOLUTION IN CHINA IS EVIDENT DECLARES W. BOLTON AFTER 6 MONTHS TRIP IN ORIENT

Made Business Trip to China in Interests of His Company.

SHANGHAI SNAPSHOTS.

Chinese Regard Foreigners With Something Like Disdain.

A strange tale of his travels in China last summer was told by William Boulton, superintendent of agencies for the Confederation Life Association, in his room at the Empress Hotel a few nights ago.

Mr. Boulton was for some years manager of the company's agencies in the Central Ontario district, with headquarters in Peterborough, an executive of such conspicuous ability that his promotion to the head office staff in Toronto was no surprise to his local friends.

Of his commission to the Orient he spoke briefly. It was a business trip in the interests of the Confederation Life to study financial and economic conditions in both Japan and China, and to survey the prospects of expanding and developing Confederation Life insurance in the principal cities.

Mr. Boulton arrived in Shanghai last February while the Sino-Japanese hostilities were still sputtering, but only a few days before the truce that terminated the winter's fighting in Chapei. Among his fellow passengers crossing the Pacific were the members of the Lytton commission, appointed to enquire into the cause of the conflict and to observe the extent of the damage across the boundary of the international settlement in Shanghai. Such was the setting and atmosphere of his introduction to China, and five months later his journeying and his stay abruptly ended after visits to Peking and Tientsin. Mr. Boulton had planned to push on into Southern Manchuria, but a band of Chinese had blown up the railway on which he was travelling, and that dislocation temporarily became the end of the line. So he turned back and decided to sail for home.

Shanghai Snapshots.

Shanghai is twenty miles up the Whampoo river. Of its 4,000,000 people, 52,000 are foreigners. Between 900,000 and 1,000,000 of the populace are coolies. The city consists of three sections, the Chinese, the International Settlement and the French concession.

"The International settlement extends along the river several miles in the form of an arc, which, in its widest part, reaches back from the river six or seven miles," Mr. Boulton said. "The Bund in the international settlement is the most famous and the most notorious thoroughfare in the world, with its banks and its bars, bedlam and uproar. I think it is the most cosmopolitan, too, with Asia's teeming millions filling the scene. Business men rub shoulders with stevedores, and one of the first sights that astonished me were men of about 150 pounds carrying burdens of 400 pounds and singing about it as they trudged along.

It is common to see jugglers walking along the street ahead of you, juggling knives, hats or plates. Curb and sidewalk retailing is carried on along the streets, and apparently the storekeepers don't object. Here is a man with a little portable lunch counter. It is so light he can carry it like a tray in front of him supported by a strap around his neck. He sets it up on the sidewalk, lights a spirit lamp and presently he is selling tea and rice cakes and and some sort of chow. The Chinese seemed to like it. Here is another man with a rack of tooth brushes, his neighbor is displaying coat hangers; some have newspapers, others are selling roses, and again there are men selling charms to keep away evil spirits.

Piracy up the Whampoo river is a weekly occurrence and kidnapping is a profession. The name Shanghai means "above the sea," and less than a century ago this great cosmopolitan city was only a mud flat with a few fishermen's huts. To-day it is the sixth most important city in the world. It has Chinese departmental stores as large as Eatons and Simpsons. It has the biggest jail in the world, with accommodation for 7,500 prisoners. The chief of police is a Scotsman. There are more theatres than in Montreal and Toronto, and there are ten newspapers, four of them in English.

The bar in the Shanghai Club, which is a smart rendezvous for Americans, English and other Europeans, is said to be the largest in the world, and I was informed that whiskey and soda sold for seven and a half cents a glass.

One of the anomalies I discovered was that while we know the Chinese as chefs and restaurant men in Canada, the best chefs in Shanghai are French.

Perhaps you remember the Nanking Road in the reports of the Chapei fighting. It extends off the Bund, far into the Chinese section. For a long section foreign stores are prominent along this great street. Some of my recollections of the Chinese stores in the native part of the city are great displays of ivory, lacquer, brass, sandalwood, pewter, silks, birds and so on. The Chinese are great lovers of birds, so much so, I was told, that you see very many of them walking along the street carrying birds in cages.

The Chinese salesman is a study in himself, smiling, bland, courteous, qualities he has inherited from many generations of merchants and traders.

One day I called a rickshaw man and went miles up the Nanking Road into Chapei. The boundary of the international settlement was heavily protected with barbed wire. You would wonder where so much barbed wire could possibly have come from. The Chapei district was in ruins, just like the pictures of war's devastation. I went so far and was gone so long that the people at the hotel were worrying about me. I didn't know that there was considerable danger about a foreigner going there. Some things I saw were very repellant, open sewers in the streets, people marked with disease and sores going by.

One of the first men I saw in Shanghai was Floyd Gibbons, the war correspondent. He was staying at the same hotel, The Cathay. I used to see him in the dining room and around with naval and army officers. Apparently they were one source of the news of the fighting which he was sending out. Just off the Bund a Japanese flagship was anchored in the river. At night it threw shells over the city into Chapei. One night the Chinese tried to mine it. There was an explosion and big celebration, but I slept through the whole affair.

The authorities of the international settlement enacted a curfew law during the period of fighting, but the [illegible] and Americans got around that by arranging their hours for dancing during the prescribed time, from 10 p.m. until 4 a.m. The night life of Shanghai—but that is another story.

It may be generally known that an ancient custom of China demands extreme politeness and flowery compliments. You are supposed to depreciate everything about yourself, and to exalt everything about your friend or visitor in a corresponding degree. An invitation might be "to leave for one evening the silver and alabaster palace in which you habitually dwell and condescend to honor my tumbled-down and vermin-ridden hovel in which I live out a miserable existence."

On arrival I would be politely asked what was "my honorable business," and by the same code I was supposed to reply: "My most unworthy business is that of life insurance." And so on. The Chinese are a simple people, lovers of nature, kind and incapable of ingratitude.

Ancestor worship is virtually a religion in China, and it is essential that a man have sons if he is to go "on high," sons to pray at his tomb or his humble grave. Heaven is shut to those who have no descendants to worship at their graves, and filial worship is the only open sesame to the Chinese heaven. Old age is worshipped next to the gods, and is obeyed and served. A father does not regard his daughters in the sense of members of his family, because when they marry they pass out of the family. The father who has four sons and three daughters considers that he has only four children. I was told that if no sons are born to a family, the wife procures a concubine whose children are mothered by the wife. Incidentally I met one man who was said to have forty wives.

The clan system is a strong survival in China, and when sons marry they bring their wives to the parental roof. Usually the family group of home, if they can be afforded, are practically attached in a cluster. Woman's place is literally in the home, and I understand that she is a dominant factor in domestic life. I was informed that there are only about one hundred family names in China. The others are contractions or variations."

Mr. Boulton's trip took him 750 miles up the Yang-tse-Kiang River from Shanghai to Hankow with calls at Wuhn, Nanking, Kiuklang, the seat of the new government, and several other places. China's great river is navigable for 2,000 miles, and warships ascend it a distance of 1,000 miles.

"The Chinese have a great admiration of the Yangtse. For miles it is so wide it is like a sea. The menace of piracy adds a certain excitement to the river. For protection, the boats are armor plated, the steel sheets extending above the deck up to a man's shoulders; and the boats each carry from eight to sixteen British soldiers. Twenty miles into the country from any of the cities transports you into primitive China, where time seems to roll back two thousand years, and the people live for the most part in mud huts and bamboo houses.

It is said that 250,000 people in south China live on the water. Sampans are their homes, and one of my most vivid recollection returns to Canton and a night scene of thousands of these small floating homes and their glowing joss sticks to keep out evil spirits and bring good luck. On top of the sampans the boat dwellers keep their poultry. And, speaking of chickens, which you see everywhere on the farms, the visitor looks wonderingly at their dyed tails and wings as if they were a strange species. The colors are used to differentiate one man's chickens from his neighbor's. Chickens with red wings or blue, green tails or pink, you see them only in China.

The steamer I took from Hongkong to Canton was literally packed with Chinese. Every square foot of the deck was occupied with men returning for the Ching Ming festival to worship at the graves of their ancestors. Canton is a city of from a million to a million and a half people. Fifteen years ago its streets were for the most part about eight feet wide, but in recent years it has been vastly changed by the modern improvements which are altering the appearance of the port cities. Old buildings are being torn down and the streets widened in the business area, and this trend in Canton has already made great strides. Miles and miles of streets have been broadened. Banners and festoons hang above the stores, filling the street scene with a sort of carnival effect."

Six-fold Revolution.

Mr. Boulton said that in his journeying he saw manifest evidences of a six-fold revolution in China—industrial, political, educational, religious, social, and commercial. These were the effects of the impingement of Western ideas and culture upon the methods and conceptions of the Orient.

The old handicraft of the Chinese is slowly giving way to the modern industrialism of Europe and America. The number of factories is estimated at between two and three thousand. Many of them are thoroughly modernized, especially the textile group. Labor is cheap. Men and women work together on night shifts, and child labor has not yet been corrected by legislation. And there is much room for improvement in regard to safety devices.

The political change that is under way has been reinforced by the influence of Chinese students educated in the universities of the West. The social life of the people in the port cities has been affected by these contacts and also by the presence of so many Europeans and Americans. The early espousal of children by parents has been an ancient custom, and astrologers were consulted to determine when the auguries were favorable. Nowadays, where East meets West, and motion pictures speak a universal language, the youth tends more toward the courtship of the West.

"I spent hours one day bartering with a Chinese dealer for a joss, the figure of some god, for which he originally asked $20. I finally got it for twenty cents," Mr. Boulton said. "That experience might be worth a whole chapter, for it was typical of the barter plan of selling. But the Chinese business man of the higher class, the banker or insurance man, regards the blunt Western methods as crude and undignified. You must have credentials for an appointment. In one office of that kind, for example, I was ushered into a beautiful room of Chinese furnishings. This financial man was dressed in the old costume of rich silk, and my call was virtually an informal social visit. A Chinese girl brought in condiments, and appeared later, without any signal that I could see, with tea. It was all so different from our ways that one seemed to be in another world. These manifold changes in China are all occurring simultaneously, and one can only conjecture about what the future will produce in that great country. Somehow I gleaned the impression that the Chinese regard the foreigners and their practices with something like disdain, believing that they had a culture and philosophy when our ancestors were only groping toward a comparative civilization.

In South China all the graves are hewn or dug into the hillsides, and the outer ends of the coffins are left visible. The coffins are made of teakwood, and a more expensive material is called Shimu or longevity wood. These practices relate to ancestor worship. Food is left near the graves for the sustenance of the departed. Around Shanghai and in Northern China the graves are flat on the ground. The poorer classes cover the coffins with sod, but the rich build tombs of marble and alabaster. I saw millions of coffins and graves and tombs. Someone has said that there are more graves than trees in China. I understood that when a family moves, their dead are taken with them. In South China I saw what were called cities of the dead, places where the coffins were kept until the astrologers or priests took a horoscope, to ascertain the wish of the stars or whether the presiding deities were in favor of burial. Some coffins were kept for long periods, even up to twenty years, and it was hinted that for a consideration the necessary approval might be more promptly forthcoming."

Mr. Boulton spoke of Hong Kong as the most delightful city he had ever seen, even surpassing Monte Carlo. The name means "a place of sweet lagoons." It was ceded to the British by the Portuguese, who were once a power on that part of the China coast. Macao, a Portuguese possession, four hours by steamer up the Pearl River, shows the marks of decline. Gambling is the principal industry in this city. No taxes are collected, for the reason that the state is maintained out of the proceeds of gambling. There are horse races and dog races, and whole streets of gambling houses.

"The Imperial palace in Peking or Pelping, pronounced like Bayping, is not a building, but a series of buildings," Mr. Boulton said. "The Empress-Dowager had a penchant for collecting clocks. In one room I counted eighty-five, and of an assortment I couldn't describe. The beautiful lacquer and jade and other furnishings all denoted extreme wealth in the days of its occupancy by the Emperor. I imagine that far in the interior of China many of the people are so out of touch with events even in their own country that they think the Emperor is still reigning."

Mr. Boulton saw the Great Wall of China, and his memory reverted to his reading of Ghenis Khan and Marco Polo, and other personalities and events in the remoted history of China. In one temple he visited he saw a statue of Marco Polo, who had apparently been elevated to the rank of god among the deities of that part of the country.

A Sailor's Reward

Heroism at sea brought a kiss on each cheek to Gennaro Amatrudo, above, deckhand of the new Italian liner Conte Di Savoia when it arrived in New York on its maiden voyage. Capt. Antonio Lena rewarded Amatrudo with kisses for his volunteering to plug a leak below the water line by going over the side of the ship in mid-ocean as she battled waves.

Ontario Lady Found Relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. A. Evans Was Troubled Greatly With Backache.

Huntsville, Dec. 15 (Special). — "I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills with great success," writes Mrs. A. Evans, a resident of this place. "I used to be troubled very much with Backache. Since using Dodd's Kidney Pills I feel ever so much better. I can surely recommend them as they are good."

Thousands of others tell the same story. They have tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and found them good. If you suspect your kidneys, turn at once to Dodd's Kidney Pills. You can do so with confidence.

Dodd's Kidney Pills strike right at the seat of the trouble, the kidneys. They are no cure-all, but purely and simply a kidney remedy. They relieve the work of the heart by putting the kidneys in shape to strain all the impurities out of the blood.

Pure blood carried to all parts of the body means new health all over the body.

HOW MUCH DO YOU KNOW ABOUT CHRISTMAS?

1 WHAT name is given to a song of Christmas joy?

2 FROM whom do we derive the use of the mistletoe?

3 IS Noel pronounced in one syllable or two?

4 WHO introduced the Christmas tree into England?

5 FROM what language do we get the name Santa Claus?

To-morrow night at 11.15, the Midnite Relief Show at the Capitol will commence and the general public who are anxious to assist in the work of helping the needy families of the city will have a chance to do so and enjoy themselves at the same time.

The program is varied and entertaining. There is a feature picture entitled "It's a Wise Child," with Marion Davies in the stellar role; a Gallagher and Shean screen song, and a comedy.

The vaudeville that forms an added attraction includes several entirely new features to local theatregoers, such as the magical Hindu canary, the introduction to Peterborough audiences of the singing octette from the Canadian Machine Gunners' corps, Sam Harris in a funny monologue, two local young ladies, Miss Isabel Duffus and Miss Thelma Buller, in a tap dance, and a brass sextette, with Cathedral chimes, from the band of the Peterborough Rangers. Something for every taste is in this bill.

Letters asking for help come in every day. Here is another sample: "Have you got a mattress for a double bed, as I need one in the worst way, and some bed clothes. I haven't enough clothes to keep the kiddies warm at night. I would like to get a couple of chairs and a pair of boots, No. 7, as my husband's boots are off his feet. And a pair of shoes for myself, No. 4 and some underwear for my husband. We would be glad of any clothes you could send us."

LINDSAY PLANT TO KEEP RUNNING

Canadian Industrial Alcohol to Operate Till April—Uses 45 Cords Wood Daily.

OLD RAID RECALLED.

LINDSAY, Dec. 15 (Examiner Correspondent).—The death of ex-Mayor Thomas Wilkinson removes a figure well-known in old Grand Trunk and C.N.R. circles. The deceased at one time was engineer on the Peterborough train, and will be remembered by many of the old employees in both these centres. The deceased was born at Whitby, and served in the local municipal council as alderman, reeve and mayor. He was also a former president of the Children's Aid Society, and was a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers, the Masonic and Oddfellows' Orders.

J. A. Burns, a former resident of Ops Township, has been awarded the sum of $15,000 in his action against the Union Carbide Company of Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, for the death of his daughter, Catherine, aged 12 years. She was badly burned when she fell into a pit of hot lime on the company's property some time ago.

The local plant of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol, which has been operating since October, will keep running until April, according to the statement of one of the company's officials. The plant is using 45 cords of wood daily. This wood is hauled from Haliburton.

The Examiner was shown an interesting publication to-day, which told of an incident in which the Peterborough Militia figured in 1837—the year of the McKenzie Rebellion. It appears that Major Murphy, who later became postmaster of the little hamlet of Lindsay, started a rumor in Peterborough, for reasons of his own, that William Lyon McKenzie was hiding at Lindsay. As a result a number of farmers who were with their ox teams at Purd's mill on the banks of the Scugog one clear cool evening, were startled to hear a volley of muskets and to see a column of about three hundred armed men with a large flag descending the steep river bank to the north. When the advance guard got on the bridge, cheers were raised, trumpets sounded, kettle drums rattled, the flag waved, and another mighty salvo of musket fire let off into the upper air. The villagers, some thirty men, women and children, rushed from their cabins to see what was happening, and found that their visitors were a detachment of Peterborough Militia, under Colonel Alexander McDonnell, searching for McKenzie. As it was too late for the contingent to return home that night, they bivouacked in and around Purd's tavern.

WARS OF FUTURE TO BE FOUGHT WITH FLAME SPITTING 'PLANES

Bombs and Poison Gas Will Also Play Prominent Part.

AIR TORPEDOES

By T. C. WATSON
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 15—Bombs, poison gas and flames will be sent up into the air to travel to any chosen spot in the world and then be dropped.

H. G. Wells

That is what H. G. Wells, Britain's principal prophet and imaginative novelist, threatens will happen in the next war.

Remembering Wells' "War In the Air" prophecy of about 30 years ago, stolid Britain sat up and took notice. The British laughed at Wells "War In the Air," but were inclined to yell with fear when real war in the air came years later.

This British lack of foresight came in for the usually severe Wellsian castigation.

"Our military people" he said, "will stick to guns that will only carry 20 miles or so, or aeroplanes that must fight their way through hostile planes and gunfire to drop whatever they drop.

"But no real scientist believes that these things mark the extreme range of offensive activities.

"Air torpedoes for everywhere. bombs, gas and flame delivered wherever you like, or don't like, at any time, this is one of the manifest possibilities to which all this improvement in communication is leading—that is to say, if we go on much longer without taking hold of the war problem much more courageously than we have done hitherto."

Confronted With 2 Facts

"To-day" solemnly declared Wells, "we are confronted with two facts: one bad and one good. The first has only been hinted at—that facts of war have become hideously immediate and far-reaching. The second is that the whole round world can be brought togsther in one brotherhood, into one communion, one close-knit freely communicating citizenship, far more easily to-day than was possible with even such a little country as England a century ago.

"What the world to-day needs is professors of foresight to warn nations against the consequences of new inventions.

"There are no professors of foresight yet, but I am by way of being an amateur. Let we draw a plain conclusion.

"Either we must make peace throughout the world, make one world-state, one world-tax, with one money, one police, one speech, and one brotherhood, however hard that task may seem, or we must prepare to live with the eyes of the stranger in our homes, with the knife of the stranger always at our throats in fear and in danger of death, enemy neighbors with the rest of our species.

"Distance was protection, was safety, though it meant ignorance and indifference and a narrow unstimulated life.

"For good or evil, distance has been done away with. This problem of communication rushes upon us to-day—it rushes upon us like Jehu, the son of Nimshi. It driveth furiously.

"It evokes the same question: Is it peace? Because if it is not to be peace foreseen and planned and established, then it will be disaster and death.

"Will there be no foresight until those bombs begin to rain upon us?

"When I was a student, half a century ago, we used to talk about the abolition of distance, because of the then comparatively recent triumphs the telegraph, the steamship, and the railway train. Nobody then believed we should be able to take a ticket and fly around the world. The swiftest thing then on the road was the bicycle, and television seemed a fantastic impossibility.

"In a little while all round the earth will be a few days' journey and everybody will be potentially within sight and sound of everybody all over the planet.

"There will be no more distance left and little separation. You will be able to see the world as easily and surely as you send a telegram to-day. Before another half-century has passed everybody, so to speak, will be on call next door.

"But I want to call your attention to something still more wonderful—something that we haven't done. For all practical purposes we haven't even begun to think yet what we are going to do about this abolition of distance.

"It seems an odd thing to me that though we have thousands and thousands of professors and hundreds of thousands of students of history working upon the records of the past, there is not a single person anywhere, who makes a whole-time job of estimating the future consequences of new inventions and new devices.

"There isn't a single professor of foresight in the world. But why shouldn't there be? All these new things, these new inventions and new powers come crowding along, every one is fraught with consequences, and yet it is only after something has hit us hard that we set about dealing with it.

"See how unprepared our world was for the motor-car. The motor-car ought to have been anticipated at the beginning of the century. It was bound to come, and was bound to be cheapened and made abundant.

"Did we do anything to work out any of these consequences of the motor-car before they came? We did not. We left our roads as they were until they were choked; we did nothing to adjust our railroads to fit in with this new element of life until they were overtaken and bankrupt; we have also to bring our police up-to-date with the motor bandit.

"That is what I mean by want of foresight. Isn't it plain then we ought not to have one or two professors of foresight but whole faculties and departments of foresight, doing all they acn to anticipate and prepare fort the consequences of this gathering together, this bunching up, which is now going on, of what were once widely dispersed human relationship?"

Six Nations Owing War Debts To U.S. Ready To Pay On Time—Three Default

(By the Associated Press.)

Six nations owing varying sums to the United States by reason of loans made as a result of the war, were ready to-day to pay what is due.

Three — France Belgium and Greece—have indicated they will not pay. Poland ,too, was expected to default.

The total due to-day from the 10 nations is $124,934,421, principal and interest. Of this total Great Britain owes $95,550,000, which sum, in gold bullion, was set aside to-day in the vaults of the Bank of England, "earmarked," to meet the obligation.

The five other nations ready to pay were Italy ($1,245,437); Czechoslovakia ($1,500,000); Latvia $148,852); Finland ($186,235) and Lithuania ($92,386).

The sum due to-day from France and which the French Chamber voted not to pay, thereby overthrowing the ministry of Edouard Herriot, is $19,261,432, all interest.

NICHOLLS HOSPITAL GRADUATES HOLD ANNUAL ALUMNAE DINNER

Dr. E. A. Hammond Reviews History of Medical Profession.

FIRST RESIDENT DOCTOR.

As guest speaker at the annual dinner of Nicholls Hospital Alumnae Association held at Empress Hotel last evening, Dr. E. A. Hammond provided an illuminating review of the history of the medical profession in this part of Ontario commencing from the time when Peterborough was a tiny settlement known as Scott's Plains.

The function was well attended and was successfully concluded, after the speech-making by the playing of bridge.

Dr. Hammond was introduced by Mrs. Roy White, who very ably presided as toastmistress.

In the course of his address Dr. Hammon pointed out that in the year 1821 medical aid had to be summoned from the nearest settlement some miles away and the patient had to be taken through forest trails to the home of the doctor for examination and treatment.

With the coming of the Robinson immigrants in the year 1828, he said, a material change had to be made. Such a number of people could not be left without medical aid, so the British Government made provision for them.

First Resident Physician

The first resident physician to arrive here was Dr. Arthur Reade, who followed shortly after the arrival of the Robinson immigrants. He took up practice in a small log house, hastily constructed for his convenience. It stood on a part of the present market square, covering the ground about where the office of the City Clerk is situated. His contract with the authorities, provided that he remain for three years. His wife followed him into the settlement and became well and thankfully known as most helpful and considerate to the settlers. At the end of four years Dr. Reade and his wife returned to the Old Land.

His successor was a Dr. Downley, who only remained a short time and left to practice in the neighborhood of Bowmanville, as the place is now named. He was followed by a Dr. Reddy, who remained until well in the middle thirties, to be followed by Dr. John Hutchinson, the oldest and most successful doctor of the earlier settlement years. He first settled in the Township of Cavan, and carried on a practice under some considerable difficulty owing to the distances to be travelled.

In the early thirties he moved into Peterborough and lived in a small cottage, which stood south of the present Empress Hotel. During the early forties Dr. Hutchinson decided to remove to York (now Toronto). His practice in this town was large, but the rewards indefinite. Money was a thing that did not circulate freely, and payment for medical and other services was often made in kind, by produce, fuel, etc.

Peterborough was loath to part with the services of Dr. Hutchinson and as an inducement for him to stay here he was offered the gift of a house. To this he agreed. The house was located on Brock street on the north side between Bethune and Stewart Streets. The building was raised by a community effort and was presented to the doctor, who carried on his work until the year 1847.

First Hospital

With the marked influx of immigrants, who were not only in a poor position financially, but unfortunately brought with them a malignant form of fever, it was found necessary by the authorities to provide not only medical attention but shelter.

In order to provide such accommodation to those who arrived in an almost destitute condition a temporary hospital was improvised in the south part of the town, on the point of land now covered by the building of the McDonald Mill. It was there that Dr. Hutchinson contracted the disease to which he succumbed on Sunday July 1, 1847.

Another outstanding figure in medical circles in Peterborough, was Dr. George Burnham Sr., who started practice in 1835. He was a physician of remarkable skill, said Dr. Hammond. Several of the best known physicians of after years studied in his office, he being the only physician who accepted students. Of these Dr. S. P. Ford, Dr. R. R. Boucher and Dr. Kincaid all attained distinction in the profession. Dr. Burnham died on June 14, 1881.

"From now on," Dr. Hammond remarked, "we come to what I may call the modern period. Peterborough had become a town of some importance, the streets were lighted by gas lamps, few and far between. There were modern sidewalks, trains ran in from the lake front, and the people began to consider they were not altogether in the back woods."

At that time most of the nursing was done by neighbor women, who went in and out among the sick. They performed their work in a very fine spirit. There were no professional nurses in those days.

The doctors felt very much the need of a hospital in order to care for their patients. In the year 1885 the late Mrs. Nicholls acquired and set apart the residence and grounds known as Moira Hall, at the west end of the town, as a hospital.

The building was soon found to be inadequate for the work, and so Mrs. Nicholls provided means for the erection of a new building. The new building was erected during the year 1889, and was formally conveyed to the trustees and opened on January 29, 1890.

St. Joseph's Hospital was opened on August 20, 1890. The grounds on which it is erected are situated in what was then known as the village of Ashburnham. Previous to the erection of the hospital the grounds had contained the residence of Dr. Burrit, who was one of the most prominent doctors of Peterborough. His house was destroyed by fire.

The speaker was accorded a vote of hearty thanks on motion of Miss Fannie Dickson, past president of the Alumnae. During the course of her remarks she referred to the fact that her grandfather had been among the earlier settlers of the community.

Miss J. Lapell very ably proposed the toast "Our Guests." The response was voiced by Miss L. M. Stewart, of the Standard Medical and Surgical Clinic.

The Alumnae.

During the course of her remarks in proposing the toast to "The Alumnae," Miss Vetna Miller spoke of the need of organization and co-operation, coupled with loyalty.

Co-operation she described as "the lubricant which oils the machine to the highest endeavor."

The world, Miss Miller declared, judged the value of the group to which a person belonged by the character and accomplishment of the individual member of that group. The obvious duty of each individual was to strive to reach the highest development and at the same time to help his associates to do the same thing.

Miss Helen M. Anderson, president of the Alumnae, responded to the toast, during the course of which she said: "For more than a quarter of a century of existence Nicholls Hospital Alumnae has done much to raise the standards of the nursing profession, and our graduates have gone out to widely scattered parts of the country, fully equipped to practice nursing along with the graduates of other large and more prominent hospitals. We remember with pride the nurses of this Alumnae who served both at home and overseas during the World War — and as we remember, we realize the more fully that we have the highest traditions to maintain."

She also referred appreciatively of the loyalty and co-operation she had received from members of the Alumnae during her term as president.

SEE SHOW FOR TOY.

DULUTH, Minn. — Hey, kids, up here in Duluth a damaged toy is good for admittance to a theatre. Owners of the show houses decided it was a good way to supply Santa Claus with playthings for poor children. City firemen are repairing the toys.

Nazi Chiefs In Conclave

Adolph Hitler, generalissimo of Germany's Nazi or Fascist party, is shown (LEFT), with Captain Herman Goering, Fascist leader in the Reichstag, as they conferred following the appointment of General Kurt von Schleicher as German Chancellor, a job for which Hitler was at one time believed slated. Since von Schleicher's appointment, it is rumored, there has been steadily growing dissension in the Nazi ranks.

This 15th Day of December, 1932, is Eventful in International Relations

By H. W. L. MaHOOD

Much has been written in both United States and European newspapers about the payment of debts owed the American government. To-day is the eventful day for the payments to be made. Some charge Uncle Sam with being the modern Shylock.

Dr. H. W. L. MaHood

When the loans were made no exorbitant interest charges, nor severe time payment agreements. At that time Europe was loud in its praises of the American generosity.

Here are the facts about the loans made European nations during and immediately after the war. To Great Britain and France were granted ninety per cent of these loans. A world foreign debt commission crated by Congress in 1922 made agreements with these various debtor nations between 1923 and 1930, under which their debts were funded. Interest rates fixed by the agreements varied according to the financial condition of the debtor. The total of principal and interest which was to be paid by all twenty debtors over a period of sixty-two years approximated twenty-two billions of dollars. The amounts which have been paid to the United States to date total $2,627,589,897.

Great Britain's debt was $4,398,000,000, and on this $1,911,789,293 has been paid. The funded debt of France was $3,863,650,000 and $486,075,891 has been paid. Italy owed $2,004,900,000 and has paid $97,584,421. Under various funding agreements the total amounts owed the United States, according to the treasury figures and the amounts already paid by other nations to whom loans were made at the same time are as follows:

	Total.	Paid.
Armenia	$ 23,759,217	$ 852,168
Belgium	400,680,000	52,191,273
Czechoslovakia...	137,071,023	18,304,178
Estonia	116,586,012	1,248,432
Finland	38,504,000	2,954,595
Greece	31,516,000	3,091,936
Hungary	1,908,569	468,466
Latvia	6,838,634	634,160
Lithuania ...	6,197,682	1,128,580
Nicaragua ..	352,627	168,783
Poland	203,057,000	22,646,267
Rumania	63,860,590	4,761,965
Russia	317,953,006	3,748,918
Jugoslavia ..	61,625,000	3,583,731

These are treasury figures which this writer has obtained within the last few days. Surely, they show that Uncle Sam has been considerate in collecting. But a time has come when she must balance her own budget. The debts due her from the nations mentioned herein would abundantly do that.

Vancouver's Mayor Given Tenth Term

VANCOUVER, Dec. 15. (CP)—Perennial chief magistrate of Vancouver, Mayor Louis D. Taylor, who during an illness two years ago directed the duties of his office from a hospital bed, has been re-elected for a 10th term.

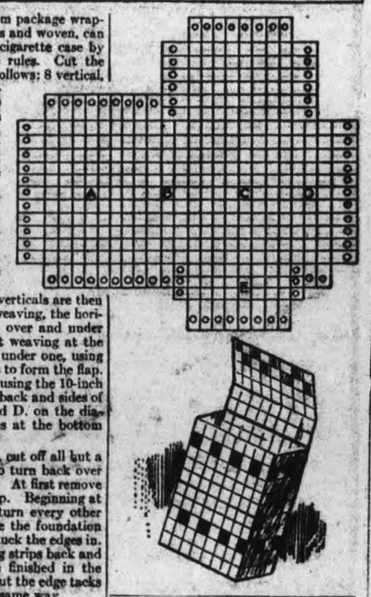
In the civic elections, Wednesday, Mayor Taylor gained a majority of more than 4,500 over Fred Cronin, former chairman of the parks commission. There were two other candidates, T. W. Fletcher, former police commissioner and Alderman John Bennett.

The vote was Taylor, 14,842; Cronin, 10,222; Fletcher, 8,297 and Bennett, 3,201.

A government-controlled sweepstakes for hospital purposes was favored by the ratepayers, but money by-laws calling for expenditures of $440,000 for roads, waterworks, etc., were turned down.

New Cigarette Case of "Cellophane"

"CELLOPHANE" from package wrappers, cut into strips and woven, can be made into a lovely cigarette case by following a few simple rules. Cut the strips one inch wide as follows: 8 vertical, 8 inches long; 14 vertical, 5½ inches long; 9 horizontal, 4½ inches long and 11 horizontal, 10 inches long. A few coloured strips will add much to the appearance of the finished case.



Fold the strips in half lengthwise twice. Tack the eight verticals to a board (a breadboard will serve) top and bottom. To the right, 8 inches lower, put three 5½ inch strips. The rest of the verticals are then tacked to the left. In weaving, the horizontal strips are passed over and under the vertical ones. Start weaving at the top right, over one and under one, using 6 of the 4½ inch lengths to form the flap. Then continue weaving, using the 10-inch strips to form the front, back and sides of the case, or A, B, C, and D, on the diagram. The last 3 strips at the bottom are 4½ inches long.

To finish top and flap, cut off all but a half inch, just enough to turn back over the weavers and tuck in. At first remove only the tacks on the flap. Beginning at the upper right corner turn every other vertical down being sure the foundation strip is covered. Then tuck the edges in. Next turn the alternating strips back and tuck in. The sides are finished in the same way. Then take out the edge tacks and finish the edges the same way.

The bottom section E and also sections B and D should have their loose ends turned inward. Leave about half inch to fasten with gummed tape. Remove tacks from bottom of section A, leaving a half inch surplus. Starting at the lower left, turn first loose strip upward on case. Do the same with every other strip and fasten with gummed tape. The loose ends are left to weave case together. The loose ends on the sides will dovetail and can be woven under and over to hold case together. Bottom ends of section A are woven into section E.

"CELLOPHANE" is the registered trade mark designating cellulose sheets and films, manufactured in Canada under special [illegible]

WAR EXHIBITS ARE REVEALED AT UNIVERSITY

Bairnsfather's Cartoons.

MONTREAL, Dec. 15 (C.P.)—McGill University Library, peaceful sanctum of learning, has been invaded by guns, gasmasks, bombs, colors and decorations, shorn of their glory, content to lie quietly in exhibition cases but at least free from dust and still the object of public attention.

The occasion is an exhibition entitled "The Great War in Retrospect" and has been assembled from McGill property and private Montreal collections.

Punch's history of the war and specimens of Bairnsfather's cartoons give a humorous touch. Books dealing with the war and various branches of Canadian activity, together with collections of war pamphlets, supply a scholarly viewpoint. Artistry and a pale shadow of that great art known as heraldry come in with an astonishingly beautiful and complete collection of Canadian war badges, classified by provinces. And the regimental contributions are the guns, gasmasks, bombs, uniforms and living utensils. Photographs help to construct a mental picture of the famous "four years" but this last collection is strangely incomplete, made up as it is mostly of official photographs and ordinary views of battle grounds and lacking the living touch, the horrors and brutalities set sharply side by side with heroism which those in actual conflict recall and which the motion picture camera had occasionally succeeded in rendering. War scenes by Canadian artists add to the photograph collection.

MILLBROOK BLACK PRECEPTORY INSTALLS OFFICERS FOR 1933

Old-Fashioned Theme

It's an old-fashioned theme with a quaint appearance, but it's a new mode that sponsors the fur capelet. Martha Sleeper, Screenland player, wears a handsome cape of mink and matching muff with a plain cloth coat. Her corded, brimless hat also has a touch of fur trimming.

W. J. Francey New Preceptor —Fine Address Given by Mrs. J. Thompson.

C.G.I.T. GIVE PLAY

MILLBROOK, Dec. 15 (Examiner Correspondence).—The local chapter of the Royal Black Preceptory, No. 955, held its annual meeting in the L.O.L. Hall, Millbrook, on Monday evening, with Past Preceptor James H. Paul, in the chair, and Past Preceptor, Sir Knight A. V. Thorne, installing the officers elected for 1933 as follows:

Worshipful Preceptor, W. J. Francey; Deputy Preceptor, L. J. Morton; Chaplain, T. H. Aiken; Treasurer, Nathaniel Belch; Registrar, William Williamson; 1st Lecturer, William Lynn; 2nd Lecturer, John Thompson; 1st Censor, R. J. McKnight; 2nd Censor, I. M. Nattress; 1st Standard Bearer, P. Stinson; 2nd Standard Bearer, Wilbert Fallis; Tyler, Stuart Fallis; Pursuivant, Wilbert Wood. Committee—James H. Paul, P.P.; E. L. Morden, R. J. Scott, William Dixon, M. Fallis, and W. H. Bingham.

A program followed the business session for which there was keen interest; Rev. Brother W. W. Jones, B.D., Deputy Grand Chaplain for Ontario East, giving the initial address; others who spoke being W. H. Coomb and James Roddy. Readings were given by Miss Jean L. Burnham, and musical selections by Ernest Powell and William Leitch.

Splendid Address

A high light in the program was the well-worded and instructive paper on "Red, White and Blue," given by Mrs. John Thompson, a few of the outstanding thoughts being emphasis upon the fact of the significance of each color: red for bravery, white for purity, and blue, truth.

"Bravery was exemplified by Gideon's chosen band who, small in numbers, delivered Israel from the Midianites; it was shown also at the Battle of the Boyne and other famous battles of history, where bravery and self-sacrificing devotion were features of the Orangemen who enlisted in the defence of British connections and British traditions."

Turning to the white (purity), the speaker urged, "Keep pure your character, your heritage, and your Protestant faith, asking every ratepayer to support the resolution protesting granting concessions to separate school demands. Keep pure the marriage laws, holy, undefiled, as God's holy ordinance.

"Keep pure by keeping our education system strictly English speaking, ever ready to stand steadfast in its defence by opposing separate schools grants."

"Blue stands for truth. Be true to your lodge, by attendance and whole-hearted interest. Be true to the flag of the Empire, refusing to accept the substitute for it proposed by the Native Sons of Canada."

A substantial fowl supper was enjoyed at the close, and the social hour about the well-supplied tables completed a profitable and successful occasion.

C.G.I.T. Play

A Christmas play, "The Christmas Jest," marked the program of the weekly meeting of the Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. group, for which the girls were guests of the president, Miss Marian O'Brian; the walk to and from the home of the hostess being one of the enjoyable features of a very happy gathering.

Mrs. O'Brian, assisted by her daughter, Miss Marian, welcomed the fourteen or more girls who were in attendance, a business session taking up the opening half of the evening; decision being made to send the usual contribution of three dollars to the Star Santa Claus fund, and to do some relief work locally during Christmas week.

A practice of Christmas carols, with Miss Francis Jones at the piano, took up some time; the girls making their annual rounds on Wednesday and Friday evenings of next week, twelve homes to be visited where shut-in folk are brought a share of Yuletide pleasure with the carol-singing.

The scrap-books which the group has been making since October will be sent to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, on Saturday; Madeline McDowell, Marian O'Brian, Mary Burnham, and Bryar Edmunds to be responsible for the packing and mailing. Other Christmas plans were arranged for the enjoyment of those not able actively to participate in the season's joys, and the play followed its story telling of a king, who, to discover why his court fool was more beloved than himself, changed places on Christmas eve, visited many of his people ill and in need, learned of regular similar visits by the court jester, and planned and carried out such changes as made his people regard him with deep affection and respect.

Contests in a pleasing variety added to the enjoyment of the social occasion; the service of dainty refreshments completing a delightful gathering.

Misses Jean Burnham and Francis Jones sponsored the hearty vote of thanks to the hostesses, the guests showing approval by prolonged applause and the singing of "For They Are Jolly, Good Fellows." Members will gather at the leader's home at seven o'clock sharp on Wednesday, December 21, for the first round of carol singing; six homes to be visited.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

THE FIRST BISHOP OF MOOSONEE

ON THIS DATE, in 1872, Rev. John Horden was consecrated in Westminster Abbey as the first Anglican Bishop of Moosonee. He had been missionary at Moose Fort for 20 years. Born in the cathedral city of Exeter, apprenticed as a lad to a blacksmith, by attending night school he had fitted himself to become a schoolmaster. In course of time he learned Latin and Greek and became a regular attendant at the vicar's Bible Class at St. John's, Exeter, where he became deeply interested in missionary work and offered for service abroad. In 1851 the C.M.S. sent him out to Moose Fort as school master, where under the Missionary Society in Canada George Barnley had labored for a time, but had been withdrawn, though not before he had sown the seeds of the Gospel and left the Lord's Prayer and a few texts of scripture in Cree syllabic, which owned its origin to another great Methodist missionary, James Evans. At Moose Fort the young missionary studied Cree, did much translation work, ran the mission school, set up and used a printing-press, made long tours for evangelism and ministered to the officers and employees of the Hudson's Bay Company, who built the church, the school and the missionary's residence. As a missionary bishop he displayed the same zeal and the same remarkable executive ability administering the diocese until 1893.

SECOND ROUND REPLAYS.

Mock Trial Is Held By Lakefield A.Y.P.A.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, December 15.—Stern justice was meted out at the Mock Trial held by the A.Y.P.A. on Monday night at the regular meeting. The members on arrival found the arrangements of the parish hall slightly altered and even the atmosphere suggested the unusual. Following the business session the court was called to order by the court clerk and crier, Jack Woodhouse. The judge (Miss B. Graham) was seated on the bench and the Crown attorney, C. C. Stenner, was in his place and the other legal lights, counsel for the various prisoners, were at their tables; these were Miss Elizabeth Woodhouse, Messrs. L. J. Charlton T. A. Simpson and Fred Hampton. Walter Chappell was chief of police, and Miss Jean Blewett was police matron. Others taking part were Miss Winnie Payne, George Stanner, Robert Stenner, Mrs. Mendal Smith Mrs. Walter Chappell and Miss Grace Watson.

BANK ROBBERY PLAN IS FOILED

Two Men Had Planned to Hold Up Bank at Norwich.

PLANNED IN JAIL.

HAMILTON, Dec. 15 (C.P.). — A tale which might have come from some writer of detective thrillers was unfolded in Police Court today when James Mills and Arthur Broziet were committed for trial on a charge of conspiring to rob a bank at Norwich, Ont.

Lewis C. Horton was the chief witness. He stated that he had met the accused men in Welland Jail some time ago, and about December 1 had encountered Mills on the street here. Mills asked Horton to get him a gun. Explaining that he had a "job." Questioned, he explained that it was a bank "job" in a small town that would net between $25,000 and $30,000. Horton became alarmed and informed his wife of the matter and she in turn strongly urged him not to connect himself in any way with the project.

Provincial Police were informed and Inspector Gurnett and Sergeant Oliver consulted with Horton. Mills and Broziet called at the Horton home at a later date to secure the gun, and in the next room, with their ears glued to a communicating register were the two police officers. Horton declared that Mills said that the plan was to go to the Norwich bank about one o'clock in the morning and waken the manager. The party was to pose as a group of Provincial officers guarding the bank, and would request the manager to open the vault. Then the robbery was to have taken place.

WOODSWORTH HEADING WEST

New C. C. F. Leader Says Movement Spreading Like Wildfire.

CLUBS FORMED.

TORONTO, Dec. 15 (C.P.)—J. S. Woodsworth, M.P., leader of the newly-formed Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, leaves tonight for Fort William and Port Arthur, where he will outline the aims of the Federation in a series of meetings on Saturday, Sunday and Monday before returning to his home in Winnipeg.

In an interview with the Canadian Press to-day, Mr. Woodsworth declared the new movement was spreading like wildfire, and that he was greatly gratified with its progress. He pointed out the Federation could not handle individual members, but was seeking to bring into its ranks small Labor and Farm groups as an entity. The "white collar" workers, he said, were forming "C.C.F." clubs in order that they too might enter the new political body.

"We have received more than 1,000 applications from individuals for membership," he declared, "and have had to return them. There seems a wide demand for C.C.F. clubs, and with that in view we have appointed committees to form such organizations."

TO ADDRESS KIWANIS

J. F. Strickland, K.C., M.P.P., is slated as guest speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club at Empress Hotel on Friday.

Another feature of the meeting will be the appointment of committees for the year 1933 by the newly elected executive of the club, under Presidency of J. B. Nelson.

ARTICLES NEEDED.

Mrs. Ada Craig, 413 Rogers Street (telephone 2923J), is anxious to get pieces of carpet or oilcloth for bare floors, also several pairs of children's mittens.

PROVIDE CHRISTMAS BASKETS

The question of providing good Christmas baskets for the unemployed citizens of Peterborough is at present of general interest.

The city will be unable to do anything in this way, as there is no augmentation allowed for this purpose. It is anticipated that the various churches will look after their own people at Christmas time. Other associations doing relief work are asked to get in touch with A. Metheral, relief officer, so as to prevent overlapping and to ensure that every family gets a good Christmas basket.

Mr. Metheral will also furnish churches with names of their members and adherents who should be assisted in this way.

AFTER TOURIST TRADE.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., December 15 (C.P.). — With a view to having northern communities combine for extensive tourist advertising programs, the Board of Trade here is writing to municipalities as far as Sudbury, including St. Joe and the Manitoulin Island, regarding a general meeting for this purpose. The Blind River Tourist Association is prepared to back the plan financially, in hopes the entire area will unite in a Tourist Development Association for the district.

NO ANGLO-IRISH PEACE MOVES

De Valera Keeps Light of Reconciliation Burning But Neither Side Budges.

FARMERS DISCONTENTED.

(By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Writer.)

DUBLIN, Irish Free State Dec. 15 (C.P.). — Figuratively, at any rate, President De Valera still keeps the light of a great reconciliation burning in the window. Veiled threats to the contrary, the retained land annuities still lie in the suspense account in the hope of settlement with the United Kingdom. A satisfactory end to the economic war would be welcomed in both countries, but the light grows dim as settlement lingers. Neither Government has, so far, been prepared to budge from its position over arbitration. Each is ready to arbitrate.

The split (cutting out De Valera's additional claims) comes over the composition of the board. Basing its position on resolutions of the last Imperial Conference held in London the National Government holds that a board appointed to arbitrate a dispute between two members of the British Commonwealth must be confined to citizens of the British Commonwealth. The Free State wants the right to go outside the British Commonwealth for its nominee.

Exporters Aided.

To assist Irish exporters to the United Kingdom market, the De Valera Government has established a system of export bounties. In some cases the bounties are as high as the United Kingdom duties. In such cases — chiefly manufactured goods—the De Valera Government is, in effect, paying the British duties. But on cattle and dairy products, the United Kingdom duties generally much exceed the export bounties, and the Irish farmer is feeling the pinch.

When the De Valera Government announced its intention not to transfer the land annuities the farmer's idea was that he would be able to retain his land without further annuity payments to anybody. The farmer now bitterly complains that he is being hit twice. He is losing the market he had in the United Kingdom. At the same time he must pay his annuities to the Free State.

BE BEAUTIFUL

"Dear Miss Glad: Lately, whenever I remove cream from my face with my cleansing tissue, the skin becomes sore and sensitive. I use the same creams that I always have, although recently I did change my type of cleansing tissue. Could this possibly be the cause of the irritation?.—A. T. D."

The type of cleansing tissue that you use might indeed be the cause of the sensitive condition of your skin following the removal of creams. There are different types of cleansing tissue, and you should be careful in their selection. I personally think the fine, silky type best for use on the face. The coarser types are too likely to prove a source of irritation to the skin. You'll find that the fine, silky cleansing tissues remove dirt and grease just as effectively as the coarser ones, and yet are infinitely kinder to the skin.

"Dear Miss Glad: My skin has improved 100 per cent since I've been following the instructions in that "Beauty Culture" booklet of yours. No more miples and blackheads, thank goodness, and those fine wrinkles I started to acquire are actually disappearing. Th nks so much for your assistance. What I want to know now, however, is whether it is the ordinary bluing that is used in the bluing rinse for black hair, and how the rinse should be used.—Brunette."

The bluing used in the bluing rinse is not the same preparation that is employed in laundering. There is a hair bluing that is especially designed for use on the hair. This hair bluing may be procured in most beauty shops. The hair should be shampooed before the bluing rinse is applied, and every trace of soapy lather removed with clear, tepid water. Then enough hair bluing should be mixed with a quart of water to give it a rather deep blue color, and this should be used as the last rinse. After the rinse, the excess moisture should be removed with a lintless towel, and the hair, if possible, should be shaken dry by the hands.

"Dear Miss Glad: The skin of my face is perfectly normal, with the exception of my nose. There the skin is very oily. I've heard that bran is helpful in correcting such oiliness, and would be grateful if you could tell me how it should be used.—Louise."

Bran should indeed prove helpful in correcting the excessive oily condition of the skin of your nose. First cleanse your skin thoroughly with cleansing cream and then with soap and water. Next, mix enough witch hazel with a teaspoon of bran to form a smooth paste. Rub the paste gently over your nose, and then allow it to dry on. When thoroughly dry, remove the bran mixture with tepid water and a soft cloth, and finish up with the application of a mild skin tonic or astringent. This procedure will help a great deal in normalizing the condition of the skin of your nose.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

FREEDOM OF MOVEMENT OF THE ABDOMINAL ORGANS

Perhaps you have been reading about cases where the stomach hangs down too low in the abdomen and a considerable portion of the intestine are down at the very lowest part.

These individuals are often very slender, or "skinny," and there isn't any question but that the slow emptying stomach and intestine prevent the proper digestion of the food, and interfere with the absorption of the food into the blood.

Yet in a normal individual when a deep breath is taken the floor of the chest or the roof of the abdomen, whichever you like to call it, actually pushes all the organs in the abdomen a number of inches downward, so that they are out of place as it were, no harm is done.

Similarly we find some occupations that require sitting, crouched over, for minutes or even hours at a time, and yet there are no harmful effects as far as digestion or general health is concerned.

Dr. A. E. Barclay, London, England, records a study of the effect of posture—position of the body—and deep breathing on the abdominal organs in which he was able to secure pictures of the abdominal organs—liver, stomach, pancreas, intestines. These studies show that in normal individuals the abdominal organs are not in the one or a fixed position, and that they have a wider range of movement in relation both to the abdominal wall and to each other, than might be expected.

As you know the abdominal organs are really attached to the back bone or spinal column and hang out into the abdominal cavity supported by a certain amount of fat and abdominal fluid.

Dr. Barclay's pictures show the abdominal organs as able to approach much closer to one another, or separate themselves much more widely than was though possible and yet there is no interference with their proper working.

This does not mean that the abdominal organs can remain in a "dropped" position for a long period of time without causing symptoms; in fact such conditions require an abdominal belt, and sometimes a surgical operation.

It does show however how Nature provides for wide or deep movements of the organs when necessary.

STAMP CORNER

By M. A. Bessey

THE RECENT ISSUES OF CANADA DIES I AND II

There are, no doubt, a considerable number of collectors familiar with the two dies to be found on this last issue of the King George type postage stamps. For the benefit of the many, who are not as yet familiar with these differences, the following outline should be sufficiently clear to enable you to discern them.

Die I—The crescent in the ball of the ornament above the word "Postage" is small and indistinct. The top of the letter "P" encloses only a tiny dot of color.

Die II—The crescent in the ball ornament is larger and clearer. The top of the "P" encloses are larger amount of color than die I.

The above descriptions are those as outlined in Scott's Standard Postage Stamp Catalogue. I would add the following to the above: Die I —The stem of the maple leaf, in the upper left corner, is curved downward. Die II—The stem of the same maple leaf is perfectly straight.

The different stamps may be classified according to dies as follows:

Die 1, 1c orange; 2c dull green; 4c yellow bistre; 5c dull violet; 8c dark blue.

Die II, 3c dull blue; 8c red orange; 3c deep red.

I do not know of any one variety of the various coil stamps appearing in the two dies, therefore you may consider that whatever die your stamps happen to be(they are correct.

Scott's make a slight difference in catalogue value of the stamps appearing in both dies, and although it is only a matter of a few cents now, it might be a good idea to classify all of your duplicate stamps according to their proper dies. Some day, we may be surprised at the value of one or more of these now common stamps.

The author will be pleased to answer all questions about stamps or stamp collecting; address your letter in care of this paper, and enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply.

Rabbit Cooked French Way
Riced Potatoes
Buttered Cauliflower
Lettuce or Cabbage Salad
Cranberry-Banana Shortcake
Coffee

You may like to try rabbit cooked in the French way. And this new shortcake may become a favoriate with the family, so don't lose the recipe after it has been tried out.

To-day's Recipes

Rabbit Cooked French Way—One rabbit, cut in serving pieces, five or six onions, sliced, 10 prunes, salt and pepper to taste. Soak cleaned rabbit in diluted vinegar to cover. Let stand two or three hours, or overnight. When ready to cook, rinse rabbit in clean fresh water and dry thoroughly on clean cloth. Cut in pieces. Brown piece of butter in Dutch oven, fry pieces of rabbit till nice and brown. Add salt and pepper, put on lid and cook about one-half hour. Add onions sliced and prunes which have been washed and soaked a few minutes, then cook till done. Add water as needed to keep from sticking and for gravy. Prunes may be omitted but they give a nice flavor.

Cranberry-Banana Shortcake — Two cups cranberries, one cup granulated sugar, one-half cup brown sugar, one orange, three or four bananas. Put cranberries through food chopper. Pare orange, trim off white membrane and remove seeds. Put peeling and pulp through grinder. Peel and slice bananas. Mix berries, orange and bananas, and add sugar. Let stand several hours before serving. Pour over shortcake or rich biscuits. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve.

Prize money has been increased from $2500 to $5001.50

WE are glad to announce that nearly 100,000 entries were received, a number far in excess of expectations. Under the terms of the Fry Contest, the prize money, in the event of a draw, is to be divided among those who listed the 7 USES FOR FRY'S COCOA in the correct order as decided by popular vote. Here is the winning order:

1. Hot Cocoa
2. Children's Drink
3. Cakes and Puddings
4. Cake Icing
5. Chocolate Fudge
6. Iced Cocoa
7. Chocolate Sauce

This order was correctly forecasted by 1429 persons.

In view of the unexpectedly large list of prize winners resulting from so great a flood of contest entries, we have decided to DOUBLE THE PRIZE MONEY from $2500 to $5001.50.

This sum will be divided equally and each of the 1429 winners will therefore receive, by mail, a cheque for $3.50.

In cases where contestants have sent in more than one correct entry, a sum of $3.50 will be sent for each correct result obtained.

The annual banquet of the Alumnae of Nicholls Hospital was a pleasant event of last night at the Empress Hotel. Dr. E. A. Hammond was guest speaker and gave a delightful address, which was immensely interesting, as it included many reminiscences of the early days of the city and its first citizens. Mrs. Roy White was toastmistress for the occasion, which is fully reported in another column. Table decorations were carried out in the Alumnae colors of purple and gold, with a central basket of mauve and yellow chrysanthemums and dainty place cards which were favors in lavender and gold. Four silver candlesticks held yellow tapers. Miss Helen M. Anderson, president of the Alumnae, was in charge of general arrangements. After the dinner, bridge games were played, prizes being donated by two of the members of the society, Mrs. W. L. Ferguson and Miss Florence Vickers. The prize for auction bridge was won by Mrs. E. M. Leeson, and for contract games by Mrs. R. McIntyre. During the evening, very enjoyable vocal solos were given by Mrs. L. H. Ingram, with accompaniments played by Miss Elizabeth Webber. The committee in charge of the program included Miss Mabel Watson, Miss K. Burnside and Miss Jessie Deyell. Among those present were: Mrs. E. M. Leeson, Mrs. Roy White, Mrs. Simpson of Detroit (formerly Miss Howson), Mrs. C. Breckenridge of Westwood, Mrs. R. McIntyre, Mrs. W. T. Holloway, Mrs. R. Pogue, Mrs. G. Miller, Mrs. G. R. Scott, Mrs. H. M Yelland, Mrs. T. Shield, Mrs. Taylor of Belleville, Mrs. W. L. Ferguson, Mrs. English, Mrs. Hawe, Mrs. G. Anderson, Mrs. Gileson, Mrs. Lesurf, Mrs. L. H. FASHION SERVICE

In the smart seventh-eighth length, it makes one look tall and slim, no doubt!

Paris has made this model most interesting. Shoulder width is stressed through dolman sleeves. They cut in one with the modish square yoke of the front bodice.

Grey tweed woolen made the original. Plain black woolen appeared in a snappy tied collar. It's a stunning dress for a jaunt to town.

The dull and shiny surface of crinkly crepe satin can be worked out marvelously in this model.

Style No. 3245 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

Size 36 requires 2¾ yards 54-inch, with ⅝ yard 39-inch contrasting.

McGILL DAILY TROUBLE APPARENTLY SETTLED

MONTREAL, Dec. 15 (C.P.)—The dispute between the managing board of The McGill Daily, student organ, and the McGill students' executive council seemed ended to-day with the resignation of A. Deane Nesbitt, president of the students' society and chairman of the students' executive council.

Nesbitt announced he would resign should the students' society vote no confidence in his action in suspending the managing board of The Daily following publication of an article dealing with the visit of a student organization to a brewery which ended "in carefree jollity."

The students' council voted for a resolution favoring reinstatement of the managing board of The Daily. This was done, and Nesbitt's resignation followed.

HEADS ARE MOST COLORFUL

Various Coiffures and head dresses for evening.

By LUCIEN LELONG

Special Cable to Central Press

PARIS.

A NEW territory has been added to the style map, this season, in the complicated evening coiffures that have supplanted the sleek, smoothly dressed heads of the past few seasons.

Like the evening slippers, the evening head dress is apt to carry on the costume color composition. There are symmetrical Roman wreathes of velvet flowers to match the frock, or more rakish crowns of velvet laurel leaves worn tilted over one eyebrow.

For grand evening galas, the flowery wreathes may be made of multi-colored jewels or of frosty strasse or diamond leaves, or there may be triple Grecian bandeaux of precious stones to match one's parure.

Bandeaux of crosse plumes, cock feathers or curled ostrich, recalling the popular feathered sleeves or armholes, give an amusing, if somewhat exotic, effect of stylist colored hair. And, indeed, the hair itself is often curled to imitate feathers and colored by a special lacquer which comes in all the fashionable shades of the moment, as well as in gold, silver, copper, platinum, etc. This lacquer sets the coiffure so that every hair remains in place, and it is removed the morning after by a special companion liquid.

Women who have not the time for such capillary complications may prefer the stylised lacquered hair wigs that are designed to accent the style of many types of evening costume.

Crowniess Turbans Liked

Crownless ermine turbans are liked for theater wear with ermine capes or trimmings, and there are flower-like evening caps all in ermine petals. Ermine tails are also used for unusual evening coiffures to accompany the flecked "royal ermine" that is returning to the modern mode.

Fur flowers are often incorporated in the evening hair arrangement—sometimes matching, sometimes daringly contrasting with the natural color of the hair.

Hair ribbons, in the shape of big bows attached to invisible combs, give a youthful, almost school-girlish air to some curly evening heads. Others are draped into open turbans and attached with jeweled clasps matching one' sother jewelry.

Even when such extraneous ornamentation is avoided, the hair itself is dressed in curls placed so as to give a great deal of novelty to the head silhouette. A bunch of them will simulate a Psyche knot; a long "bob-tail bun" tied low on the neck is rather Spanish in effect; the back and front hair may be arranged in large, nearly imperceptible waves, while shell-like whorls widen the head from ear to ear. The double coronets of curls surmounting the forehead in the style called "Atlantide," are still being favored by women of classic beauty.

And it may be remarked in passing, that as the hair dressing becomes more artificial, the maquillage becomes more natural. This season, the real elegante powders just enough not to "shine," her lipstick faithfully echoes the tone of her mouth, whose original shape is designed with respect, and Cupid's bows are things of a bygone day.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

SUGGESTIONS for wrapping Christmas gifts could extend over many pages, in view of the elaborate character that has been given this feature of the holiday season within late years.

* * * * * * *

In some cases, in the bewilderment of dazzling papers and festive ribbons, there is a tendency to make a more pretentious show than the enclosed gift seems to warrant.

* * * * * * *

For Christmas giving, this pleasure in the outward appearance of a gift is part of the proceedings, especially since the gifts, piled beneath the tree, form part of the actual decoration of the occasion in many instances.

* * * * * * *

Indeed, it is quite delightful to all when those with little to give in actual value, show their ardor for giving by the enthusiasm which they put into the decking out of their gifts in the most dashing holiday style.

* * * * * * *

A gift in its wrappings may be made very attractive in the cheapest of white tissue paper, tied with red cord or tissue ribbon if a sprig of evergreen, babyberry, or a few leaves of laurel are caught into the bow knot.

* * * * * * *

Where these plants or trees are accessible, no added cost is involved Where this is not the case, some two or three inch strips of red or green ribbon cut diagonally at the ends, supplies the contrast.

* * * * * * *

On a red wrapping paper, a gold cord bought for a few cents a coil is stunning.

* * * * * * *

For name cards to be attached to gifts, there come great varieties at little cost, but the ingenious may prefer the fun of cutting down the Christmas cards of last year, if those which were received were saved.

* * * * * * *

Care should be exercised to make the newly cut edges straight, and to see that the name or any writing of a previous season is snipped off with sharp scissors or a knife.

* * * * * * *

An edge of gold paint can be painted on if desired, but it is not necessary.

St. Andrew's W.M.S. December Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's United Church Missionary Society was held on Tuesday afternoon in the church parlor. The meeting opened with the singing of Christmas Carols. Miss F. Dixon presided over the business part of the meeting and Mrs. B. L. Barns, the devotional. Mrs. W. Zeihr read the scripture lesson and several members led in prayer.

Mrs. (Dr.) Morrison Secretary of Christian Stewardship and Finance of the Presbyterial gave a very interesting talk on "The Christmas Spirit in Christmas Giving."

Mrs. W. Auld gave two well rendered piano solos.

At the close of the meeting tea was served by members of Mrs. Barns' group.

TRINITY CHURCH ORCHESTRA PRESENTS GOOD PROGRAMME

Sunday School Orchestra Under the Direction of Roy Rome.

TWENTY-SIX PIECES.

(By Jeanette)

Under the baton of Roy Rome, A.C.C.M. (Violin L.C.C.M.), the Sunday School orchestra of Trinity United Church presented a very entertaining program last night in the Reid street hall, to an interested and appreciative audience.

The program was varied and attractive from start to finish. Assisting the orchestra were Miss Jessie Tully of Otonabee, elocutionist, Miss Olive Rome, vocalist, and Albert Lee, tenor singer.

The twenty-six piece orchestra included in its numbers the very small, golden-haired Dorothy Cunningham whose skill as a violinist has already won her considerable local renown.

Mr. Rome is to be congratulated on the manner in which he has trained his group of players, who perform so skilfully and carefully, with an instant attention to attack and release that leaves no ragged edges of sound, with rhythmic, smooth tone and fine expressive quality.

The Rev. D. Wren, pastor of Trinity United Church, acted as announcer of the selections. Accompanists of the evening were Miss Marguerite Rome and Victor Boorman.

The orchestral numbers included several bright and breezy marches: the opening "Miss Liberty" march; "Starry Emblem" and "For Love and Honor."

A "Serenade" by the orchestra was a limpidly sweet, flowing piece of music that elicited much applause, and selections from "The Student Prince" were deservedly popular, with brasses and strings splendidly balanced.

The "Christmas Chimes" composition was seasonal and melodious music that had several passages for strings alone, with the piano imitating bell chimes. Other orchestral renditions were selections from "Chu Chin Chow" and the descriptive music of "The Glow-Worm" portraying the jolly dance of the marsh lights in merry staccato notes.

Fine Trio

A quartette of violins played the famous "Humoresque." Members of the group were Kenneth Gadd, Jack Bryett, George Mattice and Gerald Hutchnson.

A trio aroused especial interest and received renewed and enthusiastic applause. Their soft-toned music displayed an artistic finish that made their selections beautiful in the extreme. With Miss Marguerite Rome at the piano, Roy Rome playing violin and Tom Smith's expert fingers on the richtoned 'cello, it was satisfying and lovely playing. The selections were an old English dance, "In Elizabethan Days" and "Venetian Love Song" with an encore in a verse of "Mother Machree."

Miss Jessie Tully's readings were splendidly done. Her command of both serious and animated elocutionary style was demonstrated in the different atmosphere which animated her two selections. Contrasting in type and handling, they were exceptionally good in both instances. Her vivid delineation of the Irish lady in the piece, "On Being Clinic-ed", gained many a smile from an amused audience, while her deeper-toned rendition of the dramatic and sombre number, "The Highwayman" was fully as good, in its presentation of the tragedy of the "landlord's red-lipped laughter."

Miss Olive Rome's sweet, attractive voice was heard to much advantage in three songs: "Poor Butterfly", "Smilin' Thru", and "In An Old Fashioned Town with muted violin obligato played by Mr. Rome.

The soft accompaniment of piano, violin and cello, with lowered lights, formed an interesting setting for Albert Lee's fine tenor voice, which was splendidly toned in the soft cadences of the waltz son, "On the Dreamy Tonabee" composed by Ben Smith and set to music by Miss Marguerite Weatherhead of this city.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

MORE LUCKY THAN WISE

Many slams that are bid depend more upon luck than wisdom for fulfilment of the contract undertaken. The hand shown below appeared one evening in October, at the famous Knickerbocker Whist club, New York. We must admit that the declarer played the hand beautifully, but his partner had no business carrying the bidding to a small slam, even if either side was vulnerable.

	♠ K 9 4 ♥ A J 6 ♣ A K 9 8 ♦ A K 4
♠ A J 10 2 ♥ K 10 4 ♣ 10 7 3 ♦ Q J 5		♠ Q87653 ♥ 7 3 ♣ 6 5 4 ♦ 10 7
	♠ None ♥ Q 9 8 5 2 ♣ Q J 2 ♦ 9 8 6 3 2

Y made an opening bid of 1-No Trump, third hand. After which contracting went: B, Pass; Z, 2-Hearts; A, 2-Spades; Y, 4-Hearts; B, stepping way out, 4-Spades; Z, 5-Diamonds; A, Pass; Y, 6-Hearts. A doubled the bid. That fact helped the declarer play the hand to the best possibe advantage.

The opening lead was the Ace of spades, as the leader's partner had supported the spade bid. Z let the trick run around to where he could trump. He led back his Q of hearts. A's K covered. Dummy's Ace won the trick. There were 68 chances in 100 that the five trumps originally missing had been divided 3-2 between opponents. As A had doubled the bid he more probably than not had held three (at least) to the K-10. The K had been captured on the first lead of trumps. B had dropped the 3. Now the declarer had to enter his own hand to lead his 9 through where he considered it probable the guarded 10 was held. If A held only three trumps the 10 could be captured. If A held four trumps originally the contract would be defeated, as five diamonds, including Q-J-10 were missing, and one diamond trick must be lost.

The declarer entered his own hand by leading a low club. His J won the trick. Z led his 9 of hearts. A did not cover. The 9 won the trick. Another trump lead picked up the missing honor, giving the declaring side its fifth straight trick, without loss of any trick.

Z held in reserve the following certain tricks: One spade, one trump, three clubs and two diamonds—seven tricks total— sufficient to insure his small slam contract, but Z wanted to make one added trick, if possible.

The declarer entered his own hand by means of his Q of clubs. He won two more club tricks in dummy. Upon the last trick he discarded another diamond on the good K of spades. He took two diamond tricks with dummy's Ace and K. He ruffed dummy's last spade. All that did no good. A had held on to his three diamonds, and the thirteenth trick was won by A's Q of diamonds. The declarer made his small slam doubled, but he never stood the slightest chance of picking up the extra trick that he wanted.

Improper Information.

Be careful about answering a question asked by your partner. It may cost game to give him improper information. The other evening a trick had been turned and quitted. Before his side had played to the next trick the player asked to see the quitted trick. The declarer turned the trick back. The player asked: "Partner, which is your card?" This question should have been asked before the trick had been quitted. The partner answered the question. As a result, the declarer called for a lead, when next that side was in. The lead gave the game to the declarer.

Collegiate Gigolo Club Ready To Act

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 15 (C.P.)—Tulane introduces the Collegiate Gigolo. A "Gigolo Club" just organized at the University announced to-day it will provide "attractive, well-dressed dates" for all occasions for "small remuneration."

The club, it was explained, has been formed to solve the date problem for women attending Nemcomb College. No names of "clients" will be made public, the club promises, and all engagements will be held strictly confidential. An escort to a formal party requiring a dinner jacket will collect a fee of $2, while "informal" dates will charge $1.

"Any expenses, including taxis, shows, flowers, night club cheques and similar items naturally will be paid by the young woman," a campus poster declared.

Treasure In Gold On Floor Of Baikal Sea Object Of Search By Soviet Government

(By Central Press Canadian)

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—Reports of an immense treasure of gold, lying on the bottom of the Baikal Sea in Siberia, have caused a sensation among Russian emigrants in Berlin.

The gold treasure is declared to have been sunk in the Baikal Sea 28 years ago and allegedly belonged partly to the Russian royal family and partly to the Russian State Bank.

A man appeared at the Soviet Bank in Moscow a short time ago and told a fantastic story about the treasure. Although the Soviet authorities are keeping the matter secret it now has leaked out that not only has an expedition located the treasure, but allegedly has even recovered a considerable amount of gold. It is now hoped that Moscow's empty coffers soon can be refilled by the vast treasure still at the bottom of the sea.

Facts Disclosed

The fact, as they now have leaked out, are as follows:

In 1904 a war between Japan and Russia seemed inevitable. Czar Nicholas therefore ordered all state banks in Siberia to transport their gold to the state bank in Petersburg, because he feared that the Japanese might seize the money.

A regiment of Cossacks escorted the gold transport. When they reached a small bridge at the Baikal Sea, they were attacked by a gang of bandits, who had learned of the secret transport. The bandits were much better armed and outnumbered the Cossacks, all of whom were killed.

The gold bars were brought aboard a little steamer, to be shipped to the dug-out of the bandits. During the voyage, a terrific storm broke out, which the obsolete steamer could not withstand. At the same time, the bandits began quarrelling about the distribution of the booty.

Steamer Sinks

While the men were engaged in a fierce fight, the steamer suddenly began to sink. Nearly all of the crew were lost. Only three men succeeded in escaping.

The man who has told this story to the Russian officials claims to be one of the three bandits who succeeded in rescuing themselves. He has declared under oath that his story is true.

The Soviets at once began investigating the matter. Divers were sent down to the bottom of the Baikal Sea, where they allegedly succeeded in finding the remains of the sunken steamer and even some of the gold bars. The Soviets now are said to be making feverish attempts to lift the steamer with its cargo of inestimable value.

The story has alarmed not only Russian emigrants in Berlin, but in other European capitals as well. Many emigrants declare they recall the hold-up of the secret transport.

Benevolent Ben Breakfasts Breadline

Early in the morning, before the sun is up, Ben Kravitz, who came to Canada 35 years ago, and runs a restaurant in Montreal, opens up shop to the hungry of that city who are hungry enough to get up before dawn and good-natured enough to stand in line in the kind of weather depicted above. Ben has made it his proud boast that he never turns a man away hungry while there is food in his kitchen. Each morning he distributes a neat little parcel of food. He is shown above doing his day's good deed.

Principals In Yacht Murder

The mystery of the murder on the yacht at Long Beach, California, continues to mystify the police. The murder involves Captain Walter Wanderwell (LOWER RIGHT), whose real name is Valerian Johannes Pieczynski, a Polish soldier of fortune, once an alleged German spy, who was shot in the back by "the man in gray" as he was making preparations aboard his yacht for a sojourn into the South Seas. Wanderwell was famous for his trip around the world by motor which he made with Miss Gilvis Hall, formerly of Winnipeg, who posed as Wanderwell's sister, he having previously, aparently, left his wife, Mrs. Nell Wanderwell. The latter several years ago had the pair arrested in San Francisco for illegal entry and in turn was sued for divorce by Wanderwell and for slander by Miss Hall. Wanderwell had completed arrangements for his trip into the South Seas with a crew comprised of nine men and seven women when the tragedy took place. Witnesses claim he was shot by a man in gray, while Mrs. Wanderwell (Miss Hall) states that this man is likely a man she knows as "Curley Guy," a member of one of Wanderwell's former expeditions, who had a grievance against her husband. Involved also in the case is Lord Edward Montagu (LEFT) of Edmonton and Vancouver, who signed up as a member of the "crew." He has been exonerated from blame by police, who are now looking for "Curley Guy." Wanderwell was once arrested in California on a white slavery charge.

Voted Most Promising In Hollywood

Meet the Wampus Baby stars of 1932. Here are 12 for their beauty, youth and ability by the motion of the most promising screen stars chosen each year picture industry's outstanding workers.

Named As "Man At The Porthole"

William J. (Curley) Guy, held at Long Beach, Cal., in connection with the murder of Capt. Walter Wanderwell, is shown at right with his face to the same porthole of Wanderwell's yacht where four members of the crew saw the face of a man just before their leader was shot to death. Guy insisted he knows nothing of the slaying though he admitted quarreling with Wanderwell. Guy is shown chained to a detective and in close-up, inset.

Globe Trotter Slain

A murder mystery as keen as any of the adventures that he sought in life cloaked the death of Capt. Walter Wanderwell, globe trotter, who was shot in the back in the cabin of his yacht at Long Beach, Cal., on the eve of Wanderwell's departure for the South Seas. During the war Wanderwell was interned at Atlanta as a suspected German spy. His young widow, in Hollywood at the time of the slaying, announced she intended to proceed with the projected cruise.

Hold That Pose! Thanks!

The camera can't lie? See you! For instance, you'd be prepared to wager your underwear that Captain Tom Sellers, English high diver, was caught in the act of diving from the tall building shown in the picture. But you'd lose, for if you look a little closer, you will notice the platform at LEFT from which the diver took the plunge. Capt. Sellers put on his act to thrill spectators at the Miami-Biltmore pool in the famous Florida resort.

Slain Adventurer And His Family

Capt. Walter Wanderwell, adventurer, assassinated in his yacht at Long Beach, Cal., on the eve of a cruise to the South Seas, is shown here with his wife and two children. Mrs. Wanderwell was in Hollywood at the time the slaying occurred, but the children were asleep on the yacht. Police began seeking a man whose face appeared at one of the portholes just before the shooting.

Wera, Wera Nice!

The realization of many a foreign actress' dream—an invasion of Hollywood—is being enjoyed by Wera Engles, pretty German film star, who is shown as she arrived at the movie centre to seek fresh laurels. Miss Engles is not only a talented actress, but is a linquist of ability. She is the daughter of the wartime commander of the famed German sea-raider, Emden.

Although he has been breathing with the aid of a "mechanical lung" for 100 days, 14-year-old Earl Potter of Philadelphia manages to keep smiling. Earl is a victim of infantile paralysis, but has high hopes for complete recovery. He has heard of 15-year-old Herbert Fuchs of Brooklyn, N.Y., who spent nine months in a respirator and is now on the way to fully restored health.

Reading from left to right: crinkle silk afternoon dress; crinkle silk crepe; crinkle silk crepe with pique bib; rough sheer silk and fagoting; semi-sheer silk with cut velvet sleeves

You'll surely need some chic daytime dresses for the holiday season—and thereafter as well.

Dresses for mornings, dresses for the holiday season—and thereafter as well.

Dresses for mornings, dresses for shopping, afternoon at tea, bridge, calling and other affairs; gowns for business and college.

A smart dress of crinkle crepe for afternoon is shown at the left of the sketch. Notice the big puffed sleeves, the becoming cross-over surplice front, the white silk flowers, the white suede belt with metal trimming, and the plait in the front and back of the skirt. Charming in black or emerald green.

Tunic frocks are becoming and as smart as can be. The second model is in crinkle silk crepe trimmed with metal buttons. The skirt is on a lining and there are plaits on one side of the tunic. Cranberry red, forest green or fleet blue would be especially pretty for this dress.

Number 3 is distinguished by a detachable plaited white bib collar, three-quarter puffed sleeves and big buttons. It is made of crikle silk crepe like the other two, and would be darling in red, bright green or black.

The young woman who is placing a gift on the Christmas tree wears a becoming sem-sheer afternoon frock of rough sheer silk, with bow and ribbon trimming. Hand-faggoting on the sleeves, buttons and a bow at the neckline are the trimming points. Black, brown, navy or plum are pretty colors for such a gown.

Contrasting sleeves are one of the season's most marked style points. The dress, right, with cut velvet sleeves on semi-sheer silk, with silk cuffs, is appropriate for tea, luncheon, bridge, or dinner. It has a cowl neck, rhinestone clip and silk sash, and would be most attractive in black, green or wine.

It looks as if the athletic prowess of Eleanor Holm, Olympic backstroke champion, now a movie actress, is not confined to aquatic pursuits. Here is the energetic young lady in a fine action picture as she clears the net "by a mile" at Palm Springs, Calif., where she is vacationing.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

BOWSER HAS THE WORST OF A FIGHT

Bowser the Hound learned long ago that to wait for a cat in a tree to come down is sheer waste of time, so after barking for a few minutes at Yowler the Bob-cat he trotted off to try to find some one else to hunt. Had Farmer Brown's Boy been anywhere about Bowser would have remained right at the foot of the tree and kept barking until his master came. But he wasn't about and so Bowser went on.

But Bowser didn't forget Yowler. No sir, Bowser didn't forget him. In fact he thought about Yowler a great deal. Never had he seen such a big cat before. Here was someone well worth hunting. So the next opportunity Bowser got to slip away he headed straight for the place where he had first found Yowler's tracks. For a long time he ran this way and that way sniffing and snuffing among the dead leaves without finding so much as a whiff of Yowler's scent. He was about ready to give up when at last he found it. It was rather faint, but as he patiently followed it with his wonderful nose it grew stronger and Bowser began to run.

"Leave me alone or I will scratch your eyes out!" snarled Yowler

Straight to a great tangle of fallen trees his nose led him. The trail led straight into that tangle. Bowser tried to crawl in and as he did so a deep growl followed by an ugly snarl greeted him. Bowser backed away in a hurry. He had found Yowler sooner than he expected. The fact is Yowler had been taken a nap there and he was in bad temper, very bad temper, at being so rudely disturbed. Bowser barked excitedly and Yowler continued to growl and snarl and occasionally to spit as only a cat can.

"Leave me alone or I will scratch your eyes out!" snarled Yowler.

"Come out and try it," roared Bowser. "Just come out and try it. I'll shake you out of your skin. Just come out and try it."

And Yowler did. He came out so suddenly that he was right in front of Bowser before Bowser realized that he was coming. Yowler's ears were laid flat back and his lips were drawn away so as to show his long sharp teeth. It seemed as if his eyes actually shot forth sparks of fire, though of course they didn't. Bowser was so startled that he began to back away, but he didn't have a chance to take more than three or four steps. No sir, he didn't. With a snarl such as Bowser never before had heard Yowler sprang on him.

To this day Bowser is sure that Yowler has ten times as many claws as an ordinary cat. At that particular time it seemed to him that Yowler had as many claws as Prickly Porky the Porcupine has little spears. It seemed to him that Yowler was all claws and sharp teeth. Bowser was not a coward, and he did his best to get Yowler's throat in his great mouth and choke him. But Yowler's fur was thick and do what he would Bowser could not get a tooth hold. My, my, my, such a fight as that was! Such a growling and snarling and yelping as there was! Such a snapping and clawing and biting!

But it didn't last long. Bowser knows when he has met his match, and the very first chance he got he broke away and with his tail between his legs and yelping with pain and fright started for home as fast as he could go. Yowler chased him a little way, then with a last snarl of rage turned back to finish his nap in the tangle of fallen trees.

"I guess that fellow won't bother me again in a hurry," he growled.

What Today Means to YOU

By MARY BLAKE

"SAGITTARIUS"

If December 15th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a.m. to 9.20 a.m., from 11 a.m. to 12.15 p.m. and from 7.30 p.m. to 8.30 p.m. The danger periods are from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. and from 10.15 p.m. to 11.30 p.m.

"He who hesitates is lost," is a maxim that should be kept in mind on this date. Forces operating will tend to make people undecided in their thoughts and actions. Do not be wavering; strike "while the iron is hot." This applies also to affairs of the heart and to the pursuits of pleasure. A cheerful day.

The child born on this December 15th, will have great energy and unusually good health. Care must be taken to see that these children do not become the centers of their respective households. They are very demanding and have a way of getting what they want. They must not be pampered nor fussed over as they have an abundance of natural conceit and are easily spoiled.

Born on December 15th, you are intense in whatever you do. You can hold your own in any one of many types of work, teaching, banking, positions of trust, etc.; but whatever your pursuits, you throw your heart and soul, all your energies, into that work. This is a splendid quality but you have a tendency to carry it to extremes and thus to make of yourself a not well rounded man. You are a useful person, and you enjoy making use of your talents and abilities in helping others. You have a great civic pride, and our country would be a finer one if we had more public spirited and right thinking citizens of your type.

You are a humble person; you are sincere, thoughtful of others, and charitable. You value friendship highly and consequently you have many fine and trusted friends and you know how to keep them. You are constantly striving to improve yourself and never are you content with less than perfection. You have no patience with those who are slovenly in their thought. You radiate peace and tranquility and your home reflects these qualities. Your home is comfortable, you are a good host and most hospitable. You are almost assured of a happy marriage.

EARLY PARLEY URGED IN PRESS

Discuss Possibility of British Ministers Going to Washington First of Year.

GOLD READY.

LONDON, Dec. 14. (AP)—A call for the earliest possible beginning of conversations between Great Britain and the United States regarding revision of the war debts agreement appeared to-day in newspaper comments on the situation resulting from the government's fourth debt note to Washington.

There was talk of a possible visit by cabinet ministers to Washington early in the New Year to participate in the desired conversations.

There was speculation in political lobbies that U.S. President-elect F. D. Roosevelt might cooperate with President Hoover in the hoped-for conversations.

Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer; Stanley Baldwin, former Premier and Lord President of the council of the present cabinet and Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, were selected by political gossips as the likeliest representatives of Great Britain if the conversations were held.

Although the last authoritative word was regarded as spoken by both the United States and Great Britain respecting Thursday's payment, and the gold was ready for transference, politicians, were showing interest in to-day's debate in the House of Commons.

The note sent to Washington yesterday signified no change in the British policy of paying with reservations.

BIG BASEBALL DEAL INVOLVES SIX MAJOR MEN

Washington and St. Louis Clubs in American League Complete Trade.

SENATORS GET STEWART.

Senators Trade Fred Marberry for Earl Whitehill of Detroit Club.

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—The annual major league meetings need only to approximate to-day the frantic activity of the David Harums during the past 48 hours in order to establish the conclaves of 1932 as the greatest off-season trading climax in baseball history.

The falling arch brigade, some if them crippled by the endless marching, counter-marching, plain and fancy standing-around in hotel lobbies, reached wearily for chairs, but still was full of the lust for barter as the three-day convention came into the home stretch.

So far, counting in post-season deals, every club in the National League and fine in the American not only have traded important material but are still eager to keep right on dealing until dragged away from here.

And all in all, the wholesale juggling of the playing rosters in answer to the demands of the faithful for new faces, has been so sensational in spots as to steal most of the thunder from the more pompous dealings of the owners in formal session.

The turnover in ball players, led by the "boy managers" of the two leagues, Bill Terry and Joe Cronin, has injected new life into the aching ankles of the standing army.

Cronin, with the "Old Fox" Clark Griffith masterminding at his elbow, put over two deals for the Washington Senators yesterday that popped a few eyes in the lobby and materially enhanced the Senators' chances of overhauling the world champion New York Yankees next season.

Washington sent Sam West and Carl Reynolds, outfielders, Lloyd Brown, southpaw pitcher, and a bundle of cash along to the St. Louis Browns in exchange for Goose Goslin, a great hitter and former favorite in the capitol; Fred Schulte, regular outfielder and Walter Stewart, one of the finest left-handed pitchers in the league.

Senators Get Best

Goslin, a .325 hitter, went to the Browns from Washington a couple of years ago in exchange for Heinie Manush. The experts gave Washington all the better of both deals. Goslin is a game-busting, home run hitting star and Stewart and Whitehill the types of pitchers who beat the first division clubs consistently. On hitting and pitching records, the deal with St. Louis figured even-up.

Second in importance was the Boston Braves' deal with the San Francisco Missions for two young infield prospects, Albert Wright, second baseman, and Dick Gyselman, third baseman, for $60,000 and Bill Walters, a third sacker.

Cincinnati bought Clarence Blair, former Cub infielder, from Los Angeles, and Irving Plummer, an outfielder, from Wilkes Barre. Brooklyn purchased Linus Fry, 19-year-old shortstop, from Nashville for 1934 delivery, sending Earl Mattingly, right hand pitcher, along as payment.

Manager Terry of the Giants completed one more deal yesterday and offered half a dozen. He took Shortstop John (Blondie) Ryan from Buffalo in exchange for Infielder Eddie Marshall and cash. He want sto trade Catcher Shanty Hogan to Boston; Second Baseman Hughey Critz to Philadelphia, and substitute First Baseman Sam Leslie to Brooklyn.

Nothing at Conference.

The magnates, for their part, came down to the closing joint meeting to-day with little or nothing of major importance left on the calendar for definite decision.

There was the question of broadcasting regular league games, a sore spot in several cities where owners contend that rival clubs in adjacent territory are reaching out through the air to steal home town fans, but these was no possibility of joint action. The National League is split 5 to 3 on the question and the American 4 to 4. Unanimous opinion in both leagues is necessary either to approve or bar broadcasting in the joint meeting.

Unanimous approval in the separate meetings of the two major leagues during the past two days of the motion to advance from June 15 to May 15 the date for pruning rosters to the 23-player limit has forecast approval of the measure without argument in the joint session.

Sell Tickets Own Way

Other propositions before the joint session are the American League's suggestion that the clubs engaged in the World Series be allowed to determine whether the wish to sell series tickets singly or in blocks; routine amendments to rules; and general discussion of other problems, known only to the magnates.

CANUCK TEAMS NEED VICTORIES

Leafs Expected to Beat Senators in Transferred Game at Toronto To-night.

TO-NIGHT'S N.H.L.

TORONTO, Dec. 15. — (C.P.)— Unless the old home-town spirit has lost some of its virility and even tradition has slipped a cog, it's going to be a pretty exciting night for the National League's hockey leaders who do their work away from home or bump into old-time rivals in front of faithful followers.

To-night's three-point schedule in the major circuits sends Ottawa Senators into action against the Maple Leafs at Toronto. Boston went to the Chicago Hawk stronghold and Rangers and Americans into their second big battle of the campaign at New York. The Leafs, Senators and Americans need wins to stay where they are or do a little climbing and the Hawks can move into a contending position ni the United States' division with a victory over the second place Bruins.

Leafs Expect to Win.

If they had played this game at home, where it was originally scheduled, the Senators might start favorites to wallop Conny Smythe's champions. The game was transferred here at request of the Ottawa management and even if the barber-poled Ottawans profit financially through a bigger crowd than they could attract at home the hustling squad from the capital may find the move costly. Still hard to take at home, the Leafs defeated the Senators 4-1 here less than two weeks ago.

Rangers don't expect it easy when they hit the Amerks so they won't be surprised if Charlie McVeigh and Normie Himes cut up scoring capers.

Always a tough nut for the home-crushing Bruins to crack, Chicago Hawks are tougher still in Chicago. But fresh from a 5-1 win over Toronto the Bruins are going just well enough to provide Chuck Gardiner with a busy evening.

DUTCH DEFEAT PORT COLBORNE BY 5-2 COUNT

"Chuck" Roth Suffers Concussion of Brain in Second Period.

WAS STAR OF GAME.

(By The Canadian Press)

Port Colborne Sailors are back in their home "Port" to-day, thwarted in their attempt to share second position with Hamilton Tigers in the Ontario Hockey Association senior "A" series. Playing on Kitchener ice last night, the Sailors were sunk by an inspired Kitchener team, which took the long end of a 5 to 2 score for their second victory of the season.

Led by the ever-reliable Chuck Roth, until he was injured in the second period, the Greenshirts outlayed the rugged Sailors, and ran in as many goals, as have been scored on Dinty Moore in his seven previous games.

Roth, who was cut in an accidental collision with Upper in the second period and suffered concussion of the brain after falling, scored the only goal of the first period. This was increased shortly after the second session opened by Harlock, who caught the rebound of Fellbaum's shot to find an opening in Dinty Moore's defence.

Less than a minute later Harry Gray made a sweeping check of Schiebel in front of the Kitchener goal, and the Dics went flying past Berner into the net.

Red Mitchell and Bobby Fellbaum scored in quick succession in the third period to give the Empires a three-goal lead. Both these goals came on assists by Schiebel.

Hudson, who had played stellar hockey, finally was rewarded when he combined with Gray to cut the homesters' lead to two. With but a minute to play Harlock worked his way in close to score his second goal of the game.

MOOSE JAW COACH INTENDS TO RESIGN

Claims Odds Too Great Against Western Team in Dominion Final.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Dec. 15. — Allan Wilson, the 23-year-old master mind of junior football, who has led the Moose Jaw Maroons into Dominion championship battles during the past two seasons, is through. He is going to resign as coach of the Maroons, and there is also a possibility of Albert Tomlinson, President of the local club, tendering his resignation.

In the Canadian final, the Maroons were defeated by University of Toronto, 8-6, last Saturday, and in 1931 lost to Woodstock, 14-13.

Wilson, who gave up his position in Winnipeg to come to Moose Jaw as Maroons' mentor, told newspapermen last night:

"I'm quitting for two reasons. In the first place, I have my own future to consider. Coaching football will never earn me promotion with any company. Secondly, the odds are too great against a Western team in the Dominion final."

FERGUS RINK WINS PLACE IN PLAY-OFFS

Shares Honors on Wednesday With J. M. Rothschild's Strathcona Club Entry.

TORONTO, Dec. 15—J. M. Rothschild's Strathcona Club rink and John Graham's quartet from Fergus were the qualifying rinks in yesterday's competition for the Thauburn Memorial Trophy playoffs on Friday in the High Park Club's annual curling event.

Ten of the 16 rinks competing yesterday were from out of town, while local clubs were represented by the remaining six. Of this number, the Strathcona Club had three entries, and they were the only Toronto rinks to survive the first round. The three victories scored by Skip Rothchild were all against outside rinks. In the first round he disposed of G. A. Binns, Newmarket; eliminated F. E. N. Reesor's Locust Hill four in the second round, and decisively defeated Fred Michael's rink from Oshawa in the third round.

Skip Graham and his Fergus players defeated Captain McKay's Owen Sound entry in the 9 o'clock draw, then defeated Dr. White's Strathcona rink in the second round. In the final round Fergus beat G. A. Mu v's Shelburne rink.

The day's play was not without its upsets. In the first round H. H. Chisholm's well-known Toronto Curling Club rink was handed one of the worst beatings of the week by the Michael rink from Oshawa. The score was 15 to 1. However, the Chisholm rink came back in the consolation event to win two games handily, and get a further chance for the prizes on Friday.

After scoring a decisive victory in the first round over the Oshawa rink skipped by E. Parsons, George Downey's Strathconas could not stand the pace set by G. A. Murray's Shelburne entry and met defeat. Another upset of the day was the failure of the Toronto Granite rink skipped by W. E. McMurray to get out of the first round. The Granites lost in the Thauburn to F. E. Reesor of Locust Hill by 11 to 9, and then met defeat again in the consolation event after an extra end with G. A. Binn's Oshawa rink.

Ross Hits Clancy In Tuesday Fracas

TORONTO, Dec. 15. — King Clancy didn't punch Art Ross, manager of the Boston Bruins, as Boston reports claimed in the story of the game between Leafs and Bruins on Tuesday night. The reverse was the case. Ross punched Clancy.

The Leafs returned from Boston yesterday and were surprised and indignant when they read the stories of the game as sent out over the Associated Press wires and which appeared in local papers. When Lamb and Horner were penalized, Referee Cooper Smeaton went over to notify the penalty timekeeper that Lamb's penalty was a major. Then penalty box is close to the Boston bench and Ross called Smeaton over to argue the matter. Clancy went over to listen to the argument and Ross reached out and hit Clancy. The police and Boston players interfered before the King could return the punch with interest.

Manger Connie Smythe of the Leafs intends to lay the whole matter before President Calder of the N.H.L. so that disciplinary action will be taken against Ross. Referee Smeaton will back up the Toronto club in its attitude toward the unruly pilot of the Bruins.

Senator Robertson Asks Extra Leave

OTTAWA, December 15 (C.P.)— Senator G. D. Robertson, former Minister of Labor, has asked the Order of Railroad Telegraphers of which he is Canadian vice-president, to extend his leave of absence until the next general convention, scheduled for Montreal in May, 1933. Although his health is improving gradually since a breakdown about a year ago, he does not feel able to carry on his labor duties.

Senator Robertson has been an officer of the Telegraphers' Union for 25 years. He was on leave from 1917 to 1922 when Minister of Labor in the Borden and Meighen Governments. When the Bennett administration was formed in August, 1930, Senator Robertson returned to the Labor office, again securing leave of absence from the Union. Because of ill-health he resigned the portfolio on February 1, 1931, but continued on leave from the Union. He now asks this leave to be extended until next May.

Rejuvenated Windsor Bulldogs Tied With Olympics for Fourth Place.

REGULARS ABSENT.

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—(C.P.)—The rejuvenated Windsor Bulldogs were tied with ther neighborly rivals, Detroit Olympics, for fourth place in the International Hockey League standing to-day, following their 4-2 victory over patched-up Cleveland Indians at the border city last night.

Playing under Jack Arbour, who was making his debut as playing manager, the Bulldogs had two new faces on their line-up. Ronald "Peaches" Lyons and Harvey "Rocky" Rockburn were the newcomers and the Windsor fans gave them a vociferous welcome, especially Rockburn, who at one time performed for their arch-enemies, Detroit.

Stan Brown made two clever plays to get half of the winners' goals, while Lyons and Cormier completed the total. Earl Roche assisted in three of them.

Alex Gray and Frank Daley clicked for the Clevelanders, who were badly weakened by the absence of Tony Prelesnik, Kinr Williams and Bernie Brophy.

Each team scored a goal apiece in the first two frames and the Bulldogs got their winning margin in the final period.

Windsor will travel across the river to-night to engage Detroit in a game that will give the winner undisputed possession of the fourth rung.

IRRITATED IRVIN IS IRONICAL REGINA RABBIT ROARS RETORT

West is Still West, But When West Meets West in East, West Makes Meat of East's West.

BY WILLIS ENTWISTLE

"Rabbit! Rabbit!

"Lift up your feet 'Red,' 'Duke,' I'm looking for 'Rabbit' McVeigh."

It was Coach L'l Joe Simpson of Bill Dwyer's New York Americans paging L'l tousle-blonde-thatched "Rabbit" McVeigh, the west calling to the west to counter the moves of "Foxy" Dick Irvin, western coach of Toronto Maple Leafs.

And it was a western night for Andy Blair of Winnipeg and Ken Doraty, who got his baptism in the old Western Canada Hockey league were on the Toronto team and with Dwyer's Yankee-doodle-dandyhos besides Simpson and McVeigh, was "Red" Dutton of Calgary, "Duke" Dutkowski, "Ren" Martin of Calgary, brother of the late beloved Foley, and Johnny Sheppard of Edmonton.

Whooping It Up

But, to get back to the game, there were shades of Dan McGrew for a bunch of the boys were whooping it up.

It was chopstick time, You know the kind in the west when the natural ice got a little sloppy and the only way to stop the other guy was chop like you do with an axe. Well, that is what the Amazing Amerks did to the Leafs, until the Leafs got the fever, too, started the same thing and the game looked like a shinny bang on the corner lot.

Ha! Ha! Rabbit's speaking, or rather mumbling again, this time as some over-zealous Leaf smashed him in the back and round the neck.

"Rabbit's" place on the ice was left wing but that didn't bother him. All over the ice he went and he must have been reminded of when "Red" McCusker made his debut in goal for Regina some years ago. The game was in Vancouver and the coast team scored ten. "Rabbit" dodged behind McCusker to try and keep 'em out as "Red" missed 'em.

But against Irvin's Leafs it was different. "Get back in your papa's pocket," growled Irvin. "Tell that to your Aunt Minnie," hissed Rabbit and down the ice he went.

Tired Of It All

It was near the end of the second period and "Rabbit" was obviously sick and tired of seeing the pathetic efforts to score. So he went alone. The others overtook him as he crossed the Toronto blue line, but that didn't worry him, for he just changed his course, let fly through a crowd, the puck never left the ice and behind Chabotsky it went, a goal.

Strutting like a bantam cock, "Rabbit" glided to the bench. "'Eh! Rabbit," yelled Coach Joe. "Where are you going?" "Rest, brother Joe, tongue hang out, see!" was the answer. "Get back into it," yelled Joe and back Rabbit went, his glide changed to a shuffle.

Came the overtime, for Toronto utes and had even taken the lead after four minutes of the extra session had gone.

Charlie Conacher, Leafs' big whirlwind, had been given a penalty.

Again the familiar cry rang out, "Rabbit! Rabbit!" "Yes! Wotta life, wotta life, an' I was sittin' 'ere enjoyin' the game, too. Simpson, you're the cat's whiskers, answered McVeigh.

"Rabbit" grabbed the puck, skated round in a couple of circles then had equalized in the last three minutes down left boards he went. Just past the blue line and he let it go, It never left the ice and again Chabotsky was licked, again the score was tied.

"Rabbit" conjured up his tiredest smile and toward the bench he toddled. "Get back there, "Rabbit," you have another goal to get," yelled Simpson.

But "Rabbit" was all in. "Oh! quit your beefin'. I've bin yer 'ero twice to-night, move over and let me sit down in peace. I'm entitled to my seat on the bench just like all the other subs."

And the mighty atom, the blonde tousle-haired, pesky little shuffler from Regina, the land of Wes Champs, Amb Moran and Spunk Sparrow, became a spectator for the last three minutes the same as me.

Everybody in hockey knows McVeigh and everybody likes him. He is one of the best team men the game has ever known.

VICTORY OVER SAMMY FULLER GIVE HIM BOUT

Vancouverites Favored By Followers to Cop Duke on Friday Night.

TOWSEND ALSO MATCHED.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (C.P.)—Boxing circles hum merrily to-day and almost make one forget the sport has been in the doldrums for the last year or so.

While James Archibald McLarnin and Billy Townsend, the Vancouver duo, prepare for their feature engagements on Friday night's card at Madison Square Garden, Frankie Battaglia, latest Canadian sensation, from Winnipeg, entrains on the first leg of his journey to Chicago.

McLarnin meets Sammy Fuller of Boston, in the 10-round headliner here Friday. The winner has been promised a shot at champion Jackie Field's welterweight title. The Bostonian has been exuding confidence but the Vancouver belter rules first choice, odds ranging from two to one to thirteen to five in his favor.

Townsend is matched in the semi-final with the clever Hollander, Bep Van Klaveren.

Battaglia Wants Match

Battaglia left for Boston this afternoon where efforts are being made to sign him for a match with an opponent to be named later. The bout will not be held this month, however, unless negotiations fall through for Battaglia to meet Georgie Nicholls, in Chicago on the 29th.

Nicholls, recognized by the National Boxing Association as the light heavyweight champion, is showing reluctance to risk his crown against the hard-hitting Winnipeg middleweight, and has not yet come to terms.

If this bout fails Matchmaker Nate Lewis of the Chicago Stadium will try to line up Primo Carnera, giant Italian heavyweight, and Max Baer, Livermore, Calif, playboy.

Line Up Double Bill

Lewis is determined to have Battaglia on a Chicago bill soon, however, and if he fails to line up Nicholls will put the Winnipeg slugger on a double feature bill on Jan. 5. This will likely include Fidel la Barba, top notch featherweight and Tommy Paul, N.B.A., featherweigh champion. The latter has been signed.

Seaman Watson, featherweight champion of the British Isles, has been signed to test Kid Chocolate, world champion, when the latter makes his next defence of the crown almost smacked off his dusky brow last week by La Barba.

Matchmaker James Joy Johnston announces he has signed the pair for a title bout in the Garden on Jan. 27. Should the clever Watson win, La Barba will be matched with Chocolate, the winner then meeting the Briton.

Wright Is Satisfied With Intermediates

The Peterborough Intermediate O.H.A. team is beginning to take shape, and the team will likely be named definitely in a few more days. Fifteen players held a stiff workout at the Brock last night, and Manager Wright states they are fighting hard for places, and it will not be an easy task choosing in several cases. He is quite well satisfied with the material on hand and the condition of the boys, believing the Petes will be extra strong this winter.

The same crew will practise to-night from seven to eight at the Brock, lay-off to-morotw evening, and workout again Saturday from 6.45 to 7.45. They will resume steady drilling next week, and arrangements may be made for one or two exhibition games before the schedule opens.

Both Tommy Foley and Tommy Miller took turns in the nets and showed up well. There is a good chance of both being carried by the team if they continue their fine goal-tending. Both were stars at this position in Junior O.H.A. Right now it appears as though Ted LeBarr, Archie Weir and Eric Howe would hold down the defence jobs, Ellis having been moved up to the front line where his great skating and stick-handling should prove invaluable. Jim will likely be centre on the first forward line, flanked by Ira Dundas and "Red" Dallin. The second line may be "Gamey" Jarvis, Doug Hatton and "Red" Creighton; or George Merrett, Fred or Bill Cripps and "Scotty" Maudsley. Or the second line may be made up of any three of thtee seven players.

These positions are not official, but as they worked out most of the session last night in this manner, it may be surmised that this is what the manager has in mind. However, no position is definite yet, until the club is satisfied it has the strongest team representing Peterborough.

ALBION JUVENILES

A practise will be held to-night at the Sacred Heart rink from seven to eight for the Albion Knitting Juveniles of the Southend Hockey League. Any player under eighten by Jan. 1st is invited to come out for a trial, as no player so far is assured of a place.

Escaped From Sing Sing

William Sutton (LEFT) and John W. Egan, both of New York, are being sought following their escape from the "escape-proof" new cell block at Sing Sing prison. Both men were serving long terms for robbery. They sawed door bars in their cells, trussed up a trusty, secured a ladder from a pantry and escaped over the prison wall. It was the first escape from the new cell block of the famous prison.

SPORTS Day by Day

HOCKEY—BOWLING—BOXING
BASKETBALL — OTHER SPORTS

(By C. J. P.)

There is a changing sentiment in sports, not too noticeable yet, but nevertheless it's there. The past few years have seen a general dropping off in gate receipts, the reduction being more than is warranted even by the business depression. Picture theatres continue to do fairly good business despite conditions, but few sports are making any dough. What is the reason?

* * * * * * *

Our guess along with observation of fans and sports is that the tempo and entertainment is not what it should be. That is, the games have too many draggy spots and not enough sustained excitement and thrills to pack the grandstands and halls. Rasslin' is an exception which proves the rule. That game s jammed with exciting action—synthetic or otherwise, no matter—and folks can't witness the average grappling bout without getting all steamed up and shouting, booing, and in general getting their money's worth.

* * * * * * *

Fans want color, lurid coloring along with fast, close competition—and no stalling! The big league baseball magnates are beginning to realize this and at their recent session a number of them advocated a return to the fighting spirit that marked the game when McGraw, Cobb, Jennings, et al, were the bane of every umpire in the league and the delight of every fan. Restrictions are being placed on Yank umpires for this purpose. We don't advocate lawlessness in any sport, but we don't believe in treating athletes like naughty school boys, either.

* * * * * * *

For instance hockey. We'd like to see the game as fast as it is, but kept that way for sixty minutes a game, and less bellringing and time lost in changing players. Also, there must be ways of adding a kick and punch to hockey without having to go in for rough stuff. Aggressiveness on the part of every player on the team—even exaggerated aggressiveness—would not only help the team, but that very spirit would spread to the fans and build up a real following for this skating bunch of scrappers. The possibilities are endless.

* * * * * * *

Sport officials in every line might do some serious thinking on ways to get the crowds on their feet yelling or even booing, as next to a popular rassler, the one with the biggest following is the most-hated villain. Boxing could well emulate the mat game as much as possible, and almost any sport can go to a certain distance in this direction. Why stand still in sports? Put pep, color, fight and always a good showing, into any game and the world will beat a path to your hall, arena, diamond or where do you perform, anyway? There's dough in it for the new type of sport, and this could be tried just as well right here in Peterborough, as anywhere else, and why let a bunch of ham rasslers (under smart management) get the only big gates that are going anymore? It will be a fine thing for the sport, and the fans will show their appreciation by fighting for seats at so much per.

Hockey moguls would sooner watch hockey than talk it, and that's why there was such a small turnout at last night's Southend League meeting. Most of those who should have been out were up at the Brock where the Hockey Club was working out. So Ches Mowry, prexy of the S.E.L. decided that the meeting will be held again next Wednesday evening at eight o'clock sharp, when all entries must be in. Bill Kay told those present of the O. H. A.'s offer of four dozen hockey sticks for the juvenile section, obtained through Percy Bond, and a hearty vote of thanks was passed to the Ontario body and Mr. Bond.

* * * * * * *

At present, there are ten teams in this loop, All Saints, Canucks and Northenders make up the intermediate section. The Albion Knitting and Rangers are the only juveniles in yet; while the bantam section is filled up with Warne Bros., Empire Cubs, Canucks and Maple Leafs. This means that the Southend League would like one more intermediate team, three or four junior ones, and two juveniles. Little trouble is anticipated in getting these entries in another week.

* * * * * * *

The only O.H.A. schedule drawn up around here so far is that of Group 2, junior section embracing Campbellford, Madoc, Belleville and Trenton. It's a single schedule opening with Trenton at Campbellford January 2nd. Belleville goes to the Hydro town the 12th, and Madoc is there the 17th. The affair winds up the 26th, and the first and second teams then playoff. The Campbellford intermediates are in with Belleville and Trenton, so fans down that way will likely see some good O. H. A. puck-worrying this cold winter.

The Masked Marvel had the head-covering ripped off him by Strangler Lewis last week, and he's billed as the Unmasked Marvel in tomorrow's Ottawa bout with Sammy Stein. His right name it seems is Al Getzewich—and we'll take the mask anytime. There was always a lot of speculation here as elsewhere just who the hooded hombre was, and we had the sneaking suspicion that he and his manager changed roles regularly, as both were about the same build, both masked and probably both were grapplers. So, if our guess is any good, despite his unmasking, some of these days we wouldn't be surprised to hear of the mysterious one being parted again from his woollen masquerade and instead of Al Guess-again (or you say it), maybe President Hoover or Al Capone, or someone similar will be discovered.

BASKETBALLERS KILLED.

NEW YORK. — Death scrawled a sad score for a neighborhood basketball game early to-day. Returning from a Y.M.C.A. game, a car carrying five players, overturned John F. Cahill, 23, and Edward Bricken, 17, died. Three were injured.

GIANTS CLUB DOCTOR LIES NEAR DEATH

Physician Victim of Mysterious Attack by Desperate Ex-convict.

NO MOTIVE FOR CRIME.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (A.P.)—Dr. William J. Walsh, 41, widely-known physician to the New York Giants baseball club, lay near death to-day, the victim of a mysterious attack by an ex-convict, who shouted, "I'm desperate," as he fired three bullets into the doctor's abdomen.

The assailant, variously known as John William Wilson, Victor Hugo, and Frank Madden, fled from the physician's office, only to be cornered and killed by police and a friend of the doctor.

No motive for the crime was found. Tuesday night, a man describing himself as John William Wilson telephoned Dr. Walsh at his office on Riverside Drive, saying he was bringing a critically ill brother to the office.

Fearing it might be a case of wounded gangsters, Dr. Walsh asked police protection. Two policemen went to the office, but Wilson failed to appear.

Last night a man rushed into the place and fired three shots into Walsh.

To-Night's Line-Ups

The line-ups for to-night's game at the Maple Leaf Gardens are as follows:

THRILL TO THE SCREEN'S OUTSTANDING CHARACTER ACTOR
WALTER HUSTON
IN
"A HOUSE DIVIDED"
WITH HELEN CHANDLER, Star of 'Dracula"
AND
KENT DOUGLAS, Hero of "Waterloo"

WALTER HUSTON as the sea-village father, jealous of his mail-order bride to the point of thrashing his own son; KENT DOUGLASS as the son who really loved the girl who had married his widowed father; HELEN CHANDLER as the innocent victim of a fear-forced marriage! . . . Drama that screams with realism . . . Thrills that throb with peril . . . A PICTURE TO REMEMBER!

Van Slambrouck Is Forced From Grind

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 15. — (C.P.). — The Schaller-Oach pair held a one-lap lead over the field as nine teams wheeled into the third day of Milwaukee's six-day bicycle race at one a.m. to-day.

An attack of acute appendicitis forced Oscar Van Slambrouck to withdraw last night. His partner, Bobby Thomas, of Kenosha, Wis., paired with the veteran Reggie Fielding of Toronto, when the latter's team-mate, Lew Rush, withdrew because of injuries.

Thomas and Fielding immediately set about picking up laps, stealing three in a night of wild jamming.

Hockey Practices

RANGERS' JUVENILES

The Rangers, juveniles of the Southend Hockey League, will work out to-morrow night from seven to eight at the Sacred Heart rink.

WARNE BROTHERS.

The following players are asked to be at the practice of the Warne Brothers' Bantams from six to seven on Friday evening at the Sacred Heart Rink, the boys to bring a dime each with them: Depellaro, Wright, Brady, Leith, Scully Connolly, Creighton, McDougall, Pulkinghorn, Shaughnessy, Watson, Heal, Conrnyea, J. White, and Thornton.

Winter And Crossley Lead At Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 15. (CP) With 13 teams of pedal-pushers well past the half-way mark in Philadelphia's second six-day bicycle race, the combination of Winter and Crossley were leading the pack at 8 a.m., the 80th hour. At that point all but one of the teams had covered 1420 miles since the grind started.

Five of the teams including Jules Audy, Montreal and his partner, were tied for second position, one lap behind the leaders.

TURN TO BASKETBALL

Soccer Results

LONDON, Dec. 15 (C.P. Cable).—Coventry and Reading to-day again failed to break the deadlock as to which should enter the third round of the English Soccer Cup competition. The two teams played to a 3-3 tie after extra time in a replay match.

Hull and Carlisle also went overtime before Hull won 2-1. Queen's Park Rangers defeated Torquay by 3-1.

BENGE JOINS DODGERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (C.P.)—The Brooklyn Dodgers to-day announced the acquisition of Ray Benge, star right-handed pitcher, from the Philadelphia team of the National Baseball League for Neal (Mickey) Finn and Jackie Warner, infielders, and Austin (Cy) Moore, pitcher, and cash.

Wrestling Promoter Loses In Court Suit

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Dec. 15 (C.P.)—Jack Thomas, former manager of the Queensbury Stadium here and later of the Niagara Falls Arena, lost his suit for an accounting of the receipts of the Queensbury Wrestling Club of Toronto, before His Honor, Judge J. S. Campbell in County Court here. After taking evidence for four hours, the trial Judge found that the alleged partnership existing between Thomas and Messrs. John J. Corcoran, promotor, and George W. Harris, secretary treasurer, of the Queensbury Club at Toronto, did not exist after the middle of February last, up to which time Thomas had shared in the profits of the company on the local stadium. Since that time up to October, when he was dismissed, he had been engaged as an employee and had been paid in full for his services.

TRADE BALANCE IS $40,249,224

Favorable Balance is Shown By Dominion in First Eight Months.

MORE WHEAT MOVED.

OTTAWA, Dec. 15 (C.P.).—Canada's favorable balance of trade (excess of exports over imports) has risen to $40,249,224. During the eight months ended November 30 of the present fiscal year, total exports of Canadian produce amounted to $336,753,484, as compared with imports totalling $296,504,260. For the month of November alone, exports of domestic produce exceeded imports by $8,175,460. Imports entered for consumption were to the total value of $36,769,060, while domestic exports amounted to $45,944,520.

Official figures issued by the Department of National Revenue show that Canada exported 171,192,413 bushels of wheat valued at $96,348,153 during the eight months just ended. During the corresponding period a year ago wheat exports totalled only 139,612,615 bushels, but their value was $84,160,912. Exports of wheat flour during the eight-month period ended November 30 last were to the value of $1,822,997 as compared with a valuation of $13,471,153 for the corresponding eight months of 1931-1932.

The monthly figures show the value of Canadian wheat exported during November last as $13,959,355, as against $17,573,376 in November, 1931; wheat flour $1,798,982, as compared with $1,599,307 in November, 1931; fish, $1,340,175, as compared with $2,316,306; and cheese, $1,184,802 in comparison with $1,347,892.

Mongrel Dog Best Huge Timber Wolf

BARRIE, Ont., Dec. 15 (C.P.) — How a rangy mongrel doge bested a large grey female timber wolf who was defending her three pups was told to County Treasurer D. H. Coleman to-day by Alexander Hearich, Hydro Glen, in Hatchedash Township, when eHarich applied for a bounty on the wolf, which he had shot.

Hearich's companion, Albert Cox, Port Santon, shot two wolves and secured the bounty. Seven in all have been shot in Simcoe County this fall.

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE No. 88

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service, Inc.)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The ape-man soon found that Jana could follow him through the trees. So they started back to the point where Tarzan had left his Waziri warriors. Presently he heard approaching footsteps. After waiting a few silent moments he saw a half-naked, mud-coated man coming toward them. What he was doing there alone in the grim forest puzzled Tarzan, so he dropped to the ground in front of the surprise stranger.

At sight of the ape-man the other cried: "TARZAN!" It took a moment before Tarzan could recognize the speaker. "Gridley—Jason Gridley," he exclaimed, "Jana told me you were dead." "Jana?" replied the bewildered Jason. "you have seen her? Where is she?" "Here!" replied a silvery voice as The Red Flower slipped to the ground near them. Jason started eagerly toward her but stopped mid-way, as he saw her eyes held no welcome for him.

Tarzan looked silently on, perplexed, but he never questioned affairs that did not concern him. "Come,' he said after a moment, to Gridley's relief, "we must find the Waziri." Some distance farther on the three encountered the warriors who were bringing with them Thoar and the three Korsars as prisoners. Only when their Big Bwana explained the four were not enemies did the Waziri release them. Jana rushed forward and threw her arms about Thoar. And as Jason watched, jealousy smote him and he knew he himself loved this little barbarian.

Tarzan took charge of future plans. "If we are ever to find the O-220," he said to Gridley, "We must follow the river. Thoar and Jana shall come with us. If we locate the ship we can take them to Zoram.' Thoar's face clouded as he looked first at Jason and then turned to Jana. "Before we go as friends with these people," he said, "I must know if this man offered you injury when you were with him?" Jana, avoiding Jason's eyes, answered, "You need not kill him. Had that been necessary, The Red Flower of Zoram would have done it herself."

SANTA IS MORE EXACTING THIS YEAR IN TYPE OF TOYS HE MADE

Toys Are Leaning More Towards the Scientific This Year.

LARGELY PRACTICAL

Central Press Canadian Writer

CLEVELAND, Dec. 15.—Even gay, old Saint Nick, the blustering bounder whose white-bearded and red-garbed image is more popular than any mortal ever could hope to be, has not escaped the touch of things scientific.

Not long ago, some of the exploiters began to make a modern out of Santa Claus. They took away his trusty reindeer and gave him an auto for his use to encircle the world, and a little later they painted him with an airplane in making his chimney-to-chimney trips.

They didn't make him shave or take a haircut, of course, for that would spoil the show, and they let him have his way about what toys to give—that is, until now.

Toys Are Classified

Old Santa has a book of rules for this Christmas concerning the type of toys he has for this girl and that boy. The toys have to be more practical than heretofore, and of a constructive variety, rather than those which are easily destroyed.

Toylands of the nation give one the assumption that Dr. Claus must have been very busy with his test tubes and experiments during the past year. Formerly motionless wooden and metal models, toys now are showing a trend toward the realistic and mechanical.

Inventive genius has been largely responsible for the new trend in toys, but an ulterior motive behind it all is an attempt to give children toys best suited to their growth and development.

It appears that the period for the presentation of toys for pleasure and enjoyment alone has passed. In its place is arising a move to help educate, as well as afford enjoyment for the child with the toys he finds on Christmas morning.

Learn As They Play

Such was the idea the Western Reserve Nursery school of Cleveland had in mind when it began a study of "How Can Christmas Best Meet the Needs of My Child?"

The school decided that "play is a child's way of learning, experimenting, trying himself out, and finding out about everything in the world around him, and finally adapting himself."

A child must be "allowed to grow up". He must be supplied in early life with constructive, and not destructive toys.

"Because," says a report from the school, "toys that fit his needs will lead him, step by step, into that avenue of adult achievement for which he is best qualified by his innate abilities. Your selection of his toys must be determined by your child's age, strength, and natural interests, plus his physical, mental and esthetic needs."

Carrying out its scientific plan of "fitting" the children with the right toys, the school has made a grouping of the toys for boys and girls at various ages.

Three Groups

"The child fom six to 18 months old is developing from a wriggling organism into an individual who wants to know about things; how they feel and what they do," the school's report observes. For this class stuffed animals, musical balls, kiddie cars and rattles are recommended.

In the next classification for children from 18 months to three years, the school maintains that a child is "going through a period of random experimentation; he is interested in imitative, creative and dramatic play." Trains that look together, beads of string, clay to mold, talking machine records and books are suggested.

Children from three to five years old "are acquiring greater physical dexterity and more accurate muscular control" and should be given tools, dolls with accessories, blackboards, gymnasium sets, wagons and the like.

Toys which are more realistic and of a constructive nature are among the new popular devices that cram the Toylands this season.

For example, there is a toy automobile just like dad's big motor car. It is equipped with electric lights, shock absorbers, an illuminated dashboard and a radio which actually will pickup broadcasts.

Just Like Mother's

And similar to mother's bigger models, there are electric washers, sweepers and stoves to catch the eye of the little girls.

A doll that can be washed and cleaned like any real baby is on the counters awaiting its mistress. She is made of rubber, and comes in a box with a full outfit of soap, baby powder, a washcloth and a washing stand to satisfy the penchant of the "little mothers" to scrub their families.

A fat and wooly dog looks real enough as he struts around in cumbersome fashion, blinking his eyes, snapping his jaws and barking, after being wound up with a key. A frog, looking life-like enough to fool even the fish, hops and croaks with a little winding.

Games that require more effort that just sitting down to play replace the old, simple contests. There are ping-pong sets, badminton outfits and little roulette wheels.

Whether or not it will be a white Christmas should not worry the boys who are favored by Santa with one of the new sleds. This years they have demountalbe wheels, as well as runners, so that they can be used on dry pavements as well as on ice.

5 YEAR PLAN FACULTY MAN OF INTEREST

Manitoba Professor Would Centralize Control of Basic Industries.

NO PATERNADISM.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 15 (C.P.).—A five-year plan for Canada, as formulated by Prof. A. R. M. Lower of the Department of History of Wesley College, affiliated with the University of Manitoba, is given prominent display on the front page of the magazine section of the Winnipeg Free Press.

The plan includes several rather novel suggestions, along with one or two radical ideas, but in the main will appeal to the reader by its seeming practicability.

Briefly, Prof. Lower's plan is:

House-clean our education system. Give appropriate type of education. Vocational training to the many; professional training to those of good abilities but without philosophical interests; humanistic education of a broad philosophical nature to those fitted for and interested in it.

Patronage of fine arts. If rich men take budding young men under their care, buy their pictures, subsidize publication of their poetry. A national radio system.

Away with government paternalism in business, but if we must have paternalism make it positive, rather than negative. Fewer subsidies on Canadian manufactured materials and more on ideas.

Some return of independence to parliament and some weakening of the executive. A return to a three-party system may be necessary to accomplish this reform.

Consolidation of power in the Federal government. Of recent years there has been too much centralizing of authority in provincial hands.

Abolition of appeals to the Privy Council, leaving safeguards of minorities and religious intact; amend the British North America Act to give more power to the Federal government.

Centralized control of basic industries, such as pulp and paper, textiles, hydro, etc. Prevent competition to the point where higher tariff is necessary to enable existing industries to live, leaving to individual initiative a wide field of activity.

ELECTRICITY IN LIVING VEGETATION

Expected Be Practical Value in Detection of Criminals.

Whether turquoise blue beads, and scarab amulets ornamented the regal personage of a Pharaoh as he surveyed his courtiers, or adorned an Egyptian nobleman's daughter, will not longer be a mystery.

Egyptian and Assyrian relics in the Rosicrucian Oriental Museum at San Jose, California, are to be electrically examined to determine the sex of the original owner, says R. Farthing, 416½ George Street, Peterborough, local Rosicrucian representative.

According to Mr. Farthing, the Secretary of the Rosicrucian Grand Lodge (AMORC) reports that their electrical research has determined the presence of both negative and positive magnetism or electricity as a unit in living vegetation and animal life. The strength of the energy in even a large plant is very small, as compared with the electrical energy ordinarily dealt with. In examining the substances of objects to determine their predominant polarity, whether positive or negative, it was discovered that inanimate objects registered on galvanometers a distinct polarity. Objects that had been on the persons of men, registered a polarity different from those of women. The hypothesis is that inanimate objects in constant contact with humans, absorb the minute electrical and magnetic radiations of the human body, which are indefinitely retained, permitting the determination of the sex of the object.

The Rosicrucian Secretary further states that if further tests conclusively prove this, it will undoubtedly be of practical value in the detection of criminals. Mr. Farthing has been asked to submit suggestions to the Rosicrucian Research Department for further experimentation throughout the winter, the result of which will be incorporated into manuscripts for the Rosicrucian members.

FRY'S DOUBLED PRIZE MONEY

Many Winners in This District in Contest Conducted by Fry's Cocoa.

SEVEN LINES FOR COCOA

Winners of the "7 Uses for Fry's Cocoa" contest are announced today. The number of entries reached the total of 98,121, the largest in such contests that have been held in Canada. The correct entries numbered 1,429. Under the terms of the contest if more than one contestant forecast the correct answer the money was to be pooled and divided among the first place winners.

Appreciating the public response to their contest, J. S. Fry & Sons, Limited, Montreal, decided to double the prize money which is $5,001.50 instead of the original $2,500, the larger sum being sufficient to pay $3.50 to each successful contestant.

The winners in Peterborough and this district were as follows, each of whom will receive a cheque for $3.50:

Mrs. George Boreham, 476 Donegal street; Mrs. N. Bradley, 704 Water street; Miss Alfreida Cox, St. Joseph's hospital; Mrs. W. D. Edwards, Claraday; Mrs. G. Groombridge, 296 Rogers street; Mrs. W. Joyes, 247 Burnham street; Mrs. J. M. La Pointe, 56 Aylmer street; Miss F. Mitchell, 301 Park street; Mrs. J. Pirie, 547 Romaine street; Mrs. A. E. Prest, 242 Lansdowne street; Mrs. A. Worrall, 121 Park Hill Road; Miss M. Hooton, Ida; Mrs. E. Rhind, Marmora; Mrs. A. W. Lean, 102 Gladstone avenue; Miss R. I. Rupert, Frankford.

The winning order of the "7 Uses for Fry's Cocoa" were: 1, Hot Cocoa; 2, Children's Drink; 3, Cakes and Puddings; 4 Cake Icing; 5, Chocolate Fudge; 6, Iced Cocoa; 7, Chocolate Sauce.

The contest was announced largely through newspaper advertising and the firm considers the success of the contest largely due to this method of advertising. The unique feature of the contest is that the votes were all recorded by machinery.

J. S. Fry & Sons (Canada) Limited are gratified at the tremendous response to their contest and the doubling of the prize money reflects their satisfaction. The prize winners in Ontario number 702. Lucky entrants who sent in more than one correct entry receive $3.50 for each correct entry.

LEGION LADIES ELECT OFFICERS

Mrs. W. Chappel Chosen President of Lakefield Auxiliary for 1933.

L.O.B.A. ELECTION

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 15.— (Examiner Correspondence.)— Mrs. Walter Chappell was elected president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion at the annual meeting held in the Legion room on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Chappell has been a very valuable member of the Auxiliary since it wa organized thirteen year ago and has filled several responsible positions.

Mrs. Thomas Junkin was elected vice-president, Mrs. Earl Orr the secretary and Mrs. A. B. Burrows treasurer. Mrs. R. G. Mulkins and Mrs. T. W. Chaplin were elected auditors, Mrs. J. R. Earnshaw and Mrs. C. Stenner were elected as executive committee and Mrs. J. C. Smith and Mrs. J. R. Robins the flower committee.

Mrs. Marling moved a hearty vote of appreciation to the retiring officers for their faithful service and untiring zeal for the work of the organization, particularly mentioning Mrs. Leonard, who has held office since the organization of the Auxiliary and has been treasurer for several years.

The ladies will again co-operate with members of the Legion for the Christmas tree, the date to be settled later and a buying committee was appointed to purchase the necessary gifts.

The reports showed a healthy condition of membership and interst as well as a financial position which was very satisfactory indeed. The ladies are prepared to co-operate with the Legion in their relief work and one feels that, as in the past, the zeal and industry of these ladies in this worthy cause will carry them along to even greater results.

The ladies were presented with a handsome box to keep their work in by Comrade R. D. Murduff of the Legion. The box is an ornament to the room and will be very useful, in fact donations of garments, etc., nearly filled it.

Norfolk Hunters After Wolf Pack

TILSONBURG, Ont., Dec. 15 (C.P.)—Though Deputy Game Warden Donald McDonald is skeptical that there are wolves in Norfolk County, Chief of Police Reynolds, W. G. Pow and other veteran hunters who know wolves stated to-day there is no doubt that an animal shot on the farm of Dr. Wildfang is a wolf. The pelt was sent to Toronto today for bounty.

To-day saw a rush for gun licenses and 100 men are planning to hunt for what they believe to be a pack of wolves.

PILES GO QUICK

Itching, bleeding, or protruding piles go quickly and don't come back if you really remove the cause. Bad blood circulation in the lower bowel and hemorrhoidal veins cause piles by making the affected parts weak, flabby, almost dead. Salves and suppositories fail because only an internal medicine that stimulates the circulation and drives out the impure blood can actually correct the cause of piles. Dr J. S. Leonhardt discovered a real internal pile remedy. After prescribing it for 100 patients with success in over 90 cases, he named it HEM-ROID McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store and druggists everywhere sell HEM-ROID Tablets with guarantee they will end your Pile misery or money back.

SUSPENSION IS "UNFAIR"

NOT SUE MOTOR COMPANY.

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 15 (C.P.)—Mildred Babe Didrikson, versatile girl athlete, termed "grossly unfair" her suspension by the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union on grounds she allowed a motorcar manufacturer to use her picture and testimonial in an advertisement.

Her criticism was made last night in a written statement after the registration committee of the Southern A.A.U. at New Orleans yesterday suspended her from further competition as an amateur.

Daniel J. Ferris, secretary of the National A.A.U., said if the suspension was made permanent, it would bar Miss Didrikson from consideration for the James I. Sullivan memorial award, the winner of which is acclaimed the nation's outstanding amateur athlete.

The 1932 Olympic star reiterated she had received no compensation from the motor car company which, she asserted, used her picture and testimonial without her consent. She would make no public announcement as to whether she would seek reinstatement but did say she planned no action against the motor car company or its agents.

FRASERVILLE L.O.L. INSTALL OFFICERS

K. Moncrief New Master — Oyster Supper Winds Up Program.

FRASERVILLE, Dec. 15 (Examiner Correspondence)—The annual election of officers of Fraserville L.O.L. No. 46 took place on Monday night at the regular meeting of the lodge, with Bro. W. G. Waterman, Past W.M. in the chair. The induction and installation of officers for the coming year was presided over by Bro. James Paul, past County Master and Bro. Art Thorne.

Officers elected for 1933 are: W. M., Bro. Kenneth Moncrief; D.M., Bro. Harry Cunningham; chaplain, Bro. Fred Lewers; recording secretary, Bro. Austin Trotter; financial secretary, Bro. Gordon Henry; treasurer, Bro. Stewart Hogg; marshal, Bro. Victor Sweeting; 1st lecturer, Bro. Talbert Trotter; 2nd lecturer, Bro. Gordon Morrison; committeemen, Bros. Arnold Hewitt, Percy Moncrief, Albert Henry, J. O. Pue, Robert Holden.

Visiting Orangemen included Bro Art Thorne of Carmel, Bro. Roy Ferron of Fallis Line and Bro. William Williamson, Bro. William Francey and Bro. Elmer of Millbrook.

After this part of the meeting, an oyster supper and social hour was enjoyed by all.

CANADIAN LIBERALISM STANDS FIRMLY FOR TARIFF REDUCTION OPPOSITION CHIEFTAIN SAYS

Tariffs Breed War, Warns Mackenzie King at Liberal Banquet.

DERIDES EMPIRE PLAN.

History Shows Third Parties Formed During Tory Rule.

(By Jack Hambleton, C.P. Staff Writer)

TORONTO, Dec. 16.—Canadian Liberalism to-day stands firmly for a reduction of tariffs and wider trade as a means of overcoming the present economic chaos. Clearly and unmistakeably, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Federal Liberal leader, last night told an overflow audience that if Canada is to escape from the depression she must enjoy world trade as well as trade within the Empire.

"Do we believe in the League of Nations, and for the necessity of its operation? Do we believe the possibilities of war to be so remote we can afford to disregard them altogether? This will surely be the ultimate fate if the world pursues too long a policy of selfish devotion to narrow interests of trade confined to single channels. For economic war leads to world war," he declared.

Premier's Dream

Premier Bennett, he declared, held high a "dream of a self-sufficing, centrally-controlled imperial economic unit." But the dream of the Prime Minister would never be realized, for history had shown a self-sufficing nation inevitably died.

While Mr. Bennett thought other nations must pay tribute to trade within the British Empire, this could never be accomplished. "If we are to have this Imperial economic policy—to have economic policies with regard to trade, what about finance, and currency, and migration, and transportation? If we are going to have our policies shaped by some Imperial Council, where is that council to come from?

"Are we going to have men sit in secret conclave, as they did at Ottawa, and shape our policies and our futures without allowing Parliament to have anything to do with it? If the accepted position is that Parliament cannot change these policies, then you will have a situation that will work not for the solidarity, but for the dismemberment of the British Empire quicker

London Jobless

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 16. — (CP)—Two husky London policemen invaded London's municipal zoo today armed with hunting rifles, and with two shots apiece felled four elk in winter quarters there. The gunmen were Inspector Thomas "Bud" Lucas, and Traffic Sergt. William "Bill" Middaugh of the local police.

The elk colony has been increasing altogether too fast lately and nobody wanted to buy surplus. Death sentence was passed by the Public Utilities Commission.

Unemployed of city will benefit by about 800 pounds of young elk meat.

REEVE TANNER IS ON THE JOB HE DECLARES

New Stove Be in Jail Before End of Week.

REEVE TANNER "PEEVED."

Kitchen Requires New Floor Before Stove Can be Placed.

That a new stove would be installed at the County Goal during the course of the present week, and that it had been on order before the Grand Jury had called attention to the danger of fire that existed due to the impaired condition of the stove now in use, was the assurance given by Reeve C. S. Tanner chairman of the County Property Committee of the County Council, in an interview with The Examiner this morning.

"I wish it to be clearly understood", stated Reeve Tanner, "that the work is not being hastened because of the Grand Jury's criticism of the present stove, nor because of the recommendation they made in their presentment to Judge Huycke. At the time their report was made I was on the job", he stated.

Work in the goal kitchen, Reeve Tanner said, for which he had giv-

SERIOUS PLIGHT FOR FAMILIES

Northern Ontario Municipality is Unable to Give Further Relief.

NO MONEY IN TREASURY.

CALLANDER, Ont., Dec. 16.—(C. P.)— Unless the Ontario government gives prompt and favorable consideration to an appeal of the township of North Himsworth, in which Callander is situated, for relief on a 100 per cent. basis, 132 resident families of this village will be in a serious plight by Wednesday.

The Municipal Council passed a resolution to this effect and inserted an appeal for immediate consideration on the part of the Ontario Relief Bureau. This was supplemented by telegrams to Premier George S. Henry and J. A. Ellis, chairman of the Ontario Welfare Board, citing the urgency of the situation and pleading for a quick response.

Reeve O. K. Morrison explained the township's finances are completely depleted. Due to a majority of the taxpayers being without work for three years, the tax revenue for the current year has been reduced to one-half of the ordinary amount.

Private Reports From London Say Evidence Not Sufficient in Test Cargo.

Consignee Must Be Named.

OTTAWA, Dec. 16.—(C.P.)—Private reports from London, England, to high authorities in the grain trade are that the test shipment of Canadian grain which recently landed at Liverpool by way of Buffalo will not be given the six cents preference under the Canada-United Kingdom trade agreement.

The decision of the British Government under its regulations, it is understood in the grain trade, is that shipments of Canadian wheat by way of Buffalo and New York or other United States' ports must be made on through bills consigned

J. F. STRICKLAND APPROVES IDEA OF RELIEF FUND

Tells Kiwanis Many Citizens Have Not Felt Pinch of Depression.

COMPLIMENTS COUNCIL.

Member of Legislature Refers to Co-operative Commonwealth Political Agitation.

J. F. Strickland, K.C., M.P.P., guest speaker at the Kiwanis Club luncheon at the Empress Hotel today, expressed the hope that the proposed local campaign to raise an auxiliary fund for direct relief would be soon undertaken and successfully subscribed.

"An editorial in last night's Examiner pointing out the necessity of assistance coming from resources outside our governments was most timely," Mr. Strickland said. "Some people have not yet felt the pinch of these stressful times. The legal profession has suffered. The medical profession, who in good times and bad does a tremendous amount of work for nothing, has also suffered. Employees of corporations whose business has been reduced, have also been faced with lowered incomes, but in all communities there are forehanded persons, perhaps who are not inclined to be as speculative as others, whose incomes have not been affected ten per cent., while others of us have had our incomes cut fifty per cent. or more. The Examiner's editorial was addressed to those who have been more fortunate, and I may say that I heartily endorse that idea.

"Local subscriptions have been taken up in other communities with marked success. Oshawa, which has been on other occasions invidiously compared with Peterborough, has just raised $35,000, and I believe their fund will reach $40,000. Ottawa's subscription amounted to $150,000, and Brantford has subscribed $91,000. I hope the editorial in our local paper will have good effects, and those citizens who can afford to do so will contribute liberally to the fund which is now proposed."

Mr. Strickland referred to the fact that during September, October and November, the city had expended $40,000 for relief, but the bulk of that money was in payment for services rendered.

JOBS ARE FOUND IN ROAD CAMPS

FEW DESERTIONS.

NORTH BAY, Ont., Dec. 16 (CP) —Trans-Canada highway camps in the North Bay-Mattawa sector opened recently and operating under the joint auspices of the Dominion and Ontario governments as a relief scheme, have absorbed 775 single unemployed men within the past month. Of these 590 have been drawn from Southern Ontario points, 20 from Eastern Ontario and 165 from North Bay and district. Toronto was the heaviest contributor with 400 taking exclusive control of four camps. Hamilton with 100 located at West Bonfield camp and North Bay represented by 131 distributed between two working forces.

Since work has been resumed in the North Bay-Mattawa zone and nine camps reopened desertions have been relatively light.

Between North aBy and Chalk River, approximately 105 miles, there are 22 camps in operation, with 2,500 or more men in camp. The road building work east of Mattawa has been under way since last Spring, and at the present rate of progress it is figured that a large portion of the new road will be ready for traffic late next summer.

SMITH CRASHES, WRECKS PLANE

Youthful Flier Escapes Unhurt in Attempting Take-off at St. Malo.

AMY JOHNSON AT ORAN.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—(C. P. Cable) —Severe weather conditions today proved unlucky for England-Cape flyers.

While Amy Johnson Mollison was held at Oran, Algera, on her return flight from the Cape to England, youthful Victor Smith again came to grief near St. Malo, France, in the course of his flight from England to the Cape. ... ...

Smith crashed a few minutes after he had taken off from a field near St. Malo today, his plane being wrecked. He suffered no injures. He started from England yesterday and was forced down at St. Malo a few hours afterward. He took off again today intending to return to England for a fresh attempt to beat Amy's England-Cape record, but was forced down by fog. Again taking off, his engine stopped at a height of 100 feet and he crashed.

Amy At Oran

Amy Johnson had been expected to complete her flight last night or today but reports of her progress proved erroneous. It was confirmed today that she had got only as far as Oran, 1,300 miles from her goal, after being held at Beni Ounif, Morocco. Expecting to take off on the last lap Saturday, Amy has a fine chance of beating the northward record of 11 days, 15 hours, set by Smith last month. She is already well over the southward record of four days, six hours and 55 minutes established by herself.

MIDNIGHT SHOW SET FOR TONIGHT

STARTS AT 11.15.

To-night is the big night as far as individual relief work goes in Peterborough. Because four relief organizations that represent varied sections of the population will benefit to-night by the Midnight Show which is being presented at the Capitol Theatre at 11.15.

Made possible through the kindness of Famous Players Canadian Corporation and their local manager, Mr. Jack Stewart, the show is presented under the auspices of The Examiner, and the proceeds will be used entirely for relief work in the city, and divided between The Examiner Relief Fund, the local branch of the Canadian Legion, the Catholic Women's League and the Salvation Army.

Besides the feature picture, with the popular Marion Davies in "It's a Wise Child," there will be Charlie Chase comedy, "One of the Smiths," and a Gallagher and Shean screen song.

Then for the vaudeville program, there will be something to meet every taste: band music, tap dancing, a snappy monologue, a whistling number, and singing by an

Steel Plant Gutted by Fire

$100,000 Fire Competely Destroy's Village's Main Industry.

EMPLOYED 30 MEN.

Firemen Battled Blaze in 18 Below Zero Weather.

TWEED, Ont., December 16 (C.P. and Special). — Fire struck at Tweed's main industry to-day when the plant of the Gordon Steel Works was destroyed in an early morning blaze with a loss estimated at $100,000.

Firemen were called out into bitter cold weather of 18 below zero when a shrieking whistle of a Canadian Pacific Railway locomotive roused the town. Nearly every citizen of the town rushed to the burning factory where the fire had first been noticed by the train crew.

No one was injured during the fire, but several firemen suffered frost-bitten hands and feet.

Only Office Escapes.

Only the office with its contents, escaped the flames.

The entire plant, including machinery and stock, was destroyed. The fire had gained great headway before firemen reached the scene, and they finally turned their attention to frame dwellings across the street. The direction of the wind favored them, and these buildings were saved.

Citizens of Tweed will suffer because the fire throws some 30 men out of employment.

W. S. Gordon, president of the firm, said that normally the plant employed 50 men, and had prepared to start work to-day on orders for several large snow plows.

The origin of the fire is unknown.

Re-organized 3 Years Ago

The steel works was established many years ago, and a complete re-organization and re-equipment of the plant took place three years ago. Steel eave-troughs, containers and vats, besides articles for the cheese industry, were manufactured.

The plant was the mainstay of the village industrially.

W. S. Gordon, president of the firm, declared total loss will be in the neighborhood of $100,000, partly covered by insurance.

No plans have been made for rebuilding, he said, intimating possibilities of rebuilding at present are small. Salvaged equipment, he said, may be moved to Hamilton where the company operates a similar plant.

The outbreak was discovered at 3.30 a.m. by William Fisher, a post office employee, who was about to take mail off the early morning train. The fire brigade, under Chief Thomas Orr, made hasty response to the alarm, but when they arrived at the factory the fire was beyond control.

Remodelled in the latter years of the war period, the Gordon Steel Plow Works consisted of a galvanized frame one-storey building, covering a considerable area in the southern part of the town. The building was owned by Wilbert Gordon, president of the company, and by his nephew, Winston Gordon.

The factory had been operated by the Gordons for over twenty-five years, having been previously established in the community and operated by A. H. Leal and Son, iron founders.

ICE JAM ACROSS THE OTONABEE DAMS BACK WATER, IS FLOODING CELLARS AND HUNDREDS ACRES

Only Mild Weather Will Remove the Ice Experienced Men Declare.

FURNACES ARE OUT.

Water Has Never Been So High in the Past 18 Years.

Ice cakes packed together in a great jam that all but fills the river bed, are damming back the swollen waters of the Otonabee River, creating the flood which during the past four days has inundated hundreds of acres of farmlands in North Monaghan, South Monaghan and Otonabee Townships, The Examiner learned today.

The flood waters have swept away wharves, fences and other movable objects. Pouring into the cellars of homes neighboring the river just south of the city, fires have been extinguished for several days, and in the zero temperature that prevailed last night several families suffered real misery.

In these flooded homes to-day families hovered about kerosene stoves and small electric heaters in an attempt to keep warm, while the water rose steadily higher in their cellars.

Formed At Kent's Creek.

The ice jam stretches across the river at Kent's Creek, about 17 miles south of Peterborough. John Coward, whose farmhouse stands on a hill just above this point, said today that the jam was more than 200 yards in depth and rises three to four feet above the level of the surface of the river.

"It's a real jam and is worth seeing," Mr. Coward told The Examiner. "It has piled up and piled up until I think it now must reach almost to the river bottom. The cakes froze together last night and now the whole jam is practically a solid mass.

"The jam started to build itself last Saturday, and steadily as more great cakes floated down it grew larger and larger. It practically blocks the whole riverbed, the water does flow away around the side, but that is its only outlet."

Stretches Half a Mile.

Alfred Jackson, of Bailleboro, lineman, said that the jam stretches almost a half-mile. "It's formed of anchor ice," he said. "I've seen such jams before but never anything like this one."

Asked if he thought the jam could be dynamited and the danger of even a greater flood removed in that manner, Mr. Jackson said he had discussed the point with old rivermen. "The said that dynamite would hardly make an impression on such a big jam. The only hope is in a spell of mild weather, which would soften the jam and loosen the cakes, permitting them to break free and float away, they told me."

The misery caused by such a flood

Playing Safe

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 16 (C.P.)—Arthur Curtis, of McGillivray Township has quit the poultry business. From now on Arthur's going to depend on his fields and cattle to support him.

Curtis went into the poultry business and was all prepared to reap a rich harvest at Christmas time. However, thieves beat him to it and carried away 17 chickens, eight turkeys and seven geese.

When he discovered his loss the McGillivray farmer didn't wait for the thieves to come back for the rest of his fowl. He called together his relatives and they cleaned up the rest of the flock.

WHEAT SELLS LOWEST MARK IN 400 YEARS

Number One Northern Grain Drops to 38 Cents Per Bushel To-day.

HIGHER AT CLOSE.

WINNIPEG, Man, Dec. 16. (C.P.) — Crushed under five days of falling prices, wheat sold on the Winnipeg market to-day cheaper than any records show it selling since it was first introduced on this continent by the Spaniards 400 years ago. Number 1 Northern, as fine a wheat as is grown in quality anywhere, dropped to 38 cents a bushel and was quoted at 39¾ at the close.

After four-cent recessions in the early trading, prompted by heavy stop-loss unloading from traders discouraged by continued price-drops, the futures rallied to close with losses of 2⅝ cents along the line. Final quotations were: December 39⅝, May 42¼, July 43¼. But the low marks were respective y 38 40½, and 41¾.

With top-notch wheat, laid down at Fort William, selling for less than $13.00 a ton, farmers in the Prairie West were left only small revenue on their sales.

Basic reason for to-day's violent break was believed to be the United States' Government's announcement yesterday of crop estimates considerably above trade expectations.

LESLIE COWLING IS NOT GUILTY

Judge Huycke Disagrees With Verdict Returned By Jury.

WARMAN CASE SET OVER.

Leslie Cowling was this afternoon acquitted of a charge of a serious offence in respect to a 14-year-old girl, and was formally discharged by His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke.

The trial concluded shortly after resumption of the Court Sessions this morning and went to the jury at about 11.30 o'clock. After an absence of an hour and ten minutes, the jury, under foremanship of James Turnbull, returned for redirection.

Kenneth Warman, who was indicted on a similar charge in respect to a 16-year-old girl, re-elected trial before a judge without a jury. The case was set over for trial before County Judge's Criminal Court.

J. A. O'Brien was counsel for both Cowling and Warman.

V. J. McGilderry, County Crown Attorney, conducted the prosecution in the Cowling case.

Judge Huycke, in dismissing the jury, declared that there had been two verdicts returned by juries this week that had been hopelessly and directly against the evidence. "If anybody else is injured I might almost hope that it will be someone belonging to you."

Odors are said to effect the memory of a human more than any other factor.

WOULD DESTROY ALL THE CITIES OF OVER 100,000 POPULATION

(Copyright, 1932)

SURESNES, France, Dec. 16.—"No real peace or happiness will come to mankind until all cities above 100,000 inhabitants have been utterly destroyed like Sodom and Gommorah of old."

Pierre van Paassen

This in substance is the new doctrine of social revolution which is being preached in France by Bek Ar-Khan, a young Hindu who is known to his disciples as "The Provisional Messiah." The Provisional Messiah, who declares he is paving the way for a coming "World-Teacher," comes to France once a year. In the spring he goes back to India for a period of prayer and meditation. He has just arrived from India and is staying at a magnificent villa in Suresness, a suburb of Paris. The villa is known as "The Convent" to Bek Ar-Khan's disciples. Other convents are to be opened shortly, for the number of his followers increases every day and soon the "Master's" doctrine is to be carried across the ocean, to America and

Officer, 3 Natives Slain In Outbreak

MALOA, Bengal, Dec. 16 (A.P.)— One policeman and three tribesmen were killed, four were wounded and 16 arrested to-day in a clash between police and Sonthal tribesmen armed with swords and arrows.

The Sonthals were headed by the Samu of Banshar, styling himself "Gandhi." They occupied the Adina mosque and declared independence of the district. The district magistrate and the police tried to dissuade them, but the Sonthals attacked and killed a policeman, whereupon the police fired.

100 Are Injured When Fire Sweeps Department Store

TEN ARE KILLED HUNDRED HURT IN TOKIO BLAZE

Victims Trapped in Five Upper Floors of Big Department Store.

MANY LEAP TO DEATH.

Nearly 1,000 Saved in Spectacular Rescues—Loss About $4,000,000.

TOKYO, Dec. 16 (C.P.).—Ten persons were killed and about 100 injured to-day in a spectacular fire in the big Shirokiya department store.

It originated in Christmas tree lights and spread rapidly through large stocks of celluloid toys. When the blaze had been extinguished, the upper five stories of the building were gutted.

The fire broke out before many customers had arrived, but it was estimated 1,000 persons were in the building, of which 600 or 700—mostly sales girls—were trapped on upper floors at first.

In the panc, a few jumped from the building and were killed. Others were suffocated before firemen began a series of spectacular rescues. Hundreds were taken off the balcony of the fifth floor by ladders, ropes and canvas chutes.

Two hundred were huddled in the roof garden while smoke billowed around them when firemen finally arrived and rescued them.

Planes Drop Ladders.

Five army aeroplanes assisted by dropping rope ladders.

A battalion of troops, with fixed bayonets, held back througs pressing fire lines and blocking traffic in the heart of the city for three hours.

The blaze was subdued shortly after noon. The seven-storey building was left a shell.

In a menagerie on the roof garden, two lions, two bears and several monkeys were roaring and screaming, adding to the panic. All of them survived since the fire did not penetrate the roof.

The loss was estimated unofficially at about 20,000,000 yen (about $4,000,000).

THOMAS MASON DIES AT BOSKUNG

Haliburton's Grand Old Man Dies in His 104th Year.

28 FOR ROAD CAMP.

LINDSAY, December 16 (Examiner Correspondence)—Haliburton's grand old man, Thomas Mason, passed away at his home in Boskung on Wednesday in his 104th year. The deceased, who was born in England in 1829, retained a clear intellect and good health up to the time of his death. He had been a resident of the north country for about three-quarters of a century, settling there after a few years of adventure in South Africa and Australia. He took a great interest in horticulture, and grew the first wheat in the northland.

Changes in the county constabulary of Victoria have been made at a meeting of court officials here this week. The following appointments have been cancelled: D. R. Stevens, Lindsay; Herbert Nicholls, Bobcaygeon; Ed. Lancefield and A. E. Minthorne, Fenelon Falls; Delbert Brown, Minden; Ross L. Sawyer, Stanhope. The appointment of Maurice Irwin, of Fenelon Falls, and W. A. Ward, of Norland, were confirmed.

Ross McCallum, a Kirkfield boy, had his leg amputated at the Ross Memorial Hospital this week. The boy seemed perfectly healthy until a short time ago, when a lump formed on his leg. After an examination in Toronto, it was found that the only way to save his life was to amputate the leg above the knee.

Twenty-eight men left this morning—the first of Lindsay's quota—for work on the Minden-Dorset road. On Saturday, it is understood, another group will go north. They will be paid $10 a month.

As a result of the closing of the Port McNicoll line between Lindsay and Orillia ten C.P.R. section gangs have been dispensed with. A number of the men, it is understood will be transferred to other sections on the system.

Getting Results

TORONTO, Dec. 16. (CP)—As a result of the influence of the Oxford group movement and the reading of one of their books, a former teacher of the Toronto Board of Education returned, a cheque for sick-leave allowance to which he was not entitled. This information was divulged at last night's Board meeting.

This is the second instance of "conscence money" having been paid since the arrival of the group here. Yesterday a woman paid $15 to the Toronto customs office to cover duty and interest on personal clothing overlooked by customs officers at the border on various occasions. Similar reasons were also given in this case.

KILLINGBECK IS FOUND GUILTY

CHARGED WITH RECEIVING.

Admitting a previous criminal record extending over a period of some years, Lavern Killingbeck a former self-confessed drug addict was late yesterday afternoon found guilty of a charge of receiving a diamond ring knowing it to have been stolen. Sentence of the court was withheld.

His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke, who is presiding at the present sitting of the County Court and General Sessions of the Peace in the course of his charge to the jury summed-up the case during the course of which he made reference to the sentimental value which Walter M. Fowlds of Hastings, had placed on the ring which had been stolen from his office in August last.

"This was an engagement ring that had belonged to his wife and which Mr. Fowlds had placed in the drawer of his vault for safe-keeping until such time as he felt inclined to have one of the three stones that had come out of the ring replaced," said His Honor. He spoke of an engagement and wedding ring as being the most treasured possessions of any women.

There was no doubt that the ring had been stolen by the two boys who are at present serving sentences of imprisonment upon conviction of breaking and entering Prince of Wales School. The only two questions the jury had to determine, said His Honor, were did the boys give the ring to Killingbeck, and if so did the accused know that it had been stolen.

County Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., prosecuted the case on behalf of the Crown, and J. A. O'Brien conducted the defence. The

PRAIRIE PREMIERS SEEK SOLUTION OF TROUBLES

WINNIPEG, Dec. 16.—(C.P.) — Financial problems, debt adjustment, interest rates and mortgages, and wheat market matters, all of vital interest to western agriculturists, will be considered at the second day's session of the Prairie Premiers' Conference to-day.

Debt adjustment is the first item on the agenda. Representatives of the Dominion Mortgage and Investment Association will be present, and the result may be the drawing up of uniform debt adjustment legislation. It would aim at obtaining all possible adjustments within reason for relief of the debt burdened agriculturists and townsmen of the west.

TWO FARMERS FOUND GUILTY SLAYING YOUTH

L'Orignal Men Will Die on March 15 is Judge's Sentence.

LENGTHY PROBE.

Prisoners Deny Killing Victim for Insurance, Blame Death on Horses.

L'ORIGNAL, Dec. 16 (C.P.).—Two farmers in their late fifties, long residents of this rural community, heard themselves sentenced to death last night after a jury had convicted them of murdering a youth for his life insurance. They were William J. Larocque and Emmanuel Lavictoire, the former beneficiary under a $10,000 insurance policy on the life of Leo Bergeron, 27-year-old farm laborer. Bergeron was killed on Larocque's farm on the morning of March 18 last, and the two convicted men were the only witnesses.

They were sentenced by Mr. Justice Patrick Kerwin to be hanged on March 15 next.

The declaration of the two that Bergeron was trampled to death when he led a team of horses into the stable on Larocque's farm, stoutly maintained from the morning of the tragedy until the conclusion of their trial yesterday, failed to impress the jury.

The trial was featured by evidence of another death, that of Athanase Lemarche in October, 1930, when the two accused were the only witnesses. Lamarche was also heavily insured and the large payments were subsequently made by his father to the two farmers.

A few days after the death of Bergeron, which was at first described as an accident, Provincial Police started an investigation. They found bloodstains on the walls and other places in the Larocque barn, and a bloodstained pitchfork.

MINERS REFUSE ENTRY TO LEROY

Consolidated Smelters Crew of Men Forced to Return For Aid.

SITUATION SERIOUS.

PASCALIS, Que., December 16.—A crew of men sent by Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company to sample the underground conditions at Leroy Mine, near here, were repulsed by a group of hungry miners already on the property, according to advices reaching here yesterday.

The miners have occupied the property for several months They were formerly employed by the bromoters and worked for some time without pay. Steps to collect the back pay are pendnig in the courts and in the meantime the miners took possession of the property which had been flooded.

At that time Arthur C. Melkman, the mine manager, was held prisoner for two or three days by the miners who were without supplies. He was released when supplies arrived, but these have since run out.

Consolidated Smelters sent two teams with supplies, but the men were not allowed to put a foot on the property, and the teams were forced to return to Senneterre The returning men, who passed through Pascalis, 20 miles south of Senneterre, said the situation at Leroy was becoming serious.

It was expected Provincial police would accompany the Smelters crew into the property for protection.

THERMOMETERS HIT ZERO LINE

COLD TO CONTINUE.

TORONTO, Dec. 16 (C.P.)—Any doubt that existed in the minds of Ontario's citizens as to whether winter had arrived was dispelled when they awoke to-day to discover an intense cold wave had crept in during the night, dropping the mercury to zero and sub-zero readings.

The official close of the Great Lakes navigation season at midnight last night was followed by the arrival from the West of a frosty snap which caused the householder when he arose this morning to reach for the coal shovel and start stoking. The weather forecaster, a most conservative individual, predicts "fair and decidedly cold, with local snowfalls," for to-day and from this it may be taken for granted the atmosphere will become most frigid.

VON SCHLEICHER OUT FOR PEACE

New German Chancellor Says There Will Be No Dictatorship in His Regime.

ALL MUST DISARM.

BERLIN, Dec. 16—Declaring that "the point of a bayonet makes a poor place to sit" Chancellor Kurt von Schleicher yesterday denied that his ascension to power means that Germany is to be governed by a military dictatorship.

Seated at a desk in the chancellery, General von Schleicher delivered his first public pronouncement since assuming ofice in a 55-minute radio broadcast to the entire nation.

"I want you to realize," he said, "that I did not come to offer you sword, but peace. Germany is sincere in her desire for universal disarmament."

"I repeat," he said, "that we are willing to equip our army wit nothing but knives and cardboard shields of our neighbors do likewise."

The government's demand for arms equality, he insisted, cannot be interpreted as meaning Germany wants to build up her armaments.

"But at the same time" he continued, "I maintain that the German people are not willing to let their throats be slashed without defending themselves. Hence we must be granted the same rights of security as others."

Von Schleicher declared himself in favor of the return of universal conscription.

"My government" the chancellor said, "will pursue with determination the foreign policies which have gained Germany a place among the nations—a place that belongs to her by virtue of her size, tradition and efficiency."

Bennett Honored At Royal Palace

LONDON, December 16. — Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada yesterday was invested by King George with the insignia of Knight of Grace of the Venerable Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem in the British Realm. The honor carries no title.

Mr. Bennett dined last night at Buckingham Palace with the King and Queen and King Christian and Queen Alexandrine of Denmark, who have been visiting Their Majesties for a week.

During the day the Canadian Prime Minister attended a session of the Privy Council presided over by the King.

The King and Queen of Denmark will return to Copenhagen to-day.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1932

THE C.C.F. CAMPAIGN.

A tentative committee, the membership of which includes three university professors, has been formed to organize Co-operative Commonwealth Federation groups in various centres throughout the province, the idea being that these groups will be made up of unattached citizens and will work in alliance with the Farmer and Labor sections of the movement.

Obviously, of course, the C.C.F. campaign would have to enlist a greater army than that represented by the U.F.O. and organized labor if it hopes to make much headway, so the plan just announced is an inevitable development.

Just what headways a drive for members in Ontario cities will make is problematical; it will depend largely, of course, upon how much faith those who are out of employment and other people hard hit by depression will put in the ability of the socialist machine to bring about better conditions in Canada.

Just as hard-time conditions on the farm are expected to line-up rural Ontario behind the C.C.F. organization, so similar conditions in the cities are counted upon to line-up thousands of members.

The Examiner is satisfied that the Canadian people, both urban and rural, have too much common sense to be swayed into following leadership and adopting policies that cannot hope to succeed and that eventually would leave conditions much worse than they are to-day.

AN ALERT GRAND JURY.

The Grand Jury at the present Assizes has justified the institution of such juries by detecting and calling attention to a dangerous fire hazard in the county jail.

So impressed were the members of the jury with the seriousness of this condition that the foreman, G. A. Brethren, felt constrained to ask permission to address the court to point out the fact that the stove in the jail kitchen was in such a dangerous condition that it should not be permitted to remain there another night.

Mr. Brethren pointed out that in the event of an outbreak of fire the lives of the jail prisoners would be threatened.

The Grand Jury deserves general thanks for the promptness and the force with which this hazard was brought to light; its action in this respect will help to give grand juries a better standing among those —and this includes The Examiner—who have felt that that institution had lost its usefulness.

It is to be hoped that the county authorities will lose no time in investigating and dealing with this dangerous condition, which certainly must not be allowed to continue in a building in which a score of people are confined.

The Grand Jury has done its part and it is now up to those in charge of the county's business.

ISN'T THIS SIMPLE?

As a sample of J. S. Woodsworth's firm grasp of economics and as a criterion of his ability to read the Canadian people to new levels of prosperity, nothing more convincing than a recent remark of the head of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation could be found.

The way out of the present depression may be a mystery to every other politician, but not to Mr. Woodsworth; to him the solution of the problem is simpler than the process of deduction by which Sherlock Holmes used to amaze his friend, Dr. Watson.

The Woodsworth plan, in fact, is elementary in its simplicity.

It is merely that the manufacturers of the Dominion should "double wages and start a boom."

There it is, and could anything be easier?

Of course, there is one little minor defect to the plan that has not possibly occurred to Mr. Woodsworth, and that is that nothing in the C.C.F. chieftain's scheme contains any suggestion as to how the manufacturers are going to get the money to pay the new wage scale.

It is possible, of course, that Mr. Woodsworth has a plan for securing the necessary funds, but until he discloses that portion of his depression-killer the public will be pardoned for not being too enthusiastic about the thing.

YOUTHFUL TRUCK DRIVERS.

There will be general agreement with the comment of His Honor Judge Huycke, made during the course of an automobile case yesterday, as to the laxity of the system in regard to the issuing of truck drivers' licenses.

His Honor, in pointing out that mere boys should not be allowed to pilot ponderous trucks along the highways of the province, touched upon a condition that most urgently requires attention.

If our laws permit sixteen-year-old drivers to have charge of these big machines there is certainly something wrong with the regulations.

The average boy of that age cannot possibly have the judgment, the experience or the skill to safely handle a big truck, and traffic conditions are already perilous enough without adding the menace of child drivers to the list of dangers.

Under most careful and courteous management these big and weighty machines are a nuisance to other motorists on the highways, but the danger becomes much greater when the responsibility of operating a transport truck is entrusted to a mere boy.

It is to be hoped that the particulars in this particular accident will be called to the attention of the Department of Highways as an example of what may be expected if youngsters are to be permitted to drive these vehicles.

INCREASED TRADE WITH BRITAIN.

Canada is buying more from the remainder of the Empire, notably Great Britain, it is officially announced at Ottawa. During the month of October the percentage of Canadian imports from the United Kingdom was 22.3, as compared with 18.4 for the fiscal year which ended on March 31 last. This percentage was the highest that has obtained for 21 years and can only mean that, given a fair opportunity to do business with the United Kingdom, Canadians will grasp it instead of sending their dollars elsewhere for imported requirements.

The Imperial Conference agreements did not go into effect until October 13 and it is, therefore, incorrect to assign this increase in Canada's purchases from Great Britain to that cause, although the greater emphasis placed upon the necessity of buying British goods during the period that the conference was in session may very well have had something to do with it.

The gratifying thing to be noticed is that, while Canada is selling more to the United Kingdom, she is also buying more from the Motherland. If the percentage of our exports to Great Britain during the month of October was the highest since 1916, the percentage of our imports from the same country was the highest since 1911.

For many years Canada has sold much more to the Mother Country than she has bought from her. It is patent that if the trade agreements between the two countries are to be of permanent application, a greater tendency towards equalization must become effective. By buying more largely from British sources, Canadians are thus assisting in this direction and incidentally making it possible for British people to become larger consumers of Canadian products.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

INFLATION AND THE FARMER.

The bait is being dangled before Canadian farmers that if currency inflation is adopted in this country the process will bring fortune to the farmer.

If the currency is inflated by 2 to 1, then we are told the farmer will get $1 a bushel for his wheat instead of 50 cents. Maybe he will and maybe he won't But, just for purposes of argument let it be supposed that he does get $1 a bushel. Bear in mind that it is $1 in inflated currency and deflated purchasing power. The $1 he gets for the bushel of wheat is really only 50 cents. And the farmer has to sell his wheat on the world markets. No matter what he may get in paper money for his crop, he still gets the old 50 cents in purchasing power. A dollar bill may look nice and crisp, but if its real purchasing power is only 50 cents, the nice, crisp bill loses half of its buying potency. That's not so good for the farmer.

There is another point about the farmer and inflation. The farmer sees the price of everything rising. He thinks if he just stores up the wheat, or whatever crop he has, for a few more weeks, why the currency will be inflated some more, the price will go up in terms of deflated dollars. Besides, the farmer sees prices going up in the stores and factories faster than the grain prices, so the farmer begins to look ahead to a famine. He decides he will still have enough to eat for himself and his family, so he hoards his wheat and other products. That happened in Germany in 1923.

What happens then? A shortage of food threatens and a famine looms ahead. In the cities where the salaried workers and wage earners have found the cost of food going out of sight and their pay cheques not rising in proportion, the people begin to murmur. No wonder they do when they see how inflation is catching them in its tentacles.

There is another point that hits the farmer! Suppose a farmer gets 50 cents a bushel for his wheat under present conditions. It takes 1,400 bushels of wheat to buy a motor car, priced at $700, for instance. Supposing the currency is inflated, then the farmer would get $1,400 for his 1,400 bushels of wheat, and could buy a motor car for only 700 bushels of wheat, it is said.

He could not! While the currency was being inflated and the dollar deflated, the motor car manufacturer would be alive to the situation. Instead of selling his motor car to the farmer for $700, he would take out his pencil and scratch out the $700 price and raise it sufficiently to cover the deflated value of the purchasing power of the new dollars issued under the inflated currency. So the farmer still has to put up 1,400 bushels of wheat for the car, inflation or no inflation.

The same increase of price to keep pace with the deflated value of the inflated currency occurs in every article the farmer wants. It does not take him long to see how he is being squeezed by inflation, so he decides to draw himself into his shell, hoard his wheat and other foodstuffs, and wait until the inflation has run its course and some sanity in money stabilization has been reached again.

In the meantime, the salary workers and wage earners in the towns and cities are forced into starvation because they cannot pay the price for food and their pay cheques are not increased to keep pace with the inflated currency and deflated dollar.

TAX EXEMPTIONS.

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—I understand the ratepayers are busy trying to organize a new council which has been badly needed for sometime back: that is, a council which will look a little at the interest of the taxpayer or ratepayer.

We hear of factories being exempt from taxes and so forth. The idea is this: that taxpayers vote to exempt so and so from paying taxes and does that factory give that taxpayer a job or his son or his daughter? The answer is no, but apart from that does hire some employees from Havelock, Haliburton or Lindsay or elsewhere and still the taxpayer is paying a portion of the taxes the factory should pay and the outsider is handed a job.

I wonder how long this taxpayer will be a taxpayer at that rate? Please use a little horse sense on those few lines and step on the brakes and hold fast.

A Taxpayer.

TWO MEN ON A BENCH

HE SAT, THIS MAN, on a bench beside me. I was sitting there momentarily enjoying the sun and the people. I'd never seen him before, nor he me. We had been strangers until that moment....But something set me to talking. And he talked, too. And after a while a sigh broke out of him and he began to talk about himself. Not pityingly, not begging, but as naturally as he breathed. His wife was dead, and his children had gone from him. He had no work, he'd almost given up work. He was a sick man, anyway. Sometimes he didn't get enough to eat. He didn't need any money; he had enough for a few days and when that went he'd, somehow, get some more.

He talked with his eyes looking straight ahead of him, or looking down his nose, and sometimes he shielded them with his left hand.

It was dreadful, but he made it less painful, though, in a way, more terrible, by his courage and the dreadful clarity through which he saw himself.

There was nothing I could do. He didn't want me to do anything. Except to listen for a little while, without contempt, without trying to comfort him, without trying to give him anything. Just to listen and give him that release from the troubles that had been laid so heavily upon him.

I did that much. I couldn't have comforted him, anyway. The words would have stuck in my throat, and hurt like dry bread.

So I didn't try. I sat there and listened and mumbled things occasionally.

Suddenly he stopped and looked up at me swiftly, in almost a frightened way. Then he crept back into himself again, and we talked about that old fellow over there feeding crumbs to sparrows out of a tobaco sack. And we smiled at an old lady whose hat was at least 40 years old. And we talked about the weather. And mentioned the election. And something was said about prohibition.

Slowly, surely, we climbed out of that shell-hole, where we had been. We reached a commoner, less dangerous level, and at last we were just two people sitting side by side on a bench in a park. I didn't mind and he seemed relieved.

And when I said good by to him, he stood up briskly and shook my hand strongly and walked swiftly away as if some almost forgotten strength had come back to him. He'd rid himself of something too heavy for him, shared some of his load. But I didn't mind. By assuming that I would care to listen, he'd done more for me than I could do for him.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

A COUP D'ETAT AT QUEBEC

ON THIS DATE, in 1891, the lieutenant-governor of Quebec, Hon. A. A. Angers dismissed the ministry of Hon. Honore Mercier upon charges of corruption and for months the province was in political uproar. Mercier was really the victim of political circumstances, probably no more guilty than some of his predecessors in office but unfortunate in having been found out.

And the finding out is the real story. When J. Israel Tarte launched his charges of graft in connection with the Quebec harbor works in 1890 against Thomas McGreevey (and, incidentally, against Sir Hector Langevin, then Minister of Public Works) and was elected to the House of Commons and proceeded to prove his charges, the Conservatives decided that they must hit back at the Liberals. Although they were in the majority there was no chance to retaliate in the Commons for that house was fully occupied with the Tarte charges; but there was the Senate, and so their charges of corruption against the Mercier ministry in connection with the Baie des Chaleurs railway were preferred there, and proved. Thus both political parties were equally black and the Tories claimed that the provincial corruption offset the federal boodling; but this did not prevent the expulsion of McGreevey from the Commons and the retirement of Lanevin in disgrace.

Mercier was replaced as Premier of Quebec by C. B. deBoucherville, who had himself been dismissed from the Premiership of the province in 1878 by Lieutenant-Governor Letellier de Saint Just, and who was thus compensated for his previous dismissal. He held the Premiership for a year, long enough to win the elections and thus secure not only endorsation of himself but also vindication of Lieutenant-Governor Angers in having dismissed Mercier. The latter died at the end of 1891 of a broken heart, a victim to as peculiar a combination of political circumstances as can be imagined and a man who is considered by many, even to-day, as a political martyr.

Pre-War Lady

A ROMANCE

Margaret Widdemer

CHAPTER 41

But stepping from Roger's big car cloaked and shrouded into the stage entrance of Windward Gardens she was still in her feeling Emilia Valaty the girl proud and loved and gay with her own again where she belonged. The change shone from her so that Manny stopped her as she entered smiling her little understage private dressing room. He put his hands on her shoulders and stared down at her with more than his usual intensity.

"You are happier—yes. But you are not farther from me are you? You still want your old Manny you like him?"

The wave of his deep sweetness and his underlying mournfulness struck her nerves. Perhaps it was only she told herself the racial feel of dramatic tragedy the sadness of the Celt and the Jew of all races who have been oppressed more than his own personal mood. But she smiled up at him and answered impulsively "Closer to you Manny. I've missed you all day."

He brightened. "That's my lady. Now go on and sing. . . . You came down in costume? That's a clever girl. Give them 'Roses of Picardy' first. That's what they want the way they feel tonight."

Manny's uncanny knowledge of "the way they feel tonight" was always accurate. She nodded spoke to the messenger from the orchestra on her way up and was on the platform masked in a moment. There was a new vitality in her voice that the audience sensed. The delight of holding and moving them stirred her afresh. It must be the pleasure of her life from now on. Put the past behind Roger and all that his love would have meant. Make this a good pleasant life. There was this happiness while with Miss Myra and Esther; Manny's unfailing kindness and devotion; her career; as she sang she could feel that living was good that the future was a thing to believe in not to turn from.

Down the audience somebody waved. She looked down; Esther bless her heart! Esther one of a table of men and girls all hammering wildly; Esther, presently, holding up a note which she then dispatched by one of the darting waiters.

"What about a spot of your society? Can I show you off to the gang?"

She asked Manny, while the acrobatic dancers were on. "May I?"

He smiled indulgently. "They eat celebrities, these kids — what they live for. Nothing else to look up to any more. Tell 'em you'll be down at the end of the evening."

So she went down at the end. She was a little timid of them. So fearless, so able to say anything, do anything; and such children to look at. Like fourteen-year-olds of her day, the oldest of them. Two blond heads, one demure like Esther's, with a tiny low knot, the other wildly curly; Esther's smooth dun head, and a black-haired, round-eyed girl who was nearly an exact copy of some film star she could not remember. Four lads to match. None of them much above twenty. All the eight wand-thin, deeply browned, the girls painted as artlessly as Chinese ladies; the boys—could it be that the curly-haired ones had waves like that by nature? . . . The sexes had drawn closer, if this group was any proof. The girls, as she advanced, Manny behind her, were talking to the boys as they would have to each other alone. No idea of glamour, at least.

"I've been dieting off ten pounds," the most willowy of the blonds was romantically informing her swain.

But this was interrupted by the sight of Manuel and Emilia; the group broke up into a shouting mill of creatures who all tried to get to Manuel first, and failing him secured Emilia. Esther, shouting with the rest but keeping her head as usual, continued to make amused unheard introductions.

"Oh, shut up, Ess, the idea of introducing anybody to Manuel Rose!" yelled the big, black-haired boy who had been under the window in the morning, while a pallid trim one with neat little features and a neat trace of a straw-colored mustache to match took possession of Emilia with the manner of a grand duke.

"Nobody but Ess Scarlett would pull the biggest jazz king in America and the most popular vaudeville star out of a hat this way," said he. "Was she spoofing us, or did you live next door when she was a baby, honest to goodness?"

Emilia answered him and glanced across to where the girls, with the unconsciousness of babies, were swarming over Manny, getting autographs on paper napkins then and there, and making (judging by his grinning negations) impossible demands. Esther's voice emerged high and calm from the tumult.

"For the love of Pete hush up! You all got the gimmes in a perfectly shocking way. I don't know what my cousin will think of you. We're going up to my house, and Manuel Rose is staying the night, so you can sell yourselves to him on the way up. He told me he had his chorus picked for the fall anyway."

They took it with gayety. "You can't lose us, darling," said the black-haired Landon boy. "You got a pool and this is a hot night."

"You got a pool, I got a pool, all God's chillen got pools—" began the small, slick-haired blond child, doing something deft with her green satin feet and ending with one arm through Esther's and one through Emilia's.

"No good, baby, got all my blues singers too," said Manny, at which everyone yelled with wild laughter again. They piled into cars, swaggering proudly out in the character of Manny's and Emilia's intimates.

"It's like the Comus rout," smiled Emilia to the boy whom the scramble had landed her next; a big, sleepy-eyed boy with a wide, freckled smile. He looked blank.

"Don't think I saw that show."

"Show, you dumbbell," yelled the boy on the facing seat, "that's English lit."

"How would I know?" said the freckled boy placidly. "We go in for engines, me and my bride."

Emilia took this for a joke but discovered presently that he and the little one with the black hair and round eyes and turned up nose, the one she had thought so like some movie star were man and wife at eighteen and twenty-two. She did a good deal of stunt flying; he was her mechanician. The youngest of the boys Esther's age, knew Manny slightly; he had been solo saxophonist at a hundred a week in a famous city dance orchestra, for a year. Children with the directness and overflowing energy of children; and running the world gayly.

"You're a sweet thing," said the married boy beside her putting a frank arm around her. "We're simply crazy over you. Your hair's real isn't it not dyed?"

If Emilia felt just a little as though she were among capable gay barbarians, it was only a fair return for their certainty that she was held by a set of useless and amusing Chinese customs. But they liked her and she them.

The boy with the straw-colored mustache on her other side said with a note of artless awe in his voice, "Gosh think of having the Pre-War Lady sitting next to you! Look here, can I throw a party for you on your next night off or afterward? I know a keen private room over a speakie that my pal and I can get for scarcely anything. I want my girl to meet you."

"I have to ask Mr. Rose, by the terms of my contract" she said half amused. "What's a speakie?"

Esther popped her head over the front seat. "Short for speakeasy. 'Tisn' the same as a talking picture, that's a talkie."

The easily amused others shrieked with laughter again. "Isn't she keen?"

They hadn't much of a vocabulary, Esther, whom Emilia had considered laconic, was considered by them pretty highbrow from associating abnormally with her elders she found. It occurred to Emilia that she might profit by these children's directness to be direct to herself.

"Remember I'm a stray from the past. Do you all drink and smoke the way one hears?"

They took it with deep seriousness. "Naw. It's the older people that do the heavy drinking. Fathers and mothers that have to live their lives so hot because nobody let 'em when they were young."

"I don't approve of it" said Emmett the straw-colored boy, darkly.

"Take it or let alone that's what I say," said Isabel's husband. "'Course Isabel and I can't touch it, flying.'

WINNIPEG WHEAT

WINNIPEG, Dec. 16 (C.P.) — Sudden advent of immense stop-loss selling orders at mid-session to-day plunged wheat prices sharply downward to record new lows, and losses of nearly four cents under yesterday's close were chalked up in the grain pit here to-day.

December fell to 38; May to 40½, and July to 42.

Weakness at Liverpool and a bearish United States crop report were chief factors prompting the descent to lower levels. Liberal hedging ran the market into stop-loss selling. Fair support was encountered on the way down, but this was very mixed in character, and was not sufficient to check the decline.

A fair amount of export trade was reported early in the session and fair stabilization support came into the market, but this proved insufficient to hold prices to an even keel. Liverpool displayed easiness from the start and at the close losses of from 1¼ to 1½d were marked up. Buenos Aires at noon was ¼ to ⅜ lower.

Liberals Of Calgary Staying Out Of Fight

CALGARY, Dec. 16. (CP) — In convention members of Provincial Liberal Association refused to nominate a candidate for the forthcoming by-election for a Calgary seat in the Alberta legislature.

After discussing the whole situation last night, the convention voted to remain out of the contest, made necessary through appointment of Dr. H. W. McGill, Conservative M.L.A., as deputy superintendent-general of Indian affairs at Ottawa.

The three seeking the seat are Norman Hindsley, nominated by the People's party and endorsed by the Conservative party; Miss Amelia Turner, Labor, and R. H. Parkyn, former member of the legislature, Independent.

ICE JAM ACROSS THE OTONABEE

today became more apparent as families told of their distress.

"Our furnace has been out for four days and we are almost perished with the cold," Mrs. John S. Deyell, Park street, told The Examiner. "The water has risen three to four feet in our cellar. All our vegetables and 18 bags of potatoes and my preserved fruit are under water. We are trying to keep warm by means of a small heater, but it is almost impossible and we hardly know what to do."

"I'm afraid all our water pipes are going to freeze if it stays cold like this," Mrs. Deyell continued. "Water surrounds our home. I can't get out, but the men can because they have rubber boots and can wade through the water which comes up past their knees."

She said that she had a large chicken farm and today the chickens had to be rescued from the water that flooded the henhouse and place in the loft for safety. The men found it difficult to feed the birds. She expressed the hope that officials of the Trent Canal would do something to lessen the flood.

Mrs. S. O. Shields, 2 Chester street, is almost in a similar plight. She said there was three and a half feet of water in her cellar and the fire in her furnace has been out for several days and the house is as cold as a barn. "I have a small electric heater and that is all we have to warm the house," Mrs. Shields explained. "I can't turn it full on for fear it might blow out the fuse."

Mrs. Bert Jackson, Cameron Street, said she had lived in her present home for 18 years and had never seen a worse flood in all those years. "Why the water in my cellar is right up to the sixth step on the cellar stairs," she said. Her furnace also is useless under such conditions and everything in the cellar is afloat.

If the water rises much higher H. F. Doig's whole summer crop from his truck farm is in danger of being ruined, Mrs. H. F. Doig, Cameron Street, told The Examiner. "We are trying now to make arrangements to remove the vegetables to a place of safety," she said. Water stands three feet in her cellar, and conditions in neighboring homes were very bad, she said.

Lady Snowden Loses Broadcasting Post

(By Thos. T. Champion—C.P. Staff Writer).

LONDON, Dec. 16 (C.P. Cable).—Viscountess Snowden has lost her position as governor of the British Broadcasting Corporation. Her term expires at the end of the year. Lord Rainford, vice-chairman, and Dr. M. J. Rendall, also a governor, are also to be retired.

Ronald Norman, a brother of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, is to be vice-chairman, and Lord Bridgeman and Mary Agnes Hamilton are appointed directors. Mary Agnes Hamilton has been an M.P. since 1929 and is Parliamentary private secretary to the Postmaster-General under whose office falls the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Lady Snowden mentions she had no intimation of being superceded either from the Prime Minister or the Postmaster-General, Sir Kingsley Wood.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, December 16 (C.P.).—Downturns of grain values here early to-day resulted from sharp setbacks in Liverpool wheat quotations, and bearish aspects of the United States Government crop report. Official estimates of 1932 domestic spring wheat production were reduced less than expected and winter wheat estimates were increased to a surprising extent. Opening ⅜ to 1 lower, Chicago wheat futures subsequently dropped further. Corn started ⅛ to ⅜ off and afterward held near the initial figures.

Experiments in hydrogenation carried on by the Alberta Research Council shows that bitumen recovered from the McMurray tar sand deposits can be largely converted to gasoline.

SALARY CUTS INTERNATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE

Understood All Players Will Be Asked to Take 25 Per Cent Slash.

King Refuses To Comment.

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 16. (CP) Salary revisions are being considered by the clubs of the International Hockey League, President King admitted to-day.

The president of the league was questioned in connection with a rumor that all players would be asked to take a 25 percent cut in salary, but he declined to go any further into the matter.

The question of salary revision was one for the individual clubs, Mr. King pointed out.

Know Nothing of Cut

LONDON, Dec. 16. (CP)— Officials of the London Hockey Club have heard nothing regarding a reported proposed 25 percent salary cut to be put into effect.

The Tecumsehs accepted a 25 percent cut at the beginning of the season, and according to Jack Anderson, president, "at present we are not considering a further cut, but that may have to come.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, December 16 (C.P.).—C.P.R. was given a run up to 16 to-day on the Toronto Stock Exchange on the prospect of increased traffic arising from the heavy sales of wheat at slaughter prices. The gain was ⅝ for the day. Another market feature was the heavy offering of British American Oil, which carried the price off to 7½ before it recovered to close at 7¾.

Brazilian was another issue that stood out with a gain of ⅛ to 9¾, apparently being under accumulation. Both Nickel and Ford A fell back below 9 and 7 respectively.

In the beverage group Canada Malting edged off a little, while the Walker issues were firm. The turnover in Walkers Preferred was heavy at 9¾.

STANDARD EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, Dec. 16 (C.P.). — Steady though slow buying of the gold stocks kept life in the Standard Mining Market to-day and there were no violent swings of prices one way or the other. Closing prices were slightly down from Thursday's level.

Lake Shore was neglected and sold off to 33.75. McIntyre gained nearly 50 in early afternoon but slipped back later to close with a gain of about 20 at $23. Dome and Hollinger were steady and Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves both weakened a few cents.

Nickel at $9 and Noranda at $19 were down five and 25 respectively for the day.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (A.P.) — Prices fluctuated narrowly around their earlier low points in the late trading on the Stock Exchange to-day. A majority of leading shares were down fractionally, with U. S. Steel Preferred off more than 2 points and Steel Common nearly a point lower. Loew's dropped about 2. American Tobacco "B", Montgomery Ward, Intrenational Harvester, American Telephone and Pennsylvania were steady, while Canadian Pacific was up about a point. Transfers totaled about 900,000 shares.

EXCHANGE RATES.

Exchange rates at noon to-day were:

Pound sterling in Montreal, 3.76½.

U.S. dollar in Montreal, 1.11.

Canadian dollar in New York, 87 11-16.

FORCED TO FLEE HOME

TORONTO—Mr. and Mrs. E. Jennings were forced to flee for their lives when fire broke out in their home early today. The fire started in a charcoal bag beside the stove. Damage was estimated at $400.

Shoppers Will Find Peterborough Stores Highly Attractive For Christmas Buying

The buyer's market of the last three years is approaching another Christmas with the accent of business leaning more than ever in favor of the buyer.

Unprecedented declines in commodity prices afford a reliable barometer of the general market, and intrinsic values have reached a low level that should give every unemployed dollar a new activity in circulation by reason of its increased buying power.

This advantage is everywhere apparent in Peterborough's stores whose prices have been scaled down to surprisingly low figures. The range of this movement is so extensive that there are practically no exceptions, and shoppers are finding the stores highly attractive as the final week of the Christmas shopping begins. In some instances the retail prices have been cut to wholesale costs, and more generally the margin of profit is so small that buyers realize the opportunity which the current conditions offer them.

Merchants' advertising tell the whole story not only in regard to plain necessities of food and clothing and furnishings, but particularly in the lines of specialities which are usually sought at Christmas. The merchant is going more than half way to meet the ordinary buyer whose financial condition is not fluid as it was a few years ago. Even the price of the Christmas goose and turkey has been sharply deflated.

Some lines of men's haberdashery are down fifty per cent compared with the prices of four or five years ago; men's clothing and women's dresses are quoted at large reductions under former prices. Furs, jewelry, hardware specialities and goods generally have declined in price in proportion to the broad trend

It has been many a moon since the buyer held the position of dominance which he and, likewise she, occupies at this season.

Warden Skeptical Of Norfolk Wolves

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 16 (C.P.).—Reports from Norfolk County that a pack of wolves was running at large there were discounted to-day by Col. Richard Emmerton, district game warden. "If it is true," he declared, "it is the first pack of wolves to run in Western Ontario in a few generations."

There were only a few brush wolves in this part of Ontario, he said, and they ran only in pairs.

Col. Emmerton has not received any definite information regarding the existence of the packs, but based his views on his knowledge of the general habits of the animals, he said.

Dogs are frequently mistaken for wolves. Only a few days ago, he said, a farmer had brought a black dog's head into the local department office, under the impression it was a wolf. He was prepared to collect the $25 bounty for the dog's head, Col. Emmerton said.

Starlings Costly To Elgin Farmers

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Dec. 16 (C.P.)—Add starlings to the farmers' troubles. Here in Elgin County, right next door to Norfolk where wolves are reported scurrying about raising havoc with sheep, starlings have been feeding on fruit and grain.

At the meeting of the Advisory Agricultural Council of the Elgin County Council one fruit grower said loss to his cherry crop this year was $1,000 because of starlings. Other fruit growers reported losses of $200 to $300. Farmers say they have seen the starlings threshing out standing grain. A resolution adopted by the meeting asks the Ontario Department of Agriculture to give advice in getting rid of the birds.

WAR-TIME RESCUE PROVES BOON TO JOBLESS GERMAN

DUEREN, Germany, Dec. 16. — After 15 years, a hand has stretched across no man's land to drive the wolf away from the door of Hans Schultz, an unemployed laborer.

During one of the 1916 drives of the Great War, Schultz rescued a French officer who was badly wounded. They exchanged letters as the Frenchman convalesced in a hospital.

Schultz, who has been without work for eight months, recently received a letter from his French friend with 400 francs as a "Christmas present." The officer explained he had just run across the German's name in an old diary and wanted to renew the friendship.

POTENT BREW.

WINDSOR.—William Fakarewich, East Windsor, makes really potent home brew, he said in court to-day. Provincial police charged he had given some to visitors, but William assured court he did not know he did anything of the kind "because I drank some of it myself and am not sure what I was doing." The case was remanded for a week.

Spaniards And Irish Lead Brotherhood Act In World Of Golf Fairways

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (C.P.) — Hockey has innumerable brother-acts, what with the Bouchers and the Cooks, the Conachers and the Kilreas. Boxing has its Petrolles, and baseball its Waners. The battalion of brothers hitting the golden trail of golf through California this winter should make family concentrations in other fields of sport emit a figurative "Are our faces red?"

The Spaniards have the mashie edge in quality and the Irish lead in quantity in the rivalry which has mobilized most of the American "play for pay" performers on the Pacific coast. Four Espinosas make up the largest family. Al of Akron, O., and Abe of Medinah, Ill., are veterans of the fairways. Romie and Henry, both of San Francisco, are young brothers but already known in the profession as "comers." Al finished as runner-up in the recent San Francisco $2,500 match play open. Spanish blood runs through the veins of the Butras, Olin of Santa Monica and Mortie of Long Beach. Olin holds the United States Professional Golfers' Association championship, a title second in importance only to the United States Open among the American pros.

The Irish McHughs can call the roll on three diggers of the divot. Johnny and Tom, professional and assistant, respectively, at San Diego, and Felix, of San Francisco, rate in the order named. As an amateur, Johnny was California champion four times.

Will Exhume Bodies Of Mother And Child

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Dec. 16. — (C.P.)— The bodies of Mrs. Melville Wilkie and her six months old daughter Norma, victims of a fire on Dec. 6, will be exhumed. Coroner Dr. A. B. Rutherford has ordered the exhumation and the purpose is to hold a postmortem examination on the body of the child to determine the cause of death.

Melville Wilkie, husband and father of the two, is at present under arrest charged with the double murder of his wife and child.

The child was dead when carried from a room of the Wilkie home, while Mrs. Wilkie died shortly afterwards. It was presumed at the time the baby had died from suffocation, but a report will be made to a coroner's jury Monday.

Mercury Ranges Four To 40 Below

NORTH BAY, Ont., Dec. 16 (CP) —Record low temperatures ranging from 4 to 40 below zero were recorded to-day as the northern section of the Province was caught in the grip of the most frigid spell of the current winter. Surprisingly, passenger train schedules were unaffected, although telegraph service was hampered somewhat.

The mercury dropped to 28 below here. White River came into its own again with a reading of 40 below. The Capreol region reported a low of 35, and at South River it was 36 below.

The cold wave sent the mercury sharply downward in Belleville district to-day and the city experienced its coldest day since 1921 with a temperature of 17 degrees below zero.

At Bancroft the mercury showed 27 degrees below, while at Fort Stewart the lowest mark of the district, 30 below, was recorded.

PREFERRED TREATMENT.

TORONTO.— The township of North Himsworth has had "preferred treatment" from the Ontario Welfare Board, the office of the Board reported to-day in discussing apeals for 100 per cent. relief from the township. The Provincial and Dominion Governments have been paying 80 per cent. of the relief costs for North Himsworth "and now the township wants us to assume the additional burden," officials of the Department declared.

They did not state what action would be taken on the township's request.

TWO FLIERS KILLED.

BAGOTA, Colombia, Dec. 16.—(A.P.)—Engineer Meliton Escobar and Pilot Guenther Klotz were killed today when their plane, bound for Bogota from Girardot, crashed near Tequendama Falls to-day. Klotz was compelled by fog to attempt a landing and the plane hit a tree. The bodies were brought here.

BARRIE BOWLERS CAPTURE HONORS

Forced to Go Extra End Before Subduing Hamilton Rink 18-16.

TORONTO, Dec. 16 (CP)—Finals will be reached to-night in the five-day curling Bonspiel for the Thomas Thauburn Memorial Trophy, for primary honors as well as consolation series. The qualifying "eights" in both events have brought about the pick of the 64 rinks which started play Monday.

The feature of the early play to-day was the battle between the Meredith rink from Barrie and McPhie hurlers from Hamilton. An extra end was required before the Barrie aggregation could win 18-16.

In the semi-finals this afternoon, J. M Rothchild, Strathcona, will meet Charles Snow, Toronto, C.C., and D. C. Thompson, Agincourt, meets Meredith.

The results:

Thauburn Trophy (Quarter Finals)

Strathcona, Toronto, J. M. Rothschild, sk., 16; Fergus, John Graham, sk., 11.

Toronto Club, Chas. Snow, sk., 10; Agincourt, Dr. A. E. Doherty, sk., 7.

Barrie, S. Meredith, sk., 18; Hamilton Thistles, W. H. McPhie, sk., 16.

Extra end.

THEFT OF POCKET KNIFE STARTS BRAWL IN STORE

HAMILTON, Ont., Deember 16 (C.P.). — The tale of a battle in an uptown departmental store was unfolded in PoliceCourt to-day when Ambrose Withers was charged with the theft of a pocket knife, valued at 50 cents, resisting arrest, and assaulting one of the store detectives, and an unmarried woman.

According to the story told by the head of the Investigation Department of the store, the accused was seen to secrete the pocket knife in his glove. He was told to come along, and then the battle started. Shoppers piled in with the detectives and the accused was thrown to the floor and the handcuffs put on him.

During the scuffle he was said to have kicked a lady detective in the side and also to have kicked a lady customer in the stomach.

Withers was convicted on all three counts, and was remanded for sentence for a week with mental examination ordered by Magistrate Burbidge.

octette the like of which you will never hear again.

A brass sextette from the band of the Peterborough Rangers, with the Cathedral chimes as an added attraction, will play; Miss Isabel Duffus and Miss Thelma Buller will do a tap dancing specialty; Miss Mignon Mayneord will whistle some of her bird-imitation numbers; Sam Harris will have a characteristic monologue of sense and nonsense, and eight young men from the Machine Gunners' Corps will endeavor to entertain you in a manner entirely new and different. They call themselves the "Stale Voice Choir," but they are as fresh as a day in spring.

Miss Marguerite Rome will play accompaniments.

We can guarantee a program that has many novel features and will entertain and please. By attending, you will have lots of fun and do something at the same time to help the needy. It is not often that virtue and pleasure can go hand in hand. The occasion is notable for that reason alone. Come along and enjoy it with all the rest of the people.

Boys Give Evidence

An uncommon feature of the trial was the appearance in the witness box of two youthful prisoners who were brought from the cells at the County Gaol in the custody of the gaoler. They were Francis A. Hully and Arthur Gilders recently convicted of breaking and entering Prince of Wales School.

Under protection of the Court both admitted in evidence that they had broken into the office of Mr. Fowld's at Hastings, by night, and had stolen the diamond ring which they had later handed over to the accused to dispose of.

Fred Gilders testified that after his brother and Hully had been sent to gaol, he was accosted on the street by Killingbeck who told him there had been too much talk about the ring, and that he had "better keep his mouth shut" if he wished to keep his brother out of further trouble.

Witness related that he had tried to get Killingbeck to hand over the ring in order that he might return it to Mr. Fowlds. The accused had refused to part with the ring without the authority of the two boys who were then in gaol.

Received Note

Fred Gilders told of how he had gone to the gaol to visit his brother, on which occasion he was given two notes asking Killingbeck to hand over the ring. The note written by Hully was worded: "Give Fred Gilders those rocks please and oblige Frank Hully."

The witness said he taken the notes to Killingbeck's house, but did not show them to the accused at that time because he was "huffy" about Hully's father having been down for the ring. "Killingbeck told me," witness testified, "that nobody would get the ring. He would throw it in the lake first. He said he had been dealing with criminals for the past fifteen years and nobody could put it over him."

A dramatic interruption occurred shortly after noon yesterday when Arthur Gilders collapsed in a dead faint during the course of a grueling cross-examination to which he was being subjected by Mr. O'Brien defence counsel.

WOULD DESTROY ALL THE CITIES

Canada and the Argentine. The Messiah thinks the New World is ripe for his teachings.

For months I have been trying to obtain a glimpse of Bek Ar-Kha. Without success, however. Finally I established contact with one of his disciples in a most unexpected place. It was namely from a Spanish journalist in Sevilla, who confessed himself "a true Bekarian" that I obtained a note of introduction to "the Master." I sent the note to the Suresnes address immediately I got back to Paris. In reply I received an invitation to attend a "communion-dinner" to be given by Bek Ar-Khan on the following evening.

Head Close Shaven

There were thirty guests of all imaginable nationalities present that evening. The Messiah came in last. He turned out to be a swarthy young man, whose head was shaved like that of a lieutenant of the Prussian Guard. He wore a long gown of dark gray wool. In his hand he carried a rosary of huge amber-colored beads, of the kind Mohammedan mullahs utilise for the purpose of mental concentration.

Dinner consisted of a small pot of honey for each guest, and nothing else. It gave me a violent toothache. You could drink all the water you wanted, though. Bek Arhan ate his honey in silence, but my neighbor at table, who turned out to be a Russian count, explained that Bekarians were not merely vegetarians. They ate no vegetables either. "Vegetables have souls as well as cattle and humans. There is a particle of the All-Soul in every created thing," he added. I gulped down a third glass of water, thinking the while with compassion of the souls of the millions of microbes in the Seine water who were irrevocably sliding down into the pit of my stomach.

"I don't see how a man can live on nothing else but honey," I objected. "It is true John the Baptist initiated the practice, but after all we know he had locusts with it by way of dessert."

"Our Messiah," came the solemn answers, "feeds on ideas. Mind is stronger than matter. He can do without bodily sustenance for weeks on end." In truth he looked as if he had tried it more than once.

We were soon to hear some of Bek Ar-han's ideas. Getting up from the table, he walked to the window with measured steps. In the distance scintillated the million lights of Paris. The illuminated Eiffel Tower flung its green and red serpentines through the nocturnal sky. Above the city hung a sulphurous glow of dull red.

Cities Are Crumbling

"Woe, breeder of corruption, destructor of human souls," spoke up the Messiah in a melodious French. He was talking to the French capital, that city of rare beauty and unparalled charm. "Thy days are numbered. Thy walls are crumbling. The end is nigh. Thou shalt be the first among thy sisters to perish!" This I took to mean that New York, Berlin, Tokio, Moscow and the rest of them are to be the next on the program.

"Monstrous octopus, I will thy death," said Bek Ar-Khan, still speaking to Paris. His eyes had a hypnotic look when he returned to the table, whence the napkin had been removed. After he sat down he expressed a willingness to be interviewed.

Now I must confess that it is somewhat of a disconcerting job to speak to a Messiah. For one thing you don't know how to address him. With Krishnamurti it was a different matter entirely. He dresses normally at any rate. Moreover, Krishnamurti denies being a Messiah. And when he does talk, he prefers to discuss the latest theatrical productions in Paris and London or else talk about tennis.

"Sir," I said, thinking that title of address sufficient, for it is good enough for the King's Majesty, "Sir how did the idea of the destruction of cities originate with you?" The Messiah meditated a while. Then he replied::

"An inner voice told me when I was very young: 'Go and destroy the West. It does not deserve to live. It has poisoned life for all mankind, also for the East with its violent conquests in the name of a sham civilization!' This is my teaching." He was silent.

"What results have you had with that teaching?"

"Thousands have withdrawn from the world to live in convents. Millions are to follow in all lands. Man must return to the simple life. He must ascend the mountains where the air is pure and thought serene."

Physical World Illusion.

With due deference and in order not to grow too solemn I objected respectfully that some of us would no doubt have to stay down below for fear of overcrowding on the hilltops. The Teacher smiled wearily. He had not spoken of the physical universe. The physical world was only illusion, he corrected me.

"Then you cannot be serious about the destruction of great cities either. Since they are part of the world, they, too, are illusion."

"We will destroy them with the might of the spirit," he declared.

"It is well that you have thought of that medium. Dynamite wouldn't be very safe. There are 25,000 cops watching in Paris."

"The modern city," Bek Ar-Khan went on, "removes men from his natural surroundings. She has exhausted his vital forces. I see around me human beings who cannot live without movies, without alcohol, without newspapers, without tobacco or electric light, or some other stimulant."

"Electric light, possibly, but why include newspapers in the evils you see in society?" self-preservation prompted me to ask.

"Newspapers are a curse," he said. "They cater to man's lowest instinct of curiosity and meddling. What business is it of ours whether there's a murder in Chicago or whether Japan wants Manchuria, or whether the nations want to disarm?"

"No business of ours at all," I agreed, "except that we are called upon to pay for the navies and armies, and that we will have to do the fighting if we can't get away to the mountains."

"The economic depression is a result of man dwelling in multitudes in great cities," the Messiah said next. "Great things have been accomplished in the past, it is true. Mechanical innovations, I mean. But man has worked too hard. He has become mentally exhausted. This has been followed by pessimism. Now the crisis is inside of us. We lack enthusiasm. It is worse than a pestilence. Humanity is sick. It needs the sight of verdant meadows and brown hills."

There are more such Messiahs in Paris. This type of man flourishes in every society where a bloated leisure-class is satiated with pleasure. Men like Bek Ar-Khan mean nothing. If he was serious about destroying cities, he would be arrested in an hour. Occultism always appears at the end of a period of decadence. That is why Bek Ar-Khan and fakirs of his ilk represent a hopeful sign. A sign that sanity in human relations is on the way. Bek Ar-Khan is an exception that confirms the rule.

CABINET SOUGHT BY CHAUTEMPS

Seeks to Unite Chamber of Deputies So U. S. Dealings Can Continue.

WANTS HERRIOT'S AID.

PARIS, Dec. 16 (C.P.).—Premier-designate Camille Chautemps sought a formula to-day to reconcile conflicting attitudes in the Chamber of Deputies toward the late government and to permit the resumption of negotiations with Washington and the return of Edouard Herriot to the Foreign Office to conduct them.

M. Chautemps' friends indicated they hoped for some official expression from Washington giving assurance a debt conference would be called in the early future, which would help him materially.

Upon the success of finding the formula depended the acceptance by Chautemps of appointment as Premier, for he regards the inclusion of his former chief, Herriot, in the Cabinet as indispensable.

"In my opinion," said Francois Albert, President of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber, "nobody is better qualified than M. Herriot to resume negotiations with America since he fell in defending the cause of the payment."

Continues Efforts.

Chautemps was to renew consultation this morning, seeing Herriot again and other political chiefs.

If he fails, he explained, his answer will be given quickly, but if he succeeds it will take a little longer.

Apart from the debts there aped every reason to hurry formation of a new government to look after unemployment.

If the country is to prevent thousands of idle workers suffering during the worst of the winter months it must get a scheme of national equipment through the Chamber and the Senate before the New year, something it cannot do without a government.

The budget also will demand attention. By January 1 it is estimated the budgetary deficit will be 8,000,000,000 francs (about $320,000,000 in Canadian funds) and the railway deficit 5,000,000,000 francs (about $225,000,000). Besides this the Treasury within the next few months will need another 20,000,000,000 (about $900,000,000).

CRAZY ABOUT CALIFORNIA.

BILLIE BURKE is crazy about California and doesn't care who knows it. She made a big hit both here and in San Francisco in "The Marquise," and will reopen the play in Hollywood over the Holidays.

The star makes no secret of her desire for a film career. She was a warm admirer in David Selnick of RKO and it wouldn't surprise me to see her sign there for one of the important roles in "The Great Desire." The part is hers if she wants it. It's only a question of working out an arrangement by which the picture wouldn't conflict with her stage engagement.

BEHIND THE SCENES

HOLLYWOOD WIVES, bored with the social rounds, are finding a new escape in resuming their careers.

Mrs. Chester Morris

Ruby Keeler Jolson started the fashion when she signed with Warners to do "Forty Second Street" and now Mrs. Chester Morris is following her lead by agreement to make her screen debut for the same company. She will have an important part with Loretta Young, Lyle Talbot and Regis Toomey in "She Had to Say Yes."

Back on Broadway, Mrs. Morris, then Susanne Kilbourne, was a well known leading woman. When she married Chester and he came out to Hollywood, the two of them agreed, however, that one player in the family was enough.

It was during a visit to the studio to have lunch with Chester that Warner officials saw Mrs. Morris and suggested that they had just the part for her if she would consider it.

Talking it over with Chester, she found him willing, so now the deal's all set.

WESTWOOD W.I.

Ladies Hear Interesting Talk on "The First Institute" by Mrs. Birdsall.

WESTWOOD, Dec. 16 (Examiner Correspondence).—The members of the Westwood Branch of Women's Institutes held their December meeting on Tuesday afternoon in the town hall, with an attendance of twenty-six.

The roll-call was answered by an exchange of Christmas gifts. An acknowledgment was read of a bundle of clothing and two quilts received by a needy family. The report of the relief committee was given by Mrs. Renwick and Mrs. Morris. Mrs. Stewart Graham was appointed to gather a list of current events for each meeting for the rest of this year.

Mrs. James Sargent then took charge of the program. Following an opening chorus, Mrs. Jane Thompson gave a most interesting talk on paisley shawls. Mrs. Thompson won honor for the Westwood branch at the recent convention in Toronto by winning first prize in the paisley shawl parade.

The meeting was favored by a solo by Mrs. E. Birdsall and a duet by Mesdames R. C. Brackenridge, and E. W. Sargent, and a Christmas reading by Mrs. McColl.

Mrs. Birdsall then gave a talk on "How the Ontario Institutes Began." The speaker told of how the first Institute was inaugurated in South Wentworth in 1897. In three widely separated points in the province the same feeling expressed itself in the same way that year, Stoney Creek, Wentworth; Whitby, Ontario county, and Kemble in Grey county, all organizing within a few months of each other, and still going successfully. The constitution has been little changed to this day, bearing mute testimony to the fact that the little society must have been founded on very sound lines and high principles, to provide for its development into what is regarded to-day as the largest organization of woman in the world.

After the closing exercises, refreshments were served and all enjoyed a social time.

CANADIAN LIBERALISM STANDS FIRMLY FOR TARIFF REDUCTION

than anything else can do," he declared.

Third Parties

He referred but briefly to the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, newly-formed political party, declaring the political history of Canada has shown "third parties" were formed only during Conservative regimes and disappeared when Liberals got into power. The C.C.F., he said, was placing too much upon the State and instead the great task was to see "more responsibility is placed upon the people of the State rather than the State itself."

Mitchell F. Hepburn, Provincial Liberal Leader, who spoke jointly with Mr. King, strongly attacked the Ontario Government for what he termed its failure to implement its promises in Northern Ontario. Of the C.C.F., he declared he was in favor of the capitalistic system providing the system were not abused nor exploited. Democracy as it existed at present was the best form of government, he maintained.

Too Much Duplication

There was too much duplication in governments, he said. There were Federal and Provincial Departments of Agriculture, Health, and many other branches. Government costs, which had become unbearable, could be reduced considerably by elimination of this duplication, and then industry and agriculture would co-operate economically.

A. C. Slacht, K.C., prominent counsel who acted for the Liberal opposition during the investigation into the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, spoke briefly on the investigation and declared he had pledged himself to Mr. Hepburn to take the story of Hydro and "its countless millions into every riding in Ontario."

The meeting was the annual dinner of the Ward Eight Liberal Association, but was extended to take in representatives from every section of the city and province. Several thousand attended and gave the speakers an enthusiastic welcome.

Mr. King made a strong appeal for support. To men and women alike he outlined conditions as they existed to-day, and declared it was to the interest of men and women alike to take an intelligent part in politics. The greatest problem existing was a social one, the problem of how men were going to live; how children were going to be fed and clothed. Women, he said, could play an important part in the solution of the problems.

Attacked Tariffs.

He attacked the tariffs heatedly, time after time declaring Canada must not build its walls so high that other countries were kept out completely. The effect, he maintained, would be that a note of retaliation would be heard and Canada and the British Empire would find difficulty in trading with other countries unless such countries were allowed to trade with Canada and the Empire.

The British Empire, he said, was built not on restriction but on freedom, and restrictions would bring about its downfall. Referring to the self-sufficing economic unit, Mr. King said of the Prime Minister: "He may think that sort of unit is the way to make of us a great state, but to talk and think of a self-sufficing state in this 20th century of ours shows an utter lack of appreciation of the organization of industry throughout the world.

Warsaw

The play Deacon Dubbs, put on by the Norwood Presbyterian Young People, and sponsored by the Warsaw Skating Rink Committee, on Friday, was exceptionally good and all who saw it enjoyed it thoroughly. Unfortunately the roads were bad and the evening stormy, resulting in a very poor attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Payne and son, were in Warsaw on Tuesday.

The Zion ladies are well pleased with the result of their oyster supper on Friday evening, November 2, held at Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy's home. There were a good number present; the oysters were nicely cooked, sandwiches, cake and tea also were served. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, was chairman. An interesting program of the usual songs, readings and other selections were given by Zion people. The only outsiders contributing were Mrs. Chester Hamilton and Miss Doris Payne, who sang a duet, and Wallace Anderson.

Obituary

MRS. WILLIAM RENWICK.

KEENE, Dec. 16 (Examiner Correspondence).—The death of Mrs. William Renwick occurred Thursday after an illness of some duration in Nicholls Hospital, at the age of forty-five. She leaves to mourn her loss, besides her sorrowing husband, two sons, Robert and Fred; also four sisters: Mrs. John Drummond of Otonabee, Mrs. Locke of Toronto, Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Green of Portland, Oregon; and six brothers: Fred of Saskatchewan, Jack of Port Perry, George of Oshawa and William, Harold and Henry Weir of Otonabee. The funeral will be held privately at two o'clock Saturday afternoon from the family residence, Lock 12, Concession 8 of Otonabee, to Keene Cemetery, the Rev. John Sutherland of the Keene Presbyterian Church officiating.

FRANK CROWE.

Frank Crowe, well-known Dummer Township farmer, died yesterday in Nicholls Hospital at the age of 74 years. He was born and resided all his life in Dummer. He is survived by three sisters: Mrs. W. Hill of Lakefield, Mrs. B. Douglas of Warsaw, and Mrs. R. Cluff of Hall's Glen. The funeral will be held on Saturday at 1 p.m. from the home of Mrs. Cluff to the Warsaw Cemetery.

BABY CHARLES CHARD

CORDOVA MINES, Dec. 16. — (Examiner Correspondence).— The funeral of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Card whose death occurred on Tuesday morning last a few hours after birth, was held from the home of his parents here on Wednesday afternoon. The service was in charge of Rev. Mr. Boska of the Free Methodist church, and was largely attended. The remains were interred in the family plot, at Rockdale.

Baffled Judge Forced To Adjourn Case Till Interpreter Of 4 Languages Found

CLEVELAND, Dec. 16.—(A.P.) — Justice, pictured in art and literature as a blind goddess, or at least a goddess with veiled eyes, staged a drama of sight without much sound in Municipal Judge Joseph Smith's court.

The plaintiff, a deaf mute, took the stand and began "speaking" in the sign language.

"Get someone who can read it," said the Judge.

They found an interpreter of the sign language, but he took one look at the plaintiff's flying fingers and shook his head.

"That man's talking Hungarian," he said. "I can't translate Hungarian."

"Get someone who can interpret the interpreter," said the court. The second interpreter arrived and the plaintiff started to testify.

Up jumped the defendant. He charged—in Italian—that the interpreter was giving an incorrect version.

Six witnesses for the plaintiff, all deaf mutes, realizing something had gone wrong, began gesturing rapidly.

The Court rapped for order. "What's this suit about " he asked.

There was a silence in several languages.

Down went the gavel again. "Get someone who understands English, Italian, Hungarian and the sign language," he said slowly and clearly. "Meanwhile, court's adjourned."

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT AT W.M.S. MEETING

St. James' Church Society Meets at Home of Mrs. George S. Ingham.

The December meeting of St. James' W.M.S. was held last night at the home of Mrs. George S. Ingham, Crescent street, with a fair representative of members in attendance.

The business session was brief, as the annual meeting and election of officers will be held at a later date. A devotional service of praise and prayer, in which Mesdames Emery and Rose took part, was a fitting prelude to the program which followed.

A beautiful Christmas solo was contributed by Mrs. E. Kitney.

Very interesting and encouraging reports of the various departments were given by the secretaries in charge and showed that a busy and fruitful year had been enjoyed by St. James' Auxiliary.

A pithy little talk on the great question of "Christian Stewardship" was given by Miss Margaret Kidd, who touched her subject from every side, and commented upon the Christian's attitude toward it today.

In a well-told story, Mrs. Alvin Davis presented the study for the month, "The Making of Canada." "The Little Gray Lamb" was the title of the Christmas story told by Connie Wagar. It not only proved interesting with its pathetic appeal, but carried a worthwhile message of comfort with it. Miss Jackson gave a very short address, which she based upon Consecration, as found in the beautiful twelfth chapter of Romans.

Prayer and the Benediction brought to a conclusion this interesting last meeting of 1932.

The business meeting and election of officers will be held on Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, December 19th, when the Auxiliary will show its record of another year, and close its books.

Toronto Water Polo Team Is Coming Here

An outstanding water polo team from the Toronto Central "Y" will introduce the game to Peterborough to-morrow night in the Y.M.C.A. pool, the exhibition commencing at 8.15 o'clock. There will also be swimming and diving exhibitions by Canadian and Olympic aquatic stars, under the direction of Tommy Walker, swimming coach of the Central "Y" and coach of the water-polo team. Some local swimmers will be seen in the game.

The polo stars coming are: Bob Brophy, forward; Doug. Light, defence; Dawson Benedict, forward; Captain Art Askey, rover; Otto Stevens, forward; Harold Cornforth, goal, and Eddie Sinclair, defence. They were Ontario champions at this game last year, and most of them have played it with different Ontario and other college teams. It is a thrilling game which will prove popular and entertaining to local lovers of water sports.

Dorothy Prior, Betty Edwards and a number of other girl and men stars accompany the team, giving a demonstration in plain and fancy diving and all types of water gymnastics that has always proven popular here. Every time Tommy Walker brought his bunch down for a water show last winter, the Y.M.C.A. was crowded with men, women, girls and boys, and they always came away pleased with the progra

GEORGE J. BRUMWELL.

Who to-day celebrates his 68th birthday. Mr. Brumwell was born in this city and at the time of enlisting he was over age but you would not think so by his picture. He served overseas with the C.F.C. in the capacity of circular saw hammerer. Mr. Brumwell is a man of integrity, but says he does not profess any denominational religion, but firmly trusts in God and a Saviour, Jesus Christ for immortality. He possesses all his faculties, is a master mechanic and an ardent fisherman, and for the past 10 years has resided at 169 Hilliard street.

TEMPERANCE UNION WILL CONVENE HERE

Provincial Headquarters Accepts Invitation to Hold Convention in This City.

The home of Mrs. M. A. Morrison, Hunter Street west, was the objective of a W.C.T.U. women yesterday afternoon for their December meeting.

In a most interesting Bible talk, based on the third chapter of Genesis, Mrs. R. Bamforth stressed the responsibility of women in the home.

Prayer, offered by Mrs. Brown concluded this period and the meeting was open for the business of the day.

The Union having suffered the loss of three members, by death, it was decided to hold a memorial service for them on "Frances Willard Day" the 17th of February. The three, in whose honour the memorial is to be held are Miss Walton, Miss McCamus and Mrs. George Powell.

In connection with the Temperance contest in the district examination papers were received and passed on to Mrs. Wright, an official of the county executive, who honoured the meeting with her presence.

Mrs. E. Coon in her usual pleasing manner, gave a splendid paper on the life of Mrs. Letitia Yeomans which was greatly enjoyed.

To offset the agitation for increasing the sale of wine and beer a petition was received from the prohibition Union, signed by all the members present.

An interesting item on the program was the acceptance of the Ontario Woman's Christian Temperance Union, in a letter from the president of the invitation of the local union to hold the next provincial convention in Peterborough in October 1933.

During the afternoon Mrs. H. E. Connolly delighted everyone with a group of Christmas readings. "The Switchman's Christmas Story" and "Mary's Little Son". The Mizpah Benediction brought this very successful last meeting of the year to a conclusion.

A sincere vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Morrison for her gracious hospitality during the afternoon.

MALONE STORE RANSACKED

BELLEVILLE, Ont.—Police today are searching for burglars who early to-day ransacked the store of W. D. Nickle at Malone, near here. The thieves escaped with goods valued at more than $100. Heavy snowfall completely covered the tracks of the robbers.

Family Moves Away Leaves Persian Cat To Mercy Of Cold World And Dark Alleys

She was a big, lovely Persian cat, with a fluffy grey coat and large, round, blue-green eyes. She snuggled up against the cold glass of a large window in a hotel on a side street and looked in at the warm interior. Her pretty paws were wet and stained with mud. But, like a true aristocrat, she didn't complain, and she purred faintly as a passer-by stopped to stroke her.

Later, we found out all about her. She belonged to a family that had moved away and left her out in the cold. Only her luxurious warm fur coat prevented her from freezing to death. A neighbor fed her for days on the doorstep, with a pet dog growling remonstrance inside.

As she crouched purring under the friendly hand, a nice young lady from a Simcoe Street manufacturing office came along and took to her immediately. She kept her for the night in a box of warm excelsior, and next day found her a home that suits her well-bred tendencies to perfection. She is lonesome and meows for her former home, but soon she will forget and sit on a cushion, with her plume of a tail waving behind her and her big eyes blinking placidly.

But, had the good Samaritan not happened along, she might have been frozen stiff in some dark alley.

Because that's what happens when people move away and leave their pets to the mercy of a cold world.

MOTORIST SLIGHTLY HURT

BELLEVILLE, Ont.—George Martin, Toronto, was injured when he jumped from his burning automobile on the Belleville-Picton highway early to-day. The automobile was completely destroyed. Martin made his way to a farmhouse and was attended by a physician. He was not seriously hurt.

Guy Brothers Minstrels Had a Colorful History

Of Six Brothers Only Two Survive—Were Known for Years "On the Road."

WERE LOCAL FAVORITES.

What delights of the theatre that name conjures up in memory when the stage was supreme, its substance unrivalled and undimmed by pictorial shadows, and minstrelsy was a specialized art, an enjoyable melange of song and dance and jest paced and attuned to orchestral tempo and manner of which the jazz band is only an imitation.

The decline of the theatre "on the road," in the "one night stands," is a recreational loss, if nothing more, that cannot be appreciated by the younger generation whose spiced entertainment is purveyed by a financially dominant group of graduates from the garment industry. And on the lighter theatrical side were the minstrel shows with their noon hour quick step parades headed by bandsmen most of whom were engaged on the condition that they "doubled in brass," a requirement of versality on the stage as well as in the orchestra pit.

School boy dinners were usually late some twenty years ago when Guy Brothers appeared on George street with their small but highly effective band that usually featured two or three smart trombonists, and what those boys could do to "pepping up" the popular songs of the day in a half hour program before the curtain was rung up is a recollection that seems to dull even the best of to-day's syncopators.

However, reminiscence wanders away from a personal history of Guy Brothers Minstrels that was recently published in the Springfield (Mass.) Union and will appeal to the "gallery gods" of a generation ago. The Union's narrative follows:

Nearly three score years and ten in the ranks of minstrelsy as one of its outstanding performers, known to audiences in all the principal cities and larger towns in the United States and Canada, is the record of a Springfield man, member of a family that has been identified with the professional stage for generations.

George R. Guy of 95 Chestnut street, temporarily "at liberty," after 68 years of uninterrupted activity as a blackface entertainer, awaits only the recovery of the theatrical business from the present slump to resume his travels at the head of his company of musicians, comedians and dancers, long noted as the Guy Brothers Minstrels. For many years the company's roster included six Guy brothers, George, William, Charles, Albert, Edwin and George R., Sr., under whose direction the early tours of the troupe were made. Of these brothers only George and Arthur are now living, but the company still retains the old name, Guy Brothers.

Made Debut at Eight

Born in Hartford, Oct. 7, 1855, George R., Jr., the present proprietor and manager of the company, made his first professional appearance as a minstrel in Library Hall, Newark, N.J., in 1863, presenting the regular routine of the end man at the age of eight years under his father's tutelage. At that time he was rated as the youngest "minstrel man" on the stage as he is to-day, at the age of 77, admittedly the oldest.

He is still a virgorous "trouper" and his soft shoe dancing and deft manipulation of the "bones" show no less of skill and spirit than in the years of long ago. While awaiting suitable conditions for the resumption of his professional tours he often appears on the programs of charity entertainments and is a popular favorite.

George Guy was a featured member of the group of brothers and from his first appearance away back in the 60's up to the depression in the theatrical business in 1931, he sang and danced his way into popular favor. Among the famous figures in minstrelsy with whom he was professionally associated in various companies in which he appeared in the 60's and 70's were George Christy, pioneer of minstrelsy; Dan Emmett, composer of the immortal song of the Southland, "Dixie"; Dan Bryant, for whom Emmett wrote the song; Eph Horn, Nelse Seymour, George Primrose, Lew Dockstader and Joe Norcross, who was a resident of Springfield in the last years of his life, after his minstrel days were over.

Toured England

The Guy Brothers, company in 1869 toured England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales, introducing blackface comedy even into remote districts in Cornwall. European tours were not often undertaken in those days by American players, and such tours were by no means to be lightly planned. Travel was not then as speedy and luxurious as at present. The voyage to Britain of the Guy brothers occupied 16 days at sea, and the steamships of that period were far different from the floating palaces of to-day.

The blackface entertainers were an instantaneous success in Britain, notwithstanding the fact that due to certain prejudices aroused by the recent war of the States, Americans were not especially popular in parts of England. George Guy tells with obvious amusement of the laughs that Britons attempting to use the Negro dialect of the minstrels furnished to the visiting players.

George Guy's reminiscences of early days as a trouper present a picture of conditions difficult to visualize for those whose advent into life came since modern invention had provided the electric light, the radio, the telephone, aeroplane, rapid urban and interurban transit by electric cars and other modern facilities, for of course, all these were unknown and undreamed of in that time.

Theatre lighting was of necessity crude in comparison with the present. Gas lights were available in the cities, but in the smaller towns the playhouse was illumined and the stage lighting effects produced by the use of kerosene lamps, and on occasion calcium spot lights or floodlights to represent moonlight or for special brilliance.

The old horse car, drawn by weary nags at tiresomely slow speed, the lumbering horse-drawn bus, the hansom cab and the "hack" were the agencies of urban transit. Many sections of the country could not be reached by railroads. In fact, in the early years of this company's trouping, there was no transcontinental railroad. Travel between the cities located on the great rivers was entirely by the "side-wheel" or "stern-wheel" steamers or by flatboats.

When the two elder Guy boys, William and George, were appearing with Hooley's Minstrels in a Brooklyn theatre in 1864, their only means of access to New York City (Brooklyn had not then become a part of Greater New York), where they lived, was by ferry. There were then no bridges joining the cities, no subways, no elevated railways. The amusement centre and principal business section of the Metropolis was in and about Fourteenth street far from the Rialto of to-day. Harlem, now a densely populated section, was then a remote and extremely sparsely-settled area with great reaches of brushland and wide open spaces.

Played at Tony Pastor's.

The boys' season with Hooley's company was followed by a long engagement at the famous Tony Pastor's in lower Broadway, and later with most of the minstrel companies that were then at the height of their popularity, the two young performers presenting their dancing specialties and other features with great success. As their younger brothers grew up, they, too, joined the minstrels, until finally the elder George Guy was able to put on the road his company featuring six Guy brothers, as well as himself. The leading roles in this company were given to the members of this family. Interlocutor, end men and specialty dancers all were found among the Guys.

Versatility was requisite to success in old-time minstrelsy and all of the brothers were talented in various lines. Each of the boys could furnish at call any feature of their type of entertainment. When need of an "end song" arose either father or one of the sons could and did produce a musical composition that met the need of the occasion. Several of the compositions of George Guy were published and attained popular favor. Each of the Guys was able to sing, dance, play the banjo, manipulate tambourines or "bones," carry the end men's comedy "gage," give creditable acrobatic exhibitions and the family in the "grand street parade" could furnish the larger part of the personnel of the band.

Trouping in the early years of the Guy brothers was an adventurous life. At one time George, Sr., and William, touring the West Indies and playing in the few theatres to be found in the island towns, were shipwrecked near the island of St. Thomas. The sailing vessel on which they were travelling between the islands was caught in a storm, and when the mast was carried away, the Guys jumped into the sea. The boy William was assisted by a native to reach a refuge on a rock near land and the father was carried by the gale-driven waves to the same rock. Then followed a long wait until a vessel touching at St. Thomas took them to a port from which they were able to sail for the homeland.

While playing Woodsville, N. H., they stayed at the only hotel in the place, a flimsy wooden structure. One night they were awakened by the barking of young George Guy's dog to find the hotel in flames. They were able to escape, but were forced to leave behind their stage costumes to the detriment of their appearances in the following performance.

Hotel rooms were lighted by candles during part of their careers on the road, and while playing the Holiday Street Theatre in Baltimore, they found it expedient to retire early as the frugal management of the hotel required the porter to visit the rooms and collect candles and candlesticks comparatively early in the night to prevent wasteful illumination.

Hired Own Schooner.

The minstrel company made a tour of Nova Scotia and Cape Breton Island, chartering a small wooden schooner for transportation between the shore towns. Performances were given in school houses and little town halls, and on one occasion a large unused icehouse was turned into a theatre of sorts, with hastily constructed board stage and seats. Reaching Halifax, the company opened a new theatre and played there six months.

When George and William toured the cities of the South, presenting blackface comedy and dancing acts with a circus, they found plenty of excitement, with fights between the circusmen and the rowdies of the towns, of almost nightly occurrence. After one of these "hey, Rube" conflicts the boys decided that the peaceful North would be a preferable place for them. They hid under tarpaulins on the river steamer on which they had been travelling until the fray had subsided, then came North.

During an engagement with Kelly & Leon's Minstrels from 1863 to 1869, William and George played important roles in the travesties on grand operas, that were alternated with straight minstrelsy by this company. The regular musical scores of the operas and the approved costumes were worn, but the players appeared in blackface and the lines were parodied. The chorus sopranos and altos were boys of old Trinity Church's choir.

Springfield has been the home city of the Guy family for more than 45 years. The father died here 38 years ago and his wife's death followed within a year. William died in the city 25 years ago. Albert has been dead for some years and Edwin and Charles died here within the past year. Of the six G. brothers only George and Arthur survive. Arthur is a theatrical manager in Chicago and George is a resident of Springfield and "the oldest living minstrel man."

Leaders Of Oxford Groups

Some of the leaders of the Oxford Groups, latest evangelical movement that is sweeping through Canada, are shown above. They have appeared in a number of large centres in this country to give their personal testimony, confessing a new religious awakening. The chief feature of their revivals is the "house party," where interested guests talk over with one another the problems of their individual experiences. Miss Mairi Clarkson, B.A., of Hons. Oxfordshire, England, is shown in upper left, with Rev. Frank Buchman, formerly of Detroit, Michigan, founder of the groups, at the right. Lower left is Robert Drury Lowe, C.M.G., war veteran and peace worker. Typical of the cosmopolitan interest in the movement is the presence of Baroness Lillian Van Heeskern Van Kell of Holland, shown in lower right.

MARMORA W.I.

MARMORA, Dec. 16 (Examiner Correspondence). — The December meeting of the Marmora Women's Institute was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Harold Nayler, with an attendance of 43. The chair was ably filled by Mrs. E. Schofield, who conducted opening exercises.

After presentation of the financial statement, a discussion took place regarding the three-day course in handicraft that will be held early in 1933.

Considerable time was also taken in discussing ways and means of dealing with several cases of need which had been brought to the attention of the Institute. It was finally decided that a committee, composed of Mesdames A. B. Caldwell, W. A. Sanderson and Mrs. H. W. Sabine, wait on the village council the following morning, and, with their assistance, come to some plan and arrangement that will benefit these cases and others that may arise.

An appeal was received from the north of the county for clothing and supplies, but it was considered that the needs of the home community should receive first consideration.

Mrs. D. E. Bell gave a report of the area convention recently held in Belleville and Mrs. H. W. Sabine handled "current events." The program concluded with a humorous reading by Mrs. W. Kerr Jr.

The gift shower was a fine success, and lunch was served by the committee, composed of the following: Mesdames E. Schofield, F. Grant, W. A. Sanderson, H. W. Sabine, H. R. Haacke, P. Sopha.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Foster, of Toronto, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harry Foster.

A christening was held at the home of Mr. Henry Blakley on Wednesday evening when the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Ried was christened Carman Aubrey by the Rev. Mr. Herrington.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Oliver entertained a number of friends on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nobes and family, of Havelock, visited Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mouck on Sunday.

Messrs. C. Howard and W. Garrison, of Plainfield, called on Mr. W. Harrison on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Melbourne Adams entertained a number of their friends on Monday evening.

HEAD OFFICE - - TORONTO, ONTARIO

The Loyal Orange Lodge held its annual at-home on Wednesday evening. Over one hundred and fifty from Moneymore, Elliotts and the home lodge attended. Speeches were given by Reverends Hill and Beezer of Roslin, and Rev. Herrington of this place. Lunch was served by members from each lodge, after which dancing was indulged in until two o'clock. Music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. G. Burleigh.

The Women's Missionary Society held the Christmas meeting at the United parsonage on Tuesday afternoon, with 40 present. After the devotional exercises it was moved by Mrs. George Jones and seconded by Mrs. George Sherry, that the late Mrs. Blakely's death be sent in to the Missionary Outlook and a letter of sympathy be sent to Mr. Blakely.

Moved and seconded, that flowers be sent to Mrs. William Kerr, who is ill.

Mrs. Lucy Fox then took the president's chair for the program. A duet was sung by Mesdames Porter and Kennedy; a reading by Mrs. Herman Elliott; recitation by Mrs. J. Bateman, "If I Had Been Born in Bethlehem"; solo by Mrs. R. Oliver; reading by Mrs. Herrington, "The First Christmas Roses.

Collection was taken. Loose collection, $5; thankoffering, $22; free-will offering, $2.

Lunch was served by the hostess.

The home of Mr. John Carson, of Stoco, was burned on Monday. His sister, Miss Ellen Carson, was found unconscious in the burning building and died later from shock. Scarcely anything in the home was saved.

WOMAN, FAMILY HELD AT BORDER

Heading for Toronto in Answer to Letter—Husband Fails to Meet Them.

POLICE TAKE CHARGE.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., December 16 (C.P.). — Mrs. Doris Strong and her six children, all of Cleveland, Ohio, were housed at police headquarters here to-day awaiting arrival of her husband, Herbert Strong, from Toronto, so difficulties surrounding the mother and children's entrance into Ontario to join him could be considered. The woman and children arrived here last night, but were barred from Canada.

Herman Kull, Falls immigration chief, said the couple were separated three years ago when Strong, a Great War Canadian veteran, suffered a lapse of memory. Recently he communicated with his wife in Cleveland and told her to go to Toronto and take the children. He was to have met them at the border last night, but did not do so. Immigration officials were awaiting his appearance to-day. Mrs. Strong is a British subject, but was admitted legally to the United States in 1911. Immigration officials here said Strong married her under the name of Herbert Spence. All of the children were born in this country.

Must Remain Separated

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Dec. 16 (C.P.)—Herbert Strong, who has been living in Toronto for three years must remain separated from his wife and six children because of an immigration tangle. It has not been established to the satisfaction of immigration officials here that Strong is legally a resident of Canada and for that reason the wife and children have been refused entry here. Mrs. Strong claims that her husband is a Canadian, and if that can be established, the family will be reunited with the husband and father. Mrs. Strong was born in England and the children in the United States.

J. F. STRICKLAND APPROVES IDEA

Mayor deserve a great deal of credit for the way they have found work for our unemployed citizens" Mr. Strickland remarked. "And the unemployed are to be complimented on the way they have met the situation. For three years we have all been expecting and hoping that a period of improvement would set in. I think a great many people believe that this period has arrived, and that this is the last winter which will require the extraordinary measures we have had to adopt to meet the stress which has been bearing on our governments, federal, provincial and municipal."

Mr. Strickland mentioned, in passing, the political reaction which has been more pronounced of late.

"We always have extremists in our midst" he said, "and in times like these we are bound to hear more from the extreme radical element. There is not much attention paid to them in normal times, but in present conditions when people's minds are unsettled they may be inclined to reach out for any political straws that promise assistance. At the Liberal meeting in Toronto yesterday Mackenzie King said that some of the ideas of the promoters of the Co-operative Commonwealth were good, but the most of them were highly impracticable. They looked too much to the state for assistance but they did not indicate what state the assistance was to come from. Premier Bennett's opinion of this movement was even more adverse. W. H. Moore, M.P., who represents an adjoining constituency, warned the Kiwanis of Hamilton this week of the danger of some of the ideas of the Co-operative Commonwealth. Personally, I would suggest that you study their ideas closely, compare them with the principles of the old parties, consider whether the new ideas can be brought about, and of course if you think they can and that they would be of help, by all means support them."

Press Reflects Doubts.

Mr. Strickland said it was significant that the daily and also the weekly press of the country reflected a dubious opinion of the new political movement. He briefly sketched the plan of relief work that had been instituted by the Federal and Provincial Governments last winter. It had been productive of a great deal of good but the overhead cost did not leave enough of the money for the men who were given work. It was felt that more direct relief would be preferable, and this system is being carried to a greater extent this winter.

It was believed that this could be done at less expense.

"That is something we cannot lose sight of, for you and I must ultimately pay for it. No matter what Governments supply the money, in the long run it comes from the people."

Mr. Strickland was introduced by J. A. O'Brien, who recalled that Mr Strickland had the unique distinction of being the youngest barrister and solicitor to be created a King's Counsel in Ontario.

Harry Boyle presided at the luncheon.

Two New Members.

Herb. McCannan was conductor of the choral selections of the day. "Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes" was a feature number with a beautiful running accompaniment by Martin B. Chenhall at the piano. Charlie Lawrence sang "Kathleen Mavourneen."

Dr. Frank Neal introduced two new members, Wilson McCreary, local manager of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Association since last January, and A. R. Piper, who came to Peterborough from Regina to the staff of the London Life Insurance Company.

In presenting them with the Kiwanis membership button, Dr. Neal said that what they would get out of Kiwanis depended upon what they put into it.

SCREEN ODDITIES

by Captain Roscoe Fawcett

One of the most successful satires on the movies and which ran on Broadway for two years as a stage play was written by two men who never had been to Hollywood. The play was "Once in a Lifetime," and the men were Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman. They wrote the play solely upon various stories they had heard about Hollywood and its legends. The play is largely responsible for the cycle of parodies on the motion picture business that has been popular recently.

When Miriam Jordan was sixteen her mother gave her a good luck charm consisting of a tiny golden bell from the sides of which several small pearls were suspended by links of silver chain. In later years she lost it when crossing to England aboard the Aquitania. Two and one-half years later she was again going to Europe on the same ship when, after dancing, she sat down to rest in a wicker chair. Idly toying with the arm of the chair, she found something loose and glanced down to find her charm caught in the wicker!

REEVE TANNER IS ON THE JOB

en authority about three weeks ago consisted in the laying of a new floor and the installation of a new stove. It was useless to put the stove in, he pointed out, until the floor had been laid. Work on the relaying of the floor had been delayed because Mr. Finney who had the contract had been unable to procure the necessary lumber at once. He now had the lumber and the work was proceeding. Immediately the floor was laid the stove would be put into position.

In following up the developments as a result of the Grand Jury's warning of the danger of fire that existed in the County Buildings, The Examiner first interviewed G. A. Brethen, foreman of the Grand Jury.

Saw Warden

Mr. Brethen stated that in accordance with Judge Huycke's recommendation he had interviewed Warden W. H. Montgomery upon his return to Norwood last evening. The Warden had expressed deep interest and concern in the matter and had undertaken to communicate with the chairman of the County Property Committee this morning.

When interviewed over the telephone by The Examiner shortly after ten o'clock this morning, Reeve Tanner said he had not at that time received word from the Warden regarding the stove. The matter had been called to his attention yesterday by B. Q. Dench of Lakefield, who was among the members of the Grand Jury.

Reeve Tanner had not read the account in the newspaper. "I would not bother reading such matter. I am not particularly interested in a matter of that nature which is only the opinion of a few fellows", he said.

Asked by The Examiner when the work was authorized by him at the goal kitchen, Reeve Tanner ejaculated, "the work was commenced before the Grand Jury made their inspection of the goal". He could not see that it was anybody's business on what date the Property Committee had authorized the work.

In order to get the situation more clearly The Examiner asked Reeve Tanner how it was that if the work was in progress at the time the jury made their inspection they had not been made aware of the fact.

"I did not say the work in the kitchen was actually in progress at that time", he reiterated, "there is a great deal of preliminary work in matters of that nature. The work was authorized before the Grand Jury's presentment and is not being hastened forward on account of any recommendations they made".

to "named consignees." The identity of the grain actually shipped by Buffalo or other United States' ports must be clearly established by documents required by British regulation, it is intimated in private advices.

Documentation in the case of the test shipment, it is understood, has been adjudged insufficient for the reason that the shipment had not been made to a "named consignee."

Grain experts freely interpret the reports which have been cabled to them from London to mean that if Canadian grain is shipped by way of Buffalo or United States' ports the six cent preference will be granted if the grain shipment is made on through bills consigned to "named persons in the United Kingdom." Identity of grain actually shipped to the United Kingdom must be clearly established by documents as required by British regulation.

LIFE MEMBERSHIP PRESENTED WOMEN

Millbrook W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Church Holds Election of Officers.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 16 (Examiner Correspondence) — Mrs. Percy Stinson was hostess for the December meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Church, which met at her home, Centre street, on Wednesday, the Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., taking the place of the president, Mrs. Jones, who was absent through ill health.

The fall thankoffering was taken up and a goodly sum realized. An interesting feature of the gathering was the presentation of two life membership certificates, Mrs. H. W. Johnston, who kindly helps any one of the groups almost every month being the recipient of one of these, the gift of the Auxiliary as a whole as a mark of the members' appreciation. The second certificate was given Mrs. A. J. Henderson from an individual member as a token of friendship. Mrs. Stinson presented Mrs. Johnston with the gift on behalf of the Auxiliary, but Mrs. Henderson being absent her life folder was sent to her home. Rev. Mr. Jones made the brief address announcing the addition to the life membership list.

The following officers were elected: president, Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones; vice-presidents, Mrs. Rae and Mrs. J. McKnight; secretary, Mrs. J. H. George; treasurer, Miss M. E. Hetherington; corresponding secretary, Miss Pearl Burnham; secretaries: Christian Stewardship and Finance, Miss Estelle Hetherington; associate helpers', Mrs. Henderson; strangers', Mrs. George Fallis; literature and missionary monthly, Mrs. R. H. Edmunds; temperance: Mrs. Hilliard Lang; supply, Mrs. J. Spence; mite-boxes, Mrs. T. H. Aiken; superintendents of Mission Band: Mrs. M. McDowell, Mrs. J. Ridge and Miss Phyllis Kidd.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Dec. 16.—Egg receipts on the local market yesterday were light, but the slow demand did not move much stock in brokers' hands and prices were barely steady at the decline for the week as were quotations to country shippers and retailers. Brokers offered fresh supplies at 32c for extras, 30c for firsts, 2c for pullet extras and 19c for seconds, graded and in used cases, and storage eggs at 23c for extras, 21c for firsts and 18c for seconds, recandled. Country shippers were quoted 30c for extras, 25c for firsts, 20c for pullet extras and 15c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. To retailers prices were steady at 38c for extras in cartons, 36c for extras loose, 32c for firsts loose 26c for pullet extras loose and 21c for seconds loose.

Poultry

Prices on poultry were unchanged when the new lists appeared this week and it looked as if the prices quoted would be in effect for the entire preholiday trade.

Butter

Arrivals of butter were not heavy for this market and prices were firm though the demand was quiet. Brokers offered finest Ontario makes at 21¼c and No. 2 at 20¾c with Western at 21½c. Retailers were quoted creamery prints at 24½c for No. 1 and 24c for No. 2.

Cheese

Trade in cheese was good, but supplies were not plentiful and prices were slightly higher at 9½c to 9¾c for large, 9¾c to 10c for twins and 10c to 10¼c for triplets.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Dec. 16—Trading was dull on the produce and dairy market here yesterday.

Butter remained unchanged at Wednesday's closing levels, 21½c to 21¾c a pound being quoted for car lots or less of No. 1 finest grass make. Receipts were light, only 25 boxes arriving.

Cheese Steady

Current receipts of Ontario white cheese sold at 8¼c to 8½c a pound while current Ontario colored was 9¼c to 9½c. Ontario early season was 10½c to 11c a pound. Receipts were 1,010 boxes.

Potatoes held firm at 90c for New Brunswick or Prince Edward Island Green Mountains per 80-pound bag, and $1 for Prince Edward Island Green Mountains per 90-pound bag.

Eggs Lower

The downward trend in egg prices continued. Graded fresh Ontario extras in car lots or less lost a cent at 37c, firsts dipped 2c at 31c to 32c, while pullets were off a cent at 28c to 29c a dozen. Storage extras and firsts in car lots declined a cent at 21c and 18c, respectively, while seconds were ½c lower at 17c a dozen. To retailers, fresh eggs in cartons lost from 1c to 4c a dozen, with the exception of fresh seconds, which held unchanged, as did storage eggs. Receipts were 445 cases.

Poultry Active

Efforts of Christmas shippers to obtain sales for stock enroute here from the West and other points caused activity on the poultry market. Sellers were asking 17c a pound for A grade turkeys, 15c for B grade and 12c a pound for C grade Buyers were biding ½ under the asking levels.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, December 16. — Wheat prices lost another half-cent yesterday in the third successive session of a decline that has whittled one cent from futures values in that period. Overwhelming selling pressure from all sides proved too much for a comparatively large export business estimated at 1,000,000 bushels.

December closed at 41¾c, May at 44½c, and July at 45⅝c.

Outside markets were a shade firmer and the prominent outside interest that had been supporting the market gave signs of being in the buying again yesterday, but the total demand could not withstand the enormous pressure of offers.

Farmers are unloading their wheat on the downtrend and covering up on their margin. Traders are liquidating stocks to stop loss, and elevator companies are also on the selling side of the floor. To add to this, Chicago wheat was 3 cents cheaper yesterday, and operations on the spread added to the weight on the market.

Liverpool firmed on an increase in the price of Argentine new crop, and Buenos Aires was unchanged to fractionally lower. While the old crop from South America is being offered quite cheaply, quantities are limited and the effect on the market is not considerable.

Transactions on the cash wheat and coarse grains market did not reflect the decline in futures and very little business was reported

Futures:

Wheat—	Open	High	Low	Close	Prev Close
Dec.	42½	42½	41¾	41¾	42¼
May	45¼	45¼	44¼	44½	45
July	46⅝	46⅝	45⅝	45⅝	46⅛
Oats—
Dec.	20⅝	20⅝	20½	20½	20¾
May	22⅝	22⅝	22½	22½	22⅝
July	23	23	22⅝	22⅝	22⅝

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 16 Despite new all-time low-price records established for Canadian wheat yesterday, the Chicago weat market displayed comparative strength, and in some cases scored gains.

Correct anticipation that a Government crop report issued after the close of the day's trading here would show a reduction of the official estimate of 1932 surplus wheat yields in the United States did much to uphold Chicago prices. Traders, however, failed to foresee that the Government estimate of domestic winter wheat production could be raised to a material extent and would more than offset slashing of spring wheat figures.

Close Is Irregular

Wheat in Chicago closed irregular, ⅜ off to ¼ advance, compared with Wednesday's finish. Corn unchanged to ¼ down. Oats also unchanged to ¼ recline, and provisions from 20c setback to a rise of 7c.

OMEMEE SOCIETY RE-ELECTS OFFICERS

W. A. of Trinity United Church Holds Annual Election of Officers.

OMEMEE, Dec. 16 (Examiner Correspondence)—The regular December meeting of the Women's Association of Trinity United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Morcombe on Thursday afternoon.

Reports of standing committees were received. The secretary and treasurer's report were given by Mrs. Overholt and Mrs. Williamson.

Rev. Dr. Reddick in a few remarks congratulated the W.A. on their splendid year's work despite the depression and praised them for their many efforts to assist both socially and financially.

Mrs. Sandy the president occupied the chair for the business part of the meeting. Mrs. Lamb was appointed to look after the buying of the oranges for the Christmas tree.

Rev. Dr. Reddick conducted the election of officers which resulted in the following slate: President, Mrs. Sandy; 1st vice, Mrs. Bushnel; 2nd vice, Mrs. Rea; secretary, Mrs. Morcombe; treasurer, Mrs. Bradburn; pianist, Mrs. Lamb; assistant pianist, Mrs. Reddick; flower committee, Mrs. Bradburn and Mrs. Morcombe.

Mrs. Sandy on resuming the chair thanked the members for their confidence in her and their co-operation and hoped they would stand behind her for the coming year. Mrs. Lamb moved a vote of thanks to the retiring treasurer, Mrs. Williamson who has filled the position very satisfactorily for a number of years.

Presentation Made To Warkworth Pair

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, Dec. 16. — The regular meeting of St. Andrew's Young People was held on Monday evening under the direction of the president, Gordon McCubbin.

Mrs. Meiklejohn gave a splendid paper on "Christ our Ideal." This was followed by an address on the same topic by Rev. Mr. Duncan.

The rest of the evening was spent in a social time together, when an unexpected surprise awaited one of their number, Reg. McCann and his bride. They were presented with a beautiful pair of hand embroidered pillow covers and dresser scarf to match.

St. Paul's Y.P.S.

The Young People's meeting of St. Paul's Church was held on Monday evening. There was a good attendance. The program in charge of the Missionary Department was very interesting.

Scripture reading by Miss Jean Campbell. Prayer, Mrs. W. B. Baker. Introduction of the topic which was the first chapter of the Study Book, "His Dominion of Canada," by Jean Walker. First part of the topic by Miss Jean Bowen vocal duet, by Misses Lila Allen and May Grant. The second part of topic, Mrs. George Osborne; violin solo, George Osborne.

Mrs. B. Buchanan entertained the Bridge Club on Tuesday evening.

One of the earliest names for man was the Sanscript word "marta," the dying.

Trent River

The Young Men's Class of the United Church Sunday School have volunteered to cut wood on Mr. Wm. Brooks' farm, for use at the church. Mr. Brooks has offered the standing timber for the church for one dollar per cord, the young men looking after the cutting and drawing.
Choir rehearsals for the church are held each Wednesday night.
Mr. and Mrs. John Boyd Jr. and son, Jackie, were visitors in Peterborough, Wednesday.
Miss Barton, of Havelock, was a guest with Mr. and Mrs. Melville Wight a few days this week.
Mr. Jack Liberty, of Healy Falls, is a visitor with his sister, Mrs. Frank Pollock.
Ice has formed on the back channels along the Trent River, which will be of benefit to those having the contract for hauling the cut timber from McCulloch's Island for the Trenton Cooperage Company.

Essex To Relinquish Claim To A.B.C. Fines

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 16.—(CP)—Essex county will relinquish all possible claims to any part of the fines imposed on members of the Amalgamated Builders council, according to a communication from John H. Rodd, K. C., county solicitor, to Bruce MacDonald, Windsor solicitor, today.
The letter states the county withdraws after realizing Windsor bore the expense of prosecution. The total fines of $18,700 are claimed by Windsor.
The Province of Ontario waives its right to $10,700 assessed by the trial judge but claims $8,000 assessed by the court of appeal, after certain defendants had been acquitted and their cases carried up by the Attorney General's Department.

ROUTLEY'S SHOW BRITISH GOODS

"Queen Mary China," Made Originally for Her Majesty, on Sale.

CRYSTALWARE FEATURED.

Crystal glassware and decorative candles that were formerly imported from the United States and Germany are now purchased from English producers, Herbert S. Routley of Routley's China Store, told The Examiner to-day.

"Price's candles will withstand 100 degrees of heat without melting," Mr. Routley said. "They are manufactured by Price's Patent Candle Company of London and Manchester, and are of beautiful designs that will appeal to every home. These supplies used to come from Germany and the United States, and it should be a matter of interest to everybody who desires to see the expansion of trade within the Empire to know that our candles are now bought in the old country and are of excellent quality. The crystal glassware which we are selling in Peterborough is also of British make, and are of a quality that must be seen to be appreciated. Wade's fancy teapots are another line that are especially appealing at this season."

56 Years in Business

The Routley store, entering next month upon its 56th year of unbroken business in this city, has always been noted for its wide range of chinaware and porcelain ware, its tea and dinner sets. Years ago, Mr. C. B. Routley, who founded the business, visited the pottery district of Stoke-on-Trent in Staffordshire, and formed connections with manufacturers that have been retained by the Routley store to the present day.

Mr. Routley takes a particular pride in showing the "Queen Mary China" which was first made in 1913 exclusively for Queen Mary. Subsequently Her Majesty permitted the reproduction of the line for the purpose of fostering trade within the Empire. It is produced by the Paragon China Company of Longton, Stoke-on-Trent, England, and is one of the finest works of art from the potters of Staffordshire. The charming design of graceful groups of flowers in natural colors, relieved by panels of mazarine blue and enriched by tracing of burnished gold, is truly regal and will lend dignity to every home that possesses this service. The design can never be destroyed. The color is under the outer glaze and the gold used is pure bullion, all painted on with fine camel hair pencils.

Potteries Classified

Mr. Routley explained that the potteries on the Trent are of four classified groups who in their association set certain standards of quality which form the basis of rating or classification. About seven of the manufacturers are included in the highest rank or class A. By this means the standard of excellence of Staffordshire products is maintained and has become a hallmark of quality in porcelain and chinaware.

The Routley store is showing an extensive range of these British goods that contribute so much beauty to homes. Several weeks ago a shipment of vases arrived from Czechoslavakia which were ordered last February, and are now offered to the public as features for Christmas shoppers.

C.P.R. FIREMAN INJURED IN FALL

Havelock Junior Institute and Agricultural Society Hold Euchre Party.

W.M.S. ANNUAL MEET.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 16. — John Seabrooke met with painful injuries on Tuesday last, when he fell from the cab of his engine while taking coal at the local shute before leaving for a trip on the east way freight, his regular run.

The coal was frozen and did not come down the shute when it was lowered, and Mr. Seabrooke stood on the top of the cab, and was in the act of releasing it with a poker when he fell to the ground, a distance of probably 15 feet. He sustained a sprained right arm and an injured leg, as well as face lacerations. At first it was thought his leg was broken.

Euchre Party

A jolly euchre party followed by a dance was held on the regular meeting date of the Junior Institute and Agricultural Society immediately after the meeting in the Orange Hall. The main business transacted was the completion of arrangements for the dance which the young people will hold on the first Friday of the New Year, Jan. 6. The girls received the report of the convention at Toronto, as written by the delegate from the Women's Institute, Mrs. Johnston, but owing to lack of time on account of the impending card party, this had to be shelved until next meeting. There was no new business. The card party was well attended, there being 12 tables played. The prize for the highest score was drawn for by Mildred Wilde, and Mrs. E. Leeson and won by Mildred. The men's prize was won by Mr Harry Anderson of Round Lake Settlement. Miss Katie McCutcheon and Master Lloyd Anderson were awarded the Consolation trophies. An interesting feature of the evening was the drawing of the lucky ticket for the Kenwood blanket. The holder of the winning ticket was Miss Ethel Longmuir, who received the handsome blanket on which fifteen dollars' worth of tickets had been sold. The proceeds of the drawing will be used for relief and Christmas cheer. A dainty lunch was afterwards served and the remainder of the evening spent in dancing.

W.M.S. Annual Meet

The annual meeting of the W.M.S., of the United Church was held on Thursday last in the basement of the church when the following officers were elected:

Hon. President, Mrs. Bonney; President, Mrs. Easterbrooke; 1st Vice-president, Mrs. Cochrane; 2nd Vice-president, Mrs. Spencer; Recording Secretary, Mrs. G. Chiles; Corr. Secretary, Mrs. A. C. Denike, Treasurer, Mrs. Roy Campney; Secretary Christian Stewardship and Finance, Mrs. Anderson; Strangers' Secretary and Associate Helpers' Secretary, Mrs. Roberts; Mission Band Supt., Mrs. Kemp; Assistant Band Supt. and Mite Box Secretary, Miss Roberts; Supply Secretary, Mrs. Hoard; Baby Band Secretary, Mrs. J. Wilde; Temperance Secretary, Mrs. Cochrane; Literature and Press Secretary, Mrs. Wilson; Organist, Mrs. Campney; Auditors, Mrs. A. C. Denike and Miss M. Williams; Nominating Committee, Mesdames Wilson, Spencer, Chiles, Denike and Anderson.

Finance Committee, Mesdames Anderson, Roberts, Campney, Spencer and the President.

The study, "The Making of the Western Prairies," was in charge of Miss Crawford assisted by Mesdames Chiles, Campney and Spencer. A key thought of this chapter being "If we possess the land spiritually, as God plainly directs, our territory for Him will reach from the sun-rising Atlantic coast, to the great sea toward the going down of the sun," the Pacific Coast.

The retiring president, Mrs. Bonney, who has been forced through ill health to relinquish her responsibility as president, directed the minds of the members to a few thoughts on God's love for them as revealed through John's revelation of Christ's love, and this commandment have we from God "that he who loveth God, loveth his brother also."

The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. Bonney, after which a social hour was spent in dancing.

Omemee

A very enjoyable time was spent at the meeting of the A.Y.P.A., in the basement of Christ church, on Monday evening.

After the regular opening exercises George Dickson gave a reading on Missionary work. A short humorous play was staged and games were indulged in.

The meeting of the Young Peoples' Union of Trinity United church was withdrawn on Monday evening owing to preparations that are being made for the play, "Her Step-Husband," in which will be presented in Coronation Hall on Monday evening, December 26.

Mr. L. Mahood of Lindsay was a visitor to this village on Tuesday.

The Rev. Mr. Whitehame of Cavan, visited Dr. McPhee Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. K. Griffin and Mrs Mills of Bobcaygeon, were Monday evening guests of Mrs. Jamieson.

Mrs. Haygarth was a business visitor to Lindsay on Monday.

DENTON MASSEY URGES PRACTISE OF ROYAL LAW

Leader of oYrk Bible Class Addresses Large Audience in George Street.

TOO MUCH CRITICISM.

10,000 Bushels of Wheat Required to Pay Greta Garbo for Week.

"The remedy for our present situation is in our own hands," declared Denton Massey, teacher of the York Bible Class, in addressing a large audience in George Street United Church last evening on the subject, "Is There a Remedy?"

The royal law, "Love thy neighbor as thyself," must be the superstructure upon which each individual must build his life if confidence is to return between man and man, between nation and nation, and if the material and spiritual things in life are to regain their proper balance, stated Mr. Massey. "The present situation is in a great part personal," he said. "Our morale and stamina are slipping and our British tenacity is going."

Christian Teaching

His address was a challenge to the world to return to the basic teachings of Jesus Christ and also it was something of a defence of Christianity.

In the first part of his address he delt with the material side of present existence. The platitudinous statement "these are desperate times," has been so oft repeated that these words have become true, he said. The fall in farm prices, in wholesale prices and in world trade were referred to in graphic terms by the speaker, who said, "It now takes 10,000 bushels of wheat to pay Greta Garbo's salary for a week."

Hide Behind Depression

Stressing the personal side of the situation he stated that some people go around as though they were a one man depression. "They don't know the facts, nor do they stop to learn them; they simply jump to conclusions," he said, pointing out that most people are too swift to condemn. "Many people are hiding behind the skirts of this hag, called depression. And others are hiding behind it because their confidence is shaken."

Dealing with the various expressed causes of the depression, he said the explanation usually given is extravagance and coupled with this over-production. He said if the cause was over-production then the people were not too extravagant because they failed to buy up all that was prdouced. The banker, he said, would say that there was too much money borrowed, but then his answer was that the banks must have loaned too much. "I am not criticizing the Canadian banks but there must be something wrong basically when we borrow too much money when times are good," he said.

Too Much Criticism

People, although wholly in ignorance of what is going on behind the scenes in the progress of our national affairs, are too prone to criticise. "There is nothing more terrible than when war debts become bridge table conversation," he commented. We are going to weather this storm because of the stability of the country and the Empire, he said. The Ottawa Conference was not a failure but a glorious success, because there the delegates exchanged views.

Coming to the spiritual side of his address, Mr. Massey declared that anyone who thinks he can live unto himself alone is doomed to eventual unhappiness. The foundation upon which a full life must be built is upon the law, "Love thy neighbor as thyself." Living according to the royal law, he said was the outward display of Christian citizenship. The more than 600 million professing Christians in the world shows that there is more in Christianity than merely blind faith.

Foundations Laid

He said Christ had laid the foundation knowing that men had the intelligence to grow and adapt it to his needs. "But," he declared, "as long as we have chips upon our shoulders we dare not call ourselves Christians." There was no mention in Jesus' teachings of dogmas or creeds.

In a final appeal for spiritual awakening upon the teachings of Christ, he declared that with the royal law applied in individual lives the material chaos in which the world is engulfed would quickly be swept away and a new order of fairness to all would take its place.

The Duo (Do Unto Others) Club of George Street Sunday School was responsible for bringing Mr. Massey to the city for last evening's address. James Goldie, president of the club, was chairman and Leo W. Copp, the teacher, introduced the speaker. Mr. Goldie spoke of the relief work carried on in supplying food and shoes to children, who otherwise could not have attended school in outlying parts of the country where no other relief organizations touched in their efforts to aid the need. A silver collection was taken to aid this work during this winter.

Albert Greenlaw, well-known vocal soloist, contributed several songs, and a stringed-trio materially added to the musical part of the program.

Couturiers, who have run out of exotic names for colors, have turned to the Zoo for inspiration. Some of the new colors which soon will be bowling over the women are "Parkeet Green," "Crustacean," "Zebra," "Polar," and "Cat's Tongue."

THIRTEEN SINGERS.

(By Jeanette)

The second of the Twilight Recitals which will form a series this winter at Trinity United Church, took place yesterday afternoon in the hour from 4.15 to 5.15, and again an intent audience sat in soothed and peaceful silence in a darkened church as the music of organ and voices flowed through quiet air. Arranged and conducted by Miss Mabel Clarry, the church's organist and choir leader, the recital took the form of Christmas music, with an atmosphere intensified by the reverent and quiet handling of many old favorite Christmas carols and hymns, and the three Christmas trees that stood straightly below the pulpit and the choir loft, the branches tipped with tiny colored electric light that glowed warmly in the half light. Everygreens banked the choir loft and edged the walls.

The music was lovely, carrying with it the Christmas message of hope and cheer, softened and subdued by a very reverent rendition and by the nearness of the birthdate of the Saviour of the world.

The singers were again thirteen in number, with nine women and four men in a well-balanced miniature choir whose singing showed exceptionally good training and an evident deep interest in their own work. The choral numbers were interspersed with brief organ selections that served as delightful interludes in the vocal program.

Opening with two instrumental numbers; the first movement of "Fantasia Sonata," by Oscar Wagner, and Iljinsky's "Cradle Song," the program progressed to a trio of charming Christmas carols: "O Come, All Ye Faithful," with the grand old melody as an epitome of the Christmas message; "Infant Holy, Infant Lowly" (Polish carol), and "All My Heart This Night Rejoices," in which the second verse was sung as a solo by Mrs. G. A. Richmond.

"Hymn to Jesus" (Eugen Hildach) was a lovely soprano solo in which Miss Doris Donley's sweet, clear voice was heard to great advantage.

Mrs. R. Cowan had a very sweetly-sung solo part also in the second verse of the choral number, "When the Sun Had Sunk to Rest," with the refrain, "Glory to God in on High," sung in Latin.

An organ composition that had a singular bell-like recurrent interval was Liszt's arrangement of an Ave Maria, while another organ number, the "Pastoral Symphony" from "The Messiah," carried a flute-like echo.

In the old, well-known carol, "O Holy Night," with its melodious stanzas, the choral singing was broken by the solo singing of M. H.

With lowered lights, the choir sang another group of Christmas carols: the famous "Silent Night, Holy Night," with its softly numerous cadences and "Hark the Herald Angels Sing." The ensemble concluded with a particularly beautiful rendition of the anthem, "See Amid the Winter's Snow."

Miss Alma Blanchard's rich, sympathetic tones were very attractive in her solo, "The Gift."

The outstanding selection of the program was an arrangement for ladies' voices alone, of "Away in a Manger." The frail, pianissimo music of the pretty carol, colored by sweet sentiment, was lovely in the extreme.

A delightful Christmas bazaar held at the Y.W.C.A. yesterday afternoon and evening, with tea during the early hours proved a decided success. The red and green of Christmas was much in evidence in the streamers and evergreens and colored papers which covered the different tables on which were displayed the fancy and useful articles the Christmas gifts, the candy and home-made cooking which was the work of the various classes and clubs, the residence and gymnasium girls and some of the Board members and friends of the 'Y'. The afternoon tea table was done very attractively with a cloth of Italian lace, a central silver candelabrum on a mirror reflector and silver candlesticks, holding red and green candles. Tea was poured by Mrs. George A. Macdonald, with the following ladies in charge, Miss Mary Mulholland, Miss Mollie Wood, Miss Dorothy Moir, Miss Jane Macdonald, Miss Doris Kelly, Miss Isobel Davidson Miss Dorothy Kelly, Miss Margaret Borbridge and Miss Ilsa Borchers, a guest of Miss Molly Wood. Committees from the various classes who assisted at the different sales were: Intermediate School Girls, Isabel Duffus, Sophia Yeotes, Mary Kingsbury, Eileen Gynane, Leone Comstock; Elementary Gym A. Dymond, M. Murphy, M. Hodson, E. Hopkins; Advanced Gym, E. Bradley, M. Simpson, I Robertson, D. Seabrooke, G. Burns, H. Cole; Intermediate Business Girls, G. Hardill and M. Simmons; Dancing Class, M. McPherson, E. Pammett, M. Cain, B. Ball, B. Boyle; Senior Dancing, O. Elcombe, M. Burns, I. James, B. Willis; Junior Gymnasium, in charge of the Surprise tree packages), Loreen Wellwood, Jane Turner, Evelyn Hill, Margaret Ash, Gladys Bridcott, D. Pearson; Residence, the Misses E. Thomlinson, J. Layfield, E. Stenson; Old Country Club; J. Nicholls, M. Wood, B. Appleby; Wohelo Club, Mary Sullivan, Hazel Schiarezza, Iva Northey, Helen Schiarezza, Stella cake, which was won by Miss Annie Wood. Two dolls donated by the gymnasium girls were won by Mrs. G. C. Carruthers and Miss Gladys Courneya. During the afternoon, Miss Mildred Hetherington played piano music, and winter dances were given by Sophia Yeotes, Kathleen Thackeray and Irma Beatty. In the evening, a very pleasant program included the regular gymnasium classes, with tea later, poured by Miss Marion Harvey, and fortune telling by Mrs. R. Lynch and Miss A. Dunn.

The fowl supper and social evening held last night in the hall of the Canadian Legion for returned men and their wives, was quite successful, although the attendance from the surrounding zone was not as large as anticipated, owing to cold weather conditions. Over two hundred people sat down to an excellent supper, supplied and served by the ladies from Ebenezer Church in Cavan, assisted by members of the local Ladies' Auxiliary to the Legion, under convenorship of the president, Mrs. F. Millard. A number of members of the Red Patch and 21st Battalian Clubs were present on special invitation of the president of the Legion, Mr. E. A. Everitt, who was in charge of general arrangements and acted as chairman for the program which followed supper. Community singing, led by Mr. R. Hendry, with Mr. R. Haddow at the piano, interspersed a program of brief speeches, mainly on the work, aims and objects of the Legion and the Auxiliary, given by Lt. Col. C. H. Ackerman and Mrs. W. R. Morris, while the Rev. Mr. Whitham of Cavan also spoke on his war experiences in France. There were songs by Mr. R. Hendry and Mr. Riddick of Omemee, who was accompanied on the piano by Miss Riddick. Mr. Sherman Preston gave several feminine impersonations, which were well received, as were the other numbers on the program. Judge Ponton of Lindsay, who was also a scheduled speaker of the evening, and was prevented by business from attending, sent his regrets.

BIRTH CONTROL.

WINDSOR.—Is the East Windsor Ratepayers' Association in favor of birth control?

During 1932 William Drew consistently endeavored to get the question before the body but was always ruled out of order. Now he has been elected president, and the question is raised whether his election is endorsation of the proposal he advances.

"The peace of the soul is the key to the world."

* * * * * * *

Read that over again and let the phrase of that writer of insight, Charles Wagner, sink into the mind.

* * * * * * *

More than thirty years ago it was written by the famous European who, in his lecture journeyings through America, spread the good word of the joys of a simple life.

* * * * * * *

During the intervening decades, life has taken on even more complexities. It is with difficulty that anyone can succeed in living a simple life, unless somewhere there is a key to be found.

* * * * * * *

There are keys which unlock various doors of hindrance, even when the perfect doorway key is elusive. The master key is Peace.

* * * * * * *

Peace and happiness are two longed-for companions of life. It has been said that happiness is what all the world is seeking. And this is also true of peace.

* * * * * * *

The peace of the soul is a valiant comrade. Without it personal comfort is almost impossible and the happiness of a home is infringed upon.

* * * * * * *

With it life is viewed with imperturbability. The paths of the world are found to have pleasant lights, and even the shadows are softening rather than forbidding.

* * * * * * *

Life seems hard and discouraging when one is upset and annoyed, when anger embitters, and resentments rankle. The thoughts get tangled in a mesh of distressing and disturbing reflections.

* * * * * * *

One has to find some way out, some escape, or life presses on sore nerves, and existence is hardly to be desired sometimes.

* * * * * * *

How, then, can these perplexing and fearsome feelings and conditions be soothed and smoothed away? Peace can come as a penacea. It may have to be hunted down, and the key be sought for in humbleness.

* * * * * * *

But determination will bring success.

* * * * * * *

One essential to the search is quietness of mind. If this can be accompanied by quiet physical surroundings, the way is made easier Peace is no kin of commotion.

* * * * * * *

It is only when one is calm that things appear in their right proportions. Then one begins to glimpse the other person's point of view, or the absurdity of one's own disturbed angle of observation of existing circumstances.

* * * * * * *

Then the key of peace begins to unlock the door of the world. The wider open the door is flung, the more pleasant is the vision. The world shows a pleasant face to one who has peace in the soul.

Household Hints

By Mrs. Mary Morton

MENU HINT

Macaroni and Cheese
Stewed Tomatoes
Waldorf Salad
Golden Pudding With Sauce
Coffee

The pudding and sauce are the high spots of this menu, which otherwise is very simple, but well balanced. The salad is made by mixing raw apple cut in small pieces with half as much diced celery, and a few nut meats, and serving on lettuce or shredded cabbage with mayonnaise.

To-day's Recipes

Golden Pudding — One-half cup butter, one-half cup sugar, three beaten eggs, three-fourths cup yellow fruit juice, grated rind and juice of one lemon, one cup finely-cup chopped dates, one-half cup chopped nuts, one cup sour milk, one-half teaspoon soda, two and one-half cups flour, one-fourth teaspoon ginger, two teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt. Cream butter and add sugar gradually, then the beaten eggs, the rind an juice of the lemon and the other fruit juice. Sift the dry ingredients and use a little of this to flour the prepared fruits and nuts. Add to mixture. Dissolve soda in the sour milk and add alternately with the dry materials. Pour into a greased ring mold and bake in a rather moderate oven, 325 degrees, for about one hour. Serve hot with an ice cold golden sauce.

Golden Sauce—One-half cup butter, one cup brown sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-fourth cup thin cream, juice one-half lemon. Cream the butter, add the sugar and salt and then add gradually the cream and lemon juice. Chill.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

PROPRIETIES OF CONTRACT BRIDGE

Whist players observe scrupulously the ethics of the game. All forms of bridg belong to the whist family, and players continue to observe the ethics. The laws are intended to settle in advance what players may do or may not do. The laws presume players are honest and willing to observe the niceties of the game. The properties, as set forth in the new laws, call especial attention to what is improper. Some of those points are given below.

A player offends, if he fails to avoid the following:

Undue delay in making a call. Calling with special emphasis, inflection, or intonation. Varying the formulae in calling. Exceptional haste or reluctance in passing or in doubling. An unnecessary request for a review of calls made.

In any way attracting attention to the score, except when necessary for his own information. Giving by word, manner or gesture any information or indication of the nature of any hand held, allowing inferences to be drawn from any act of his, or making misleading remarks or gestures.

Calling attention to the number of tricks played, or to the number of tricks required to defeat or complete the contract.

Indicating approval or disapproval of his partner's call or play. Allowing his partner's acts or remarks to influence a call or play. An unnecessary request to place the cards played to a trick. Playing a card with special emphasis. Preparing to gather a trick before all four hands have played to it. Detaching a card from his hand before it is his turn to lead or play. Volunteering information that should only be given in reply to a question.

Handling or moving the still pack at the end of the hand when not the next dealer. Failing to keep tricks in order, or allowing some of them to be placed at the opposite side of the table.

It is particularly discourteous and meddlesome to push forward a card from the dummy, unless you happen to be the declarer

It is dishonest to employ any convention not known to every player at the table, or to use any term in any manner differing from that usually employed.

By-standers never should stand behind a player. Nor may any onlooker call attention to any irregularity or mistake, or given any information concerning any point of fact or law, except when requested to do so.

Dishonorable acts include watching the manner in which a player arranges his cards, or the place in a hand from which he draws a card, or drawing any inference therefrom.

Trying to annoy or upset a player by needless delays in calling or playing, or remarks intended to disturb any player, place the guilty one outside the circle of ethical and honest players.

It always has been considered legitimate to keep quiet the fact that you have revoked through inadvertence, but on the other hand it is illegal to knowingly revoke a second time to conceal the fact that you have previously revoked.

No player wishes to benefit by a score containing an error in his favor, and it is proper to call attention to any error, either for or against your side. Along the same lines is calling attention to the fact that a player is holding his cards so that some of them may be seen.

LONDON CROWD AWAITING AMY

British Aviatrix Held at Oran, Algeria, for Good Weather Over Mediterranean.

CONFUSING REPORTS.

LONDON, Dec. 16. (C. P. Cable) Capt. J. A. Mollison, British trans-Atlantic flier, to-day awaited word that Amy Johnson, his wife, had taken off from Oran, Algeria, on the last jump of her flight home from Cape Town.

Thousands of Londoners, too, were waiting for the news that will send them flocking to Croydon airport to accord Amy another of those tumultuous welcomes to which she has become accustomed during the past few years of her meteoric flying career.

Yesterday the 23-year-old aviatrix whose aerial exploits have thrilled the world was forced by bad weather to rest at Oran and wait for better conditions before continuing her journey to England. In the morning she got away from Beni Ounif, Morrocco, 240 miles south, but could not proceed out over the Mediterranean in a single long hop to Croydon as she had hoped.

Considerable confusion was aroused by erroneous reports from Paris that Amy had left Oran and for a while she was expected during the night. Investigation, however, disclosed that she had not got away and had decided against a take-off before eight o'clock this morning.

SASKATCHEWAN PREMIER UNAFRAID OF C.C.F. MOVE

WINNIPEG, December 16 (C.P.)—The newly-organized Co-operative Commonwealth Federation will never attain serious political proportions, Premier J. T. M. Anderson of Saskatchewan predicted in an address to the Winnipeg Conservative Club.

"This party advances ideas similar to those popular in Russia," said Dr. Anderson last night. "I have too high a respect for the farmers and others in Saskatchewan to believe this party will ever be in power."

During his address the Saskatchewan Premier said there would be no elections in his Province next summer.

Sentenced To Die

Convicted of murdering a rural policeman, Elliot Harris, when he stopped her husband's auto to search for liquor, Mrs. Beatrice Snipes (above), 28-year-old expectant mother, of Columbia, S.C., is the first white woman to be sentenced to death in that state since the Civil War. If the sentence is carried out, she will also be the first woman in the state to die in the electric chair. Mrs. Snipes claimed at the trial that Harris was beating her husband and that he had drawn his pistol to shoot when she snatched it and fired. She insisted she did not intend to kill him.

Marmora

The regular meeting of St. Andrew's Men's Association was held in St. Andrew's hall on Wednesday evening. The president, H. W. Sabine, occupied the chair. G. B. Airhart gave an excellent talk on Current Events, and a new informal feature, "Do You Know," was introduced. Community singing was then enjoyed, after which refreshments were served. The club has procured a set of indoor quoits and a shuffle board which will provide good diversion before and after the program.

The Sunday school class, which is taught by Mrs. M. Loveless, held an enjoyable party in St. Andrew's hall on Wednesday evening.

Born.—On Thursday, Dec. 15, 1932, to Mr. and Mrs. A. McInroy, a daughter.

Officers of Marmora L.O.L. 319 for 1933 were duly installed at the regular meeting held on Thursday evening.

Skating on the local rink commenced on Friday evening.

TWO BUILDINGS SWEPT BY FIRE

$10,000 DAMAGE.

WYOMING, Ont., Dec. 16 (C.P.)—Fire to-day destroyed two buildings in the business district of this townand caused damage estimated at $10,000.

A store conducted by W. H. Rye was destroyed, along with stock, and the barber shop of R. Robbins and two upstairs apartments were burned.

Robbins lived in one of the apartments, and a Mrs. Ogilvie in the other. Practically all furniture and personal effects in the apartments was lost.

No one was injured, and the Wyoming brigade fought the fire and prevented it from spreading, despite zero temperatures.

The fire was first noticed in the Rye store about 4.20. It threatened to spread to nearby buildings other than the adjoining barber shop. Asphalt shingles on a building 50 feet away melted and the asphalt dripped on firemen as they fought to check spread of the fire.

The fire was under control by eight o'clock, with the two burned buildings reduced to smouldering ruins.

Exact cause of the fire has not yet been determined. Only part of the $10,000 loss on buildings and contents was covered by insurance. Mrs. Ogilvie lost all her furniture and most of her personal effects They were not covered by insurance.

HAVELOCK W.I.

Ladies Decide to Start Each New Born Infant of Members With $1 Bank Account.

HAVELOCK, Dec. 17 (Examiner Correspondence).—Plans for distributing Christmas cheer among the sick and shut-ins were made at the regular meeting of Belmont Women's Institute at the home of Mrs. Will Aunger of Blairton on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 15, when there were sixteen members present.

It was decided to start each new born infant of the members with a bank account of one dollar.

The relief committee reported a layette and a number of other articles sent to a needy mother in the community. Material was bought for another layette, and a number of the articles which had been cut were distributed among the members, who will make them up, and have them ready by next meeting date.

Mrs. A. J. Sexsmith, a member who has been ill for some time, sent in a number of blocks for a quilt which she had hoped to finish herself for the branch, but being unable to continue with the work, forwarded to the Institute members who will complete the work. Articles left from the bazaar were on display and all were disposed of before the close of the afternoon. A box of fruit and other delicacies will be sent to a young woman, an invalid in the community. A box of toys, candies and woollen articles will be sent to a motherless family of small children. A box of candies will be forwarded to a shut-in member of the branch. Christmas cards will be sent to two families who are moving away from the community. The expenses of the delegate to the Toronto convention were ordered paid.

The roll-call was an exchange of Christmas gifts, and every member was remembered. After a period of community singing, when Old Folks at Home was among the numbers, the report of the delegate was read. Mrs. Anderson had a splendid report of her trip, and expressed herself as greatly impressed by the convention, and the work done by other branches.

A bridal contest, arranged by Mrs. Aunger, proved very interesting, and the prizes were won by Misses Iva Smith and Nellie Tinney.

Afterwards all repaired to the dining room where the table had been very daintily laid with covers for eighteen, and a delicious lunch was served. The hostesses for the day were Mrs. Aunger, Misses Nellie Tinney, Lily Anderson, and Mary Anderson.

After a pleasant hour over the teacups, a vote of thanks to Mrs. Aunger was moved and graciously acknowledged, and the members dispersed after a pleasant and very worthwhile afternoon.

Hand work on dresses, especially drawn work in yokes and fagoting, are very much in evidence for resort and spring wear.

PAST SYSTEM PAYING M. O. H. HELD ILLEGAL

Contrary to Statute for Officer to be Paid Salary and Fees.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

George Whitelaw Awarded Contract for City Scales—Gasoline Storage.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 16 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The question of the medical officer of health again came before the Campbellford town council at its statutory meeting held last evening and presided over by Mayor H. N. Carr, when a letter was read by Clerk J. F. McGregor from the Provincial Minister of Health, Hon. John M. Robb, in which he stated that it was contrary to the statute for any M.O.H. to be paid a salary where an agreemetn between the municipality and the officer is entered into.

The matter was deferred from the previous meeting when the council questioned a requisition from the local board of health for $636 for the M.O.H. fees for the year.

Dr. W. F. Loucks, the officer in question, was engaged in 1918 by by-law at a salary of $50 a year, but it is understood that this he considered only as a retaining fee, and has been in the habit of submitting to the board of health each year his expenses for the season. This year the expense seemed high to the council and the matter was going into with the department.

Past System Illegal

Mayor Carr, who interviewed the department yesterday in Toronto, stated that he was told that they considered the sum of $636 far too much to pay the M.O.H. of Campbellford, but that on the other hand $50 was too little. It was stated, however, that for the past seven years he system of fees has been illegal. It was also pointed out that the M.O.H. must be appointed by by-law and his salary also stated in this, but that the council could change this by-law.

After much discussion on the matter, Councillors F. F. Long and E. C. McKeel sponsored a motion requesting that the local board of health call a special meeting to reconsider the requirements of the M.O.H. as submitted to the council, and that the council considered the account should be revised. This motion carried.

Two tenders for the town scales were received. George Whitelaw being awarded the contract at a sum of $270. The other tender was from Jarvis Boyle at $252.

Gasoline Storage

The town solicitor, D. J. Lynch, reported regarding the by-law governing the storage of gasoline in the town, to the effect that there was no such document on record; the only by-law being one governing coal oil, dated 1886. He read the Petroleum Act governing municipalities where there is no by-law, which makes the majority of gasoline storage in Campbellford illegal, and suggested that a by-law be drawn up governing this. On motion, this matter was referred to the incoming council for action.

Any able-bodied men in the town now on relief will have to assist the municipal council with snow clearing without pay. Such was the substance of a motion put to the council by Councillor J. R. Battisby, chairman of the relief committee, and adopted by them.

The motion reads: "That every able-bodied man receiving relief must come out at the request of the road foreman to clear the streets of snow without pay; in default of which relief will be cut off for one week." Councillor Battisby pointed out that there were many vacant properties in town with owners away and yet on which the taxes were paid, that should be kept free of snow, and he thought that these men receiving relief should help out the town by doing this work.

It was also passed on motion that all relief accounts must be filed with the town clerk by 5 p.m. of the 25th of each month, to enable payment at the council meeting on the first Monday in the month.

Nominations for municipal offices will be held on December 26 at Regent Theatre at 7.30 o'clock, election taking place on January 2. Pooling booths, deputy returning officers and poll clerks are as follows: Ward 1, Police Station; W. I. Stillman, C. Holmes. Ward 2, Herald Office; W. Hume, Free Clark. Ward 3, Armouries; Mrs. C. W. Turner, Miss Nellie Hoover. Ward 4; George Whitelaw; Robert Ingram.

PIGEONS, PLANE WILL BE USED TO AID STORK

Only White Woman to be Rushed Out of Gold Camp Wilderness.

DRAMA OF THE NORTH

By BERT STOLL

(Central Press Correspondent)

GOGAMA, Ont., Dec. 16.—Deep in the wild bush country south and west of here in the new Swayze gold area of northern Canada, a prospector's wife—the only white woman in that part of the wilderness—awaits the coming of her second baby.

When she is ready to leave her husband's gold prospecting camp in the wilderness for her home in North Bay, Ont., before the child is born, three carriers pigeons will bring word to Pilot Phil Sauve, of the Eclipse Airways here, and he will fly a plane in to bring her t the railroad.

Mrs. Howard J. Brennan, wife of a veteran prospector of the north country and herself a seasoned woodsman, is the expectant mother. She and her small daughter, Euphemia, five years old, have been at the prospecting camp at the south end of Lake Misomikenda—or Beaver lake—for the past three months.

An Early Blizzard

On a recent week-end, Brennan returned from Gogoma to his prospecting camp, after bringing this writer out by canoe 22 miles to Mile 101½ crossing on the Canadian National railway, 15 miles northwest of here, following an early fall blizzard and high winds which blanketed the wilderness under a foot of snow and held us in camp four days.

The veteran prospector took with him to camp three carrier pigeons belonging to Joe La Flamme, of Gogama, the "Wolf Man of Canada". La Flamme gained this title six years ago when he startled residents of New York by driving a team of wolves hitched to a toboggan down Broadway and on the ice of Madison Square Garden.

Brennan plans to tie messages to the legs of the pigeons when Mrs. Brennan is ready to leave the gold camp. They will be released to return to their home cote at Joe La Flamme's cabin here. When the pigeons arrive with the messages, La Flamme will notify Pilot Sauve and the plane will be dispatched for Beaver lake immediately.

Howard Brennan is one of some 250 vevteran 'stakers" who are combing the Swaze area for gold. From Shining Tree, 25 miles to the east, through to Hotstone and Raney lakes, 65 miles to the northwest, the wilderness rings with the sound of prospectors' picks and exploding dynamite charges.

Planes Kept Busy

Seaplanes of three air transport companies take off daily from the broad waters of Lake Minisinakwa, on the Canadian National railway here, and from Chapleau, Ont., 90 miles west, carrying more prospectors, mining engineers and government geologists and supplies to the gold camps deep in the wilderness.

The gold fever runs high in this northern lumber village. Many go so far as to predict the biginnings of another Klondyke rush in miniature. Considerable staking activity is under way in Bennewels township, eight miles southwest of Gogama, and in Greenlaw township near Hotstone lake.

Four New York men, including two who were members of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's Antarcti expedition, have a gold prospecting camp on the shore of Raney lake, 60 miles west in the wilderness. They are George C. Graves, George A. Thorne, Jr., William B. Millar and Chris Braathen. Both Thorne and Braathen were with Byrd in the Antarctic.

The northern bush country of Ontario is alive with prospectors and the goal is gold.

DISCOVERY TO INCREASE SCOPE OF PHOTOGRAPHY

Curvature of Earth Only Barrier to Distance and Plates Will Overcome All Heavy Mediums.

WILL REVOLUTIONIZE TACTICS OF WARFARE

TORONTO, Dec. 3 (C.P.)—There may come a time in the not distant future when photographers may be taken that will penetrate all haze and fog and will only be limited in distance by the curvature of the earth.

The possibility of this new and surprising field in photography is the subject of considerable enthusiasm in England. A band of English chemists, working at Ilford, Essex, are claimed to have discovered a dye that renders photographic plates sensitive to the invisible infra-red rays of light.

The discovery is immense. It is said it will revolutionize the tactics of naval, land and air warfare; open up immeasurable possibilities in astronomical knowledge, and render all shipping immune from danger of collision and disaster in fog.

The difficulty of overcoming ground haze in photographs from the air is said to have been overcome and last month the London Times, which has watched the development of the discovery with much interest, reproduced a photograph of a considerable area of Kent, the English channel and stretches of the French coast to a depth of many miles in all directions and showing much detail.

Speaking of the possibilities of the discovery, it proves adaptable to commercial use, The Mail and Empire comments editorially, "Even a smoke screen will be useless for an infra-red picture will penetrate it and reveal the movements beyond, whether on land or at sea. Protection against fog at sea will be one of the valuable developments. In the fields of science the possibilities are staggering. 'With this new photography aplied to astronmoy,' said a scientist, 'we shall be able to search the universe vastly further than at present and with much greater accuracy. It is within bounds that as this photography reaches a higher efficiency we shall be able to tell if there is any form of life on the planets. We cannot tell where it will end.'"

Continuing on the subject the Mail and Empire says: "Research is now being carried on at Ilford to sensitize a plate to the ultra-violet rays. If this attempt is successful, it may soon be possible to take, from the outside of a house, a picture of the whole inside and to see what is going on in there. In such an event we are afraid that an Englishman's home will no longer be his castle."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

BOWSER PRESENTS A SORRY APPEARANCE

"I'll never run away again. I never, never will.
Of hunting for a long, long time
I've more than had my fill."

Bowser the Hound whimpered this over and over as he made his way through the Green Forest. At first he ran as fast as his legs could take him, but when he was sure that Yowler the Bob-cat was no longer chasing him he stopped to lick his wounds. When he had done this he started on again, but he no longer ran. The truth is he felt too stiff and sore to run. He smarted and ached all over. He limped. Yowler had caught one of his feet in those sharp teeth of his and it hurt to put that foot on the ground.

And if Bowser was sore in body he felt still worse in mind. If he had won that fight with Yowler the Bob-cat he wouldn't have minded those hurts half so much. In fact he would have been rather proud of his wounds. But he hadn't won that fight. He had been whipped soundly, whipped by Yowler. He had turned tail and run away. More than that he had been only too glad to get away. He had met more than his match and he knew it.

"And to think it was a cat that did it," he kept saying over and over to himself. "I've been whipped by a cat and been forced to run away. How can I ever look any one in the face again? If Black Pussy should ever hear of this I never would hear the end of it. You know Black Pussy is Farmer Brown's cat, and while she and Bowser are not exactly friends they live together in peace.

So Bowser whimpered and whined as he limped through the Green Forest towards home. He got there just about milking time and no one was in sight, much to his relief. A perfect picture of shame Bowser sneaked across the dooryard and crept into his little house. No one had seen him and he hoped that no one would until he felt better.

But Bowser's hopes were all in vain. By and by Farmer Brown's Boy came from the barn with the milk and took it into the house. Then he came to the door and whistled for Bowser. Bowser didn't come. Then Farmer Brown's Boy called. Bowser kept perfectly still.

"Now where is that rascal gone?" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. "I believe he has stolen away to go hunting, and he knows that that is against the rules."

Farmer Brown's boy walked over to Bowser's little house and looked inside. Bowser thumped his tail feebly as if to apologize for not answering his master's call.

"Come out of there, sir!" commanded Farmer Brown's Boy sternly.

Bowser crept out. He didn't dare not to, for he had been caught to mind. In his eyes was such a look of shame and pleading as you will see only in the eyes of a dog who knows he has done wrong. Farmer Brown's Boy gave a long low whistle of surprise as he looked at Bowser.

"Well, sir," said he, "I guess you have been punished enough for running away to hunt by yourself. Gracious, what a sight you are!"

Certainly Bowser did present a sorry appearance. His long ears were torn. His face was scratched dreadfully. All over his body were the marks of sharp claws. In several places were ugly looking wounds where the skin had been torn. Farmer Brown's Boy shook his head.

"Bowser," said he reprovingly, "you look as if you had been fighting a threshing machine. You certainly do. Now come over to the house so that I can fix you up a little."

"SAGITTARIUS"

If December 16th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6 a.m. to 7.30 a.m., from 12 noon to 1.15 p.m. and from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. The danger hours are from 10.30 a.m. to 11 a.m. and from 4.30 p.m. to 5.25 p.m.

You may look for some pleasant occurrence to take place on this December 16th. Personal relationships will generally be harmonious and with a minimum of friction. Love will be in the air, and people will respond vigorously to all expressions of affection. Much hilarity will be apparent in all social gatherings.

The child born on this December 16th will be a pensive little one, given on occasions to brooding. He will be of a very studious nature, quick of mind and morbidly imaginative. He should not be too much alone. A lover of animals. Will derive great benefit from an outdoor existence and from extensive travel.

Born on December 16th, you are a person inclined to excesses; excesses of most any kind, eating and drinking, in your pleasures and your play, and even in your work. You do not take enough thought for yourself, and you are inclined to disregard and neglect your health and personal comfort. You are highly emotional but at the same time have great depth of feeling. You have a keen sense of humor, a rather sharp wit and a rare ability to phrase your thoughts and blend them into effective speech. You should be able to write. Advertising would no doubt have an appeal to you and you should go far in some field where you could put to work your originality. Routine work is distasteful to you.

If December 16th is your birthday, you are apt to be quick-tempered. You do not on any occasion hesitate to speak your thoughts and speak them plainly. If you are a woman, you are inclined to scold and nag. You are an over-conscientious mother, inclined to fret and worry over your youngsters when there is no occasion for it. You devote a great deal of your time to your home and love to keep it spotlessly clean. Possibly, you would not have a great measure of success in the business world, but you do have talents that would make of you a capable teacher.

M.O.H. FOR SMITH SUBMITS REPORT

More Deaths During the Year From Communicable Diseases Report Reveals.

TWENTY-SEVEN BIRTHS.

A meeting of the local Board of Health for Smith Township was held in Dr. J. A. Morgan's office on Wednesday. Those present were M.O.H., Dr. J. A. Morgan; Reeve, Allan B. Mann; Deputy-reeve, Herbert McConkey; secretary, Percy T. Udy.

Dr. Morgan gave his annual report to the Board covering the period of October 31st, 1931, to October 31st, 1932. This report showed that there had occurred during the period twenty-six live births, one still birth and thirty-one deaths. There were three deaths under one year of age, the remainder being mostly of aged people. There were three deaths from cancer, but none from maternal causes.

Of communicable diseases, there were three deaths from influenza, four from pneumonia and two from tuberculosis.

Twenty-five children were inoculated with toxoid.

Twelve schools were inspected and instructions given where necessary to remedy the defects noted.

Sixteen samples of drinking water were collected and analyzed, fourteen being found unfavorable.

Moved by A. B. Mann and seconded by H. McConkey that the local Board of Health hereby expresses its gratitude for the good average health conditions which have prevailed during the year, and that the report of the M.O.H. be received and adopted.

The Board adjourned to meet on the call of the chair.

Young's Point

The December meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the Young's Point United Church, was held on Friday afternoon, December 9, at the home of Mrs. J. Reid. Following the usual form of opening the business activities of the month were planned. It was decided to hold a Christmas concert in the school house, at Young's Point on Friday evening, December 23.

A relief committee was also formed to visit and distribute Christmas cheer throughout the village. The officers for the coming year were elected as follows:

President: Mrs. Oscar Reid.
Vice-President: Mrs. Max Kidd.
Secretary: Mrs. Percy Northey.
Treasurer: Miss Mattice Lane.

The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Oscar Reid.

After the adjournment of the meeting, refreshments were served.

Miss Edith McIlmoyle of Selwyn spent the past week-end in the village, the guest of Miss Daisy Wilson.

INCREASED ATTENDANCES FOR FEW UNITED STATES COLLEGES

Football Crowds Drop 15 Per Cent, but Notre Dame, Pitt and Others Do Well.

CHAMPS HOLD FANS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (A.P.)—Despite a general decline of approximately 15 per cent. for the 1932 season, college football attendance in the United States recorded an exceptional and unexpected number of gains, due to the attractions supplied by teams combining the winning habit with colorful performances.

A survey by the Associated Press among representative colleges rebeals substantial gains in attendance by 14 out of a total of 40. These ranged from a fractional increase to a high mark of 300 per cent., reported by George Washington University (Washington, D.C.), in playing this season before 92,500 fans in seven home games.

Pitt Shows Increase

The undefeated or championship teams enjoyed good business, although the reduction of ticket prices scaled down the year's profits. Purdue showed an increase of 40 per cent. in attendance. Pittsburg's Panthers, with the Rose Bowl game to go, drew 25 per cent. more cash customers than last year. Michigan and Colgate, two other unbeaten arrays, reported only the slightest of decreases.

Notre Dame, although meeting two unexpectedly decisive defeats, continued to "pack 'em in." The Ramblers played to virtually capacity crowds in their last three engagements against Navy, Army and Southern California, in Cleveland, New York and Los Angeles. These three contests alone drew approximately 250,000 customers, and Notre Dame's total attendance for the year of 440,000, a 12 per cent. increase over 1931, topped the list for the entire country, with the single exception of Southern California.

The most encouraging reports were concentrated in the Middle West and East. Three of the Big Six teams, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Missouri, reported increased attendance. In the East, Brown and Columbia had banner seasons in every respect, each enjoying about 56 per cent. increase in attendance.

Cliftonville Wins Irish Soccer Title

BELFAST, Ireland, Dec. 16 (C.P. Cable).—Cliftonville to-day defeated Linfield 2-1 at Celtic Park to win the Irish Gold Cup, emblematic of soccer supremacy in Ireland. The winners had the better of the play throughout and earned their victory. The play was of only mediocre quality but the game might have been won or lost right up until the last minute.

After seven minutes of play Jones put Linfield ahead and they retained their lead until 32 minutes after the opening when Mitchell equalized. Ten minutes before the end McCay scored the winning tally for Cliftonville.

Stubecke-Crossley Retain Grind Lead

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 16. (AP) — Bernard Steubecke, Germany and Al Crossley, New Bedford, Mass., through an hour and three quarters of jamming which ended early to-day, retained their lead in the six day bicycle race here. At 1 a.m. the beginning of the fifty-second hour of the race they had covered 843.9 miles and also held a wide lead in points.

Two Canadian-Americans combinations figured in the triple tie for second place. Torchy Peden, Victoria, B.C., and his partner, Gus Rys, staged a spectacular spurt to pull up within one lap of the front-wheeling duo and tie with Reggie Fielding, Toronto and his partner and the Schaller-Zach pair.

Street Car Strikes Dog Catcher's Wagon

ROYAL OAK, Mich., Dec. 16. — (AP)—If animals think about such things, ten dogs and three cats probably had given themselves up for lost as they were trundled toward the pound in the dog catchers wagon. But the wagon struck a bush and as the dog catcher was attempting to round up his scattered prey, a streetcar struck his wagon. So the dog catcher gave up and went home. So did the cats and dogs.

GETTING TEETH EXTRACTED

A patient suffering with severe pain in the hip joint decided that his teeth might be at fault as his tonsils had been removed some years previously. The dentist took an X ray picture of all the upper and lower teeth and in a few minutes was able to show the patient three teeth that were infected.

"All right," said the patient, 'take them out."

"When do you want me to extract them?" asked the dentist.

"Right now," answered the patient.

"Well, you are brave," smiled the dentist, "most patients want to think it over and frequently postpone the engagement a few times."

"As a matter of fact," answered the patient, "I'm really a coward because I don't want to have it hanging over me even for a few hours.

The teeth were extracted accordingly, and the pain disappeared in a few days.

I often think dentists have a real task in handling the majority of their patients when teeth must be removed. Dr. Edward Reiter, Cleveland, Ohio, states that the first problem to be solved is the task of getting the patient's emotions under control; that is the fear and dread wth which a patient contemplates the removal of a tooth. From every patient's standpoint, the removal of a tooth is a serious and alarming contemplation and the very thought of the operation has a most prostrating effect upon the patient.

As a matter of fact the well trained dentist of today is able to remove teeth without any pain whatever, cleans up the wound and only occasionally is it necessary for a patient to return for after treatment.

Of course theer are some teeth so difficult to remove, that the tisues are slightly injured and a little pain may follow after their removal, but the ordinary quieting tablets suggested by the dentist will usually prevent any suffering until the pain disappears.

Further, it is only natural that you should dislike losing one or more teeth and as you think of this loss together with the pain you expect to undergo during their removal, you may decide that you'd sooner take chances on rheumatism (arthritis), neutritis, and even heart disease.

Your physician will advise that while nothing will be quite as good as your own teeth, nevertheless you are risking not only health, but life itself, by refusing to have infected teeth removed.

OTONABEE PAYS $50,000 TAXES

LOWER THAN IN 1931.

Otonabee ratepayers paid $50,000 taxes yesterday, leaving $16,000 still to be collected, a response to civic duty that was highly satisfactory to Reeve Fred McIntyre and the members of the township council.

"Our taxes last year amounted to $77,000," Mr. McIntyre told The Examiner to-day. "At the nominations last December I said that if I were elected reeve I would do my best to reduce the levy this year. Some of the ratepayers openly said that we couldn't do it. But, we managed to bring the total down to $66,000, and I feel certain that another reduction can be made in 1933. I certainly felt proud of Otonabee yesterday the way the tax money came in. I don't know where it all came from, but was a sign that the municipality is strong and sound in spite of the difficulties the people have had to face this year. One ratepayer told me that he was holding his taxes out for a while, but he was willing to pay the five per cent charge of being overdue. I told him not to do that until it was necessary. I know he is in a good position to meet his payment when he decided to do so, and I have no doubt that in short time there won't be much outstanding on this year's total."

Otonabee's nominations at Keene will be held on Monday, December 26, when practically all the municipalities in the county will hold their nominations.

BE BEAUTIFUL

BY GLADYS GLAD

ONE OF MY readers recently wrote and complained that there always seemed to be a fly in her particular ointment. "I intended to put on the dog next month," she wrote, "because I'm going to a very snooty affair, I bought a rather daring evening gown for the occasion. It's really very smart and French looking—but when I tried it on today, I was extremely disappointed. For my arm-pits are very dark, rough and discolored, and if I raise my arms the least bit, the dark skin becomes most unattractively apparent. Is there anything that I can do about this so that . . . ?"

But why go further? Anyone can see that it's her appearance the gal's worrying about. And she has a right to, for discolored arm-pits do look most unattractive when formal gowns are worn. This is a problem with which a good many women are faced. Yet the majority of them do surprisingly little about it.

A bleach is, of course, the logical thing to lighten the discolored underarm skin. Yet the use of a bleach on the under-arm areas requires caution and prudence. For the armpits are situated in such a position that they are almost continually protected from exposure. As a result, the skin of the arm-pits receives no opportunity to toughen, and consequently remains tender and sensitive. If a strong bleach were applied to such tender skin, the probability is that the skin would become irritated and inflamed.

The arm-pits, should of course, be cleansed frequently with a bland soap and tepid water, so that they remain clean and smooth. But in addition, a mild bleach may be used to help lighten the skin. I've found that the best bleaches for this purpose are plain, diluted peroxide, and a half and half mixture of peroxide and rosewater.

Before retiring each night, the arm-pits should be thoroughly cleansed. Then they should be dried, and either of the above bleaches should be applied with a bit of absorbent cotton. The chosen bleach should be permitted to dry on the skin, and then a bit of cold cream or nourishing cream should be applied, to counteract any drying or irritating effects of the bleach.

What have you learned today in the New University?

Talk with almost any woman and you will find her amazingly informed on vitamins, balanced diets, refrigeration, household sanitation, labor saving, family hygiene, table and home decoration. Watch her during her day and you will find her employing this new knowledge for the improvement of living.

Talk with almost any man and you'll find him technically informed about motor-cars and adding machines, aeroplanes and radios, telephones and oil burners—materials, designs, uses, processes in a dozen fields.

What has happened? It seems that people know more than they used to and that they use their new-found knowledge to their comfort and happiness. Perhaps this is the explanation: There is to-day a New University — the University of Advertising. Its doors never close, it is open to all and the fees of admission are the daily price of a newspaper. The subjects taught are ways to make life better and more enjoyable. Eminent authorities in the various fields work with skilled writers and illustrators to prepare the daily "lessons" — the advertisements. They are admirably printed and illustrated. They are studied and applied, as needed, by the youngsters and grown-ups of all ages.

What have you learned to-day in the New University? Study the advertisements. Useful knowledge is waiting there for you.

Toronto Leafs Regain Second Position

IRVIN OUTFIT BEATS OTTAWA FOR 4-1 COUNT

Jackson and Conacher Share Scoring Honors in Leafs' Attack.

RANGERS WIN 3-2.

Goal By Obs Heximer Gives Bruins 1-0 Victory Over Chicago Hawks.

TORONTO, Dec. 16. (CP)—Now that Boston Bruins have punched a hole in the stronghold of the Black Hawks at Chicago, thereby proving these hometown defences can be broken down even at the expense of tradition, sharpshooters of the National League are oiling their hockey armaments to-day for further bombarding of the Toronto and New York Ranger forts.

Bruins accomplished the downfall of the Hawks at Chicago last night 1-0, upsetting the perfect home record of the mid-west outfit and removing the Hawks from second place in the United States division standing. Mr. Art Ross' big boys are up there themselves to-day.

There was nothing doing at Toronto and New York, however. The smallest crowd in two seasons at Toronto watched Leafs return to dazzling form to outpoint Ottawa Senators 4-1 and jump back into second place ahead of tht Capitals. Rangers won a thrilling 3-2 decision over the Americans.

"Kid" Line Shines Again

With a gathering of but 3,000 to witness the feat, Conny Smythe's "Kids" Charlie Conacher, Harvey Jackson and Joe Primeau, burst back into the scoring picture to account for half the leaf total. If Connie had a thought to take apart his famous scoring line perhaps he changed his mind as the former Marlboro juniors teamed up for their best display this Fall.

Conacher had altogether too much speed and power for the Senators. The young brother of Montreal's "Big Train" passed to Jackson for a goal in the second period and in the third sank a shot after picking up the Busher's assist. Ken Doraty and King Clancy each scored and Andy Blair picked up assists on both.

Quite a few harrassed hockey managers would like to have a team that "wobbled" the way the Leafs did last night. The supposedly fumbling champs are up in second place, one point back of Maroons and have played a game less than the group leaders. Messrs. Newsy Lalonde, Joe Simpson and Jack Adams retained other ideas of "wobbling."

Amerks Succumb

Americans gave Lester Patrick's blueshirts a sensational battle before they succumbed to Art Somers' sniping. The ferocious little fellow from Winnipeg scored the deciding goal midway through the third period on a solo rush after Rabbit McVeigh had delighted the customers by deadlocking the count a few minutes before on Bill Philipps' pass.

Somers accounted for a second goal with the help of Bill Cook and Ching Johnson, the brothers Cook sharing honors on the first. Bun scored on Bill's pass. Johnny Sheppard got the other American goal on a pass from Normie Himes.

Obs Heximer, former Niagara Falls junior sensation, broke up a scoreless battle at Chicago by poking the rebound of Art Chapman's shot past the sprawled figure of Chuck Gardiner early in the third period.

It was the second straight triumph for the Bruins who humbled Toronto 5-1 Tuesday night.

That prayer, not only public, but private, also, was common among the Greeks we learn from Plato when he says that children hear their mothers every day eagerly talking with the gods in the most earnest manner, beseeching them for blessings.

CANINES ARE ONE UP ON OLYMPICS

Detroit Humbled on Home Ice By Windsor for 3-1 Defeat.

TORONTO, Dec. 16 (C.P.)—Windsor Bulldogs were one up on their Detroit rivals to-day following their trip across the river last night, where they picked up two points by handing the Olympics a 3-1 defeat in an International Hockey League game.

Playing their second game on successive nights under the guidance of Playing Manager Jack Arbour, the victory marked the second the Bulldogs have scored over Detroit in their three clashes this season. Their two-game winning streak, which started when they downed Cleveland Indians Wednesday night, has advanced the Bulldogs from fifth into third place, a single point ahead of Buffalo.

Mickey Drouillard and Eddie Ouellette combined often enough to get a winning margin. Ouellette beat Johnny Clarke in the first period after a pass from Drouillard while in the third period these same two players combined again with Drouillard doing the scoring. The other goals were scored when O'Neill streaked his way down the ice in the second period to get Detroit's lone counter, while Cormier and Earl Roche followed a scramble in front of Olympic net, with Cormier netting.

Manager George Hay of Detroit who also leads his team on the ice persevered in his efforts to chalk up a win, but he failed to receive the required assistance from his teammates. Goalie Smith also thwarted some of his best attempts.

The intense feeling which usually features the clashes of these two teams was not in evidence during the game.

TORONTO CURLERS AMONG QUALIFIERS

Dr. Doherty's Rink Qualifies in Thauburn Together With Skip Snow's Four.

TORONTO, December 16.—Completing the qualifying stages of the competition, the final group of 16 rinks took part in the Thomas Thauburn Memorial Trophy event at the High Park Curling Club yesterday, and rinks representing the Toronto Curling Club and Agincourt emerged unbeaten at the end of the day's play to join the six who qualified previously for the final rounds to-day.

Charles Snow skipped the winning Toronto Club four, while the Agincourt entry was skipped by Dr. A Doherty. Disposing of E. F. Seagram's Waterloo rink in the opening draw, the Snow rink encountered spirited opposition in the second round from D. H. Storms' Toronto Granites, finally triumphing by one shot in one of the lowest scoring games of the day. In the third round, Joseph Crozier's Wexford rink was eliminated by the Snow quartette by 15 to 7.

Dr. Doherty's rink conquered the Churchill rink, skipped by Fred Allen, in the first round and scored a one-shot victory over W. O. Tudhope's Orillia rink in the second round. In the third round, a High Park four, skipped by J. A. Reid, was handed a 12 to 5 beating by the Agincourtiers.

Charlie Belanger On Chicago Fight Card

CHICAGO, Dec. 16 (A.P.)—Boxing comes back to the Coliseum tonight for the first time in more than a year, presenting a charity card of four ten-rounders.

Eddie Shea, Chicago Italian featherweight, will meet Harry Blitman, Philadelphia veteran, and Billy Jones, Philadelphia negro light heavyweight, will tackle Charley Belanger, Canadian light heavyweight of Winnipeg. Paul Dazzo, another Chicago featherweight, will meet young Geno of La Salle, Ill., and Young Terry of Trenton, N.J., boxes Jack Moran, tough Chicago middleweight.

Where Weight Counts

If you were a working man dependent upon a not too liberal supply of daily work to support your family, what would you think if your weight went down from 160 to 95 pounds?

Herbert was alarmed when this happened to him, but he did not want to take "time off" nor to spend money on himself. However, coughing and weakness had their effect and one day he had to be hurried to the Toronto Hospital for Consumptives. The experienced doctors at the hospital shook their heads when Herbert's weight was known —so little to build on!

However, patience, good nursing and complete rest have had the desired effect. His weight has increased twenty-two pounds, and he feels sure that he will be able to return to support his family at no distant date.

Financial assistance is urgently needed to continue the good work for many such as Herbert. Will you please lend your assistance by sending a generous contribution to G. A. Reid, 223 College St., Toronto 2.

Bowling Notes

Westclox five pin tumblers continued to bruise the maple this week in their regular league hook-up, with scores being not quite up to the average, although the battlers seemed keen enough but seemingly couldn't capitalize on every ball.

Bud Goodson continued his parade of wins taking six out of eight points from Jake Beckerman, who seems to be toiling in a bad slump which has dogged his team practically since the start of the league. Goodson set the pace for the team with totals of 177, 290 and 201.

Simmons and his players found the Cupoli Clan a tough morsel and finished upon the small end of a 6-2 argument, as Sam Vint, Cupoli and Spilsbury uncorked some stellar bowling for the winners. The latter player had two nice scores of 232 and 234 while Tommy Cupoli knocked off 229.

Eames walked away from the team captained by Wyatt in a fast three-game duel. Delahaye led the winners with a solo count of 207 and the team totals were as follows: Eames: 809, 842, 781; Wyatt, 762, 734, 694.

TERRY WANTS DAZZY VANCE OF BROOKLYN

New Yorkers Would Trade Shanty Hogan to Braves for Cash and Payer.

JUDGE WANTS BONUS.

(By Edward J. Neil, A.P. Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (A.P.)—The wildest trading season in all baseball history has come down to its climax with the close of the annual major league meetings, but the end of a mighty effort to stir interest in 1933 with new faces in new places is by no means at hand.

Loath to go home after three days of wholesale barter, a half dozen magnates of the National and American leagues still haunted the lobbies of the hotels where the tread of aching feet had mingled with the bid, call and asked prices on choice and mediocre talent.

Three-Cornered Bid

Bill Terry, young manager of the New York Giants and ringleader in the National League shakeup, still was not content with disposing of almost half his athletes and went to work anew on the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Boston Braves in a three-cornered swap..

This shift involved Catcher Hogan, who would go back to his first major league love, the Braves, for cash and perhaps a player who could be added to Terry's bid to Brooklyn for Dazzy Vance, once the right-handed pitching marvel of the league.

Involved in this same transaction was Terry's offer of substitute First Baseman Sam Leslie for Johnny Frederick, Brooklyn outfielder, once refused but still alive if the Giants will throw in more collateral. Pending definite decision on this, Brooklyn has virtually closed with Joe Judge for his first base services next season.

Judge Wants Bonus

Judge has the permission of the Washington Senators to make a deal for himself with the Dodgers only. The only hitch left in this deal is Judge's reported demand of a bonus for signing.

Meanwhile George Gibson, already one of the prime David Harums of the meeting because of his shrewd deal that brought Freddy Lindstrom, crack Giants' outfielder, to the Pirates, stuck to his hotel waiting an answer to his bids for a right-handed pitcher, aimed at several clubs. Charley Grimm still is dickering for a southpaw pitcher for the Cubs.

May Swap Catchers

Judge Emil Fuchs and Bill McKechnie of the Braves, waited to hear about the purchase of Hogan, and Joe Cronin, American League counterpart of Bill Terry in free-handed dealing, expected an answer from Cleveland on a proposition to swap catchers, Roy Spence for Luke Sewell.

Completion of the final deal last night, in which the irrepressible Cronin, backed by the master-minding of the "Old Fox," Clark Griffith, nabbed Jack Russell, right hand pitcher, and Bruce Connatser, substitute first baseman, from Cleveland in exchange for the slugging rookie first sacker, Harley Boss, from Cattanooga, left only the world champion Yankees, of all the 16 major league clubs, without a single deal completed since the close of the 1932 season.

CLANCY HIT BY ROSS SAY BOSTON SCRIBES

Referee Also Struck by Bruins' Manager, According to Writers.

TORONTO, December 16. — The Art Ross-"King" Clancy fistic battle at Boston, in which apparently only three blows were aimed, struck, or delivered, will be thoroughly investigated, according to a statement issued by President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League at Montreal yesterday. Mr. Calder also stated that he hadn't received any complaint from the Toronto club, but expected to do so shortly.

Clancy's version of the affair is that Ross hit him first, and that he replied in kind, the Boston manager retreating from the "rail" with remarkable celerity and despatch. Clancy also denies that Ross can punch like a Dempsey. He says that any allegation made that he was injured so badly that it affected his play during the rest of the game is erroneous. The "King" can "take it."

Arthur Siegel of the Boston Herald and E. Linde Fowler of the Boston Evening Transcript agree that Ross struck the first blow. Siegel says that Clancy missed with the return receipt, and then Ross lashed out with right and left and hit Referee Cooper Smeaton. The latter is getting used to this treatment, as it will be remembered that he was clouted, lightly or otherwise, last year by Eddie Shore of the Bruins.

Ross, apparently, has been laboring under a great strain this year following the disastrous season of 1931-32. He wants those Bruins to regain lost prestige and he is driving them at a terrific rate, but Clancy thinks that Ross should leave the fighting to his players and not labor under the impression that games can be won by landing on the Clancy chin. In this connection the local star says it is much better to give than to receive. In fact, he will not tolerate such rowdyism.

From another source it was learned that Harold Cotton, in a spirit of fun, offered to take on "Battling" Ross ,but not before several policemen had arrived on the scene of alleged hostilities. Cotton's challenge, however, went unheeded, and he therefore won a title or something by default.

COULD WIN AT EASE.

Race track lore is full of stores about horses with "great hearts". Horsemen repeatedly refer to this race or that in which some heroic animal drew up alongside an opponent, "looked him in the eye" and went on to win, the other horse have been conquered by the well-known fishy eye.

They say that Phar Lap, the mighty Australian runner, had one of those great hearts. There are dozens of yarns about Exterminator's exhibitions of courage. Man o' War is another whose name often is linked with such legends.

The other day in a discussion of this sort with a group of horse-men in winter quarters at Havre de Grace, the question was raised about Ammon Ra, the Australian gelding who will be campaigned on American race tracks after the first of the year.

Ammon Ra is expected to pick up where Phar Lap left off, and to fulfill the promise of a brilliant record for the boys to shoot at.

Congress Watched Him

"He may not want to run in California," said one of those present. "I know horse who won't run anywhere else. Some horses like to go where it's cold. Some like it hot. Some quit when it's cloudy."

To that, Max Riddle, one of the younger horse sharks, responded with a deprecatory pooh-pooh.

"Did you ever hear of Parole?" he asked Then, just to set everybody right, he continued:

"Parole ran back somewhere in the late 70's. Congress adjourned once to watch him beat Ten Broeck and Tom Ochiltree. After 5 years of running, he was considered through and his owner, Pierre Lorllard, decided to take him to England as a trial horse for the Duke of Majenta, which was tipped off as a champion at the time.

Pinch Hitter

"But the Duke got sick and couldn't start. Parole, with a racing lifetime behind him, you might say, was asked to take over the job of his young friend.

"Parole had no experience on the English tracks, which are so different from ours. They just threw him in there against one of the greatest horses England ever knew. I mean Isonomy. Parole carried 116 pounds. They gave Isonomy 124 and he was a pipe to win. They quoted 7 to 1 against Parole.

"He looked Isonomy in the eye and went on past to win easily. A week later he beat 16 horses, spotting some of the dogs 24 pounds, and over a mile and a quarter. The very next day he won again, under 124, giving chunks of freight to all other dudes.

They beat him in a cup race, making him concede 25 pounds. But he came back the very next day and toted 134 pounds—and won the Cheshire handicap.

"He had raced in the late fall in America, and, with an ocean trip under his belt, had been asked for five hard races in three weeks—and had the right answer four out of five.

Carried Plenty

"The next year the British had to send to the Navy for anchors for that Parole. They loaded as much as 146 pounds on him and he liked it. Finally he got to carrying battleships on his back so they sent him back to America to save the large buildings in London. Now wait....

"He got back in September. And three days after the canoe docked, old Parole raced in New York—and won, going away.

"Climate, mud weight, turf tracks, sea voyages, didn't mean thing. He had a heart, a great ticker, that's what Parole had.

VANCOUVER CELT BELIEVED ON SPOT

Gotham Critics Fear McLarnin Lacks Power and Punch of Old.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (C.P.) — James McLarnin, until recently Canada's greatest contribution to the fistic pastime of sock and counter-sock, steps into the Madison Square Garden battle pit tonight against Boston's punching pride, rugged little Sammy Fuller.

The smiling Celt from Vancouver is on the spot. Gotham critics fear he is slipping, and Jimmy is out to prove the opposite. He faces a formidable foe, one who has beaten the best in his class during recent months.

Then, too, the uncrowned king of the welterweights must win quickly and decisively to retain the honor of being the Dominion's best at any class for another Canadian, Frankie Battaglia, Winnipeg's sensational middleweight, has been stealing much of the limelight in the Garden lately. Like McLarnin, Battaglia has the color, the punch and the personality that packs in the crowd.

Ranks Favorite

It is a tough spot for the Vancouver boy, but Broadway's speculating fraternity retains all the old-time confidence in him, and he ranks favorite over Fuller at odds of 2 to 1 to-day. The match, a 10-round affair, was made at 147 pounds and McLarnin will scale close to that. Fuller, a sensation among the lightweights earlier this year, probably will not tip the beam at more than 139.

Billy Townsend, Vancouver welterweight, will appear in the semi-final of eight rounds against an opponent not yet selected. Townsend originally was to have met the Dutch "windmill," Bep Van Klaveren, but the latter turned up with an injured thigh and was forced to withdraw.

WESTERN CANADA HAS GIVEN SIX MANAGERS TO THE N.H.L.

Patrick, Irvin, Simpson, Lalonde, Adams and Tobin Are All Former Products of Western Canada Leagues.

By WILLLIS ENTWISTLE
Central Press Canadian Staff Writer.

No fewer than six club in the National Hockey League are guided by men with western connections, men who have played the game west of Winnipeg—as far west as Vancouver Island.

Everybody knows Lester Patrick, manager of New York Rangers. His home is in Victoria, B.C., and for years, when coast hockey was in its heyday, he operated the Victoria team. Lester also played with Victoria.

Another well-known westerner, Dick Irvin, is coach of the world champion Toronto Maple Leafs. For years Irvin was a star on the left wing for Regina and for Portland, when that town took over the Regina team almost en bloc.

Canadiens are managed by Newsy Lalonde, and the west will have a tough time claiming this fellow. But the fact remains that in the closing years of the Western Canada loop Lalonde managed and played with the Saskatoon Shieks, and it was he who gave Saskatoon the best team it ever had, when the Cook brothers were on the wings and George Hainsworth was in goal. Leo Bourgeault, the husky little defence star who is now with Ottawa, also played at Saskatoon.

Star At Winnipeg

New York Americans enjoy "Bullet" Joe Simpson as manager. Joe was an amateur star at Winnipeg and a pro star with Edmonton Eskimos in the old Western Canada League. Joe used to burn up the ice in those old days, and statistics show he is not doing so badly in his first season as manager.

Coming to Detroit, we find our old friend Jack Adams manager. All the west remembers Jack in the days when he played centre ice for the Vancouver Millionaires. His brother Bill also played at that time, and we have fond recollections of that memorable Stanley Cup series with Ottawa Senators, especially the game when Frank Patrick had to get Mickey Mackay from the bedside of his sick daughter to finish out a crucial game. Jack afterwards moved to Toronto and played with St. Pats.

MAKE STRONG TEAM

Eight of the team managers of the National Hockey League, all combine into a team that might make the best of them step lively for a brief period. The managerial array is made up of four ex-brilliant defence men in Gerard, Simpson, Patrick and Ross, while a quartet of forwards Irvin, Adams, Lalonde, and Dennenay packed tremendous scoring power in their active days.

The last of the western connections is Bill Tobin at Chicago. Tobin did a lot of goalkeeping in the Western Canada League, and, if we are not mistaken, he had one season with the Seattle club. But Tobin never reached the heights of any of the others, although he appears to be holding his own in the affection of Owner McLaughlin of the Chicago Black Hawks.

The coast is also very fond of two of the other managers, Eddie Gerard of Montreal Maroons and Cy Dennennay of Ottawa Senators. Both men played more than one world series on the coast and Gerard once helped Toronto win a world series against Vancouver when one of St. Pats' defence men was on the shelf injured. Gerard also broke his collarbone in a world series in Vancouver when he collided with Corbet Dennenay of Ottawa Senators. Bothton, the remaining manager, took his team out to the coast on exhibition a couple of years ago and is a great personal friend of Frank Patrick, one of the pioneers in professional hockey on the coast.

Phillie Grind End In Blanket Finish

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16 (A.P.) —With 1,810 miles of pedalling behind them, the 13 teams in Philadelphia's six day bike race prepared for the dash to the stretch to-day. Riding into the 105th hour of the grind, six teams held a one-lap lead. They were the McNamara-Dempsey, Spencer-Horan, Sevedgnini-Grimm, Letourner-Debaets, B. Walthour-Rodak, and Winter-Croley combinations. Jules Audy, Montreal, and his partner were two laps behind the leaders.

The pedal-pushers have stolen 463 laps to date in their jamming sessions, but the field remains closely bunched, only five laps separating the leaders from the last place pairs.

Bowling Notes

The Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club is busy getting ready for the 1933 season. The greens have been perforated, and fertilized with bone crush. Better greens than ever are the promise. Attractive fees will make it possible for the many to play. For shareholders the fee will be $12.00 for men; for ladies, $7.00. For new members, men, $12.00 and $1.00 extra will give them a part share in the club property. For ladies not shareholders, $7.00 fees and $1.00 stock. The membership, men and ladies, will be limited to two hundred.

PETERBOROUGH RANGERS' RIFLE ASSOCIATION

Last night's match provided quite a battle for first place. The elimination contest provided a lot of keen competition; this was eventually won by D. Clement. The official score night has been changed from Thursday to Wednesday night. The draw prizes were won by P. Cullen and G. Bousfield. Standing:

SPORTS Day by Day

HOCKEY—BOWLING—BOXING
BASKETBALL — OTHER SPORTS

(By C.J.P.)

The intermediate O.H.A. players will have a layoff from practise this evening, but are back at the Brock to-morrow night from quarter to seven till a quarter to eight. The juniors continue their evening drills from six to seven, and more of the young fellows have been turning out the past couple nights. With this weather and this ambition shown, we have no worries about plenty of good hockey here for the winter. The same is true of the different O.H.A. towns of our district, so local teams will have to be good to go places.

* * * * * *

The Campbellford-Trenton-Belleville group has drawn up its schedule, opening January 4th and finishing the 8th of February. They still have hopes of getting Cobourg in that bunch, but the Lakeshore squad would sooner play in our Big Six grouping, and we'd sooner have them, too. Incidentally, the intermediate series is Dominion-wide this year, the O.H.A. champions continuing after Canadian honors. Lack of ice last year cut the intermediate ranks up so badly that the O.H.A. winner had to be content with that.

* * * * * *

The closing date for entries in the City League is December 22nd, just one week from yesterday. There are four in now, Rotarians, P.C.I., Rangers' Meat Market and Pirates—with Norwood's application held over. St. Peter's may be back again if a fair team can be rounded up in time. The Kiwanis will hardly have an entry as we understand that most of their players last year have been signed by other teams. It would be nice to get about six strong teams in this young league, but four will do. Doubtless, Clair Hayes will call another City Hockey League meeting next Thursday.

* * * * * *

A fourth team is said to be ready to enter the Southend Hockey League's intermediate section. We understand it's Bert Bailey's outfit, perhaps being called the Pirates again. If more want to join this section—as, like last year, it will take the place of a Mercantile League—the loop will look for eight teams. Otherwise, four should be okay. The junior section is the only one not responding as in past years. At least a couple ought to get in there for the fun and the chance of copping the trophy.

* * * * * *

General hockey gossip: Ellis and Merrett should make good colorful and effective centres for the Petes this year....The locals will have both speed and weight, and we imagine a lot of fight.... The juniors are beginning to shape up now, some smart pucksters working out....With the int. squad cut in tow, a whole flock of classy players are available now for the E.P.L. teams, the lucky ones of whom will grab off the best....Lakefield will ice a young outfit, few or none of the veterans of yester-year coming out....There's some good junior O.H.A. players in Norwood, but who has the right to them, the Petes or Campbellford?....Local fans will get a surprise at the speed when they see their first game under the new forward-passing rules.

* * * * * *

The C.G.E. Shop Hockey League opens at the Brock on Saturday, the first puck games locally of the season. All eight teams will be seen in action from one o'clock till five. We understand the loop is exceptionally well-balanced this year, and composed of some of the best players in the city. The rivalry is always plenty keen among C.G.E. teams. The official opening ceremonies will be at two o'clock, Alderman Bob Cotton, Frank Bowness, and Bill Nelson being the participants. One bleak look at the thermometer to-day assures us there will be ice.

* * * * * *

Water polo will be introduced to local lovers of aquatic sports in the Y.M.C.A. Pool to-morrow night, starting at 8.15, with outstanding exponents from Toronto Central "Y" giving us an exhibition. The reason for it is that the game will be taken up here, and also there are many Peterborough people who would like to see this thrilling sport. The Toronto players will be accompanied by Olympic and Central "Y" swimmers and divers, who will perform also. Ladies are invited to the affair, which costs two bits.

* * * * * *

We don't know just how water polo is played, except that they use a large ball that floats, and that no one can be ducked under water except the man with the ball. Field polo is played four men to a side, on horseback. There are eight 7½-minute periods or chukkers. The field is 300 yards or more in length, the ball is hard and the players use long mallets. One point is counted for each goal, that is when the ball is driven between the uprights at each end of the field, the goal being probably twenty feet wide. It's a rough, skilful, and thrilling game, but is not generally known because of the heavy expense attached to it. Water polo is more popular in the large cities.

* * * * * *

Somewhere lately we saw an article on sports, which said that every sport has shown improvement except boxing. The fight game is no further advanced now than when Jim Corbett dethroned the great Jawn L. Sullivan. The reason is that fans do not want it improved, and the only popular pugs are the ones who try to knock the ears off their opponents, forgetting completely to think of their own cauliflowers. A very little clever boxing goes a long way with your fight fan, and the maulers have to remember where their ham and eggs come from. It's getting so if you asked some of these tin-eared gladiators if they were "exponents of the manly art of self-defence," they'd probably knock you out from under your hat for calling 'em names!

* * * * * *

Private reflections: No sympathy at all it seems for sport scribes. A fellow asked us the other day if we ever worked. "Sure," we assures him, "but this is our slack season. Just watch us after Christmas!" He makes some crack that sounded a lot like "hooey," goes on raving about a soft job, taking in all the sports free, and even getitng paid for it. The big yap wouldn't listen to us talking about having to work two or three hours every night while the rest of them slept, and keeping puttering around all day, too, to get a line on what's doing. "I do more work," he cracks, "just looking for a job." So we let it go at that; maybe he's right. Just pass us another cushion, please.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Boston Bruins used to have forward lines labelled "The Dynamite Trio" and "The Thunderbolt Line" —now they have "The Battering Rams." That is what they call this Stewart-Barry-Clapper line. It is the heaviest forward line in professional hockey. That line averages close to 200 pounds on the hoof. It is the best line Art Ross has.

HEAVY ICE HINDERING DETROIT RIVER FERRIES

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 16. (CP) The Detroit River to-day was filled with heavy ice, and ferries to Detroit were operating only with difficulty. The temperature was three below zero this morning. The first passenger ferries across the river took nearly an hour to reach the Detroit docks, ordinarily a 10-minute trip but were running regular schedules by noon. The railway car ferries were having a hard time bucking the ice, but were keeping lanes open.

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE No. 89

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service, Inc.)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

©1931, by Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc. All rights reserved.

Under Tarzan's leadership his strangely assorted party set out toward the river. Luckily they found the long boat of the Korsar's warparty, only three of whom remained as prisoners with the ape-man. The Horibs had killed all the others and left the boat where they had moored it. It proved big enough to hold them all and under the oars of the Waziri the staunch craft was launched out upon the waters of the River of Darkness.

As they floated toward the sea the river widened and it became possible to hoist a sail. Progress then became more rapid. Dimly visible in the distance, Tarzan sighted an island toward which they steered. Upon it, they found game aplenty and fresh water. Making camp, they prepared for the long voyage across Pellucidars upcurving sea to the city of Korsar. Meat was dried or smoked, water put in bladders and great quantities stored aboard to last them if a storm should sweep the boat from its course.

Jana worked willingly with the men at the task of preparing for the voyage. Never once had she betrayed any interest in Jason's presence or spoken to him. It got on the American's nerves. "What's the big idea, Jana?" he said one day. "Both of us would be a lot happier if you would find your tongue." Over her shoulder she tossed him a mocking laugh as she replied, "I am as happy as possible—until Thoar takes me back to Zoram." Rebuffed again, Jason concluded the stalwart Thoar was her accepted suitor.

At length, all preparation ended, the company embarked upon the hazardous sea trip toward distant Korsar. They were often beset by angry and voracious monsters of the deep. But when all other methods of defense failed, the Waziri's rifles proved a sure protection. So without chart or stars to guide them, the never-moving sun of Pallucidar shining straight upon the dancing waves, the monotonous timelessness continued without a sign of land or men.

PRESENTMENT OF GRAND JURY

Found Public Institutions to be Well Managed and Kept.

JAIL STOVE BAD.

Peterborough, Ontario,
December 15th, 1932.

Your Honor:—

"We, the members of the Grand Jury, acting upon your recommendation that we inspect the Public Institutions under the jurisdiction of this Court, beg to report as follows:—

"The House of Refuge, under the able management of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fry, was found to be in a highly satisfactory condition. The farm and live stock operations were carried on in a very efficient and economical manner, and the patients seemed very well cared for, and happy. At present there are eighteen men and two women. One patient whose mental condition made him a source of annoyance and much trouble to the management, we would strongly urge be removed to some other institution better fitted for his accommodation. The House of Refuge itself and outbuildings were in good condition and with the small expendture in paint which we would recommend, we could say the condition would be very satisfactory.

"The Anson House is an ideal institution as a home for the aged, and infirm. Your Jury cannot speak too highly of its obvious efficiency and comforts.

"Nicholls Hospital, under superintendence of Mrs. Leeson, was conducted as usual in a very satisfactory manner. The numbers, due no doubt to present conditions and, we hope, to a higher degree of health in the district, showed a decrease in both local hospitals. A better work room for the nurses is a necessity, with improved conditions. The heating system is defective in economical operation, but we found that no part of the building was inefficiently heated.

"St. Vincents Orphanage, a home for orphan boys from ages of two to fourteen years, we found in a very satisfactory condition, and the Sisters seemed very happy and interested in this worthy work.

"The Children's Shelter, under present management of Mr. and Mrs. Nye, created a very favorable impression upon the members of the Grand Jury. At present there are twelve boys and two girls in the home, all of school age. The quarters were found in a very clean and satisfactory condition, and the grounds and buildings create a favorable impression on everyone passing that way.

"The House of Providence, under the management of the Sisters of St. Joseph, seemed a very happy and restful home for those approaching the sunset of life. Their health and comfort under above management seems assured, and we cannot speak too highly of conditions as we found them there.

"St. Joseph's Hospital in equipment and management is a very creditable and worthy institution in the district which it serves. We found the Sisters of St. Joseph very bright and happy, ready to demonstrate the various means at their command for the relief of human suffering and the Jury were of the opinion that the bright, cheery atmosphere that pervaded the various wards of this institution should prove a very effective aid to convalescence.

"In order that our recommendations may be, we trust, more effective and lasting, we are leaving our comments on the County Jail as a final to this report. Under the present management we found conditions in the Jail in the matter of cleanliness and comfort to the inmates in a highly creditable shape. At present there are some eighteen inmates, seventeen of them males. One of these we are sorry to learn is committed under sentence of the major crime, murder. Another is being held on a similar charge, while the others are serving sentences for burglary, theft, etc. To your Jurymen, it seemed a grave mistake that a boy of fifteen, of rather promising appearance, committed for the theft of a bicycle, should be herded with older men, convicted or held on the several serious charges of murder, burglary, etc. It would seem in the best interests of the boy himself and the Public at large, that some other provision should have been made to take better care of such a situation.

"Your Honor, the most serious criticism that the Grand Jury can offer is being directed toward the imminent danger of fire to this whole building and its inmates. The only cooking stove in the Jail we found with its back completely gone, the fire and live coals falling into the oven.

"With a property loss of serious proportions at stake, and the danger to human beings trapped in their cells in case of fire, we cannot urge too strongly that the authorities responsible shall immediately replace the present highly dangerous, defective stove with a new one.

"All of which is submitted by your Grand Jury,

G. A. Brethen,
Foreman."

FENELLA SOCIETY ELECTS OFFICERS

Retiring President of W.M.S. is Presented With Life Membership.

FENELLA, Dec. 16 (Examiner Correspondence) — The annual Christmas meeting of the Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Curtis on Wednesday. There were fifteen members and twelve visitors present including Mrs. Empey of Roseneath.

Mrs. A. Hill, the retiring president, gave a report on her work during the past year. There was one life-membership and the average attendance was 23. The largest meeting being in July. Mrs. S. Leach, first vice-president, and Mrs. J. Knox, treasurer, gave their reports. Mrs. W. H. Sandercook, the Baby Band secretary, reported 15 members the first year and 18 the second year. Mrs. S. Leach then had charge of the program and the following number took part. A duet entitle, "Only Remember," was sung by Mrs. Howard Macklin and daughter Florence. The devotional leaflet, "The Woman Who Loves to Radiate Happiness" was read by Mrs. John Cowling.

Mrs. S. Leach presented Mrs. A. Nill, the retiring president, with a life membership certificate for the Women's Missionary Society.

Mrs. Nill responded with a few well-chosen words of thanks and appreciation.

The meeting was then given over to the election of officers, who were re-elected as follows: President, Miss Florence Macklin; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Sol. Leach; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. F. Talling; recording secretary, Mrs. Muriel Macklin; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. H. Mounce; treasurer, Mrs. J. Knox; secretary of stewardship and finance, Mrs. Howard Macklin; finance committee, Mrs. G. Montgomery, Mrs. B. Macklin; strangers' secretary, Mrs. J. Herrington; supply secretary, Mrs. C. W. Macklin; Associated Helpers' secretary, Mrs. W. H. Curtis; secretary of temperance, Mrs. L. Hope; Missionary Monthly secretary, Mrs. J. Curtis; secretary of literature, Mrs. Clark Jewell; Baby Band secretary, Mrs. W. H. Sandercock.

Mrs. Howard Macklin tendered a vote of thanks to the hostess and a dainty lunch was enjoyed.

Obituary

MRS. JOSEPH MOORE

The funeral of the late Mary Ann Moore, widow of the late Joseph Moore was held from her late residence, the Rev. Mr. Wilkinson conducting the service at the house and graveside. Burial was made in Warsaw Cemetery.

The late Mrs. Moore, whose death took place on December 4, was one of Dummer's oldest and highly respected residents.

She had spent her entire life in Dummer Township and was in her 83rd year, being the last of a family of ten children. She had attended the Methodist and United Church.

Left to mourn her loss are three daughters and two sons: Mrs. J. Crowe, of Dummer; Mrs. R. H. Hunter, of Saskatoon, Sask.; Mrs. Ckleecher of Lakefield. Bert Moore of Peterborough and Joseph Moore on the homestead.

Pall bearers were Messrs. David Brown, Alex Carling, Dick Cluff, George Parsons, Jordan Crowe and Earnest Butler.

MRS. AGNES McKIEVER

Funeral services for the late Mrs. Agnes M. McKiever, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Leathers, in Atchison, Kas., at the age of 81 years, was held this week at Falls City, Nebraska. Mrs. McKiever was born in Douro Township in 1851, and after her marriage in 1876, moved with her husband to Falls City.

She is survived by three daughters and four sons, and three brothers, Ambrose Sullivan, Detroit, and Michael and Lewis Sullivan, of this district. Her husband predeceased her last year.

MRS. ANDREW FLEMING
(Examiner Correspondence)

HASTINGS, December 16.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Andrew Fleming, whose death took place in Red Deer, Alta., was held on Tuesday afternoon on arrival of the C. P. R. train at Norwood. George Fleming, only surviving son of the deceased, came from Red Deer for the funeral.

The bearers were Messrs. Dr. J. H. Hess, E. Fleming, R. Fleming, A. M. Brooks, F. Dodd and J. F. McCarthy.

Rev. H. J. Bell of Trinity United church, conducted the services at the grave. Interment was made in Trent Valley cemetery.

INSTITUTE MEETING HELD AT LAKEFIELD

Roll Call is Answered by Suggestions for Christmas Decorations.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 16. (Examiner Correspondence). — The regular meeting of the Woman's IETAO was held in the Town Hall on Wednesday afternoon. The roll call was answered with suggestions for Christmas decorations and the response was particularly good with many original ideas for utilizing the native greens and adding the note of color by means of waxing sumach, maple leaves, mountain ash, bitter sweet, etc., while they are at their most brilliant here. Another idea was that of stringing cranberries to add the note of bright red which seems so appropriate at Christmas time mingled with the greens, decorations, pretty, inexpensive and cheery apparently was the idea of every woman, as nearly every one had an idea, and a worth while idea, on the subject.

The Institute was asked to notify the joint committee from the Masonic and Odd Fellows' Lodge who are arranging for Christmas cheer to needy families.

Mrs. Davis gave a reading very appropriate to the Christmas season and telling in an attractive tale that the secret of a happy Christmas is giving, not getting. The story was of Scrooge, who had a dream on Christmas Eve in which he was visited by the spirit future, and how the dream bore fruit, told by that great master of literature, Charles Dickens, was the subject and it was very much appreciated by the ladies.

It was decided to visit the House of Refuge during the holidays and to take parcels to the old people.

OMEMEE LODGE ELECTS OFFICERS

William Grieg is Elected Master of Lorne Lodge.

OMEMEE, Dec. 16 (Examiner Correspondence)—Lorne Lodge A.F. and A.M. had a splendid turnout Wednesday evening for the annual election of officers. A second and third degree were exemplified at the beginning of th work. Th new officers are: W.M., Bro. William Grieg; S.W., Bro. K. Thorn; J.W., Bro. Dr. McPhee; chaplain, Bro. T. C. Ivory; treasurer, Rt. Wor. Bro. C. Hart; secretary, Very Wor. Bro. William Thorn; D. of C., Wor. Bro. J. Magee; tyler, Bro. S. Faulkner.

The retiring Master Wor. Bro. W. L. Moncrief thanked the officers and members for their splendid support not only in helping with the work but in their attendance during his term of office. The newly elected officers all spoke briefly as did Bros. L. Mahood and Bro. Laidley of Lindsay, also Bro. H. Bradley of Lorne Lodge who returned to the lodge after a year's absence due to sickness.

An emergency meeting is called for Dec. 24th. The installation of officers will take place between Christmas and New Years it is expected. A bounteous fourth degree brought a most pleasant evening to a close.

Rheumatism Goes

Swollen Joints Vanish

PAIN EASED FIRST DAY

If you suffer from crippling rheumatic pains, lame, knotted muscles or stiff swollen joints it's because your system is full of the irritating poisons that cause rheumatism and make thousands helpless.

What you need right now is RU-MA the new internal medicine that acts directly on the liver, kidneys and blood, and expels through the natural channels of elimination these dangerous poisons. Only an internal remedy will do this.

No long waiting for your suffering to stop—RU-MA eases pain first day and so quickly and safely ends stiffening, crippling lameness and torturing pain that McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store urge every rheumatic sufferer to get a bottle today. They guarantee it.

FLOOD DANGERS INCREASE ON OTONABEE

CITY-WIDE CANVASS IS PLANNED TO RAISE MONEY TO AID NEEDY; COMMITTEE OF CITIZENS NAMED

United Effort Will Be Made to Raise Much Needed Funds.

SITUATION OMINOUS.

All Relief Works Are Practically Completed Mayor Announces.

Citizens will be given an opportunity soon to give contributions to a city-wide fund for the relief of Peterborough families in sore distress.

It was decided last evening at a large, representative meeting of leading citizens that an appeal will be made for subscriptions to a relief fund. The seriousness of the relief situation here was pointed out and the unanimous decision was reached that a united effort should be made to raise a fund to meet the great need. The meeting went on record as favoring the canvassing of the city to raise a fund for relief.

Others Accomplished It

In appealing to the citizens to contribute to such a fund, it was said that Peterborough is but following the lead of other Ontario cities and towns where large funds for a similar pressing purpose have been raised.

The full co-operation and assistance of all service clubs in the city have already been pledged in raising a citizens' fund for relief work. A committee was appointed to decide the manner in which the subscriptions shall be made and the fund raised. This committee is formed of: Robert E. Layfield, George A. Gillespie, W. R. Breyfogle, F. J. Hickey, James Juby, J. A. O'Brien and C. P. Percy.

Relief Figures

In pointing out the gigantic proportion to which relief had grown in the city and the need for united effort to adequately meet the situation, Mayor Denne gave the relief figures for the city during the past year.

In December last year, he said there were 236 families on the relief

BREAK COMING IN COLD WAVE

Ottawans Suffer in 18 Below Weather—Toronto Escapes With 18 Above.

PRAIRIES SHIVERING.

It's getting warmer—in Ontario. This was the welcome information which to-day emanated from the Meteorological Observatory here. And although exceptions were shown in a few instances, for the most part Ontario cities recorded warmer temperatures.

It was still very cold at Ottawa, where the thermometer recorded 18 below. Toronto was comparatively warm with 18 degrees above. At Moosonee, the temperature at eight o'clock was eight degrees above, although the mercury had bumped 20 below during the night.

The Maritimes were feeling the cold wave which had swept the country for the past few days, for at Charlottetown it was eight above to-day and at Moncton seven below. Quebec reported 12 below and Montreal six below.

"Not quite so cold" is predicted for the lower St. Lawrence Valley, while it will be "decidedly cold" in the East Maritimes. A little colder weather is predicted for the Lake Superior, Kenora and Rainy River districts, while not much change in temperature is expected in the Prairie Provinces.

SUDBURY, Ont., Dec. 17 (C.P.)—Regis Paquette of Rayside Township declares a wolf will not attack a man—if the man yells loudly enough.

Paquette trapped four wolves in a snare. Three of them escaped when he approached. While he was searching for a club to kill the fourth, it too broke free. Snarling and snapping, it attacked him.

"I put up my hands and yelled, and the wit ran,' he declared.

ARSENAL HOLDS 5-POINT LEAD FIRST DIVISION

Villans Defeat Blackburn Rovers 4-0 While Wednesday Loses to Bolton Wanderers.

DERBY COUNTY AHEAD.

Celtic Ties Rangers In Points for First Division Lead in Scottish League.

LONDON, Dec. 17 (C.P. Cable).—Aston Villa shook off Sheffield Wednesday in the race for the English League First Division runner-up honors to-day as they defeated Blackburn Rovers 4-0 and the Wednesday lost to Bolton Wanderers 4-3. Arsenal held their five-point advantage in first place by taking their game with Huddersfield Town by 1-0.

Arsenal now have won 15 games, lost two and drawn two.

Derby County kept a point ahead of Leeds United by playing a scoreless draw with Newcastle United, while Leeds won from Middlesbrough 1-0. West Bromwich Albion and Everton were among the leading teams to drop their games, the former losing to Liverpool 0-2, and Everton falling before Sheffield United 2-3.

Chelsea took a fall out of Manchester City 3-1, Leicester City drew with Birmingham 2-2, and Wolverhampton Wanderers made a good showing against Blackpool, losing by the odd goal in five.

Bradford City drew up within two points of the leading Stoke City club in the Second Division when they trounced Preston North-End 4-1. Stoke lost to Bury 2-, their third defeat of the season.

Celtic Ties Rangers.

GLASGOW, Dec. 17 (C.P. Cable).—Defeating Ayr United 1-0, while the leaders were being held to a 4-4 tie by Hamilton Academicals, Celtic to-day tied Rangers in points for first position in the Scottish League First Division. Rangers, however, still held an advantage in their goal average.

Motherwell drew up to within a point of the two leaders by taking Cowdenbeath 2-0, while Hearts dropped back with a loss to St.

J. A. O'Brien To See Guthrie On Monday

With but twenty days to elapse before the date set for execution of Henry Walter Reid, convicted for the murder of Harry Thomas the condemned man's counsel to-day received intimation from the Hon Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, that he would be granted an interview at Ottawa.

J. A. O'Brien, in making acknowledgment of the Minister's telegram, has expressed the intention of interviewing the Minister at Ottawa on Monday. He will leave the city on the Sunday midnight train.

Although E. A. Peck, M.P., and Mayor Roland Denne have both found it impossible to accompany Mr. O'Brien, they are to supply him with written introductions to the Minister. They have also signified that they will make written representations urging that Reid's sentence be commuted.

The interview Mr. O'Brien is to have with the Minister is the outcome of the petitions signed by residents of this district, urging that clemency be extended to Reid.

Fairburn Wounded In Right Shoulder By Unknown Thug

Made Business Call In East Ward, And When Returning To Boarding House Was Offered a Ride By Two Men And Accepted.

TWO STRANGERS TOOK HIM TO EDGE OF TOWN STOLE HIS CASE AND WOUNDED HIM.

Was Left On The Road, Where He Was Later Picked Up By a Passing Motorist And Taken To The Ross Memorial Hospital.

LINDSAY, Dec. 17.—(Special to The Examiner)—Mysterious circumstances surrounding the shooting of John Fairburn, jewelry traveller of Peterborough and formerly of Lloydminister, Sask., deepened today after a thorough checkup of the wounded man's story by Provincial Police last night.

After an investigation lasting until past midnight police have been unable to obtain any trace of the two men whom Faiburn declares held him up and robbed him of $1,000 worth of jewelry in the suburbs of Lindsay early last evening.

Provincial Constable Nelson, Constable Hodgson and The Examiner representative searched the spot late last night where Fairburn was picked up wounded by a passing motorist. No trace of the two alleged holdup men was found.

Said He was Shadowed

At Fairburn's boarding house a search located a case of nine watches. It was learned that Fairburn had told those in the house that he thought he was being shadowed.

Questioning Fairburn later in hospital, the police were unable to secure from him the name of the party he claims to have visited on business in the early evening and from the interview with whom he was returning when set upon and shot.

He said he raised no outcry at the time of the attack, being warned not to do so, and he did not get the license number of the roadster driven by the robbers. He wore a watch and ring at the time, but his assailants did not touch them.

Four Knocked Down As Car Hits Group

TORONTO, Dec. 17.—(C.P.)—Alexander Wagner, 29, is in hospital to-day with injuries, following an accident late last night in which four people were struck down by an automobile. A group of people were crossing the street when the car plunged into their midst. Wagner, with a cut over his right eye and injuries to his legs, was most seriously hurt. Police are endeavoring to locate the owner and driver of the vehicle.

9 BELOW LAST NIGHT.

A painstaking gentleman who works at nights and who is exceptionally good-natured, promised to watch the thermometer at Gainey's Tobacco Store last night and see just how close it came to verifying predictions that the mercury would reach a record low mark before dawn. He made three observations. At 10.30 last night, it was three below. By 2.15 it had dropped to eight below, and at 4.30 it stood at nine degrees below the zero point. His chilly notes on the weather cease at that point. Probably he turned up his coat collar and decided to call it a night. At seven o'clock it was eight degrees below zero, as reported by another observer.

SEEK FREEDOM FOR TIM BUCK

Canadian Labor Defense League Plans Meetings Protesting Prison Terms.

2 ARRESTED IN WELLAND.

TORONTO, December 17. (C.P.)—The Canadian Labor Defence League announced to-day that meetings protesting the continued imprisonment of Tim Buck and others serving sentences engaging in unlawful assemblies, would be held to-night.

Buck is at present in Portsmouth Penitentiary, and was alleged to have been one of the participants in the recent riots there.

The League said meetings would be held in all centres where their organization is represented. It was further announced the release of the prisoners would be demanded.

Two Arrested

WELLAND, Ont., Dec. 16 (C.P.)—Two men, who police say had Communistic literature in their possession, have been arrested by city police and will be arraigned later to-day. Their names were not given.

Provincial Police and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police detachment of Welland Crowland are making preparations for a mass meeting to-night advertised as under the auspices of the Canadian Labor Defense League. Early to-day stickers were found on windows demanding that eight men now in Portsmouth Penitentiary be allowed to appeal their sentences on "unlawful assembly" charges to the Supreme Court.

The Weather

Still a little colder. The lowest point last night, 11 degrees below zero. At 8 a.m., 4 below; at 10 a.m., zero. Slowing rising temperature with some snow. More moderate to-morrow.—W.P.

Anchor Ice Jams Bed of River Full Causing Flooding

Flood Water Of Otonabee Dropped Nine Inches Friday Night But By Noon The Water Had Risen Three Inches As Ice Packs Increased.

TRENT CANAL AUTHORITIES ARE DOING EVERYTHING POSSIBLE TO STOP FLOODING.

Prepare For The Worst As Flood Is Feared In City Over The Week-End—Freeze Over Of Little Lake Might Aid Situation.

Although the flood waters of the Ontonabee river dropped nine inches late yesterday as the result of the supreme effort made at all dams north of Peterborough as far as Minden and Gelert to hold back the swollen waters, the situation below the city remained practically unchanged with mile on mile of ice pack still holding fast, jamming the river bed.

The water level at the Peterborough dam rose another three inches this morning, making the drop from yesterday but six inches, and it was still rising this afternoon.

One of the great factors that might have removed the flood danger was the freezing of Little Lake, which would have stopped the flow of anchor ice down the river and reduced the danger of a still greater jam. But Little Lake did not freeze and this morning the large cakes of anchor ice were speeding down to join their bulk to the great pack that now stretches almost unbroken 17 miles down the river. The jam begins at Kent's creek, below that point the flow is but slightly above normal.

Prepare For Worst

While Trent Canal officials and employees did everything in their power to lessen the danger, they prepared for the worst. Instructions, The Examiner was informed, went out to the Peterborough Canoe Company to remove all movable objects from its yard in case the jam should increase and further stretches of property be flooded.

Nothing could be done to remove the ice jams, experienced rivermen said, until the river got sufficient "head" of force to sweep them away itself. Dynamite was termed useless to budge such a mass.

DOING THEIR BEST

"We are checking the flow at all points north, but ability to do this is somewhat limited on account of the continued run-off," was the announcement made to-day by A. L. Killaly, superintendent of the Trent Canal, in answer to a question of The Examiner as to what was being done to cope with the peril of the steadily rising flood waters of the Otanabee river.

"We are also increasing the flow

NORFOLK COUNTY ANIMAL RULED GENUINE WOLF

Game Inspector's Decision Settles Verbal Warfare Waged for Days.

Hunters Bring Prize to Gov't Office—First Shot So Far South in Years.

TORONTO, December 17 (C.P.)—Doughty hunters of Norfolk County stand vindicated to-day Verbal warfare which has waged for days—or ever since three men from that locality drew a bead on an animal and punctured it in many places, the battle has continued. They claimed—supported by a goodly share of Norfolk's population, the animal was a wolf. It is. Inspector H. G. Cox, of the Inspection Branch of the Game and Fisheries Department, declared seriously to-day that after close scrutiny the animal looked like, smelled like, and really was a brush wolf.

That put Norfolk County one up. And Inspector Cox added the men who shot the wolf would be allowed the $25.00 bounty.

STRASSBURG, Alsace, Dec. 6—The war did not, as is commonly assumed, finally dispose of the problem of Alsace. The rejoicing over the happy reunion with France has long since died out. Joy has in fact been replaced by disillusion, by indifference and in many quarters by outspoken antipathy. The vast majority of the Alsatians are by no means satisfied with the arrangement by which their country was simply incorporated in the French republic. They claim that they are in danger of losing their own national character and their national culture by that absorption in a population of forty millions.

Facts About Flood

Flood level of river at Peterborough fell nine inches between 12 a.m. and 12 p.m. yesterday but rose three inches again this morning. Rising steadily to-day.

Ice jam closes up on the river. The jam setretches almost without a break from the Brinton Carpet works to Kent's creek, a distance of 17 miles.

The pack is increasing in size below the surface of the top layer as more cakes of anchor ice flow down and join the great mass.

Every effort is being made to holyd back the flow at more than score of dams between here and Minden and Gelert, 45 miles north.

Rivermen state dynamite useless to move the jam because of its great size and its loose constituency.

Only open stretch in the jam is for a few hundred yards below Wallace's Point bridge.

Peterborough Canoe Company warned to-day by Trent Canal officials to remove all movable objects from yard to place of safety.

NATIONS TOLD U. S. IS OPPOSED TO DEBT PARLEY

France in Particular Informed America Can Make No Offer of Revision.

AWAIT DEVELOPMENT.

Stand by Vote Against Paying U. S. Boncour Tells French Socialists.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (A.P.)—The United States has informed France, and given similar indication to other debtor nations, that the administration is willing to continue debt discussions, but is opposed to any general conference, and can make no offer of revision.

This was the brief outline of the administration's stand given to-day in an authoritative source while President Hoover and his aides continued to watch the efforts of France to form a government, and to await other developments abroad.

It was made clear the indications given to debtor nations had not been transmitted in the form of any new formal notes, but had been passed on in previously exchanged notes and informal conversations with diplomatic representatives.

Mr. Hoover feels, it was stated, that in the face of the defauts on December 15 debts payments, the attitude of Congress against the creation of a commission to review international financial obligations may possibly be relaxed.

Must Stand by Vote

PARIS, Dec. 17 (A.P.)—Premier-designate Joseph Paul-Boncour told Socialist leaders to-day that he considered that any future French Cabinet must be bound by the vote of the Chamber of Deputies Dec. 14 to defer payment of war debts pending an international conference.

He added, however, that he believed it necessary to pursue debt negotiations with the United States.

It was the Dec. 14 vote of the Chamber which resulted in the overthrow of the Ministry of Edouard Herriot, who pleaded that the Dec. 15 instalment of war debt interest owed by France to the United States be paid with reservations as to future payments.

HYDRO OFFICERS ARE EXONERATED

Ontario Commission Reverses Stand Taken By Judge in St. Catharine's Probe.

SANCTIONS FREE SERVICE.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Dec. 17.—(C.P.)—St. Catharines Public Utilities Commission to-day received notice from the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission, completely exonerating members of the local commission from four findings made by Judge J. S. Campbell in an enquiry ordered by the city council. The Judge's report had recommended that F. J. Lowe, chairman of the commission be unseated and that his firm, the J. H. Wethey Company, be proceeded against for recovery of several thousand dollars for power and that action be taken against Superintendent Yates for power used for fifteen years without cost.

While the Ontario Commission does not recommend the practice of giving free domestic service under present day conditions, it states there is no reason to criticize a local commission for granting this free service in lieu of salary, if some record of the amount of the load is taken.

The Ontario Commission statement says:

"When it is considered that the matters referred to herein cover a period of over 18 years, and in view of the comparatively minor importance of these matters, this commission is satisfied that any criticism that there has been carelessness or neglect in connection with the operation of the St. Catharines system cannot be considered seriously."

DOMINION-WIDE DIRECT RELIEF PROBE STARTED

Auditors Show Most Manipulations in Quebec Where Credit Slips Issued.

TUXEDOS, DOGS BOUGHT.

Allege Salaries Paid, Houses Rented and False Invoices Tendered.

OTTAWA, Dec. 17—Disclosures of manipulation in the administration of direct relief, principally, so far as disclosed, in the Province of Quebec—has resulted in the Auditor-General of Canada instituting a nation-wide probe.

Until he is thoroughly satisfied as to the bona fides of claims presented by some provinces for the Dominion's share of disbursements it is unlikely federal payments will be made. Disclosures now in the hands of the Government are said to approach the magnitude of public scandal, and while prosecutions have been instituted in some cases it is hinted that only the surface has been combed; that hundreds, if not thousands, more writs may be demanded and that the systems which have permitted the irregularities must be drastically renovated.

The most amazing disclosures have emanated from Lake St. John County, Quebec. The Provincial Government authorized the issuance of "bons," or credit certificates for relief. The chief agent was a provincial officer, who, in turn, appointed 25 deputies who had authority to issue the "bons" to those in need of relief. These they turned in at township stores supposedly to be used for food and clothing, as authorized by the Relief Act.

Officials of the department of labor here have reported to the Government that the bons were used to pay for road work, to pay school teachers' salaries, to buy dogs, to rent horses, to pay old store accounts, to buy a tuxedo suit, to pay a two-year-old account on a sewing machine, to pay for hay and for commercial cartage.

Allege Invoices False

Dozens of declarations from those to whom the "bons" were made out allege that the invoices accompanying them when presented for Government payment are false. The sewing machine debt payment is said to have been accompanied by an invoice listing flour and lard while the "bon" for one school teacher's salary was made out to her six-year-old son. The "bon" for one teacher's pay was issued by a cure, who was the authorized agent of the district official responsible.

One invoice investigated showed 30 gallons of molasses supplied on three bons on April 26, 1932, to one individual but he told the inspectors he had not received more than one gallon per month.

A foreman on relief works bought picks and dynamite on relief "bons," but the invoice showed "groceries" delivered.

Fourth to be Checked.

It is understood that Quebec is the fourth province in which the auditors have been working. They went first into Ontario and then into British Columbia, later investigating conditions in Saskatchewan. In Ontario isolated abuses were uncovered and corrected. The report on British Columbia is not yet available, but it is understood that widespread improvements in the administration have been demanded. The Saskatchewan system is believed to have received general commendation.

With respect to the province of Quebec the auditors are seeking not only for such occurrences as those unbared in Lake St. John County, but also the way to more important general economics. Premier Taschereau is credited here with a statement that with proper methods the city of Montreal alone could have saved hundreds of thousands of dollars on its relief work without impairing its efficiency. The auditors hope to assist in reaching the measure of economies that Mr. Taschereau declared possible.

Disclosures that have been made are declared to be so far-reaching that a much more stricter exercise of Federal auditing supervision will be found with respect to relief payments.

Lively Pastime

OVIEDO, Spain, Dec. 17. — (AP)—Bear hunt is the highlight of the Christmas celebration in this mountain region.

The chimes of Christmas eve call the residents forth and bands are organized to seek bears that make the final foraging expeditions about this time of year.

Thus, the Asturians combine a practical purpose with the celebration by protecting their livestock.

eManwhile, the women folk prepare a feast, the size of which depends on the success of the hunt.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

Saves $2. So Easy! No Cooking!

The best cough remedy that money could buy can easily be mixed at home. It costs very little, yet it's the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 oz. bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. To make syrup, use 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and saves two-thirds of the money a family usually spends on cough medicine. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, clears the air passages, and thus ends a severe cough in a hurry.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Plant To Discontinue Making Of Rayon

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 17 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Although there has been much criticism regarding the silk plant of the Campbellford Cloth Company ceasing to operate and the removal of the machinery to Toronto, it is understood from Mayor H. N. Carr, who interviewed Mr. Hayes, manager of the Toronto Carpet Company in an endeavor to have the manufacture of rayon continued in Campbellford, that the company was not biased in any way against the Campbellord plant, but that it was going altogether out of the manufacture of rayon just as soon as all order were made up. The Campbellford plant closed up yesterday and the employees released.

BENNETT GUEST AT CLUB DINNER

Tells Britishers Canada's Internal Borrowing Tops Total Obtained Outside.

PRAISE FOR BALDWIN.

LONDON, Dec. 17. (C. P. Cable) Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada last night heard himself described by Stanley Baldwin, leader of the Conservatives in the House of Commons, as a man possessing capacity for work of which he could not conceive himself capable "even in a nightmare."

Mr. Baldwin was proposing the health of the Canadian Prime Minister at a Canada Club dinner held in his honor under the chairmanship of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissoner to the United Kingdom. He ended by coupling the names of Mr. Bennett and his sister, Mrs. W. D. Herridge, wife of the Canadian Minister to the United States.

Mr. Bennett spoke of the financial security of Canada and reminded his hearers that of all loans made the Dominion, none had ever been known to fail. Canada, he said, had incurred vast financial responsibilities toward the world at large and yet had borrowed more from its own citizens than from all other countries put together.

As far as he knew, he added, Canada was the only country besides Germany which would gain nothing from a renunciation of war debts.

Among those at the dinner were Lord Hailsham, Secretary for War; Lord Blasebugrh, eminent jurist; Lord Dawson of Penn.; the King's physician; J. H. Thomas, Dominions Secretary; Hon. George Black, Speaker of the Canadian House of Commons; Lieut.-General Sir Henry Burstal, commander of the Second Canadian Division during the war and Stanley Bruce, Australian Minister to the United Kingdom.

FASCISM PLAYS SANTA TO ITALY

Gifts, Toys, Food and Cash Pour Into Depots, Opened For Poor.

MUSSOLINI TAKES PART.

ROME, December 17 (C.P.). — Fascism, which has absorbed all other Italian activities, now is Italy's Santa Claus.

The Fascists' smooth-running organization, furthermore, will be a bigger Santa than ever, because more people otherwise would lack the means for making merry.

Depots have been opened in all the large cities and gifts of clothing, food, toys, and money are pouring in. Many Fascist syndicates of workmen have voted to give a day's wages to these agencies. On Christmas Day, thousands of poor persons will eat big dinners, thanks to the Fascist-inspired depots.

Distribution of the gifts, however will not be made until Epiphany, January 6, when Premier Mussolini himself will open the distribution here.

Italian children put it all over their North American cousins in receiving presents. Christmas, New Year, and Epiphany are all special gift days, and relatives are free to send presents any time between Christmas and Epiphany.

Christmas is one of the three big "tip-days" in Italy. All main men, elevator men, household servants, porters, messengers, barbers and other tradesmen receive liberal pourboires.

These men usually present their clients or employers a few weeks before Christmas with a printed card bearing the greeting, "Merry Christmas," but this means "We'd appreciate a good-sized tip, sir."

The collection is done co-operatively. The proceeds are lumped, and divided proportionately.

Alberta's section of the Trans-Canada highway is practically completed, the province now having a surfaced road from the Saskatchewan boundary through Medicine Hat and Calgary to the west boundary of the province.

Getting Even

BELLEVILLE, Ill. Dec. 17.— (AP)—Six friends who felt they had been socially "snubbed" by Dr. Grover Cleveland Otrich, a big game hunter, because he did not invite them to one of his venison dinners sent him a note and told him about it. The doctor proceeded to make amends.

He invited them to a dinner. They ate heartily and then the doctor told them a little secret —that they had eaten, not venison, but equus caballus. In other words horse meat! He followed with real venison and those who were able to partake said it was good.

STATE OF ALSACE DOES NOT REJOICE

this day alien, strange to them and to many repulsive. This being the case, a good deal of opposition against the annexation by France has developed. This opposition varies in degree. It runs all the way from an outright demand for separation from France to autonomy, home rule and special provincial privileges which leave the French connection intact, but which will at the same time ensure a free development to Alsace along lines inherent in the character of its own people.

Friendly at First

Yet, in tracing the broad outline of the history of Alsace in recent years, it must be said that in the period immediately following the war no cloud obscured the sky. All seemed for the best. Delegations of Alsatians streamed into Paris to declare their adhesion to the long-lost mother-country. French statesmen and politicians, as is the custom in that gallant land, fervently kissed the pretty Alsatians, in national costume who accompanied the delegates from the different Alsatian cities. Heaps of flowers were placed at the foot of the statue, representing the Maid of Strassburg in the Place de la Concorde. The shroud of black mourning which had been draped around the statue for fifty years, as a symbol of the French nation's grief over the forcible separation of Alsace, had been removed. French politicians journeyed to Alsace, made speeches, banquetted, drank the health of "Alsace foundback." They spoke hopefully of the future.

But in the end, as everything else in the world, the celebrations were over and the music died away. Alsace settled down to wait. She expected that her institutions would be respected, that her traditions would be honored. There was no question of the loyalty of Alsace.

And then something happened which suddenly broke the hahpy idyll. From a peacefully, contented province, Alsace turned into a tumultuously protesting people. M. Herriot became prime minister in 1924. He was and is the leader of the Radical party, a party which is violently anti-Catholic. The Radical party, when in power on a previous occasion, twenty-five years before, had forced through the separation of church and state in France. It had instituted the neutral, religionless school. It had dissolved the Catholic congregations. It had confiscated the churches and convents in France. It considered itself the spiritual heir of the men of the French revolution, of Danton and Marat, of Voltaire and Rousseau.

In 1924 the Radical party came back to power, replacing the nation coalition government that had run the country since 1917, when Clemenceau hammered national unity out of chaos in the face of imminent defeat by Germany.

The first thing the Radical government of M. Herriot did in 1924 was to declare the laws against the Catholic church, which were in force in France, applicable to the recovered provinces of Alsace and Lorraine. Alsace and Lorraine were French, he argued. They ought therefore, accept the established institutions and laws of France in the entirely.

Exclusively Catholic

Now Alsace is predominantly, I would almost say, exclusively, Catholic. Not merely Catholic in name, as France herself and Spain, Mexico and Portugal are reckoned to the Catholic countries. The people of Alsace are of a deeply devotional character. The Roman Catholic clergy is in honor in the Alsation communities. Practically all of the priests are of the German race. With the German innate sense of orderliness, civic duty and sobriety, these men combine an exemplary life. In this respect they stand mountain-high above the generality of their colleagues in Spain for instance and in other Latin countries. There are some excellent scholars amongst them. Many are not only great priests, they are also leaders in every phase of communal and national life.

The announcement in 1924 that Alsace was to be "laicized," that is to say de-Catholicized or de-Christianized, which is the same thing in a wholly Catholic country, came like a bombshell. The clergy protested that it had expected a more generous treatment from the mother-country. The papal nunico, at that time Monsignor Ceretelli, expressed the Vatican's amazement in Paris. Delegations of Alsatians streamed to Rome. The Pope expressed intense grief. The Catholic newspapers in France unleased a violent campaign against the Herriott government, accusing it of "betrayal" of Alsace and of wishing to paganize the culture of a prosperous Christian province.

Nothing availed. M. Herriot and his counsellors stood pat. Alsace had yearned for a reunion with France, for a liberation of the German yoke. Now she had her wish. Let her take the full consequences, he argued, the bitter as well as the sweet.

Alsace made ready to resist. The opposition grew. There were riots in Strassburg and Colmar. The French tri-color was torn down from public buildings. The cry, "Alsace for the Alsatians" was raised. The Catholic clergy stood in the forefront of the waxing tide of resistance. French garrisons were strengthened in the Alsatian cities. The gendarereries was reinforced. Certain priests were arrested. It looked as if a bitter struggle was to be waged between Alsace and France over a question of what we may call religious self-determination. For a year the tension grew. Then the Herriot government fell over its financial program. Poincare, a native of Lorraine, succeeded. He at once proposed a policy of conciliation with Alsace. But damage had been done. The first and the mother-country had cooled ardor of affection between Alsace off. France and Alsace had become estranged. It will take many years to restore the old confidence.

COUNTIES' COUNCIL MUST SANCTION WORK ON ROAD

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 17 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — In an endeavor to get work started on the Campbellford - Brighton Highway, especially in the Meyersburg section, Mayor H. N. Carr and Reeve C. H. Davidson were in Toronto this week and interviewed the Minister of Highways, Hon. Leopold Macaulay, and were informeed that as soon as the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham endorsed the venture, which could be done at the January session, work would be commenced. The Provincial authorities, it was understood, were simply waiting for the Counties Council to recommend the work. Every effort will be made by the Campbellford Council to press this matter, as work now would relieve much distress, not only in Campbellford but also in the township of Seymour.

SONG.

Stay, stay at home, my heart and rest
Home-keeping hearts are happiest,
For those that wander they know not where
Are full of trouble and full of care;
To stay at home is best.

Weary and homesick and distressed,
They wander east, they wander west,
And are baffled and beaten, and blown about
By the winds of the wilderness of doubt;
To stay at home is best.

Then stay at home my heart and rest;
The bird is safest in its nest;
Over all that flutter their wings and fly
A hawk is hovering in the sky;
To stay at home is best.

The Last Laugh

DETROIT, Dec. 17 (A.P.) — Capt. John Paffhausen has the last laugh on the boys at Highland Park police station who kidded him unmercifully because he varnished his bathroom with maple syrup. He has a whole bale of fan mail to prove he's the most popular man in Highland Park.

The letters began pouring in as soon as news of his sticky error got out. From Tacoma, Wash., New York City and points in between they came. Only one, from Fort Wayne, Ind., offered sympathy. It was from a man who once put varnish on his pancakes. A Kentucky woman, a "shut-in" said she wanted to thank the captain for a good laugh.

clothes did not show any effects of a struggle, although there was a slight rent in his overcoat.

Had Made Business Call.

Fairburn stated that he represents the H. Rose Company of Toronto. According to his story of the shooting, he had made a business call in the east ward early last evening, and on his way back to his boarding house he was stopped by two men in a roadster on Queen Street, who offered him a drive into town.

He was carrying a case of jewelry valued at $1,000 at the time, but readily accepted the ride. The two strangers turned south away from the town, and when approaching the bridge over the Scugog, he states, attacked him. He struggled with them in the car until he was thrown out upon the road. On the roadway the tussle with his assailants was continued, until one of the two drew a revolver and shot him in the right shoulder.

The two thugs then took the jewelry case, jumped into their car and drove away, leaving him wounded on the roadside. Weakened by the attack and his wound, Fairburn says, he lay for some time on the road and then began waving his hands in order to attract the attention of passing motorists.

He was finally picked up and rushed to Ross Memorial Hospital. There he was attended by Dr. Collison and later questioned by Provincial Police. Fairburn said that both his assailants were dark complexioned, one wearing a moustache.

Fairburn had boarded for more than a year in Peterborough. Police here knew of him, they said to-day, but could not state the name of his boarding house here, "because he moved about so frequently."

NEW COMPLAINTS

WINNIPEG. — Eleven new complaints to be laid against Judge L. St. G. Stubbs of the County court of Winnipeg at the inquiry before Mr. Justice Frank Ford of the Supreme Court of Alberta here on Jan. 11 next, were contained in an order-in-council from Ottawa made public to-day.

A national historical grove of trees from historic places has been established at the national capital by the American Forestry Association.

register, now the total is 614. Similarly individuals on relief had increased from 984 to 2793.

During this year $27,848 had been expended in the city on unemployment relief work, he stated. In direct relief by the city $72,227.33 had been given out in food, clothing and fuel. The Charity Board up to December 1 had expended $43,257 in relief, and the Relief Association in a great work in the same direction had spent $20,198.35, while the Red Cross had spent $1,753.28. The total amounted to $142,579.31, of which the city's share was $52,440.

Work of Association

James Dutton, president of the Relief Association, said that the association had raised by subscription between $12,000 and $13,000 a year ago. In the spending of this sum for relief in the city, the Relief Association had had its accounts augmented two for one by the Governments' grant, and in this way its work was greatly augmented and carried on more effectively.

He said that the Relief Association still had a small balance in the bank although there were some outstanding accounts, but there would be sufficient left to do some relief work at Christmas. The Relief Association, he stated, had recognized that the time had come that all relief work must be centralized in order to prevent overlapping and imposition.

Situation Ominous

"The situation is growing ominous," he declared. "The relief scale must be changed because some of these families have come to the absolute end of their resources. The time has come for concerted action, not only in the administration of relief but also in the raising of funds.

"We should be encouraged in making an appeal to the citizens by what has been accomplished in this connection in other cities." Here Mr. Dutton quoted the large relief funds raised in Ottawa, Brantford, Oshawa and Barrie.

Mr. Dutton said, "Gentlemen, you are here by invitation" to discuss ways and means to do a thing that must be done if our people are to be helped over this severe testing time. We must remember that we have two classes on relief; the habitual indigents and the vastly larger group who are in this situation through no fault of their own but simply because there are no jobs available to them."

Relief Work Finished

Mayor Denne told the meeting that practically all relief work in the city had ended and no more could be recommended until next spring. "It is the responsibility of every citizen that no one shall be permitted to starve in our city."

The difficulty of computing the amount required for relief until next summer was pointed out in a discussion which followed, and this question was left to the committee to settle and decide upon. The committee will also decide in what form the appeal for subscriptions will be made.

Mother Kills Third In Eternal Triangle

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 17.— (A.P.)—Mrs. C. R. Frazier, wife of the distric director of narcotic law enforcement in Florida and Georgia, shot and killed her husband's secretary, Miss Manona Murrell, on the post office lawn here yesterday and told officers the young woman "tried to break up my home."

Mrs. Frazier, mother of five sons ranging in age from 4 to 19 years, was held on a murder charge. The 41 year old mother told authorities of the 26 year old secretary, "I hope she is dead. She tried to break up my home. If I hadn't killed her my two oldest sons were going to."

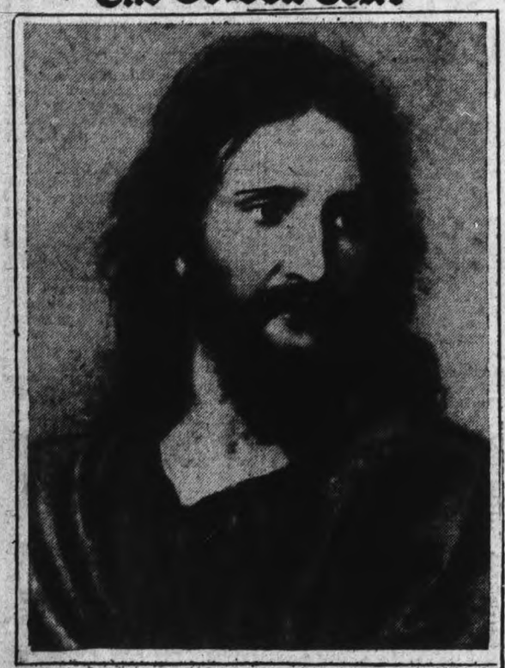
The Golden Text



If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me.—Luke 9:23.

Have You Heard the Alarmist Shout of H. G. Wells That War is at Our Doors?

By H. W. L. MAHOOD

From a prominent Ontario University professor, comes the warning that another Great war is in the offing. Such alarmist statements are absurd. No! Another Great War is not at our door. Nor is it anywhere near. The world is farther away from a great sanguinary conflict than it has been for many a decade. If the Asiatic nations receive right treatment from the white nations, there will never be another world conflict. The future battles will be fought out in the realms of the intellect and man's moral nature.

H. G. Wells

The issues will be moral, and social, and economic. The battlefields will be invisible. They will be national, and international. As humanity yields more and more, to the brotherhood genius of Jesus Christ, will these issues find solution.

The reasons why there will not be another war of gigantic proportions in our day, and probably never, are not a few. There is not one great nation in the world that is in a condition financially to undertake the expense-burden of another war. Unless some nation in Europe undertook to trangress the Munroe Doctrine the United States will never again be drawn into war, as she was into the Great War. The United States is out of war for good.

In Europe there is not one nation with the resources necessary to carry on a war to the finish. Europe is staggering under war debts. Every nation in Europe is as near the verge of bankruptcy as is at all comfortable. What reader of The Examiner could even dream that Britain with the statesman leadership of a Ramsay McDonald, a Baldwin, a John Simon, and a David Lloyd George, would sanction even for a moment any movement with a war tendency? Present war debts are not only a crushing burden to the governments of Europe but are sapping the life blood of the people. Europe is war sick. There is not a government in Europe that could thrill the people with a new war venture. The hearts of the masses of European peoples are set on securing an enduring peace. From this attitude they will not be moved even by the communists.

Some use the argument that Europe was never so prepared for war as she is now. They say greater are her armies than ever before. They go on to say, more terrible are her weapons than the world has hitherto known. All this may be true. Bear this in mind that the present destitution, poverty, bankruptcy, hunger and the supreme war equipment is a deterrent rather than an incentive towards war. War has become so terrible that war has outwarred war. Such a protest would go up from the common people to the leadership of a nation that war would be stopped in its first made tracks.

We do not believe for a moment that the Anglo-Saxon peoples would countenance participation in a war with the new flame and explosive secrets, science has discovered, since the Great War. Science has already antiquated battleships and land armies. Such a war would out-savage any savagery ever known before. It is unthinkable any civilized nation would ever enter such brutal warfare. Man is not becoming more the brute. He is becoming more and more the manifestation of God. God is peace and love. The true nature of man is not war. He is like his maker. The outstanding characteristic of these times is not the war spirit. Never has mankind been so closely drawn together. The Great War has not made for war. It has made for peace. It has not made for hate. It has made for love, pure and undefled. Up out of the Great War mankind has become more sympathetic and more beautifully kind. There is the element that has become more cruel and hard. That is the exception.

The cost of another war would be so much greater than that of the Great War that the participant nations would bury themselves in financial graves of their own digging-graves that no resurrection would ever open. The American people have determined that war-minded nations must henceforth make provision, unassisted by the United States, for their own war debts and waste. To interpret the attitude of the United States aright, in the matter of war debts at the present, she must be seen in this light. The United States is not a war-minded nation. Let the European nations cut down their armies and navies to a peace footing, the saving would pay their war debts times over. America waits to lead the way in the most drastic cutting of war forces the world has ever known. H. G. Wells has become a war alarmist. In this letter we have not the space to comment on his views. In our next letter we plan to do so.

WEEKLY BIBLE LESSON

Review: Christian Standards of Life.

Golden Text: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me." Luke 9:23.

Devotional Reading: Philippians 3:8-14.

We are at the end of another quarter and the close of another year. It is checking up time to see what we have and where we are.

A review is a most interesting thing.

Some years before the great war I saw a review of the troops of a great nation. The bands played, the flags fluttered, the immense crowds looked and cheered. Regiment after regiment marched past. Bayonets gleamed, buckles flashed and the united steady tramp shook the earth.

Following the infantry came the artillery, and then the cavalry, horses prancing, men sitting like statues.

It was a grand show—the fighting forces on parade.

I have been at a number of exhibitions where the producing and manufacturing powers of the country were displayed. Field, forest, mine and factory united to show the abundance of their wealth.

This also was a splendid show—the things of peace in review.

I see everywhere boys and girls, bright faced, intelligent, well up in their classes, honorable in their play, preparing to give a good account of themselves. These are the products of our homes, schools and Sunday schools, and they are the assets of the future.

So on our quarterly days it is not so much the lessons as the scholars we should have in mind. The lessons have been so much material for the use of the teachers in increasing the knowledge and building up the characters of the scholars.

The review does two things. It tests the grasp they have of the work covered and it reimpresses the main facts on the minds and consciences. The latter is very necessary in all teaching. It is remarkable how impressions made in early youth remain until old age.

The conducting of a review is a troublesome problem. Generally the superintendent and teachers can best manage the day for their own school. Sometimes a school has someone who is handy at the blackboard or good at story telling.

Perhaps the best results are secured by getting the scholars themselves to represent the different characters. For instance in lesson one of this quarter, have a boy sitting on the platform reading his Bible before going to bed—let him read aloud a dozen verses and in unison with the school say the Lord's Prayer.

With a little thought and preparation almost any lesson may be shown from the platform. Its applications.

I nail reviews the eyes and ears should be active. Let them see as well as hear.

Christian Standards of Life—Review — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Phil. 3:8-14.

Christianity should mean imitating Christ. To do this we must learn of him through our Bibles and commune with God in prayer as Jesus did. The best way for us to follow him is upon our knees.

The first place to follow Jesus is in our everyday life in our homes as Jesus did in his home at Nazareth. Here he was subject unto Joseph and Mary as he worked with them in the home or carpenter shop.

The Christian will follow Christ in business life as he strives honestly to make not only a living but a life. Money will never be his end. It will be only his means to serve God and his fellow men.

The Christian will harbor no prejudice for those of other races or creeds than his own. As Jesus interested himself in and showed love for all so will his followers.

WHOSE WORRY IS IT?

(From the New York Herald-Tribune)

There seems a strange misunderstanding in some quarters as to whose worry the debt problem is. It is certainly not Mr. Hoover's if he does his duty as he sees it. What grief may come from it is inevitably Mr. Roosevelt's, who takes over the whole issue and responsibility on March 4.

We think the country will be disappointed that Mr. Roosevelt could not see his way to co-operate in respect to this particular issue, involving no domestic problem. If non-partisanship is ever possible it should be in respect to such foreign problems. But on Mr. Roosevelt's side it is to be said that he has not yet chosen his advisers, and that he was suddenly confronted by a complex issue with which he had no opportunity to familiarize himself.

It may be recalled that during the campaign there was heat and resentment in Democratic quarters when it was argued that a change of administration inevitably meant marking time for a number of months. Mr. Hoover has now done his utmost to prevent such a delay in respect to the debt issue. Mr. Roosevelt has felt unable to aid him. The delay must ensue.

DE LAVAL A HEAVY TAXPAYER.

Ratepayers in considering the De Laval by-law, which is to be voted on New Year's Day should remember that the company is not asking for exemption from taxes. It would be well to make that point clear.

Under the present agreement ending this year, the company has paid full taxes on $50,000 of its assessment, and on the balance of that assessment it has paid the full school, rates and pavement and local improvement taxes.

Altogether the De Laval at present contributes annually close to $4,500 in taxes to the city treasury.

Under the terms of the by-law now coming before the people, the company will pay full taxes on $60,000 of its assessment—that is, on an additional $10,000, and as before, will continue to pay school and local improvement taxes on its full assessment.

In other words, the city under the new by-law will receive more each year in taxes than it has during the past few years, which is a factor in the situation that should be kept in mind.

The arrangement would seem to be an entirely satisfactory one from the viewpoint of the citizens generally, and the fact that it is warmly endorsed by virtually all the Council as a sound proposition, fair alike to the city and to a company that by its record has earned public support, should be sufficient to ensure a general endorsation of the by-law.

A CHANCE TO PLAY SANTA CLAUS.

Unless the churches, fraternal societies and service clubs come to the rescue, it looks as if Christmas of 1932 will be a drab affair for a great many Peterborough people.

It has been decided by the civic relief organization that no baskets of Christmas cheer will be sent out, the Christmas week supplies being confined to the routine issue, so that many families will be without anything to call the Yuletide to mind unless other bodies or individuals are quick to step into the breach.

Over 600 families are on the relief list, and The Examiner is confident that once the situation is realized by the warm-hearted people of Peterborough the required number of hampers of Christmas good things will be forthcoming speedily.

All those who are willing to help in seeing that something in the spirit of Christmas is provded for every one of these more than 600 families should get into touch with Relief Officer Metheral, who will provide them with names and see to it that there is no duplication.

It is impossible to imagine that this generous community would allow even one family to go without some measure of Christmas cheer or a single child to think that Santa Claus had forgotten to call.

The time is short—the need is great; who will come to the rescue?

TRYING TO STEM THE TIDE.

The appeal made by Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and Mitchell F. Hepburn, Federal and Ontario Liberal leaders, that the forces opposed to the present Governments should not be divided, is a logical development of the present political situation.

Undoubtedly the advent of the C.C.F. party is what is known in the vernacular as a decided "break" for the Bennett and Henry administrations, and the Liberal leaders are wise in acknowledging that situation and in doing everything possible to discourage the "protest" voters from drifting in the Woodsworth camp.

How successful they will be in that aim the future alone will tell.

The Co-operative leaders are following their own course and are preaching everywhere the doctrine that neither of the old political parties can be depended upon for leadership that will restore normal conditions in Canada; an attitude that, of course, makes impossible any effective gesture leading towards a Liberal-C.C.F. alliance.

Some interesting days lie ahead in the political arena, and the efforts of Liberalism to prevent this new movement from sweeping the props from under the platform of the official opposition will be closely followed.

Meanwhile the Governments in power are doubtless convinced that up to a certain stage at least the C.C.F. drive is the most fortunate political development in recent years.

The undertakers in convention have been told the death rate has decreased 10 per cent. So there is a depression on.—Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph.

THE INDIGENT PATIENT PROBLEM.

The problem of furnishing hospitalization for indigents has become one of increasing urgency with the prolongation of economic troubles and a consequent enlargement of the number of those unable to pay for the attention and treatment furnished in general hospitals. Up to the end of the month of September, the city of Toronto found that it had already paid the sum of $888,000 on this account with $340,000 as the estimated outlay for the remainder of the year The number of admissions of indigent patients to the hospitals of Toronto was at the end of September actually equal to two per cent. of the entire population of the city.

A similar situation has developed elsewhere, leading to a pronounced increase in the sums which municipalities are required to pay for the hospitalization of indigents and a corresponding increase in the outlay of the provincial authorities for the same object. As a result, various plans for a reduction in the number of those given free care and treatment in the hospitals are being advanced and one of these involves the admission of some types of indigent patients to convalescent homes rather than general hospitals.

While the majority of those admitted to hospitals as indigents are actually in need of the treatment there provided, there must be many of them whose requirements would be met by being furnished accommodation in convalescent homes which are capable of being operated at much lower expense. It is not at all clear that all those admitted to general hospitals as indigent patients are actually in need of hospitalization. In some cases, members of families find it more convenient to have such accommodation provided than to look after patients themselves in their own homes. The attending physician is agreeable and the patient goes to the hospital at the expense of the public when he or she might make just as much progress in normal surroundings.

The system under which hospitalization is afforded all indigents applying for it is an expensive one for both governments and hospitals, since the grants received by the latter do not always compensate them for the additional expenses to which they are put. It becomes increasingly necessary, on account of the financial positions of both municipalities and general hospitals, that hospitalization for indigents be limited to those cases in which it is a necessity. To sanction any other practice is to permit abuse to creep into the system and to add to the burdens of hospital boards and the taxpayers.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

SANTA CLAUS AND HIS TOYS.

When Santa Claus and his faithful reindeer drive over the roofs of Canadian homes on Christmas eve, the jolly old chap has toys in his pack to fill the children's stockings hanging by the fireside. Where does Santa get the toys?

Well, the National Revenue Review supplies the answer.

Many, of course, are made in Canada, but a greater part of the contents of the pack is gathered from all parts of the world, especially from the United States and Germany. In the past fiscal year toy imports, not including dolls, were valued at $1,-333,884. This total was made up as follows: United States $541,885; Germany $429,806, United Kingdom $184,805, Japan $137,147, Czecho--Slovakia $17,384, France $13,188. Dolls imported in the past fiscal year were valued at $155,236, and came chiefly from Germany.

The Dominion exported in the same period toys of all kinds valued at $30,192, an increase of $1,850 over similar exports in the previous year. In recent years the principal buyers of Canadian toys were the United States, Newfoundland and New Zealand. Exports to these countries, however, dropped considerably in the last fiscal year. The decrease was more than balanced, however, by increased exports to the United Kingdom which purchased toys from Canada to the value of $16,282, as against about eight hundred dollars' worth in the previous year.

These relics of child life in the form of toys have come down to us from very ancient times, not only in actual playthings but, also, in art and books. Greek vases have been unearthed on which are depicted go-carts, babies' rattles and clappers shaped like hens and birds. Even the great classical writers do not forget the children; Pausanias telling us about a doll's ivory bed of exquisite workmanship; Aristophanes mentioning a little wagon bought in the market at Athens for one "obulus"; Horace praising hobby horses, and Plato, building-bricks.

In the Middle Ages tin soldiers were most in vogue, and ingeniously constructed tin horses which could be made to tilt. From the seventeenth century onward, dolls' houses seem to have been one of the delights of childhood. Travellers to Europe may see at Berlin, London and Nuremberg the loveliest of miniature palaces, with even playthings in toy nursery cupboards for toy baby dolls, as well as charming pictures, silken curtains and pretty china and glass. In 1631 a lady in Germany had a doll's house made and furnished which well shows the fashions of her day. It was especially rich in musical instruments, and had a library. This model little home was left to posterity with the hope that as many children as possible would see it as often as possible, with the aim and intent to make good housekeepers.

The dolls themselves of those days, however, were rather disappointing. They were all grown-up ladies, stiff and straight in their bones and busks and old brocades; elaborate creatures for palace life; or else, quaint wooden figures, a little like the Dutch dolls that are still to be found in old country homes.

But the conquering hosts of Toyland are still marching down the centuries, laying siege each year to homes and hearts. And may they long continue so to do.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

At all events the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation has no reason to complain that it is being neglected in the matter of publicity.

At least you can do that Christmas shopping early next week and help relieve the congestion of the last few days.

"Mitch" Hepburn declares that he will be the next Premier of Ontario. The Liberal leader is giving the Government plenty of warning, it must be admitted.

The fact that a flood in December is a novelty does not make the conditions any better for those who are suffering from them.

Reckless driving has been described as the ordinary kind without the usual luck, and unfortunately there is a great deal of truth in that statement.

BETWEEN BOOK ENDS

"THE COLLECTED POEMS OF ELINOR WYLIE" 1932. One of the healthiest omens of contemporary criticism and popular taste is the acclaim which has greeted the work of Elinor Wylie. When, in 1921, in her early thirties, her first volume of verse "Nets to Catch the Wind" was published, Miss Wylie was unknown. Eight years later, her work as we have it in this new "Collected Poems" was finished and she had laid down her pen forever. In these eight years she wrote her "Nets to Catch the Wind," "Black Armour," "Trivial Breath," and "Angels and Earthly Creatures," interspersed with four small delicately-carved novels.

In a note as brief as this must be, we are helpless to illustrate the technique so dazzling, so firm and so fine cut of those practically perfect lines "Wild Peaches," "Sea Lullaby," "Incantation," and the magical "Velvet Shoes"; the sensitive intelligence suggested by Donne, in "Black Armour" which was to be so much her own; of how no one can read "Peter and John" or the suppler "Desolation is a Delicate Thing" without the quickening pulse and caught breath which is the only true announcement of pure poetry; or the deep vibrations which suffuses a steady glow of genius over the consummation which is "Angels and Earthly Creatures."

Well may Louis Untermeyer say "Among the rarest offerings of our time." Many of these 300 pages in this chastely designed "Collected Poems" will die. But some of the quietest seem destined for a far longer life than all but a few of their louder contemporaries. Her sonnets, "One Person," "Little Sonnet" and "Pretty Words" place her unreservedly among the greatest sonneteers of our time. If poetry, the final authority has a voice for all to recognize, its scents are unmistakable in this last book by Elinor Wylie.

"A BROKEN JOURNEY," by Morley Callaghan, 1932. Mr. Callaghan is, by evidence of his novel "Strange Fugitive," and a group of short stories "A Native Argosy," one of Canada's ablest living writers. It is unfortunate that he is not more widely known in this country; his largest audience only reading his work through the medium of the "New Yorker" — may Heaven bless with benigent hand its precious and youthful innocence.

His new novel, "A Broken Journey," is a strange dark book. Essentially his story is the love story of Marion Gibbons, living in a Western Ontario town, who follows her mother whom she despises and yet loves both in quest and disillusionment. It is told with a mysticism strangely compounded of blood-ties, Roman Catholicism, and eroticism. The book is full of psychological and murky probings into the souls of the few characters. Unfortunately these probings are never as definite as Mr. Callaghan's style, which is almost prim in its verbal neatness. There are a number of concrete discriptions and passages that are very close to clear fine poetry. Callaghan is a master of a firm vivid prose, full of solid images. It is in the broader handling of his story that he lapses into obscurity. We may hope for sounder, more balanced things from the typewriter of this young Canadian.

We hesitate to make a list of Christmas Books on the score of popularity, or on any other score. Here, however, is a list of newer books which we would like to give or receive, with various individualities in mind:

"The Sheltered Life" by Ellen Glasgow.

"The fountain" by Charles Morgan.

"Human Being" by Christopher Morley.

"The Song of the Lark" by Willa Cather, new issue.

"Our Times" by Mark Sullivan.

"What We Live By" by Ernest Dimnet.

"Collected Poems of Elinor Wylie."

"The Cautious Amorist" by Norman Lindsay.

"Van Loon's Georgophy."

"A New Deal" by Stuart Chase, and

T. E. Lawrence's "Oddyssey."

In reply to the question "Where can I get these books mentioned in this Column?" nearly all are obtainable at our Public Library, various Lending Libraries or in the Bookshops around town.

WHAT I KNOW ABOUT CHILDREn

I USED to know all there was to be known about children.

Now I know hardly anything.

That was when I read books about them and transferred my reading knowledge to actual youngsters....I knew most when I didn't have any of my own.

That's a fact.

New-born babies are rarely cute. They are red, helpless and usually bad-tempered. You mustn't spoil them, mustn't let grandmothers pick them up when they yell.... They learn too fast, and bully you outrageously—if you allow it. They squall terribly and pretend that they can't get their breath. Don't let them fool you, however, it's merely a trick.

They grow older and are very, cute. That's their dangerous period. You let them get the upper hand of you then and you'll never be the boss in your home .... But you usually aren't anyway....Children are master strategists. Napoleon could take lessons from them. Smart quarters could learn from toddlers, too. They know just how to get what they want. You might as well give it to them; they'll get it anyway.

Children are soft and sweet and tender. But they're hard hearted. Sometimes they shock you by their callousness in the presence of tragedies that break the hearts of older people .... It may not be hard heartedness, however; it may be wisdom. They know what's best; they must grow up, mustn't they; and they can't wreck their emotions along the way.

Children drive their parents "crazy." Sometimes they are naughty peevish, selfish, messy, disobedient....And just when you give up all hope and look sadly to their future, they change their masks and become sweet, gentle, neat, good tempered and obedient. The great majority of children will admit to parents that at times they need spankings; but all parents are not in agreement on that.

No parent can put himself into his child's place; no child wants his parents to try. He'd rather be "let alone." He has his own life and he builds walls around it.

There's a time in every youngster's life when he thinks his parents are "mean"—and any other child's parents would be preferable. And he—or she—frankly says so.

Heredity is more important than environment. Environment is also more important than heredity. Take your choice.

I know—or I think I know—much more about children, but this is the end of the column.

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

LOWER CANADA'S FIRST LEGISLATURE

ON THIS DATE, in 1792, the first Legislature of Lower Canada assembled in the Bishop's Palace at Quebec, as a result of the coming into force of the Constitutional Act. The opening ceremony was presided over by Allured Clarke, the Lieutenant-Governor, Sir Guy Carleton being at home in London. A lively contest took place for the Speakership of the Assembly, Jean Antoine Panet being elected over Jacob Jordan, of Montreal. It was not long before the Assembly was divided upon racial lines and so continued for many years. The English-speaking members included: Edward O'Hara, Gaspe; James Tod, Devon; John Barnes, William Henry (Sore); James Wallace, Montreal Town, James McGill, founder of the University, Montreal West; Joseph Frobisher and John Richardson, founder of the Bank of Montreal, Montreal East; Jacob Jordan Effingham; John Lees, Three Rivers; Thomas Coffin, St. Maurice; Mathew McNider, Hampshire, David Lynd, Quebec County; William Grant, Quebec Upper Town; Robert Lester and John Young, Quebec Lower Town.

It is worth noting that there was a Taschereau in that first assembly, and that there has been one ever since, the present assembly maintaining the family tradition of public service by having in its membership, not only the premier, but also his son, Robert.

Pre-War Lady

A ROMANCE

Margaret Widdemer

CHAPTER 42

The talk went on, short-phrased, allusive. One of the girls was about to go to France for a divorce—and they were ragging her for being so conservative when Reno was nearer. From the quite unembarrassed conversation which flew about her Emilia found that the man she was now married to and the one she was going to marry were both on the party in the car ahead.

Presently they were all pouring through the Scarlett house, diving for a couple of rooms which Emilia found were always used by them as dressing rooms. The girls all swirled into the nearest, and Esther dug out a pile of garments and threw them on the bed.

"I'm not coming out of the pool till comes the dawn, unless it turns cooler" Isabel stated, reaching for a small piece of blue wool and dropping a circle of clothes on the floor.

"I guess nobody is," said Esther still digging. "Here's one I think will fit you Cousin Emilia. Want sandals? I thought I had some. Want to change in your room, don't you? You'll have more room there."

She picked up her own scrap of black silk and preceded her. "Undressing in public meant more befo' de wah, I get from Aunt Myra," she said. 'I thought you'd rather not."

"Thank you for being so thoughtful" said Emilia, who had added twelve years in a country where demoiselles wore chemises in the bathtub to a rearing conservative even for her own day. But she felt a little like a specimen not for the first time with Esther.

She waited, with a small smile at herself till Esther had gone, then put on the bathing suit and joined the others in the pool.

Emilia realized, as the day went on that young Esther was finding time to arrange things for her which did not always have to do with "giving the kids a thrill." The "kids" surged possessively over the house and estate at all hours of the day and night when they were not about their occupations. But presently Miss Myra gave a little tea for her and on one of the weekly nights when Manny made her have an understudy, a little dinner. She was a thrill, an excitement of course, with her return from supposed death. And to her surprise, her performance at Windward Gardens was something for which she was as much envied and admired by her contemporaries when they learned of it as by Esther's crew. What twelve year ago would have been daring, unusual by the kindest standards was nothing now.

Strangely enough it was her old friends who made Emilia feel more of a stray than Esther's group did. Some were married some still single, some widowed and divorced. But most of them men and women, seemed to her to try for a feverish semblance of adolescence. Perhaps the women more than the men. They could not attain the genuine casualness the unconsciousness.

The two she saw most of because they appeared to have a cult for Miss Myra were Mary Haines and Dot—who had been Dorothy—Gordon. Mary hadn't married; Dorothy was a widow.

"They have such lots of things to do" said Miss Myra trustingly. "They are on boards and all sorts of important things. And besides that I hear that the care of the person now takes up hours and hours of time a week. And yet they come to see an old woman like me and even romp about with these wild young friends of Esther's. They ove Esther."

"Oh yeah? They're keeping up the connection till Roger gets back," said Esther uncompromisingly. The three of them were at the luncheon table for Miss Myra was better now in the full tide of summer. The maids went in and out, and the ancestor with Roger's eyes watched Emilia sitting at Roger's table. "That is," the girl went on, "the thorough ones. Some of them simply quit us cold in between. When Roger gets back they'll remember us with devotion. 'S a scream."

Roger. Miss Myra looked horrified for a moment, but went on happily, with Roger's name for a text. Indeed, it was not possible to forget Roger in Roger's house. His niece and his aunt not only adored him but talked about him a good share of the time. He was in the air. His impress was on the place everywhere Emilia turned. Even next door, at her old home. For Emilia did go over, did make friends with the invalid soldiers; sang to them, played with them, in a strange echo of her old war occupation. About half of them were incurables, who came here summer after summer from the hospital; and who owed most of the pleasure of their ruined lives to Roger's steady unforgetting thought for them. The first time she went she came back and locked herself in her room and cried for hours. Miss Myra finally gained admittance, and limping in put her hand on Emilia's shoulder. "I know," she said. "I felt that way when they first came." Emilia lifted her face from the pillow.

"If Robin—had to go" she said, "at least he was well and gay till the last. Not this life-in-death."

"I know," soothed Miss Myra. "I know."

And Dot Gordon was downstairs, and presently Emilia went down.

It wasn't a pleasure to face the fact that Roger might, if he was unwary, marry Dot Gordon. At thirty-two Dot screamed louder, danced longer wore less bathing suit, kissed more men publicly swore more painted more brightly than any teen-age girl. She was always doing something or other very hard and today she was all for a benefit for the invalid soldiers.

"It isn't fair to ask Emilia to give up her only night," said Esther.

But Dot had come at the right moment; Emilia would have given the soldiers anything on earth she had just then.

"And wouldn't Mr. Rose come too?" she insinuated. "If we could only get him—"

Manny had none too much love for his old regiment, which had hazed him as only the different are hazed. But these men were invalids. Emilia thought he would.

"But I can't promise for him," she said.

"I'll ask him myself," said Dot brightly. "The very next evening he's up here. So exciting to have such a famous person in and out, isn't it, Miss Myra?"

"I'm not sure when he's coming," said Miss Myra, whom Esther had by now signaled. But Dot infested the place. She would be sure, they all three knew, to come upon him.

As a matter of fact the fates were good to her. He drove up to get Emilia for an afternoon, the very next day; Dot attacked him and he yielded. Like all good committee women, she had planned every detail, down to the price and printing of the tickets, before she sprang her idea on them. Two weeks would be enough time, she thought, if her organized forces of ticket sellers were directly put to work. Or three.

It was very much like any other day to Emilia; except that she was going to sing a little longer, and without the drive both ways. Esther, as usual, on warm days, had an estateful of her friends. Scattered over the grounds, they were playing tennis, one or two were out on the river, bright as the sunlight was. A group of them had coaxed Emilia to play tennis. But after one or two sets she stopped. She was going to sing longer than usual tonight; besides she wanted a swim. She had been playing, like the others, in a bathing suit. Green-sandaled, green coifed, she looked on her knee length green wool tunic as she came over to the pool, like Atalanta, the literary boy with the straw-colored hair told her. She saw her reflection as she knelt on one knee before slipping into the pool, with a shock of surprise at this tall, bare-legged nymph. Was she over-adaptable, that she had slipped into ways of thought and feeling and action that were today's? Was this why this uncanny little Esther had persisted in making her come here, persisted in surrounding her with these friendly, careless girls and boys to whom a great part of her code, her father's code was an amusing relic of old days, and who managed withal to be after their lights honest and strong and kind?

The annual Christmas tree entertainment of All Saints' choir was held in the Guild Room after the weekly practice, which was as usual a jolly event of the season. Before the commencement of practice, the Rev. J. D. Paterson took the opportunity of saying "thank you" to the members for the loyal support and co-operation which the choir is giving wholeheartedly to the church in these distressing times. The room was tastefully decorated with Christmas streamers of red and green. A large tree prettily adorned with sparkling icicles, ornaments, and brilliantly lighted was the centre of attraction. Each member donated and later received a pretty but inexpensive gift, which was chosen more for its merrymaking power than for its value. Mr. Geo. Chandler acted as Santa Claus and among the presents were reading books for the boy choristers. Musical chairs and other competitions were heartily enjoyed, after which the serving of dainty refreshments was much appreciated. Miss Ena Young, president, moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. S. Willis, social convenor, and her assistants, Mrs. J. Howard, Miss V. Goddard, and Miss Gwen Lucas. Mrs. Willis thanked the members for the pleasure it had given them, also Mr. Young for supplying the Christmas tree. The evening was brought to a close by singing "For they are jolly good fellows" and "Auld Lang Syne."

At the conclusion of the talk on "Christmas in India," given to members and friends of the Lyceum Club Women's Art Association yesterday afternoon by Dr. Charles M. Scott, in the Art Rooms of the Conservatory of Music, tea was served from a very prettily arranged table. Draped with a lace cloth, it was centred by a hexagonal bevel-edged mirror on which was placed a silver bowl filled with yellow and bronze mums of the large, daisy and pompom types. There was a silver tea service and two tall silver candlesticks held pine-needle green tapers. On the cloth, unique ornaments were tiny deer with curved horns. The piano also was adorned with a bowl of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums. Tea hostesses were: Mrs. A. E. Dixon and Mrs. L. J. Leclair, and assistants were: Mrs. G. E. Porter, Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, Mrs. B. V. Moore, Mrs. F. Hooper, Miss Annie Wood, Miss Grace Rinehart, Miss T. Mather, and Miss Laura Belleghem. Arrangements were in charge of the Social convenors, Mrs. H. E. Connelly and Mrs. A. Barton.

About fifty young people were present last night at a social evening held under the auspices of the Young People's Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, when each of the guests brought a top or money gift which was turned over to the Relief Committee of the Ladies' Aid Society. The hall was nicely decorated with Christmas colors and streamers, and a Christmas tree illuminated by electricity. Jack Bennett as Santa Claus greeted the arriving guests. Jack Clayton took the chair for the program, which incuded a whistling solo by Miss Mignon Mayneord, accompanied by Miss Helen Steer, a reading by Miss Ila Valleau and comic songs by Mr. William H. Grieves. Games followed, with refreshments and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" to conclude a pleasant evening. Dancing was done by Mary White Isabel Reid, Jack Bennett, and Don White. Sybil Jackson had charge of social arrangements.

FASHION SERVICE

The beauty of this exquisitely lovely model is that it can be carried out in contrasts of fabrics, also contrasts in color and dull and shiny surfaces of materials may be worked to advantage.

The original used exclusive black half-shiny crinkly crepe satin with the reverse side which appears like a dull crinkly crepe silk.

Another delightful scheme is black rough crepe silk with black cire satin crepe.

Tomato-red rough crepe with back crepe bodice section and sleeve buttons is young and smart.

Style No. 3249 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, and 40 inches bust.

CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS for the home may be elaborate or simple, but in either event some sort of a plan should be made whereby the amount of money allowed for the festive appearance of the place can be best expended.

* * * * * * *

There is nothing that quite takes the place of evergreens with splashes of red, holly berries being a first preference, or poinsettias where they are obtainable.

* * * * * * *

Holly berries and poinsettias can be artificial, of cloth or paper. Crisp red satin ribbon is chosen by some persons when the genuine berries and blossoms are not obtainable.

* * * * * * *

* * * * * * *

Two good places to centre decorations are the living and dining rooms. For the mantelpiece in the living-room, use three flower pots, fancy ones or covered with red crepe paper, four tall red candles in candlesticks, and enough sprays of any kind of evergreens to form three little Christmas trees and some tiny cake candles, which cost but a few cents a box.

* * * * * * *

If possible, have one of the flowerpots a bit larger than the other two. In any case, one of the trees should be larger, and this stands in the centre of the mantelpiece between two of the candlesticks.

* * * * * * *

Next to these candlesticks come the smaller potted trees. At the ends of the mantelpiece position the other candlesticks. Make wee Christmas packages, wrap in red and in fancy papers, with one or two in white, and with gilt, red, or fancy cord or twine, or very narrow ribbon.

* * * * * * *

Fasten little candles here and there on branches. The pots can be filled with soil, sand, or whatever will hold the Christmas twig trees upright. Use ground pine or ropes of laurel leaves to festoon from the mantelpiece.

* * * * * *

If there is a picture molding, make other festoons down from it, using picture hooks to hold festoon in place. A bow of red ribbon in the centre top of the molding festoon adds further decoration.

* * * * * * *

One of the trees can be put in the centre of the dining-room table for dinner. Around the base arrange gaily wrapped Christmas favors.

* * * * * * *

These wrapped favors are selected by guests or given around by the host at the end of the meal. When there are old family servants in the house, it is nice to have one favor for each about the tree also.

DEATH OF A. LOW MOURNED BY MANY

Was One of First Jews to Enter Business in Peterboro.

In the death of Abraham Low at the Nicholls Hospital last Wednesday night Peterborough has lost a citizen of thirty years' residence whose quiet, kindly personality will be long remembered by his many friends. Born in Galicia sixty years ago, he came to Canada as a young man, lived in Toronto for a time and then came to this city, one of the first Jews to enter into business here. His success was built up around the firm of A. Low and Company, of which he was the head, but his business was not his only interest. During the years of his residence here he was several times president of the Peterborough Hebrew congregation and was president of the Peterborough Jewish Immigrants' Society. He was held in high respect not only by the Jewish people of the city but also by many other friends who knew him as an upright worthy citizen. True to the ancient orthodox faith of the Hebrews, Abraham Low kept the traditional observances when only several Jewish families were living here years ago, and when others joined them he was among the foremost in providing accommodation for divine worship according to the old rites of his people. He will be remembered as a fine citizen whose qualities of heart were confirmed in the test of the passing years.

Mr. Low is survived by his widow and one son, Jacob Low, who was born in Peterborough and recently began the practice of law in this city; and also by one brother in New York. His death followed three months' illness of pernicious anaemia, and his remains were removed to Toronto for burial.

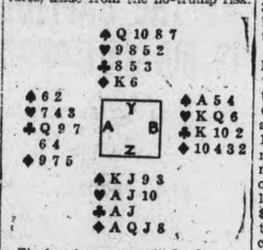
THE NO-TRUMP RISK

A single stop to a suit always is a hazard that suit makes do not run to the same extent. A long adverse suit, a card of entry, and a single stop to the long suit, completes a combination that has wrecked many a no-trump score. The following hand shows two interesting features, aside from the no-trump risk.



Z's hand was unsuited for an opening suit bid of two of any sort, but its great strength in three suits caused him to make an opening bid of 2-No Trumps. Had he played the hand at that make he must have lost four club tricks and one spade trick, just making his two-odd, as his partner could not well have supported no-trumps. Y would not have dreamed of taking out a bid of 1-No Trump, but Y did make a fortunate shift, even if a dangerous one, of 3-Spades. Z jumped into 5-Spades, and B doubled the declaration.

The opening lead was the K of hearts. Dummy's Ace won the first trick B's Ace of spades won the return lead, and that player won his second trick with the Q of hearts. As his partner had shown at least three small hearts, by playing them in regular order (3 and 4), instead of in reverse order (4 and 3), B knew that A could not ruff a third round of hearts, so he shifted to diamonds, leading his fourth best card of that suit, hoping that his partner held the missing K. The declarer played the K. Then he took two rounds of spades, dropping all opposing trumps, and leaving one spade in dummy and one in his own hand for future use.

Y led his last diamond, and dummy won three tricks in that suit, affording the declarer an opportunity to discard two clubs. Dummy's good J of hearts was next led. It pulled down the last opposing heart, and it left the long heart in the declarer's hand.

At that stage the declarer spread his cards, claiming the balance of tricks, and fulfilment of his contract of five-odd. Of course Z's hand seemed as if a small hand were possible, but his poor partner held almost nothing. The spade take-out of the no-trump was made hoping to save loss at no-trumps. Y-Z were indeed fortunate to fulfill a contract of five, although Z hardly can be blamed for thinking his partner should make more than game with so powerful a dummy.

After the hand was over, A took his partner to task for having led through the diamonds, claiming that leading through so strong a suit was the only thing that enable Y to fulfill his contract. A thought that B should have led a club, and that had he done so either A or B must have won a club trick.

Suppose B had led a club, before he took his good heart. What difference could it have made? Dummy's Ace would have won the first club trick. Two rounds of trumps could have been taken. Then the declaring side could have run off four diamond tricks. Upon the last two diamond tricks the declarer could have discarded his two remaining clubs. Then B could have been given his one heart trick, but his one heart trick and his one spade trick is all that B could have won. When B led a club the declarer would have ruffed with his last trump, leaving every card in dummy worth a trick, and giving the declaring side its five-odd. Such post-mortems are a nuisance, and often it takes considerable argument to show the complainant that he is wrong.

W. L. Mackenzie King 58 Years Old To-Day

OTTAWA, Dec. 17.—(C.P.)— Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons and Dominion chieftain of the Liberal party, is to-day celebrating the 58th anniversary of his birth. The former Prime Minister was born in Berlin (now Kitchener, Ont.,) December 17, 1874. Mr. King returned from Toronto this morning and will spend his birthday at Laurier House, official residence of the Opposition leader in Ottawa. To-night he will entertain at a private dinner.

EXPECT CANCER DEATH INCREASE

Robb Claims 2,000 of 3,737 Who Died in 1932 Should Have Been Saved.

UPHOLDS NEW CLINICS.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. Cancer deaths in Ontario during the coming year are likely to increase, declared Hon. J. M. Robb, Minister of Health for the province, in addressing a service club here. During 1932 he said, 3,373 deaths from the disease had been recorded and at least 2,000 of these should not have occurred.

The Ontario Government, he had a preventative policy which would soon lead to reductions of the cancer death rate. Cancer centres were already under way at Toronto and Kingston, while the London Clinic suugested in the report of the Ontario Cancer Commission had been held up. Citizens of the latter city voted down a by-law which would have provided $300,000 for a new hospital containing accommodation for the clinic.

The new clinics, he said, would provide a means whereby the disease would be investigated from a diagnostic standpoint and later cancer clinics would be available to the general public at different points in the province.

Surest Policy

The surest preventative policy against all diseases, he said, was obtained by minimizing the dangers of contagion. It was planned, he continued, that all results of investigation and experiments would in time be available to the public at clinics to be established at convenient points.

The department of health, he declared, was continuing its efforts to see no one in distress suffered for want of medical care and attendance even though unable to pay for it. Accommodation at all hospitals and public institutions had been increased as a result of the depression.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton M.D

RESULTS IN GALL BLADDER OPERATIONS

You have been troubled perhaps with a great deal of gas in the stomach and abdomen, lack of appetite, and a general feeling of laziness. Life doesn't look very bright, and the ordinary remedies for indigestion—baking soda, bismuth, pepsin, and others—do not give relief.

You have had test meals or an X ray of the stomach and there is no ulcer, cancer, or other organic trouble there.

Finally after certain tests it is discovered that your gall bladder is at fault, an inflammation there is the cause of the trouble.

The condition gets so bad that your doctor advises that nothing but an operation will give relief.

When operation is advised your first thought naturally is whether you can be reasonably sure of good results by operation.

What about this?

Dr. J. C. Ross, London, England, has studied the results obtained in a series of 153 cases of operations for gall bladder trouble. These results are about what are found by surgeons elsewhere.

He concludes that a cure can be expected in about 83 percent. Of the rest about 10 percent are relieved while 7 percent get no relief.

This means then that more than 8 out of every 10 cases are cured, and 9 out of every 10 are cured or relieved of some of the symptoms.

The symptoms of gass pressure, and "fussiness" about the quality of food eaten disappear in over 80 percent of the cases.

Strange as it may appear, where there were no gall stones present, the prospect of a cure was less.

Another point noted by most observers is that the age of the patient makes little difference in the prospect for a cure; old people do as well as young people from the operation. It is allowing the case to continue too long without help that interferes with getting the best results.

Still another point that is of interest to the patient as he considers the matter of operation is the length of time he is likely to be away from work or business. Dr. Ross states that the average period before full work can be resumed is about three months—thirteen weeks.

The above figures would indicate that when the point is reached where operation is advised the prospect of a cure is very favorable.

Star Of Bethlehem Lodge's New Officers

Election and installation of officers of Star of Bethlehem Lodge No. 650 took place on the evening of Dec. 14, R.W.G.D. Sister Wright presiding. New officers were installed as follows:

W.M., Sister M. Clee; D.M., Sister V. Bolton; Chaplain, Sister M. Wood; Rec. Sec., Sister G. Fountain; Fin. Sec., Sister G. Bolton; Treas., Sister E. Tate! D. of C., Sister A. Collins, Jr.; 1st Lect., Sister C. Wall; Deputy Lect., Sister Melbourne; I.G., Sister C. Smith; 1st Com., Sister M. Fowler; Guard., Bro. Holden; Auditors, Sister Tate; P.M., Sister Collins.

At the close of installation, P.M. Sister M. Collins was presented with the past mistress' jewel by Sister Clee, W.M. Short speeches were given by visiting sisters and brethren, after which a dainty lunch and a social half hour was spent.

Install New Stove In Gaol Kitchen

The new stove is in the gaol kitchen. Gone is the old impaired stove and with it the fire hazard that it constituted. The change was effected on Friday afternoon, just a little over twenty-four hours after the Grand Jury had criticised the condition that existed and had made urgent recommendation that a new stove be installed without delay.

The old stove was removed yesterday afternoon and dumped in the yard along with other county property. The new stove was being installed this morning by the Adam Hall Company, from whom it was purchased.

Reeve C. S. Tanner, chairman of the County Property Committee by strange coincident was at the time of the Grand Jury's presentment "right on the job" to quote his own words. He had ordered installation of the new stove some three weeks ago.

Nature Hodge-Podge Over United States

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(A.P.)—Nature mixed a hodge-podge of the elements for the United States to-day. Residents of the northern plain states were buttoning up their overcoats more tightly to greet sagging temperatures, while in other sections of the middle-west a meteorological sommersault brought comparatively warm weather.

Rigid temperatures were due throughout most of the east and south, but Atlanta reports a belt of sleet and snow from Arkansas to Georgia. Some highways in Northern Mississippi were blocked by high water, hampering traffic. Sleet and snow greeted Charlotte, North Carolina, followed by low temperature of 20—a record for the season.

Ideals of Church Are Told in Book

A notable book, entitled "What Our Church Stands For," has just made its appearance and is on sale at the leading bookstalls throughout the Dominion.

Its sub-title, "The Anglican Church in Canadian Life," denotes the particular Church that is referred to but even this does not sufficiently set forth the scope of the matter contained within its covers.

In reality, the book contains a series of articles from many of the higher lights of the Anglican Church in Canada. Four Bishops, including the Primate of Canada, the Dean of Ontario, the Archdeacon of Peterborough, two Principals of the Theological Colleges besides others holding high places in the counsels of its communion have contributed their quota and the result is a thoroughly clear and exhaustive summary of the main features of the Church's principles and policy.

Primarily, its appeal is to the Anglican layman, but is safe to add that those outside the fold of the Church will find much within its covers to dispel prejudice and promote goodwill.

Machine Hits Train Truck Driver Hurt

CHATHAM, Ont., Dec. 17.—(C.P.)—Haydon Griffith, this city, was critically injured to-day when the truck he was driving crashed through crossing gates and into the tender of a west-bound Canadian Pacific Railway express.

The truck was wrecked and the tender of the locomotive put out of commission, the train being held up for some time until another locomotive could be sent from London.

Griffith was severely injured about the head and was still unconscious in hospital.

A Chat with Young Peterboro

ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR DECEMBER 18.

EVERYBODY believes that Christ is our Saviour and that's a wonderful thing. But the Scripture tells us that He is our example, too. His life is the pattern for ours. We are told that we are to follow in His steps. The other day I was in the grocery store and there was a stranger there busy with the grocer's scales. When he had gone out I says, "Who was that chap?" The grocer says, "Oh! that was the government inspector. She the stamp he's put on my scales. Shows they're up to standard." Well, thinks I, the world has its own idea of what a follower of the Master ought to be, too. I had just heard someone blaming a church member. The particular person said, "Well, I don't think that was a Christian thing to do." We've got to be up to standard and pattern our lives on the Saviour's.

I read once about the Indians in South America when the Spaniards were making their conquests there. The Spanish priests tried to convert them, but the Indians refused to be baptized. They said, "The Spaniard's god must be a cruel god, for he has such cruel servants." "Right!" says you. But wait; if you have a dull electric bulb you don't blame the quality of the current that the Hydro is giving you. You get a new bulb. Well, we are the bulbs and the Saviour is the light. We've got to be up to standard if people are to see the Light of the World as it ought to be seen.

I knew a man that was a pretty good carpenter. He thought he could build a house all right, but it was a pretty botched up affair after all, in spite of his good workmanship. Yes, sir! It's not enough to believe in Christ as our Saviour, we've got to take Him as our example and shape our lives by the pattern He has given us.—Young Canada.

CHRISTMAS CONCERT IS HELD BY PRINCE OF WALES STUDENTS

Admission and Sales Receipts to be Used for Relief Purposes.

PLEASING PROGRAM.

An event of more than ordinary interest to the teaching staff and the children as well as the Home and School Association of the Prince of Wales School, took place on Thursday and Friday evenings. This was the occasion of the Christmas concert, when the spacious assembly Hall was crowded to its limit. Christmas decorations made a cheery and appropriate setting for the two excellent programs, which were given entirely by the pupils of the school.

A unique form of admission fee was the contribution of non-perishable articles of food to be used for relief purposes, as was also the proceeds of the sale at the white elephant table. Ladies of the association had charge of the tables and acted as door-keepers, while the teachers wrere responsible for the concert numbers from their respective rooms.

The president, Mrs. Spicer announced the numbers and the vast assembly was welcomed on behalf of the school staff by Mr. G. S. Mattice, the principal.

Heard from outside as the little tots came marching in was the Christmas Carol "Nowell" sung by Miss L. Wilson's class.

In perfect unison, the children of Miss E. Huffman's class, told the Christmas story as found in the second chapter of Luke and also sang the story of the birth of Christ in "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night."

Two representatives from Miss G. Coulter's class, Betty Allen and Phyllis Simpson delighted everyone with their fine piano duett.

The primary grades were again in evidence when the small numbers of Miss Milburn's class brought Christmas quite near as they sang in their sweet treble voices "Jolly Old Santa Claus."

Very fine dramatic ability was shown in the plays presented. Under the direction of Miss Baird a group from her class gave a splendid delineation of the familiar story "The Tiger, the Brahmin and the Jackal."

Dickens' "Christmas Carol" was given in a three-act play, with realistic effect by Miss Wagar's pupils, while the dialogue "The Christmas Grouch was excellently done by five boys of Miss Green's room. The three motion songs were each very effective, the first "Poor Old Christmas Dolls" was by Miss Coulter's girls, while girls from the Junior Fourth clasnes gave "Away in a Manger" and the good-night song, with Miss Green accompanying at te piano.

In their pretty costumes the Senior Fourth girls went through their intricate drill steps in perfect precision.

On Friday evening another large audience was in attendance wheh the Kindergarten children introduced the program with their Christmas song. They again appeared and made quite a hit in their dramatization of "The Three Bears" and again in "The Toy Parade" Each of these numbers was under the direction of Misses Connolly and Lawrence.

"Christmas customs of other lands" was interestingly told in story by boys and girls representing Miss Thomlinson's class.

Miss Hunter's class cleverly acted out the visit of the Shepherds in story, song and motion, and a Cristmas acrostic by Miss Pakenham's class met with much applause.

As a pleasing variation of the program were the selections from the senior grades, including a duett "Holy Night" by Celia Foster, and Violet Stanley of Mr. Frost's room, and Isobel Young who contributed the appropriate reading "Christmas."

Showing the effect of fine training a group of senior pupils sang the Christmas chorus "King Wenceias" led by Mrs. Allen.

Provoking much merriment the boys and girls of Miss Richardson's class presented the humorous little playlet "The photograph gallery."

The senior girls repeated their pleasing drill and goodnight song, while the successful programs of both evenings closed with community singing of many quaint old Christmas carols, led by Mr. Allen.

The Prince of Wales staff of teachers are receiving congratulations upon the excellent work done by pupils, which has made these two concerts a success in every way.

Recent experiments in Manitoba in the use of fish meal as fertilizer, increased the yield of oats from 22.6 bushels to 90.4 bushels per acre.

India produces a wild silk, using silkworms that feed on leaves of the castor oil plant.

GUILD IS UNITED WITH LADIES' AID

Mrs. Albert Darling Chosen President of Lakefield Women's Association.

BAZAAR REPORT GIVEN.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 17.—(Examiner Correspondence.) — Thirty-four members of the Woman's Association of the United church were present at the regular meeting held in the school room of the church on Tuesday afternoon. This meeting marked what is probably the official union of the Ladies' Aid of Regent Street Church and the Ladies' Guild of Knox Church. The former society, with its twenty-five years of continuous activity and remarkable service has a splendid tradition which will be carried on in the new organization. The Ladies' Guild is a younger society, but has proved its worth many times as the officials of the former Knox church can testify.

The treasurer presented the report of the bazaar, which totalled $247.16 and Knox Church Guild added their quota of $70, making a total of $317.16, which was highly gratifying to all concerned.

Rev. W. R. Archer, B.A., was present for the election if officers, which was a very important feature of the meeting.

The following were elected for 1933:

Honorary President— Mrs. S. S. Spence.

President—Mrs. Albert Darling.

1st Vice-President—Mrs. Amberson Davis.

2nd Vice-President— Mrs. C. W. Garbutt.

Recording Secretary—Mrs. Walter Hamblin.

Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. G. E. Renwick.

Financial Secretary — Miss M. Sanderson.

Treasurer—Mrs. J H. Webster.

Pianist—Mrs. J. R. Northey.

Auditors—Mrs. A. E. Higgins and Mrs. C. H Spence.

The meetings will be held the third Tuesday each month and the fees as usual ten cents a month.

The appointment of Mrs. S. S. Spence to the position of honorary president was an honor richly deserved as Mrs. Spence has held the office of treasurer for practically all the years in which the Ladies' Aid was in existence and her service to the society, to her church and community are quite outstanding and the entire village will be glad that she has been given this signal honor, and hopes she will live for years to occupy this position.

Only Two Bounties Collected On Wolves

During the whole of the present Fall and Winter only two wolf bounties have been collected in the whole of Peterborough County, according to information obtained at the office of the County Clerk and Treasurer. The scarcity of wolves remains unexplained.

Trappers and hunters have great inducement to trap wolves, their being a bounty of $25.00, fifteen dollars of which is paid by the county and the remainder by the provincial government.

In claiming the bounty, it is necessary for the trapper, hunter or farmer to bring the pelt to the office of the county clerk at Peterborough. The pelt is then forwarded from here to the Department of Game and Fisheries at Toronto, where the forehead of the skin is marked with a cross, ((to prevent double collection of bounty on the one pelt) before being forwarded back to the owner.

One of the two bounties paid this season in Peterborough County was in the early fall, the other one was paid only the other day.

GIRL ALMOST SCALPED

KITCHENER, Ont., Dec. 17 (CP) —Eleven-year-old Irmine Bowman, of Elmira, was partially scalped today when her hair became caught in a revolving shaft in her father's barn. Her scalp was torn off from her forehead nearly to the back of her head. She is in hospital in a critical condition.

13 SPADES AND HE LOST

DUNKIRK, N. Y. — Thirteen spades in a bridge game and outbid by a pair of bold opponents who made seven no trump—that's the experience of George Ward of Dunkirk. Ward's partner had nothing better to offer than the eight of hearts. Their opponents, realizing from the bidding that Ward had an unusual hand, and his partner nothing, gambled on holding the lead. They did.

MIDNIGHT SHOW AT THE CAPITOL IS BIG SUCCESS

Show Was Not As Well Attended as in Former Years.

GOOD PROGRAM.

The third annual Midnight Show at the Capitol Theatre for relief, held last night, was a successful event. The patronage was not as large as in other years, owing to counter attractions, but, considering the smaller audiences which are the rule now for every type of performance, it was quite satisfactory.

The show, made possible through the kindness of Famous Players Canadian Corporation and their local manager, J. A. Stewart, was held under the auspices of The Examiner, and the proceeds will be divided between The Examiner Relief Fund, the local branch of the Canadian Legion, the Catholic Women's League and the Salvation Army.

The picture program, included an amusing feature, with Marion Davies in "Ti's a Wise Child" an entertaining Charlie Chase comedy, "One of the Smiths" and a diverting Gallagher and Shean screen song.

R. M. Glover, managing director of The Examiner, spoke briefly, thanking the audience for their attendance, Mr. Stewart and their staff for co-operation and support and the performers for their generous assistance.

"There is an old and true saying that 'the night is darkest before the dawn' and I think we are now going through the darkest hours of this time, which will soon be over," Mr. Glover said, concluding with a general wish for a happy Christmas and bright New Year.

The vaudeville program delighted the audience, as each number was greeted with renewed and persistent applause and cries of "More!"

Through the courtesy of Major G. G. Winterbottom, M.C., D.C.M., Officer commanding the Peterborough Rangers, and the generous co-operation of Lieutenant W. H. Peryer, bandmaster, who arranged the numbers, a brass sextette from the band, bright in their snappy red tunics, played "The Bells of St. Mary's" and "Christmas Now Returns" with a delightful addition in the Cathedral chimes, played off stage. Their fine music was greeted with repeated plaudits.

Bird Imitations

The same generous meed of appreciation was repeated until Miss Mignon Mayneord, the second performer on the program, came back for an encore to her unique and beautiful whistling number, Thom's "Simple Aveu." This young lady possesses an out of the ordinary accomplishment. She can whistle as sweetly, evenly and easily as a bird, with trilly long scales that hold the attention to the last sweet echo. As an encore she whistled several passages of the lovely "Indian Love Call."

Then came Sam Harris, who is always a favorite with the crowd and came back for a bow after his entertaining act "Sense and Nonsense," which included some snappy monologue bits and two songs, "In a Shanty in Old Shantytown" and "Sleep, Baby, Sleep" with the well-known yodelling refrain. An amusing parody on "The Face on the Bar Room Floor" was also included in his act.

Two young ladies who got a big hand and deserved every bit of it were the dandy little tap dancers who are making such a name for themselves just now. Miss Isabel Duffus and Miss Thelma Buller danced so blithely and so well that their enthused audience brought them back with repeated and persistent encores, to repeat their skilful and clever dance. Their outfits were in snappy black and white, with knife-pleated black skirts and black 'cowboy' scarfs and tight white blouses.

For the dances, the whistling selections and for the songs by Sam Harris, Miss Marguerite Rome played piano accompaniments, coming in at the last minute with generous support and assistance.

One of the surprise hits of the evening was the close harmony in splendid voice achieved by an organization that made its premier bow to the general public last night, Lieutenant (Dr.) Ralph Honey's octette from C Company of the Machine Gun Battalion. The boys did nobly and the audience liked them and said so in the usual way, for their semi-serious rendition of "who killed Cock Robin?" The group includes their leader, Dr. Honey, armed with a lengthy ruler; Fred Shewel, Jack Ridyard, James Ridyard, Earl Hope, Spencer Hope, Jack Olaveson, Richard Francis and Jerry Cullen.

LOCAL ARTISTS EXHIBIT WORK AT CONSERVATORY

Dr. C. M. Scott Describes Christmas in India to Lyceum Club.

EXHIBIT OF POTTERY.

An interesting exhibit of paintings by several local artists was a feature of the meeting yesterday afternoon in the Art rooms of the Conservatory of Music, under the auspices of the Lyceum Club Women's Art Assocaton, when Dr. Charles M. Scott gave his address on "Christmas in India."

The paintings were exhibited by Mrs. T. Cruikshanks, who showed two lovely flower pictures in delphinium and zinnia studies; Mrs. John Crane, with an effective study of pink chrysanthemums and several bits of scenic beauty; Miss F. Hatton, whose nature sketches included pretty tree reproductions and and interesting painting of the entrance to St. John's Church; Miss Cameron Edwards, whose softly tinted paintings from nature were much admired; Miss Mamie McCarthy, who exhibited an interesting water-color entitled "The Country Doctor," two small water-color landscapes from nature with Titian-like bright coloring also a miniature painted from life on ivory, and Miss Margaret Stevenson, whose exquisite miniatures were in a group by themselves, one being a copy of a miniature exhibited by Miss Stevenson at the Paris Salon, when she secured that coveted honor during her stay in France.

There was also an exhibit of Otonabee pottery which aroused much interest. It is the work of three men who settled here some time ago and set up a kiln on Water street north. Damage to the kiln has caused them much recent inconvenience. They are Messrs. Reddell, Armand and Schultes. A small oil painting by the latter was also included in the exhibit of pictures. The pottery exhibit was of small pieces; book ends, animal paper weights, vases and holy water fonts in green, red and brown clay.

Mrs. W. Blackwell, president of the association, congratulated the artists and spoke of the fine quality of their work. Mrs. Blackwell also drew the attention of the ladies to the splendid course of lectures recently announced by the Friday Night Supper Club of the Y.M.C.A., and mentioned that three of the lectures have been heard here under Art Association auspices. Mention was also made of the forthcoming visit of Arthur Lismer in January.

"Christmas in India"

Dr. Scott, who just recently came to the city with his wife and family, after many years' residence in Rutlam, Central India, gave an entertaining brief sketch of the Christmas-time customs of that far-away land.

Christmas has a much different meaning there than here, explained the doctor, but still it is signalized by the keeping of a public holiday. Those engaged in missionary work celebrate it as festively as possible, as the native Hindu finds its difficult to give up the great and elaborate ceremonial festivities of his own religion, and therefore the most possible is made of this great festival.

Samples of Christmas cards in use there were shown by the speaker. Messages common to our own land were inscribed in English, with Hindu translations below. His Highness the Maharajah Sir Udaji Rao Puar, ruler of one of the Indian states, sent Dr. and Mrs. Scott a card with the usual wishes for a happy Christmas and bright New Year. On plain white paper, another card was topped by the quotation: "Justice is the gem of the crown." This was from Her Highness Laxmibar Puar, Maharani of Dhar, Central India. A crest in red, with a falcon surmounted by a curved sword and the Latin motto: "Non Nobis Domine," dignified the front, but the inner page was emblazoned by a picture of a rather old-fashioned motor car.

Many preparations are made for the big day. A bath and new clothes are awarded to the children. The young men spend hours on Christmas Eve decorating the church with festoons of gay colored paper. At midnight, pandemonium breaks loose, when bells, whistles and factory sirens shriek forth a welcome to the new-born Prince of Peace. Then during the cold Indian night, when the temperature sometimes reaches to freezing point, the equivalent of English waits go about in cotton garments, singing carols and waking up the neigborhood.

Christmas Day in India is always fine and sunny, declared the doctor, and is always clear and bright, for sunshine obtains there daily all year round, except in the rainy months of July, August and September.

Usual Wishes

At eight o'clock, there is church service, when everyone shakes hands and is generally friendly with everyone else, with the hope that "Christmas Day may be a happy one for you."

Later comes noon-tide breakfast, then the presentation of gifts to servants and staff members, and the daily round of hospital visits. Each year comes the same lone musician playing the Scotch bagpipes, with the same tunes and the same demand for backsheesh or alms. Here also come those who wish for favors and work, bringing gaily-decorated trays of fruits and garlands to throw about the necks of those they wish to please. In the afternoon there is a program of games and races.

Mr Scott also mentioned the Christmas-day visits to the leper asylum with which he was associated in India, where the wrecks of humanity, many minus sight, taste, smell and with parts of their limbs gone, still are able to enjoy the gifts which come to them on the natal day of Christ.

At some of the missionary stations, he said, Christmas is commemorated by the holding of a huge community feast. A goat is killed in the morning and eaten at night, after its preparation with rice and curry and spices, and its cooking in large brass vessels resembling tubs.

Reference was made to the big Christmas 'shoots' of the country. Hunters are invited by those who have charge of the large game preserves. They establish themselves in cages in trees, camouflaged by leaves, and one to three hundred men then converge from a large circle to the central point, beating before them, with long sticks and shrill cries, all the game in the preserve, whether it be peacocks, blue cows or the wild panthers and tigers.

A very eloquently-worded expression of thanks to the doctor was voiced in characteristic fashion by Madam Goulet and seconded by Mrs. R. J. Kidd.

Afternoon tea was served at the conclusion of the address.

The first patent granted on the American continent was to Samuel Winslow, by the General Court of Massachusetts in 1641, for a novel method of making salt.

ALBERT GREENLAW, BASS SINGER, HEARD IN RECITAL AT Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Greenlaw Was at His Best in Negro Spirituals.

MISS MUSA COX ASSISTS.

(By Jeanette)

Albert E. Greenlaw of Detroit, the distinguished bass - baritone singer who has so many friends in Peterborough, delighted an appreciative audience once again when he sang last night in recital in the auditorium of the the Young Men's Christian Association.

Mr. Greenlaw was assisted by Miss Musa Cox, solo pianiste. His accompanist was Arthur Collison and in one of his numbers, "One Fleeting Hour" he sang with violin obligato played on muted strings by Roy Rome.

G. H. Roper announced the numbers and voiced the appreciation of the audience to Mr. Greenlaw and the assisting musicians, at the close of a nicely-timed and extremely satisfying program. Although Peterborough audiences are said to be somewhat chary of applauding too much, while they have also the reputation of being extremely good listeners, it was a large meed of sincere appreciation that was bestowed on Mr. Greenlaw and Miss Cox last evening.

The vocalist's admirers will remember the strength and richness of Mr. Greenlaw's massive and splendidly-trained deep baritone voice. Combining resonance, volume and expressive rendition with a fervent and rounded tone, he sings with an easy control that gives a delightful finish to his music. The sincerity and feeling that animates his songs is heightened by the skilful manner of their presentation and the ease with which he sings softly or forcefully at will. The low, sweet tones used for the romantic numbers swell out in graduated, forceful crescendo fashion for dramatic selections. It is indeed a very satisfying type of musicianship.

In the songs of his own race, the Negro spirituals, Mr. Greenlaw was at his best. There were two groups of these folk songs of an exiled race vocalizing the heart cry of a burdened people longing for a better land. They were vitalized by a deep religious fervor and even in the gayer spirituals was that sombre note of unsatisfied longing and pathetic resignation.

The first group of songs presented strong contrasts. Opening with the forceful "King of the Forest Am I", the second was beautiful in sentiment and expression, "One Fleeting Hour", and "Mighty Lak' a Rose" was the charming third.

Then came three love songs by the same composer, Metcalf; "Stars May Forget", that poignant promise to the lost love, sung with a curiously quick tempo; the well-known "Absent", the cry of memory for the one gone beyond recall; and again the rebellious plaint of the forsaken lover in the memorable rendition of "Who Knows?" The last was a beautiful thing that echoed in the memory.

The Negro spirituals that formed the last two groups were greeted with renewed and long applause, so expressive was their rendition and so sweet their music. The song of the Jordan, "Deep River", came first, with the changing atmosphere for the gayer triumph of "Heav'n, Heav'n", made by the introduction of two brief jokes. Then came the sombre weariness of "By an' By" (I'm goin' to lay down my heavy load).

The second group of spirituals included the strength and force of "Walk in Jerusalem Jes' Like John", the low, slow, rich cadences of "Steal Away to Jesus", and the wistful plea of "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" (comin' for to carry me home). In the two last was noticeable a clever treatment of the finales of the words in the refrain that added much to their effectiveness.

In response to insistent applause, Mr. Greenlaw sang "Dear Old Homeland," with much expression.

Miss Musa Cox's piano numbers were fine interludes in the vocal program. Always a brilliant player, Miss Cox seemed to be at her best last night, playing with ease and skill five exacting numbers. Her firm, confident touch, her smooth, elastic, bright tone and her sure musicianship, combined with an unfaltering memory, made her music especially attractive.

She played "Esprit du Soir" by Charles Dennee, as an opening selection, its gay, vivacious French atmosphere contrasting pleasurably with the milder manner of Mendelssohn in the "Spinning Song", with its swift, tiny, unceasing treble notes, descriptive of the song of the spinning wheel.

Two compositions of Chopin were beautiful. The first was the thrilling Nocturne from Opus 15, No. 2, with the picture of the night wind in a fascinating, errant refrain in the treble, caught in the dreamy and temperamental fantasies of music that seemed like the echo of another land. The swift and brittle brilliancy of a Chopin Valse came later.

Lizst's Hungarian Rhapsody was the last piano number, another brilliant rendition of music that was filled with sudden transitions in mood, its loud and crashing chords serving as interludes for soft and trilly passages that moved again to a forceful crescendo and finished in a sudden and smashing finale.

Mr. Roper announced at the close that Mr. Greenlaw will sing three times on Sunday, at St. Andrew's Church in the morning, at Murray street Church in the evening, and later in the evening at the Christmas carol community service to be held in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute.

BISHOP D. T. OWEN OFFICIATES ORDINATION HELD IN COBOURG

Rev. W. F. Payton, Gore's Landing, is One of Two Deans Elevated to Priesthood.

Sermon By Rev. W. Simpson.

COBOURG, Dec. 17.—The Bishop of Toronto, Rt. Rev. D. T. Owen, held his advent ordination in St. Peter's Church at Cobourg yesterday—the first ordination service at St. Peter's in 40 years. On this occation, St. Peter's Church was the pro-cathedral of the Diocese of Toronto. The sermon was delivered by Rev. W. Simpson of Millbrook. Two deacons were elevated to the priesthood—Rev. W. F. Payton, Gore's Landing, and Rev. A. Ottewell, assistant to Canon Dyson Hague, Toronto. At the last ordination service in St. Peter's, 40 years ago, Canon Hague was one of the candidates. Leonard Geary, theological student at Wycliffe College, Toronto, was ordained a deacon, and will become assistant to Canon Armstrong of the Church of the Redeemer, in Toronto.

COLD WEATHER WILL CONTINUE

Pessimistic Weatherman Sees Only Very Slight Let-up on Sunday.

RECORDS SET ON COAST.

TORONTO, Dec. 17.—Continued cold weather of the near-zero variety will be experienced by Toronto citizens to-day and in most parts of the province, weather reports stated last night. The forecast for Saturday is moderate winds, fair and decidedly cold. The mercury will take a slight upward turn on Sunday, but it will still be very cold. No immediate relief from the chilly spell is in sight, was the pessimistic belief of the weatherman.

Friday's lowest temperature was two above zero and the highest 18 above. It is not thought likely the mercury will drop as low as two above over the week-end.

Most parts of the Dominion report zero and sub-zero temperatures, particularly in Ontario and Quebec, where the cold wave seemed to concentrate its attack. New records for low temperatures were made in many sections of the United States, particularly in the New England states, Ohio and Illinois. Numerous deaths, directly and indirectly attributable to the cold weather, were reported across the border.

EXTRA MARKET DAY

A special market day for the Christmas buying will be held at the Market Hall on Wednesday of next week.

WASH TUB WANTED

We have been asked to procure a wash tub for a family where there is no money to buy anything but the barest necessities. Please telephone The Examiner and we will call.

MALE VOICE CHOIR.

All members of the Choir are asked to meet at 8.20 to-morrow (Sunday) evening in the Collegiate Auditorium for the Chrismas Carol service.

NOVEL SCHEME

The Brownies of the city—the younger members of the Girl Guide movement, have undertaken a novel scheme to make for the provision of Christmas groceries for needy families. Through the co-operation of the various merchants concerned they have placed barrels in several stores into which shoppers, who are so inclined, may drop groceries for distribution to those in want. The barrels are located in the following stores: Eatons; Porter S. White, Mason's Groceteria, north end; Habcco, East City; Benson, on George street.

Obituary

MARTIN J. DORAN

The death occurred at Ennismore this morning of Martin J. Doran, at the home of his brother, Joseph Doran. Funeral announcements later.

MRS. W. J. BULLOCK

Many friends and relatives attended the funeral of the late Mrs. William John Bullock of Orono, Ontario, which was held on Sunday from the home of er daughter, Mrs. B. J. Butler, 40 Frank street, Peterborough.

The service, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Smyth of the United Church, Orono, included the reading of her favourite hymns, "Abide With Me" and "Rock of Ages". The pall bearers were two sons, Ulmont and Victor, and four grandsons, Ralph and Gordon Butler, Clayton and Morley Bullock. The cortege proceeded to Lakefield cemetery.

Mrs. Bullock, an old resident of this county, was born at Nassau, the daughter of the late John Hutchison Campbell and his wife Mary Whitfield. She came to live in Douro near Lakefield as a bride. Here she passed the greater part of her life. She moved with her husband and family to the sixth line of Otonabee living there some eight years. The last fourteen years her home has been near Orono in Durham county.

Her husband, daughter Clara, son Gordon and her sisters, Mrs. Hugh Regan and Mrs. William Stockdale of Peterborough and her two brothers, Wesley and Ebenezer of Michigan, all predeased her some years ago. Left to mourn her loss are two sisters, Mrs. Walter Head and Mrs. Robert Wilson of Peterborough, two brothers, Orin and Levi of Nassau, three daughters, Mrs. B. J. Butler of Peterborough, Mrs. R. L. Hope of Otonabee and Mrs. J. R. Fowler of Oshawa and five sons, Bernard of Manitoba, Raymond of Spokane, Howard of Lakefield, Victor of Ottawa and Ulmont of Orono.

The numerous beautiful floral offerings were mute tributes to the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

IN MEMORIAM.

CATHCART.—In loving memory of my dear wife, Margaret B. Cathcart, who passed away on December 18th, 1931:

I have lost a dear companion,
A life linked with my own;
And day by day I miss her more,
As I walk through life alone.

The blow was great, the shock severe.
I little thought the end was near;
It's only those who've lost can tell
The sorrow of parting without farewell.

In the lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughs of you are always near;
I who loved you, sadly miss you,
As it dawns another year.

Some may think that I've forgotten
When at times they see me smile;
But they little know the heartache
That smile hides all the while.

The Mystery.

He came and took me by the hand
Up to a red rose tree;
He kept his meaning to Himself,
But gave a rose to me.

I did not pray Him to lay bare,
The mystery to me;
Enough the rose was Heaven to smell,
And His own face to see.

Otonabee River Floods Farms

Hundreds of acres of land were flooded when the River Otonabee overflowing its banks in North Monaghan township. Cellars are flooded, wharves washed away as the river rose to record heights of over eight feet above normal. The water froze with the cold spell and farms for a mile distant are under ice. In the layout above can be seen (at top) the road leading to the T.A.S. Park, under nearly three feet of solid ice. Below is seen a summer cottage with water up to the verandah floor. Several farmers have been unable to get from their homes.

ANCHOR ICE HAS JAMMED RIVER

out of Rice Lake as much as possible, having regard to conditions at other points in the river below (Glen Ross and Frankford)" stated Mr. Killaly. "The present flow is the result of abundant ground water and recent precipitation."

The Examiner yesterday prepared a series of questions for Mr. Killaly, which he submitted immediately to his department at Ottawa in order to get permission to answer. The above are the answers he was permitted to make.

17 Miles of Ice Jam

Everyhing humanly possible has been done by Trent officials in their battle with the rising river to avert an even greater flood from the ice jam that for almost 17 miles below the city jam its bed from bank to bank.

Back into the far reaches of the river for more than 50 miles, hard-working, watchful dam keepers have shoved in stop log after stop log in an attempt to stem back the flood. At more than a score of places from Peterborough north to Minden and Gelert in the backwoods of Haliburton, the stop logs have been dropped in, until the swollen waters behind these dams has almost reached to the top of the dam.

Sigher Than Ever Before

Despite this united effort on the part of all dam keepers, the level of the river below Peterborough is higher than ever before in all history. The Examiner was reliably informed to-day that records of river levels extending back over 35 years show conclusively that the Otonabee is an an unprecedented rampage.

That the attempt to back up the flood was succeeding became apparent last night. From noon yesterday until midnight the level of the water fell nine inches at the dam just below Peterborough.

But the situation became ominous again when it was reported that between midnight and noon to-day the river had risen three of those precious nine inches. The rise is steady and was continuing this afternoon.

Stretching from the dam at Peterborough to Kent's Creek, 17 miles away, the ice jam is solid, except for 200 yards of open water just below the Bensfort Bridge.

Similar To St. Lawrence.

Conditions in the river bed of the Otonabee now, a veteran riverman with long years of experience on the St. Lawrence said, are exactly similar to those that prevail almost every year on that giant river and which annually cause such great floods with untold damage. "I've never seen it like this on the Otonabee before, and it may not happen again for a hundred years again," he declared. "But we have it, and to say the least the situation is most serious. I know what is being done by the Trent Canal officials, and I would say without reserve that everything humanly possible is being accomplished in an effort to prevent worse flood conditions.

"That anchor ice that is sweeping down the river is the demon that is blocking the bed," he said. "It jams up and jams up; forces its way underneath and clings there. In places on the St. Lawrence I have seen this spongy mass 35 feet deep. Somewhere along that ice pack on the Otonabee the anchor ice is doing the same thing.

"Nothing can be done to move it except to get sufficient head above to increase the speed of the flow so that it will be swept away. I believe that is what the Trent Canal men are trying to do.

"What about dynamite?" he was asked.

"Dynamite, pooh! It would do nothing. It would make a small hole, yes, but immediately it would fill up again with that soft spongy mass of anchor ice and the situation would be the same."

One thing that would be the greatest aid in preventing the anchor ice from jamming up worse, he declared was the freezing over of Little Lake. "If Little Lake would only freeze over it would stop that anchor ice from going down into the lower reaches of the river where the jam is so bad already," he explained. "But Little Lake did not freeze last night and those big sheets of anchor ice are floating down adding their mass to the great jam that is blocking the river."

Sunshine he said was another enemy that would increase the flow of anchor ice and the menace of a greater jam. "The anchor ice in zero weather formson bowlders on the bottom of the river. A half hour of sunshine and these huge masses about the bowlders release themselves and boom up to the top to float away, and pack in with the rest. We have no sunshine today and that is a big help," he explained.

"Could a hundred men working with pike poles and other implements stationed along the river do anything to remove the jam", the Examiner asked.

"Nothing. You can push a pike pole through this spongey mass, but it won't move it," he answered. "Where would you station them. The jam is growing up under the ice."

No Dynamite In City

The Examiner was informed that there is no dynamite in the city, but that the Trent Canal has a magazine on one of the upper lakes. An attempt will be made to bring out 15 boxes of this dynamite and convey it to the danger zone south of the city, but the use of dynamite is already deemed futile in any attempt to clear the riverbed.

Telegram to the Department

Hon. G. N. Gordon this morning sent a telegram to Hon. Dr. Manion emphasizing the seriousness of the swollen river to residents living near its banks.

"Tons of vegetables have been destroyed in cellars", Mr. Gordon informed the Minister of Railways and Canals. "Five hundred hens of one neighbor are on roosts and cannot be got out on account of the flood. The Canal Superintendent reports to Herbert Doig that North Monaghan council should deal with the matter. Opinion is that twenty-five men could remove the jam in few hours. The situation is serious and needs immediate attention."

The serious aspect which Mr. Gordon refers to is a fact, but the proposal that the jam could be removed in a short time seems almost impossible of accomplishment unless the swollen and frozen river could be attacked near the Rice Lake end. But the frozen condition extends all the way up to Peterborough, this week's ten below zero weather having had an immediate effect of solidifying the floating anchor ice where it was held.

No Danger to Canoe Property

W. A. Richardson of the Peterborough Canoe Company told The Examiner that A. L. Killaly had advised him of the possible danger of the river continuing to rise within the city and threatening their property.

"We immediately checked over our yard this morning", Mr. Richardson said, "and everything looks all right. The water would have to rise very much higher before it would cause us any trouble."

Using Steam Auxiliary

The Utilities Commission called on their steam auxiliary Thursday morning to work the pumps at the filtration plant.

R. L. Dobbin, manager of the Utilities Commission, said that "frazil" had clogged the turbines of their electric power plant, and forced the emergency use of the steam plant.

"Frazil" is the cause of all the trouble that has developed this week in the Otonabee River.

"It is not so easy to describe this kind of ice, so that the public will understand what it is like," Mr. Dobbin said, "but it is an old enemy to power-house operators in this climate. Anchor ice forms on the bottom of the river, clinging to stones and other materials in the bed; but frazil appears between the bottom and the surface. It is a slushy or spongy ice, and because of this nature it can get into turbines and cause a lot of trouble to a power plant."

Visions of cakes of solid ice floating down stream and piling up barriers is an entirely erroneous impression of what has happened this week to the staid old Otonabee.

Barrier of Frazil

Extraordinary weather conditions have produced the frazil. As it floated in open water, either in loose floes or in larger but spongy cakes, it eventually brought up against the edge of ice where the river had frozen over in its normal way where the current was sluggish. Because of its slushy consistency the frazil packed where it was held, and was pushed up on top of the other ice where it quickly froze in an uneven jagged surface. This started a barrier, although a shallow one, wherever it occurred, but at the same time the frazil was packing outward, thus widening the barrier along the shore. In this way it steadily extended from the sluggish stretches of the river upstream, packing and broadening and deepening as it froze. Those who visit the river below the Locks can see at a glance what has happened, and that stretch of the river is typical of the entire course to Rice Lake. But, there has been no piling up of big cakes or anything of that heroic feature of a river's rampage. The entire blame rests on the old enemy "frazil," which has appeared this week in the unusually severe December weather conditions with its sub-zero nights and mornings.

Slight Drop This Morning.

Evidence of a general recession of the high water in the Otonabee river were apparent this morning when the Examiner surveyed its unseasonable encroachments from Hunter street to a point below Crawford's Grove. The drop appeared to be about six or seven inches from Friday morning's high level, indicating that the menace which had threatened serious property damage and loss had been effectively checked for the present.

At Crawford's Grove, at the foot of Monaghan Road, the river had overflown the bank up onto the park property where a group of summer cottages had been temporarily surrounded, and the water had spread out to the level of the road. In the deep ditch extending up Monaghan Road the river had backed up past Cameron street and as far as Orpington Road, a distance of thee hundred yards.

On the lower lying east shore opposite Crawford's Grove the change in the shore line was typical of the transformation that has occurred for miles. The river has reached out new projecting arms of water into al lthe hollows, at least doubling its normal width, and the sub-zero weather froze it several inches where it rested at its highest level.

Water Receded.

Emergency measures by the canal department had the immediate effect of checking the advance of the river beyond the banks, and this morning the frozen surface in all the unusual indentations was hollow but firm, where the water had receded during the night.

At the George street wharf, at Ryes boathouse and pavilion at the foot of Lock street an dalso at the foot of Lock street and also at the croachment had been halted, but the suspension of danger seemed only temporary to the ordinary observer, although some favorable shift in weather conditions may bring further relief.

The old wharf at the foot of Lock street is completely submerged, and the junction with McKellar street, leading to the home of Chief Newhall is closed to traffic. Boys were skating this morning on the old street railway loop which had been flooded to the highest point within recent memory. H. B. Rye told the Examiner yesterday that he then feared the worst for his property, including the pavilion. The water was almost on a level with the floor of the dance pavilion, but this morning there was the same slight recession that was evident all along that stretch of the river.

The surface ice on Lock Street had chipped and broken in places, but for the most part it was frozen solidly where it had reached its highest advances.

Two men with pike poles were actively engaged this morning in guiding the huge floes of anchor ice past the piers of the dam, but the dam itself was completely awash, the river simply flowing at its swollen level where in summer there is a drop of ten or fifteen feet.

Open Water.

Open water extends below the Locks several hundred yards to a point opposite the Brinton Carpet Company's property, and the loose, floating slush was being halted there, some of it pushing up above the ice and freezing in jagged ridges, and the rest apparently being carried underneath.

Looking down stream from that place as far as Crawford's grove the river is completely frozen over. Ordinarily the ice is glare and level, but the slushy anchor ice has formed a fretted surface as it packed and froze. This same condition was observed as far as the old Yankee Bonnet below Crawford's Grove, and from reports of riparian residents it extends all the way down below Campbelltown.

At Wallace Point.

Herb. Cardwell of Wallace Point told The Examiner this afternoon that the river is open below the first bridge, but only a short distance.

"You can't see anything of our wharf," Mr. Cardwell said, "and the water backed up over the road in front of our house and froze. Possibly the worst jam down here may form at the Devil's Elbow, about a half-mile above Bensford Bridge. As the river started to freeze along against the edge of the frozen ice, and formed into a jam as it jacked and froze. That is the way it has been doing upstream from here.

Everybody who visits our summer resort knows the big swamp around the bend of the river below us. All that swamp is flooded to a higher mark than we have ever seen in spring freshets. The road to Wallace Point Bridge is open to traffic, and as far as we can learn none of the residents along this part of the rive have been affected, except that the water is away up on the farm land."

J. W. Jackson, who lives on Fradette avenue near the Brinton Carpet Company, said that the water had seeped into his cellar early Friday morning, but overnight had dropped at least twelve inches.

"I have an electric pump in my cellar for an emergency of that kind," Mr. Jackson said. "Yesterday the water was above the outlet pipe, but to-day it is nine or ten inches below the outlet. So, there has been a marked improvement as far as I can see. The river has frozen up to a short distance below the locks dam. Apparent the floating ice coming downstream is pushing under the frozen surface of the river."

OTTAWA, Dec. 17 (C.P.)—Instructions have been given by Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals to the authorities of the Trent Valley Canal to do all in their power to relieve the flooding in the Peterborough district. "I am informed that they already have been doing everything they could," Dr. Manion said to-day, "but they have had a difficult situation due to the swelling of the rivers. I have not yet received any protest from Peterborough."

A.A.U. of C. Issues Ultimatum to Hockey Players

CANADIAN HOCKEYISTS ARE WARNED TO LEAVE U.S. BY JANUARY FIRST

Hockey Imports to America Face Penalty of Being Barred From Amateur Hockey in Canada for Year if They Do Not Return—Status Questioned.

AMATEUR ULTIMATUM HITS AT PLAYERS IN NEW YORK AND NEW ENGLAND STATES

NEW YORK, December 17.—Eyebrows lifted in United States hockey circles last night. Reason thereof was the warning issued to Canadian players in the United States to return home by January 1, or suffer suspension from competition in the Dominion for one year.

The ultimatum of the American Amateur Hockey Association struck hard at many clubs in the metropolitan district, in New England States, and along the Canadian border in New York and Michigan States.

It was feared by American club mentors many of their players, preferring to play with teams in their native Canada and hoping to land berths there next season, might return home before New Year's.

Foundation on Canadians.

Many of the leading American clubs have built the foundation for their teams around a couple or so of first-rate Canadian players.

As a matter of fact, a rough survey of United States teams in the sections mentioned reveals scarcely more than four all-American teams.

The Atlantic Sea Gulls, amateur champions of the United States, have at least six Canadians on their roster. The Boston Hockey Club of Boston, another of the more prominent squads, is built around Canadians, but some of them have long been residents of the United States.

One club coach blasted volubly. Declaring that most of his players were born and bred in Brooklyn and that he never recruited a hockey player from Canada in his life, Denton "Dinnie" Mullins, coach of the Crescent Athletic-Hamilton Club hockey team of Brooklyn, made a vigorous denial of intimations that his players had been recruited from the Dominion.

"I'd like to know how long Flatbush has been a part of Canada," Mullins stated. 'I never saw them celebrate the Queen's birthday there.

"The status of any and all my players will stand up under any kind of investigation. Take my forwards. Joe Callahan was born and bred in Brooklyn. Huble Baylis was born and bred in Brooklyn. Watson Thompson was born in Jamaica, L.I. I suppose that makes him a Canadian."

"Pettis, Archambeault, and Ruet were born in Canada, but they all have been living here from five to seven years, and I think they all have their vrst or second citizenship papers," Dinnie concluded with something that resembled a snarl.

TORONTO, Dec 17.— So-called amateur hockey across the border seems to be in a great "stew" over an ultmatum issued this week by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, the ultimatum being to the effect that hockey imports from the Dominion to the United States must return home before Jan. 1 or suffer the penalty of being barred from amateur hockey in Canada for one year.

At any rate, a panic seems to have been created among the managers of the U.S. amateur hockey teams by the C.A.H.A.'s new policy, or rather old one in regard to players migrating across the border for hockey purposes and then returning to Canada as soon as the season is over.

Managers Scared

For the U.S. managers have apparently become scared that some of their star players will take the notion to slip home for Christmas and forget to return to the States to finish out the schedule with their teams. And though President Frank Greenleaf, Montreal, of the C.A.H.A., issued his warning as late as Thursday of this week, already there have been rumors of certain imports making ready to return to the old fireside.

To be perfectly acndid, no one really believes that players who left Toronto, Montreal, Brockville and other Canadian cities for Atlantic City and other U.S. hockey centres last month to play amateur hockey this season went just for their health or just because they wanted to play at their favorite sport when the opportunity was before them to play with good teams right at home.

You cannot make amateur hockey players around this town, or anybody else for that matter, believe that Ewens, Tupling, McKillop, Ritchie and other imports to the United States are not being looked after, and looked after well, down at Atlantic City and that they will be forced to come home with empty pockets if they are good boys and not too extravagant.

The C.A.H.A. has had the one-year rule for hockey players going to the States in its book for some time, but in recent years has not been too strict in the enforcement of it, but apparently from now on it is going to be different.

LEICESTERSHIRE CARRIES ON

Leicestershire County Cricket Club will carry on and the first job is to wipe off a $20,000 deficit. A public meeting was held recently to decide on a course of action. Leicester City soccer team and famous Leicester Tigers Rugby Club have agreed to arrange special games to provide some of the money toward paying off the deficit. It is going to cost the county $32,000 at least to operate next season. The lord mayor of Leicester has promised to start a public fund. The bank overdraft of $12,000 is the fly in the ointment, officials at the financial institution having sent out an ultimatum, "No pay, no cricket." The chairman, Lieut.-Col. Oliver, said the only years when the committee were free from anxiety were when an Australian team visited England.

ST. MIKE'S WIN FROM TORONTO LIZZIES 33-28

TORONTO, Dec. 17 (C.P.). — The forward passing duo of Joe Connelly and Hughie Marks, St. Michael's College football stars, had passed their way to basketball prominence to-day.

The kid pair from Rochester, N.Y., accounted for 17 points between them last night when the Irish scored the second major upset of the cage season here, defeating Toronto Lizzies 33-28. The previous week St. Michael's upset the champion Riverdale Grads with Connelly and Marks in starring roles.

Grads came back last night to win over St. Catharines 33-22 as Jimmy Murchie took his place on the attacking division and scored 12 points. Maxie Peart stood out for St. Kitt's, scoring six field goals.

S. MEREDITH WINS THAUBURN TROPHY

Defeats J. M. Rothschild in Final—Consolation Won By Chisholm Rink.

TORONTO, Dec. 17.—The fourth High Park invitation bonspiel and probably its most successful one came to a close last night when Selvin Meredith's consistent Barrie rink won the Thomas Thauburn Memorial Trophy. He defeated J. M. Rothschild, of Strathcona, in the final 13 to 6.

In the consolation final Hubert Chisholm's Toronto rink, which only got one shot in the opening game of the 'spiel, came through by defeating Russ Hall's Kitchener rink by 14 to 7.

Previous to the playing of the finals the High Park Club tendered a banquet to the rinks who started yesterday's play. Fred Lucas acted as chairman and although the dinner did not get under way until 7 o'clock, everyone was ready for the playing of the finals an hour later.

Fred J. Lucas acted as toastmaster, while short speeches were delivered by Percy Atkinson, who introduced President D. A. McNab of the Ontario Curling Association to the gathering. President Jim Moffatt of the High Park club welcomed the visitors, while A. D. Lepan, chairman of the Toronto bonspiel committee this year asked the co-operation of the Ontario clubs this year. Ed Allan spoke for the press.

On the conclusion of the final games, Percy Atkinson, donor of the trophy to the High Park Club, introduced Fred Lucas, who presented the trophy to the winning rink and prizes to the runners-up and the finalists in the consolation series. A. D. Simon, J. M. Rothchild, Hubert Chisholm, and B. Lang replied for the respective rinks.

INTERPROVINCIAL RUGBY MOGULS CONVENE TO-DAY

HAMILTON, Dec. 17 (C.P.). — Faced with an important and perhaps highly debatable agenda, delegates to the annual convention of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union met here to-day to decide among other things whether the Ottawa club was at fault in any way in connection with the Walter Masters-Rolf Carlesten case.

It was certain delegates would tackle this player case thoroughly. Professional baseball players, Masters and Carlesten, played with Roughriders for most of the past season before big four officials learned they were not amateurs and suspended both.

Montreal's proposal to lengthen the season to nine weeks with an earlier start will be dealt with. The Union has had a six-game schedule for many years, starting early in October.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, the weather man has been kind to the hockey players this week, if not to the resta the folks, and the lads has been able to get out on the ice at the Brock st. palace for 1 of the earliest starts on record. A whole raft of players has been out for both junior and senior squads, and they seems to be plenty of enthusiasm in the camp, which oughta help some, although it takes more than that to make winning hockey machines. Anyway the management in both cases has some new material to work on and when the squads get shook down and levelled away mebbe we'll go places and do things this season. Anyway here's hoping.

Our Mister Max Swanston has been elected president of the Central Ontario loop, with which he has been connected ever since Mister Jake Solomon launched this organization outa the blue air. Mister Swanston knows his baseball and he knows all the ball magnates round the circuit, so he oughta fill the bill as president without half trying. Looks like the loop will be about the same as last season as Oshawa will again be hooked up in a Toronto league. Of course, the Petes is hoping that the result will be different and that the team to represent the Central League in the O.B.A.A. play-offs will hail from this here town. And it ain't too early to start planning towards that end.

The pro hockey loop race ain't been looking so smooth for Mister C. Smythe's Maple Leaves. Up to to-day—Thurs.—the Toronto lads hadn't copped a win in their last 3 starts and only had scored 3 goals, which ain't exactly the kind of punch that puts a team at the top of the heap. The much-vaunted "kid" line about which so much was heard last season that many of the fans was fed up before it was all over ain't been able to untrack itself in this campaign, and the same papers what used to laud the Primeau-Conacher-Jackson line as the greatest ever has started in to ride the trio, especially Mister Jackson, who has been described by various scribes as a passenger in recent games. He and some of the others have doubtless learned that the only thing easier than getting a reputation in sport circles is to lose the same. Old-time ball players used to have a saying, "A hero to-day, a bum to-morrow," and it is as true of hockey as it is of baseball. If you can5t keep on delivering the goods, the public that was clapping you on the back a short time ago will start hollering for your scalp—and as they provide the jack for keeping the game going they generally get what they go after.

Well, Mac, it won't be long now till there will be some action locally in hockey, and the customers will be able to give the lads the once over.

Nothing more of moment, so I'll put on the breaks right now.

Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

UNITED STATES' HOCKEY CLUBS INDIFFERENT TO WAGE SLASH

Each Club in International League to Settle Own Salary Problems.

Understanding With Players.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (C.P.)—Survey of United States clubs in the International Hockey League by the Canadian Press yesterday revealed an al rof indifference concerning reports players in the circuit may be subjected to a salary revision.

Harry Holmes, manager of the Cleveland Indians, said the matter was taken up at a meeting of league heads in Windsor three weeks ago and the general attitude adopted was that the clubs should settle their own salary problems. The Cleveland Indians are working on a percentage basis, so many league rulings regarding salaries have no effect. Other clubs, it was learned to-day are studying the Indians' formula as a possible way out of the player-salary difficulties.

Buffalo and Syracuse have cut stipends 25 per cent following the Windsor ruling but the Bison management reported no further reduction was contemplated yet.

Perrin Babcock, auditor of the Syracuse Stars, said the club has come to a satisfactory agreement due to economic conditions.

He said the players had been guaranteed part of their salaries and the balance will be made up out of any profit the club shows on its season's business.

Babcock declared Buffalo and Cleveland have somewhat similar understandings with their players.

Detroit officials said they had not thought of another cut since the one voted for at Windsor. One official, who declined to be quoted, said Detroit would fall in line if another general cut seemed necessary but that he understood the clubs had settled the matter individually.

RED WINGS FACE HEAVY WEEK-END

Meet Leafs in Toronto To-night and Bruins at Home on Sunday.

TORONTO, Dec. 17.—(CP)— The Red Wings of Dapper Jack Adams, needing plenty of points to help them along the way, faced the grueling "iron man" schedule today with an alluring total of four markers on the other side of the week-end.

All the Detroit hockeyists have to do is beat the Maple Leafs in Toronto tonight, then humble Boston Bruins in Detroit Sunday night to take the rich pickings. One of the toughest National League assignments, the twin week-end bill is considered to be no set-up for a team battling along the way the Red Wings are in last place in the United States division.

The circuit's other eight teams are confining efforts to a single game each. New York Rangers invade Ottawa for the first time since the Senators returned this year to organized hockey and Canadiens and Maroons hook up for the second time at Montreal in the remainder of the Saturday schedule.

Hawks At Amerks

Sunday Chicago Black Hawks and "Bullet Joe" Simpson's Americans meet in New York while Detroit gathers what power it has left after clinching with the Leafs to use on Boston.

The Leafs and Senators have each taken a crack at the heavy week-end stuff this season, the Leafs downing Maroons and Detroit on successive nights. Senators took a double lacing from Toronto and Detroit.

Fast reaching championship form the Leafs and Canadiens may combine tonight to break the Maroon stranglehold on first position in the Canadian section of the league. If Toronto wins over Wings and the Canucks decision Maroons a Leaf-Maroon tie will be the result. And Ottawa can keep on the heels of the leaders with a win over Rangers.

To-Night's Line-Ups

The line-ups for to-night's game at the Maple Leaf Gardens will be as follows:

Maple Leafs:		Detroit:
Chabot	goal	Roach
Clancy	defence	Evans
Horner	defence	Young
Darragh	centre	Goodfellow
Bailey	right	Wiseman
Cotton	left	Lewis

Detroit subs.—Emil Hanson, Buswell, Carl Voss, Gus Marker, Frank Carson, Happy Emms, Laurie, Leroy Goldsworthy and Johnny Sorrell.

"Nipper" Wilson To Coach Senior Falls

WELLAND, Ont., Dec. 17 (C.P.)—Robert "Nipper" Wilson, dynamic coach, will be back in charge of the Niagara Falls O.H.A. senior hockey team when they invade Toronto to-night to meet Varsity in a scheduled Big Seven contest. Wilson tendered his resignation as a coach prior to Tuesday's game between Niagara Falls and Hamilton, and occupied a spectator's seat for that contest, which the Tigers won in overtime by a 3-2 count.

A dispute over newspaper articles, which was amicably settled yesterday, led to the resignation.

VANCOUVERITE STOPS FULLER IN 8TH ROUND

Townsend Has Little Trouble in Winning From Saciola in Third.

Celt Has 10 Lb. Advantage.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17. — (CP) — They might just as well give Sandy Somerville 10 holes in a golf match, or spot Alex Wilson 10 yards in a running race as tender Jimmy McLarnin a 10-pound advantage in weight and expect even so game an opponent as Sammy Fuller of Boston to survive the handicap.

Fuller, long looking for a bout with Vancouver's human windmill, tried his luck in the Madison Square Garden battle pit last night and found out it had deserted him completely. Outclassed, the Bostonese was knocked out in the eighth round of what was to have been a 10-round match, staged before 11,636 customers who paid $27,558 to view the one-sided contest.

The iron-fisted Canadian-Irishman, in at 145½ pounds to Fuller's 136, displayed his usual murderous hitting power, belabored his foe with everything but the ring-posts and even after shooting so many punches over the head of the staggering Sammy it seemed draughty around the ringside, finished as sleek as a two-year old breezing a furlong.

Fades In Third Round

Jimmy's fellow citizen, Billy Townsend, made it a royal flush for Vancouver by hitting Andy Saviola so often and so hard the New York welter faded in the third round. The referee stopped the bout with Saviola out on his feet.

The tidal wave of rights and lefts Townsend unleashed from the starting gong of the semi-final, scheduled to go eight rounds, had the New Yorker back pedalling early. He dropped in the second for a six-count and again in the third for a toll of eight. The referee halted the uneven match at one minute, 23 seconds of the third.

Townsend scaled 144, Saviola three and one-half pounds more.

Floored Four Times

In his headline attraction, McLarnin connected with bone-crushers that put Fuller down four times before Referee Pete Hartley counted the final 10 seconds in the eighth round, only two seconds before time for the bell. Left hooks to the head were McLarnin's most damaging weapon and it was with one of them that he draped Fuller across the middle strand of the ropes for the finisher. Sammy fell back into the ring, first on his back, then took the last of the count on all fours, his eyes glassy and blood dripping from his puffed lips.

McLarnin dropped Fuller in the first round for a nine count, as Sammy rebounded off the ropes from being sent flying there by a stiff left. This was within the first minute of fighting and it looked as though the boys could make an early start for the exits. But like a little gamecock, the Boston Italian fought back and stung McLarnin with sharp lefts.

Again, at the close of the second round, Fuller hit the canvas for a short count from a left to his body.

Makes Game Try

For the next five rounds, the crowd watched the Beantown boy, generally in retreat, gamely trying to overcome his handicaps in weight, height, reach and punching power.

But against the devastating and seemingly tireless mitts of the Vancouver baby-face it was like jousting a windmill with a darning needle.

New McLaughlin-Buick Sets The Style For 1933

A long, low car of modish windstream design, setting the style for 1933, rolls along Automobile Row today. It is the 1933 McLaughlin-Buick, the same substantial and luxurious Straight Eight of other years, but with a new dress and with new qualities of roadability and mechanical smoothness. Dealers here and throughout Canada, where the 1933 McLaughlin-Buick is being presented to the public today are proclaiming this car as "the finest McLaughlin-Buick ever built". Certainly the engineers have turned out an unusually beautiful automobile, utilizing new windstream lines made possible by partly widening the treads an inch and a half. Skirted fenders add a new touch that harmonizes with the long flowing lines. The entire chassis with the exception of the wheels is concealed.

Most interesting of the advancements disclosed by the McLaughlin-Buick for 1933 is the new Fisher system of closed car no-draft ventilation, individually controlled. It is not an accessory, but a built-in body feature, completely supplanting the makeshifts on which motorists have had to depend for ventilation of their cars in the past. Front door windows and the rear quarter windows in the four-door sedans are composedof glass sections split vertically. The front parts swing on a vertical pivot, either outward to drain smoke or impure air, or inward to scoop cooling breezes inside. Swirling drafts are actually abolished. Instead, incoming air is deflected against the windshield and instrument panel so that it diffuses throughout the car. Incidentally, the raising and lowering device for rear windows is eliminated, giving inches more width to the rear seat in sedan bodies. Front compartments are also roomier.

Apparently the engineers have been reading the mind of the motoring public as to what it desires. As a result, the effort of driving has been still further decreased. The manually operated ride-control pioneered by McLaughlin-Buick last year has already been superseded by an automatic shock absorber system. Carburetor heat control is automatic. Shutters have given way to new automatic engine temperature control. Smoothness has been built into the automatic clutch. Many other details of the new cars are in accordance with the desires of motorists who took the trouble to send in their opinions to the customer research department of General Motors of Canada. Marked preference, for instance, was expressed by the V-type sloping radiator and even in the hidden mechanism there are Canadian touches. Bronze bushings in the differential, for instance, make all the difference between safety and danger.

Low to the road and heavier than last year, the new McLaughlin-Buick is also made safer in a number of other respects. There is also an interesting type of head lighting, with control for a "passing beam" which throws a bright beam to the right edge of the road and a dim beam toward the left side traffic lane. It should prove a boon to all drivers.

The straight eight power plant has been improved by new type mountings; by electro-plated pistons which obviate the long "breaking-in" period; and by additional oil and pressure rings. Brake action has also been made easier.

Inside, the McLaughlin-Buicks are more luxurious than ever. Fabrics are richer, the instrument panel is fitted with large dials in antique bronze panels, and vanities and smoking sets are found in the closed models. All bodies are wired for radio.

Wire wheels are supplied on all models, five wheels on the standard cars and six on special jobs.

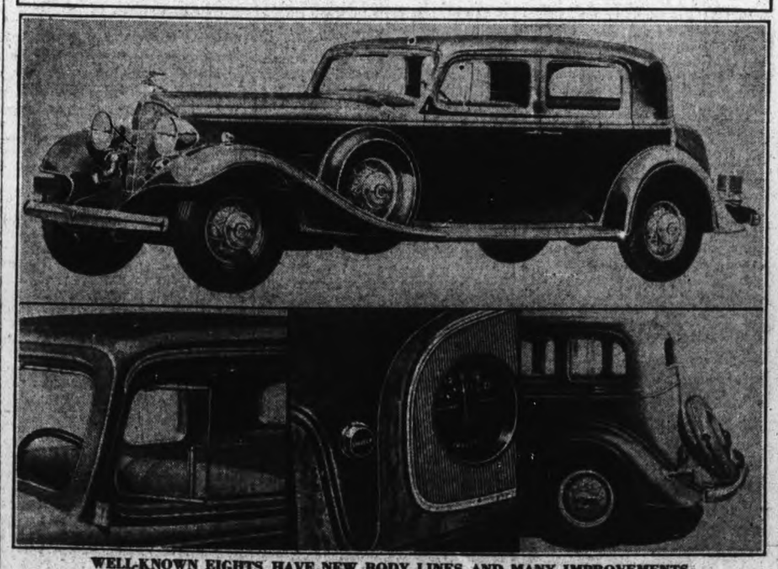
1933 McLaughlin-Buicks Are Announced



WELL-KNOWN EIGHTS HAVE NEW BODY LINES AND MANY IMPROVEMENTS

McLaughlin-Buicks for 1933 are introduced to the public today, with low, graceful body lines, a new ventilating system, and many special appointments designed for Canadian conditions. The model shown is the close-coupled special sedan with built-in trunk, on the 138-inch wheelbase. In the lower panels the picture on the left shows details of the Fisher No-Draft ventilation. The right-hand picture gives an idea of the tapered tail, covering the gas tank. Centre picture shows starting button and one of the aeroplane type dials of the instrument panel.

McLarnin Given Ovation By Women On His Victory Over Sammy Fuller

(By George Maguire, C.P. Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (C.P.)—As the crowd roared, Jimmy McLarnin, ruddy-faced son of Erin from Vancauver, flipped his victory handspring in the Madison Square Garden battle pit last night. He had just hammered into submission Sammy Fuller, Boston's boastful lightweight pride, after nearly eight rounds of a scheduled 10-round feature.

With his triumphal gesture completed Jimmy donned his green robe with a bright yellow harp emblazoned thereon, and hurried to his dressing room.

Spectators, many of them women, tried to block his path. The perfectly proportioned athlete shook them off with a smile and pushed his way through.

He reached his quarters then scribbled out a message. Turning to his gray-haired manager, Jimmy asked: "Pop, can you send this in a hurry please?"

It was addressed to a girl in Vancouver.

"Yes," said the uncrowned king of the welterweights, "I have a mighty fine girl in Vancouver. No I am not married yet. But—well, maybe soon. I am flying home for Christmas. No, I am not retiring. I am too young, don't you think? I figure I have many more good fights in my system."

Tony Canzoneri, the lightweight champion, has been agitating for a shot at Jimmy, and may get it. Fuller agitated, and got it.

Bowling Notes

The Aberdeens bit off a hard morsel this week when they collided with the Olympics in the Y.M.C.A. Men's League and battled through three stiff games. The latter team after dropping the first session by 22 pins started a striking spree that pushed both of their last two game totals over the thousand mark and added three points to their total against the Aberdeen's one. Norm Routley, captain of the winning crew, led the players with scores of 259, 244, 208, while Harry Graham of the Aberdeens came through with a nice single of 256.

In the Church League the Young Judeans took on the boys from St. Paul's and by top-notch trundling took a 3-1 decision. The third game ended in a tie so the teams bowled an extra frame to decide a winner, the Judeans winning by two pins—101 to 99. Jack Gray for the losers stepped the leagued record for high single up a little when he pushed over 303 pins in one game. Z. Levine with 257 and Ben Swartz with 240 were well up for the winners, while their team-mate took the high three score of the game with 200, 257, 158.

Reg Dyer leads the pin spillers from the Canadian General Electric Shop League in the average column so far this season, with a count of 225, while close behind him comes Fred Jones of the Machine Shop with 219 and Frank Doris of the Price Setting with 216. The latter player also holds the high single and high three records for the league, with 327 and 760. The Drafting Room, who at present are leading the Group 1 have the high single game score and high team total for three games with counts of 1097 and 3090.

Drafting Room	42
Stores No. 1	42
Price Setting	34
Stores No. 2	34
Machine Shop	26
Test	14

In Group 2 of the C.G.E. League Harry Northrop is on top of the average list with 195 in 21 games, while next in line is Gerry Routley who kicked in with 194 in twelve times. Don Emery is high man in the single class with 303, and B. L. Barns has 669 for the high triple count. Engineering No. 2 team has a single game total of 1103, and the Cost No. 2 collected 2775 in three games.

McGill University Blanks McGill 3-0

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 17 (C.P.)—After blanking the Yale hockey team, a fast-skating band from McGill University moved on to Boston to-day to renew a 27-year-old international rivalry with Harvard.

The 3-0 victory they scored over the Elis here last night, in a game that was McGill's from start to finish, imbued them with confidence for to-night's contest in Boston Garden. In last night's home-and-home series, the Montrealers and their old Harvard foes split the spoils.

Against Yale, the speed and combination of the Red Shirts kept play almost exclusively in the Eli defensive zone. After a scoreless first period, Farmer finally managed to pierce the fine goal Armor provided by a sophomore netman, Snyder, in the second period. The third period was even more one-sided, as Farquharson and then Shaughnessy scored for McGill.

Four Teams Are Tied In Quaker City Race

PHILADELPHIA, December 17 (C.P.). — With the end of the long grind in sight, four teams of pedalers were tied for the lead in Philadelphia's six-day bike race as the field entered the 129th hour at 8 a.m. to-day.

In a burst of jamming this morning, the teams of Horan-Spencer, Severgnini - Grimm, McNamara-Dempsey, and Letourner-Debacts went on lap-stealing expeditions to deadlock for first pace. Jules Audy, Montreal, and his partner, the Beckman-Lands and Jimmy Walthour-Ritter combinations were tied in second place a lap behind.

"SUNNY JIM" BOTTOMLEY.

The Cincinnati Reds management quired the St. Louis Cardinals in a to-day announced that they had acstraight player trade.

DAN HOWLEY TO PILOT TORONTO

Former Cincinnati Reds Manager Will Have Absolute Charge of Team.

SALARY TERMS UNKNOWN.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 17 (A.P.) — Dan Howley, last year's manager of the Cincinnati Reds, yesterday announced he had signed a contract to manage Toronto Leafs of the Internation Baseball League once more.

He reached an agreement with the Toronto management in New York earlier in the week, he said, during the meetings of the major leagues. Their only differences, he added, were not over his salary and club finances as had been rumored, but over his demands that he be given absolute control of the players and their conduct on and off the field.

The contract will run for a year. Its salary terms were not disclosed.

Howley has been dickering with Toronto since he was removed as manager of the Reds after a season that started out brilliantly and then collapsed. Donie Bush, formerly of the Pirates, was brought from Minneapolis to take his place.

Howley, once a big league catcher, managed the Reds for three years. Before that he directed the St. Louis Browns, going to St. Louis from Toronto after he had won a pennant in 1928 for the Canadian city and had scored a five-straight-game victory over Louisville in the Little World's series.

Lengthy Negotiations

Negotiations between the Toronto club and Howley began immediately after the close of the National League season. First reports were that Howley was seeking an interest in the Leafs, but this was denied last night. Howley managed the Leafs in 1919 and again from 1923 to 1926.

Howley was indefinite last night over his plans in resuming at Toronto.

"There'll be lots of work," he said. "We'll have to build up an entire new club. Only three of four players are left over from last year's team."

Asked if he wil lappear in uniform every day, Howley deplied:

"I should say I will. I wouldn't get much of a kick out of it if I wasn't right down there in the centre of things, listening to the wisecracks of the third base coachers."

Howley has been confined with a slight attack of 'flu, but said he plans to leave the day after Christmas for Toronto. He will stay in Toronto about three weeks and then go to his winter home in West Palm Beach, Fla., until spring training starts.

Shantz Is Awarded Judgment For Wages

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 17 (C.P.)—Harold Shantz, Kitchener hockey player, yesterday obtained judgment for $200 and costs against Harry "Happy" Holmes and the Cleveland Professional Hockey Club for wages. The award was made by County Judge A. A. Ingram after Howard Cluff, counsel for the manager and owner of the Indians, International Hockey League squad, had admitted the debt was technically owing.

Shantz was with the Cleveland club for a tryout a couple of years ago. Holmes sent him to another club, but he failed to make the grade and went back to the Indians. Holmes, "Odd nature, let him stay around and didn't give him a written release," Cluff explained. For that reason the club was responsible for $200 which represented two weeks salary at $100 per week.

SPORTS Day by Day

HOCKEY—BOWLING—BOXING
BASKETBALL — OTHER SPORTS

(By C.J.P.)

Quite a few local football fans follow the game, over the radio and through the papers, as played in the States. They will be interested in the All-American team picked by Walter Camp's successor, Grantland Rice and his Advisory Board, published in this week's Collier's. Incidentally the editor of this magazine says he saw a game recently in Toronto, and so rough did he find it that he said he would only carry a ball in a Canadian game if given a large armored car. Wonder if it was the Hamilton-Varsity game he saw.

* * * * * * *

* * * * * * *

Skaters and puck-chasers from Ashburnham, and the rest of the city too, don't have to wait any longer for the city rink at the east end of Hunter Street bridge to be flooded. The Otonabee flood has swept up over Stevenson Park, making a fine big rink, covering about half the big baseball field. The boys and girls were out in force yesterday afternoon, but it's no so good at nights—being no electric lighting.

* * * * * * *

Arrangements were completed for the Peterborough intermediates for two exhibition games next week. They play the Campbellford O.H.A. intermediate team here Tuesday night, and go back to Campbellford later in the week. It will be good practice for both squads, in different groups this winter, and will give the fans a line on what the Petes look like this season. They look quite promising to us, if that means anything. Of course it doesn't mean much or else we'd go into the propheting business on a big scale. They say the forecasters have good hours, whatever about the pay.

* * * * * * *

Probably the most interesting hockey news to followers of it around here is that Lindsay Vics—the intermediates—have dropped out of the O.H.A. for the year because they have no place to play; and the joining of Bobcaygeon to our junior group. The Vics' withdrawal was sent to the O.H.A. yesterday afternoon and accepted, and we're extending our sympathy to them. It's too bad the breaks went against them this way, and they'll be missed in Peterborough where they always gave the Petes a tough battle. The burning of their rink this Fall was the trouble, as they couldn't very well play their home games in other towns without hurting these other teams financially.

* * * * * * *

Bobcaygeon's inclusion in the group with Peterborough, Lindsay and Fenelon Falls' juniors, doesn't meet with the approval of the local club for one. The bunch here are very likely to protest it as they can get into the fast Lakeshore loop easily if the O. H. A. will permit that, and as no schedule has been drawn up yet, there shouldn't be much difficulty. Lindsay and Fenelon are considered okay, but we doubt if the Bobcaygeon boys are strong enough to warrant coming in. More about it later.

The intermediates' schedule was drawn up last night in Port Hope, a single schedule of home and home games. Bowmanville opens it here against the Petes, December 30th, which is two weeks from last night. The campaign winds up one month later, with first and second teams meeting in home and home games. There will be four home games and four away, plenty of hockey for a team in one month. Referees are to be appointed from the district embracing the five teams. We hear the other four outfits are all working out and each is confident of reaching the group playoffs.

Four of the Cowan A. C. fighters won and four lost in the Hastings' boxing show last night. It was a pretty fair card. Reg. McMillen won from Ryder in a slugging final; while a furious semi-final went to George Smith of Campbellford over Art Gundale of Hastings. Andy McKee rocked Joe DeNoble to sleep; with Ed Connelly dittoing on Marty Gohagan. Gord Puffer earned a four-round decision over Ray Harding; Pete Vitarelli got the nod over Jack Hennessy; Tony Miniciola outboxed Frank Stub; and "Bat" Nelson licked Jack Mollmoyle.

Sport hash: Two Canucks, McLarnin and Townsend, won their bouts decisively in the States last night . . . Dan Howley will manage Toronto Leafs next summer, and he may obtain "Whataman" Shires . . . Orme Gamsby, Orono oracle who has a team in our intermediate group now, is in his 70th year . . . Amateur puckster who left Canada to play in the U. S. are ordered to return by the C.A.H.A. or be suspended one year . . . . Another example of pure amateurism, as the players aren't going over there just for fun . . . . Belleville seems to think Port Hope is dropping out of hockey, but tht Hopers didn't know anything about it last night . . . . Now the E. P. L. can go ahead and draw up their schedule.

The water meet in the Y.M.C.A. pool, advertised yesterday as taking place this evening, has been called off. The reason is that four of the Toronto water-polo players have been taken sick with the 'flu, Tommy Walker phoning this down here last night. As the polo game was the high light of the program, it was decided to call off the whole list of aquatic sports, until a future date when the Toronto crew will be present, and it can be staged right. Just one of those things that cannot be helped.

MARLBOROS WIN FOURTH STRAIGHT

Bingo Christie Leads Dukes to 2-1 Victory Over Port Colborne 2-1.

(By Canadian Press.)

Without fuss or ado, the youthful Toronto Marlboros, under the guidance of "Bingo" Christie, are gradually accumulating a comfortable margin in the senior Ontario Hockey Association scramble. At Port Colborne last night the Dukes chalked up their fourth straight win, when they downed the Ports, 2-1.

Pud Kitchen, a graduate from the minor ranks of last year, took advantage of some ragged play on the part of the Sailors' defence to coast in and beat Dinty Moore for the winning goal, with only five minutes left to play.

Until this break came, the teams had played a high calibre of hockey, combination and speed featuring the efforts of both of them. Marlboros counted first after nine minutes in the second period when Johnny McNeill picked a corner of the net, after Gamey Large's pass had enabled him to beat the defence.

Less than a minute after Fan Heximer came streaking down the ice and let one fly from centre. The puck hit Andy Goldie on the chest and dropped into the mesh to tie it up.

A long argument ensued in the first 60 seconds of play when Ports claimed a goal on a shot by Harry Gray. Gray had carried the puck down and shot. Billy Mountain captured the rebound and on the rebound of this shot, Gray contended he had poked the disc into the net. But Referee Tom Munro refused to allow it, despite a ten-minute argument.

More speed on the attack and better boring-in tactics carried the Hamilton Senior B team through to a 6-1 verdict over Stratford Indians at Stratford.

Interest In Drama Is On The Increase

MONTREAL, Dec. 17 (C.P.) — "To-day there is a greater and more widespread interest in the drama in the schools and colleges of Canada than ever before in our history," declared Prof. Cyrus MacMillan, head of the department of English at McGill University, in an address at a meeting of the McGill Graduates Society here.

"There is a greater tendency than ever before to go back in our study of th drama to the methods of the Elizabethian age," Prof. MacMillan said. He derided those who said there was a lack of interest in the thatres in Canada.

"If we realized the activities of students of the drama in our schools and colleges to-day from Sydney to Vancouver, we would stop worrying about the inroads of the movies and the dismal future of the thatres in Canada. For drama is now being taught and exhibited to thousands of boys and girls of impressionable age. The movement is the product of the past 10 years and it is growing rapidly."

LINDSAY MAYOR RUNNING AGAIN

Chief Magistrate Announces His Decision at Banquet to Council.

MORE AID FOR JOBLESS.

LINDSAY, Dec. 17.—Mayor Alcorn, contrary to expectations, has announced that he is out of the race for the chief magistrate's chair. This announcement came at the closing session of the council last night, after which His Worship banquetted the council at the Hotel Benson. It is announced that Ald. D. E. Morirson and John McCrea, who is at present a member of the local Hydro Commission, will contest the Mayoralty. Lieut.-Col. George Meeks, H. B. Black and Frank Armstrong are dropping from the aldermanic board.

The citizens of Kirkfield, at a mass meeting last night, decided to build a new town hall. Funds for the purpose were raised by the Kirkfield Improvement committee.

The Victoria County Orange Lodge has decided to celebrate the Twelfth of July next year at Peterborough. The Orangemen of Fenelon Falls will also stage a big celebration on that date.

The Brantford Drilling Company, which has already spent over $7,000 in trying to secure a water supply for the town is still operating. The firm it is understood, is confident that a sufficient flow will be obtained to meet the requirements of the municipality in a short time.

The local Board of Water Commissioners has decided to have the water bills delivered by jobless men, instead of spending money on stamps, etc.

Three youths, Ralph McLean of Ottawa, Ray McLaren of Peterborough, and Wm. Boyd of Havelock, were acquitted a few days ago in Orillia police court on the charge of robbery and violence. It appears that one, Alfred Retford, while on his way home was accosted by three men, one of whom asked him for a cigarette. Another requested a dime in order to buy a cup of coffee, while the third shoved a pointed, hard obstacle against his ribs, and instructed him to hand over his money. He complied. When confronted by the trio Retford would not swear that they were the same men. A C.N.R. watchman also failed to identify the men. The trio provided an alibi which satisfied the court to the effect that they had slept in Barrie jail on the night of the hold-up. They were sent to jail, however, for ten days for trespassing on the railway property.

UNLUCKY DAY.

MILLEVILLE, N.J.—James Allen, motorist, knows how Job must have felt. His car skidded into Laurel Lake. He almost drowned before he broke a window and swam ashore. His clothes froze stiff before he was picked up, and when he finally did get home a summons to face a charge of driving without a license awaited him.

HOOVER PLANS WILL BE GIVEN HOUSE MONDAY

Message Expected to Carry Renewed Suggestion for Creation of Debts Commission

DEBATE CALLED OFF.

Chautemps Asked to Form French Cabinet Ready to Admit Failure.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (A.P.)—President Hoover will submit to the U. S. Congress probably next Monday a message on the status of the war debts. This is expected to carry with it a renewed recommendation for creation of a debts commission.

The new complexion cast on the debts issue by Thursday's default on the part of France and four other nations, was studied this morning at the President's Cabinet table but afterwards the officials directly concerned were non-committal on the future course.

Debate Postponed

The promised Senatorial debate was called off when Senator Harrison, ranking Democrat on the important finance committee, announced he would withhold the speech he had prepared. This action of his came when fresh hope developed that France's payment due yesterday might yet be made. Paris news despatches showed that hope persisted.

There were no indications that the administration was contemplating immediate aggressive steps to straighten out the muddle.

Task Impossible

PARIS, Dec. 16 (A.P.)—Camille Chautemps, who told President LeBrun yesterday that he would try to form a Cabinet to succeed that of Premier Herriot, informed the President last evening that the difficulties of the task seemed insurmountable.

ENLARGE C.N.R. CONTROL BOARD

King Proposes Including Representatives of Labor, Agriculture, Manufacture.

SPEAKS WITH MANION.

TORONTO, Dec. 16. (CP)—Enlargement of the proposed Board of Control for the Canadian National Railways to include representatives of labor, agriculture, manufacture and commerce was the suggestion to-day of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, federal Liberal leader to the Bennett government.

Speaking at the Commercial Travellers' Association banquet last night Mr. King also advocated "joint" control of industry by all contributing factors in place of "single" control. Henceforth, he said, industry would be viewed as social service and not as a means for personal acquisition of wealth, the prevailing view in the past.

Before the Liberal leader spoke, Hon. R. J. Manion, Dominion Minister of Railways, urged his audience, which included Premier George S. Henry and Ontario Liberal leader Mitchell F. Hepburn in the non-political gathering, to correct what he termed was a misapprehension regarding the railways.

Dr. Manon urged the gathering as a body of men closely in touch with public opinion to correct the impression that financial readjustment could "bring prosperity to the railway system, re-employ the men who had been released and make the railway a paying proposition."

Never, he said, had the system come within $10,000,000 of paying the interest alone upon its debts. This year, with drastic economies enforced, it would earn only $10,000,000 of the $58,000,000 interest payment which it owed. The rest would have to "come from the taxpayers of the Dominion.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

FARMER BROWN'S BOY MAKES A GOOD GUESS

With tail between his legs and head hanging in shame Bowser the Hound crept along at the heels of Farmer Brown's Boy. He crept along on three legs, the foot Yowler the Bob-cat had bitten being too sore to use. As he limped along he whimpered, partly because he was so sore and lame, partly because he was so ashamed of having been so badly beaten in a fight with a cat, and partly because he knew that he had done wrong in stealing away by himself to hunt and deserved to be punished.

But his master thought that Bowser had been punished quite enough already. Gently he bathed Bowser's wounds and on the worst of them put ointment to help heal them. And as he worked Farmer Brown's Boy talked to Bowser.

"You see what comes of disobedience," said he severely, and Bowser hung his head. "You knew that you had no business to go hunting by yourself. You sneaked away to do it. Yes, sir, you sneaked away for that hunt. Now see what you've got—the worst torn skin you ever have had in all your life. I'm sorry, old fellow, but it serves you just right. Had you stayed at home where you belonged this wouldn't have happened."

All the time Bowser watched his master's face with such a sorrowful look in his eyes that it "was impossible to scold him more. It was very clear that Bowser was both ashamed and sorry. Farmer Brown's Boy patted him gently and continued to talk to him. "What I want to know is who did it?" said he.

Of course Bowser couldn't answer. All he could do was to wag his tail. "Those scratches look to me like the work of claws and not teeth," continued Farmer Brown's Boy. "If it were not for those I should think you had been in a fight with Old Man Coyote, though I doubt if you ever could get near enough to that rascal to make him fight. It couldn't have been Buster Bear because you never in the world would have dared to face him. I've seen you put your tail between your legs at the mere smell of Buster's tracks. You look to me as if two or three cats had tackled you together."

Now, of course, Bowser couldn't understand all this, but there was one word he did understand. At the word "cats" he growled way down in his throat. Farmer Brown's Boy heard it.

"So that's it, is it?" he exclaimed. "I don't know of any cats around here but Black Pussy and you and Black Pussy are friends. Besides no cat the size of Black Pussy could have clawed you this way. If it was a cat it was one a lot bigger than Black Pussy. I should say it must have been a Wild Cat. I haven't heard of one around here for years. I wonder if one has come to the Green Forest to live. I wonder."

Farmer Brown's Boy looked over toward the Green Forest thoughtfully. Then he examined Bowser's wounds more carefully than before. "It's my guess that you met Yowler the Bob-cat," said he finally. "That's my guess, Bowser. And if that is so we must do something about it. Yowler is a bad neighbor to have about. You know those Turkeys have just got nicely established in the Green Forest, but I'm afraid that if Yowler is about there won't be many of them left by spring. I didn't think we ever would do any more hunting, Bowser, but I guess we will. In a couple of days when you are feeling better we'll take a walk and see what we can discover."

What Today Means to YOU

By MARY BLAKE

"SAGITTARIUS"

If December 17th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 5 a.m. to 6.30 a.m., from 4 p.m. to 5.15 p.m. and from 10 p.m. to 11 p.m. The danger periods are from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. and from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m.

A general feeling of restlessness will prevail on this date. It will seem to affect most every one causing them to be on edge and slightly irritable. Not a good day to make new contacts or to straighten out tangled personal relationships and difficulties. All who have anything to sell will meet with great resistance.

Born on December 17th, the child will have a hasty temper and will be inclined to be emotionally unstable. The trait of jealousy will make an early appearance in his make-up. He will be a difficult child to handle. His will be a mental rather than a physical existence and he should be encouraged and if necessary made to take part in outdoor activities.

If December 17th is the date of your birth, you must guard yourself against becoming "hard-boiled," cynical and distrusting. Life gives us all some difficult spots to traverse, but that is no reason for us to lose sight of the finer things that life offers us and to run around feeling depressed, blue, and carrying a chip on our shoulders. You must make yourself rise above these things. Do that, and you will find yourself well on the way to success for you have abilities and qualities that assure you a worthwhile place in your community. Your sincerity and honesty, your direct and forceful manner, your love of humanity, your desire to be of service to others, these and other qualities make you a man capable of assuming leadership and of acting with foresight and judgment.

You place a great value on friendship. Accordingly, you will receive great benefits from the many fine friends who always will be seeking to help you. You are not yourself a creative person but you do enjoy tremendously the beauties of life. You have an ear for music, a good sense of rhythm, and should be a splendid dancer. Music uplifts you and inspires you to carry on in spite of the troubles that beset you. You do not appeal emotionally to the opposite sex, but there is a certain strength and firmness about you that draws them to you.

"SAGITTARIUS"

If December 18th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m., from 6.30 p.m. to 7.45 p.m. and from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. The danger periods are from 11.30 a.m. to 12.45 p.m. and from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Influences are such that you will be beset with many difficulties and obstacles on this day in your social contacts. You will probably feel mentally hazy and sluggish; slow to react to situations. You will perhaps have difficulty in composing your thought. No dangers facing you.

The child born on this December 18th, will have a "happy-go-lucky" and care-free nature. He will not be quick to assume responsibilities. He will have a great deal of luck to help him along in life, and his buoyant and cheerful disposition will carry him over many rough spots. A religious type of person, spiritual and sensitive.

Born on December 18th your path through life will be a halting and devious one. You will experience difficulty in finding your life's work. In the course of your earlier years you will in all probability hold a number of different jobs in various lines of activity. You are not really a "rolling stone" in the generally accepted sense of the word, but you are so sensitively attuned to what is right that you will not be content until you definitely find the work that is meant for you. Unlike most people you are content to sit back and make the best of things; you prefer to start out and try to right them yourself.

You are a person of many fine qualities and can handle many different types of work. Once you have found yourself, and there is a possibility that you may not, there is nothing that can stop you from climbing to the top. You attract people to you; those of the opposite sex will seldom give you any peace of mind for they will be fussing about you all the time, to the point of annoyance in fact. You are inclined to be jealous and should take care in choosing a mate to select one who beyond all question will prove faithful to you. You will have many friends and your successes socially and in a business way will be largely attributable to what your friends freely and of their own accord do for you.

COUNCIL HEARS SPLENDID REPORT

$2,219.35 Taxes in Hastings Village Left Unpaid According to Statement.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, December 17. — The final meeting of the village council was held on Thursday night in the council chamber, with Reeve Dr. J. H. Hess in the chair. Councillors Fleming, Percault, Parker and Fairman present.

M. J. Baker, village treasurer gave the council a brief financial statement as to how they would end the year. December 14 being the last day for payment of taxes without any extra charge, showed that out of a total of over $13,000 in taxes there was only a balance of $2,219.35 left unpaid, which is a good showing considering conditions; also the fact that the collector, L. T. Huycke, has been confined to his home and the ratepayers went in and paid up without the necessary asking. Hastings' taxes are paid all in one installment. The council discussed the 5 per cent. to be added to unpaid taxes after the 14th of December and thought that as an added inducement to those who are still in arrears no penalty would be added until after the end of the year.

Working in cooperation with the local Welfare Board the council decided to have the balance of Homewood Avenue cleared. Those applying for relief will be put to work cutting the wood on the new street, which was partly opened this past summer.

The following accounts were read:

ABHORS MANY FIBBERS

DOVER, England, Dec. 17 (C.P.) —"The amount of perjury committed in the courts of this country is appalling," said Judge Clements at Dover County Court. "People come to the courts and take the oath, but you never expect them to speak the truth at all.

"They say, 'I swear by Almighty God,' and it is an offence against the law of the country and an insult to Almighty God, in whom they do not believe. They ought not to be able to take an oath, unless they mean to keep it, and if they take it and fail to keep it, they should be punished. But if this were so the judges would never get through their work. They would work all day and every day and have no vacations."

Market Closing On All Exchanges

STANDARD CLOSE

TORONTO, Dec. 17.—(CP)—The Standard Mining market went through the usual motions today but there was a marked scarcity of buyers, some of the gold stocks that boiled over in recent weeks did not trade a share. Uncertainty regarding the trend of the Wall Street market is partly blamed for the quietness of the local trading.

Lake Shore and McIntyre were down about 25 each. Teck Hughes gained 5 points and Wright Hargreaves closed a coupleof points off.

Copper shares also lacked interest. Nickel in odd lot trades settled back 5 to 8.95. Noranda sold at $19 while Hudson Bay, and Ventures were both a little lower.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Dec. 17 (C.P.).—Inspired by the advance in New York prices on the Montreal Stock Exchange strengthened during to-day's short session. Trading continued at a slow pace. The upward movement extended throughout the list but was mainly confined to fractions.

Brazilian Traction, the active leader, gained ¼ at 10. International Nickel was up 1-8 at 8 7-8 Montreal Power at 31, and Canadian Pacific Railway at 16 were both unchanged.

Dominion Bridge was one of the strong features, advancing a full point at 14¼. Shawinigan Power rose 3-8 at 9 7-8. Dryden Paper was ¼ higher at 1¾. Gains of 1-8 were recorded by Canadian Industrial Alcohol at 2¼, Dominion Steel and Coal "B" at 1 1-8, and Steel of Canada at 15¾.

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, Dec. 17. — (C.P.)—Voting of the next two quarterly dividends by Dominion Bridge gave that stock a little flutter on the Toronto stock exchange to-day. The quotation moved up a fraction to 14 3-8 on good volume of buying. Trading was also fair in Nickel, B. A. and Imperial Oil and C.P.R., but the rest of the market was quiet with prices holding well.

Volume was down considerably in B. A. Oil from the heavy turnover of recent sessions and the price stiffened a fraction to 7 7-8. Imperial was also a fraction better at 8 5-8, while International Pete held steady at 11 3-8.

C.P.R. continues in demand on its traffic prospects and there are also rumors of the possibility of dividend action. It closed at 16, down 1-8. Brazilian lost a fraction to 9 5-8 and Nickel was unchanged at 8 7-8.

In the beverage group Distillers Seagram recovered its recent loss to sell at 5, while Walkers common was unchanged at 5 7-8, and Canada Bud and Canada Malting both chalked up small gains.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 (A.P.) —The Stock Market showed no inclination to venture from its narrow groove of recent trading in a quiet week-end session to-day.

While some brokers continued to talk of a Christmas rally, news of a character to impel the market in either direction was lacking. Buying advices which have been issued of late have provoked little response.

The market firmed a little in the first hour to-day, and eased somewhat in the second hour, closing with irregular net changes, largely of unimportant, fractional proportions. The turnover approximated 400,000 shares.

There was an abatement of selling of U. S. Steel Preferred, which closed a scant fraction higher, while Steel Common was off a fraction. Coca Cola was a soft spot, dropping more than 2 points.

German Gets 20 Years Betrayed Gas Attack

LEIPSIC, Germany, Dec. 17. — (A.P.)—For betraying the first German gas attack to the enemy in the war August Jaeger, 41, a chauffeur, was sentenced in the Supreme Court today to serve 10 years in the penitentiary and be deprived of civic honors.

Jaeger was convicted of deserting to the French on April 15, 1915, and betraying an impending German gas attack on the Langemarck-Poelcapelle front in Flanders. He was supposed among the missing until his act was revealed in French historic documents published in December, 1930.

Turkeys Sell At Record Low Price

The basket section of the market hall was packed with sellers and buyers this morning. Tables, augmented by little ones placed in the aisles, were loaded with fowl, which sold at remarkably low prices.

Turkeys were at a record low price, small samples beig offered for 14 cents a pound. The ascending scale touched 16, 17, 18, 20 and up as far as 30 cents a pound, in a very wide range.

Chickens, which have been selling at low, quotations for some weeks past, were priced from 12 to 15 cents a pound. Geese and ducks were 14 and 15 cents a pound.

Beef was 6 to 8 cents a pound, pork 5 to 7 and 6 to 8, in front and

Axe handles were 40 cents apiece; Savoy cabbages 5 and 10 cents; honey 25 to 40 cents a pail; pears 15 cents a basket.

Cream was 25 cents a pint; eggs 33 to 40 cents a dozen; butter 18 to 25 cents a pound.

WINNIPEG WHEAT ADVANCES TO-DAY

December, May and July Grains Turn Upward This Morning.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 17—(CP)—The wheat market rallied bouyanty today bringing a characteristically sudden shift of sentiment from deep gloom to bright sunshine.

Holding early gains well December advanced 1¼c to 40⅝ while May and July each advanced to 1⅛c to 43¼ and 44⅜ respectively.

Grain Review

WINNIPEG GRAIN EXCHANGE

WINNIPEG, Dec. 17 (C.P.)—After shattering all records for low wheat prices, No. 1 Northern wheat was worth only 39⅜ cents a bushel in the elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur, at the close of trading Friday. It had previously made a low mark of 38 cents.

Losses for the week amounted to 4⅝ cents to 5 cents in the three trading futures with December finishing at 39⅜ cents, May at 42⅛ cents and July at 43¼ cents.

Much distress wheat was disposed of in the course of the week, but Friday's market saw the climax when a break of 3¾ to 4 cents shook out many holders. Farmers were unfortunately the ones to suffer most.

Many growers who had borrowed money against wheat delivered to the elevators saw their margins disappear and the wheat had to be sold.

But farmers were not the only sellers of wheat during the week. Additional weight was thrown on the market by spreaders operating between Winnipeg and Chicago. They had bought Winnipeg May wheat and sold Chicago May wheat with both markets fairly even, in the belief that Winnipeg would gain on the southern market. The very reverse happened, with the result that pressure developed at Winnipeg and the Chicago market eventually went to a premium of 4½ cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

(By John P. Boughan, A.P. Market Editor.)

CHICAGO, Dec. 17 (A.P.)—Looking up on the wheat trade horizon at present are two big factors.

Nearest at hand is a new government report next Tuesday estimating the acreage and condition of the autumn-sown crop of domestic wheat. Further off is the crest of the movement of wheat from the southern hemisphere. Regardless of what may develop from the forthcoming government report, or from the maximum of shipments to north of the equator, trade experts in Chicago say it is a certainty that there is no great pressure of wheat on domeestic markets at this time.

Compared with a week ago, Chicago wheat prices this morning were ½ cent to ¾ cents a bushel lower; corn unchanged to ⅝ down, oats ⅛ to ⅜ off, and provisions varying from five cents decline to 42 cents advance.

A strong undercurrent of belief is apparent in some quarters that the United States 1933 yield of wheat will be less than normal consumer needs. This belief is based largely on evidence of the smallest planted acreage since 1914 and on prolonged sub-zero temperatures of late.

Corn and oats are helped by the fact that livestock feeding conditions are the reverse of last year.

Provisions have an upward tendency owing to increased demand as a result of Arctic weather.

SAFE BLOWERS ACTIVE.

LONDON, Ont.—Safe blowers added another scalp to their string early to-day when the safe in the Saneone Fruit Co. office failed to resist charges of nitroglycerine. The raiders, after ransacking the entire office, departed with $131 in cash from the safe. They entered the building through a side door leading from the loading platform into the warehouse and then made their way into the office.

HICKS TAKEN TO PRISON.

TOONTO. — Harold Hicks, sentenced to life imprisonment for armed robbery and his part in the shooting of Dr. W. G. More, last October, was to-day taken to Portsmouth Penitentiary.

Before boarding the train Hicks complained he had not been allowed to see Ewart Warren, under sentence of death for killing Dr. More, before leaving for the Penitentiary.

C.P.R. EARNINGS

MONTREAL, Dec. 17. — (CP) — Traffic earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the week ended December 14 were $2,320,000, a decrease of $540,000 from the corresponding week last year, according to a company statement.

NORFOLK COUNTY

thusiasm over one single wolf. They shoot them practically every day up in the northern section of the province, but this was a different wolf.

Absolutely Unbelievable.

Because this wolf came from the more civilized section of the south. Hon. George Challies, Minister of Game and Fisheries, promptly declared, "It is absolutely unbelievable a wolf would be found in Norfolk County."

So Harry A. Ostrander and Leo O. Stilwell loaded the carcass of the wolf into an automobile and dashed to Toronto. They carried the rigid form into a newspaper office. It was protographed. Then they returned to Norfolk County.

"Well, if it's a wolf why don't they claim the bounty?" asked the sceptics.

So up came the wolf again. Experts from the Department looked it all over. It was a wolf.

The intrepid hunters who accounted for the animal may now enter their claim for the bounty through the County of Norfolk. It will be paid. And the wolf should certainly be placed on a pedestal.

C.N.R. REVENUES

MONTREAL, Dec. 17 (C.P.) — Gross revenues of the Canadian National Railways for the week ending December 14, 1932, were $2-399,316 as compared with $3,036,441 for the corresponding period of 1931, a decrease of $637,125, according to official figures.

SAVES DROWNING BOY.

HAMILTON. — Resourcefulness of Mrs. A. E. King to-day saved the life of Lorne Wicklum, 10, at Burlington Beach. The boy was playing on the ice when he suddenly went through. Mrs. King witnessed the accident and went to the boy's aid. Hasty search revealed a long board, which she extended to the lad. After some struggling, the exhausted boy was pulled to safety.

TAX SECURITIES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (A.P.) — Representative Britten, Republican of Illinois, in a resolution today proposed a tax on the private and governmental securities held by Americans against foreign nations which have defaulted their debts to the United States.

THIRD TRIAL NEEDED.

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 17.—(C.P.)—After deliberating for six and a half hours, a jury sitting before Judge Deroche at the General Sessions of the Peace and County Court, were unable to return an unanimous verdict in the case of Hess Vinkle, of Oso township, charged with setting fire to a barn belonging to Ross McGinnis. Judge Deroche remarked that it was too bad that the jury disagreed, thus necessitating a third trial.

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE No. 90

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service, Inc.)

As favorable winds carried Tarzan's craft up the sunlit sea, the O-220, following the same route cruised in wide circles upon what its captain now considered his hopeless quest for the missing members of the dirigible's party. Also, he was beginning to wonder if they could find the polar opening and return again to the outer world. Serious problems concerning fuel and oil confronted them if they did not soon start back for civilization.

If they did not find Tarzan and Jason quickly, it looked as though the men of the great dirigible must resign themselves to remaining. Below them but never within sight, the ape-man and his party were sailing now—they knew not where — lost upon the bosom of Pellucidar's uncharted sea. Lajo, head Korsar stood in the boat's bow, sniffing the air like a hunting dog. A land breeze had sprung up. "We are in for a stiff blow," he said to Tarzan.

Soon the wind and sea mounted to terrifying proportions and the craft fairly flew before the storm. There was no rain or lightning, just stupendous seas and hurricane wind that threatened to engulf Tarzan and his companions each moment. The Waziri were frankly frightened, for the sea was not their element. The mountain girl and Thoar seemed awed but if they felt fear, they did not show it. Even Tarzan and Jason were convinced the boat could not weather the elements.

54-90 ©1931, by Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc. All rights reserved.

By some miracle of fate the boat lived through the storm. But when the wind diminished and the seas went down, there were only tumbling waters to be seen. Nowhere was there a sight of land. "How now, Lajo, shall we set our course for Korsar?" asked Tarzan. "It will be difficult," he answered, "but I know from which direction the wind usually blows upon the Korsar Az. We cannot be far from my city." It was at that moment that a cry came from The Red Flower of Zoram, and all eyes turned in the direction she indicated.

HASTINGS FIGHTERS WIN FOUR OF EIGHT BOUTS IN HOME SHOW

Reg McMillan of Peterborough Cops Main Bout From Jimmie Ryder.

TWO KNOCKOUTS.

HASTINGS, Dec. 17 (Examiner Correspondence). — Hastings boxers won four out of eight bouts against the Cowan Club of Peterborough and Campbellford boxers at the Wellman A.C. show in Lynch's Hall Friday night before a big crowd. Len Minicola, who accepted the job of training the locals, has made a wonderful improvement in his first week.

Reg. McMillen of Peterborough won the main bout from Jimmie Ryder of the locals. The semi-final bout was a real socking match between Art Gundale of the locals and George Smith of Campbellford, Smith getting the decision after the hardest fight bout ever staged in Hastings.

Despite the heavy slugging of the bouts, there were only two knockouts pulled off. Andy McKee, 98-pounder, knocking out Joe DeNoble, 95 lbs., of the Cowan A.C., while Ed. Connelley of the locals put Marty Gahagen, another Cowan boy, away.

R. Harding, Cowan Club, 102 lbs., opened the card against Gord Puffer, 103 lbs., of the locals. Puffer making this first appearance in the local ring, won a big hand from the crowd for his willingness to mix it up. At the end of three rounds the boys were even on points and went on for the fourth, which Puffer won.

First K.O. of Evening.

Andy McKee, local 98-pounder, and Joe DeNoble, Cowan 95-pounder, mixed in the second bout. McKee was much too good for the Peterborough boy, and won the first round handily; coming out for the second. Andy let go with a right to the chin that floored the Cowan boy for a count of nine. Andy continued punching hard, and near the end of the second round got the first knockout of the evening. Andy showed marked improvement over his last fight, and got a big hand from the crowd.

Pete Vittarelli, 118 lbs., was too good for Jack Hennessey, 120 lbs., of the locals. The first round was even; in the second Hennessey took a count of eight, and from then on fought on his gameness. Pete got the decision.

Tony Minicola, 130 lbs., and Frankie Stube, 134 lbs., went through three rounds of tame boxing. Neither boys seemed anxious to land any damaging blows. Minicola gave a much better exhibition of boxing and got the decision.

Real Slugging Match.

Ed. Connolley, 132-lb. local boy, and Marty Gahagen of the Cowan A.C., brought the crowd to their feet with a real slugging match. Gahagen landed a nice one to the chin that had the local boy groggy, but he didn't follow it up, the round ending with both boys slugging. The second round was about half gone when Connolley landed his haymaker to end the bout.

"Bat" Nelson, local 137-pounder, kept his record clean for not having lost a fight, when he got the decision over Jack McIlmoyle. Wilson had the advantage in weight over the Cowan boy, and won the decision quite easily.

The semi-final between George Smith of Campbellford, 160 lbs., and Art Gundale, 152 lbs., was a show in itself. Both boys opened right out in the first and slugged it out, the round ending even. In the second Gundale was down twice for a count, but always came back strong. The crowd were pulling hard for Gundale, when he brought the blood on Smith's face. At the close of the second Gundale went out through the ropes but was back before a count. Coming out for the third, the crowd were standing on their seats when Gundale again went down for a count of eight. The local boy was landing on Smith's face continually, but the Campbellford boy was too tough. Gundale was on the mat when the bell rang to end the bout. Smith got the decision.

The main bout went to Reg. McMillen, 152 lbs., of Cowan A.C., over Jimmie Ryder of the locals. The Peterborough boy was in much better condition than Ryder, but the latter stuck out the five rounds.

Two Hockey Games For Relief Funds

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 17 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Another drive for relief funds for the town of Campbellford will be made on Monday evening in the Davidson Arena when the Campbellford intermediate and junior teams will clash in an exhibition game of hockey and the warriors of days gone by, the Campbellford Legion, will engage in an ice battle with the local Odd Fellows. The latter game will be played, providing the Society Gents and the Old Sweats are still able to stand on skates and are in condition sufficiently to do at least one length of the rink without kissing the ice.

The two Maroon teams will be mixed; playing an intermediate forward line with a junior defence against a junior forward line and intermediate defence.

Mr. John Wake, Dr. J. J. Hamilton and Mr. A. H. Monk were visitors to Peterborough on Tuesday.

Mrs. Arnott and Miss Mary Thompson were business visitors to Lindsay on Wednesday.

The monthly meeting of the W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. T. J. Jackson on Tuesday afternoon with eight members present, when after the devotional exercises were conducted, Miss Frances McKinnon contributed a solo. Miss Lily Weatherilt gave the devotional leaflet and Rev. Mr. Scott conducted the business part of the meeting and installation of officers as follows: President, Mrs. T. J. Jackson; vice, Miss Ada Richardson; secretary, Mrs. Harold Payne; treasurer, Mrs. Fred Thompson; pianist, Mrs. Scott. The retiring treasurer reported that the society had met the allocation of $110 in full.

The hostess served a delicious luncheon, and a social time was enjoyed.

The regular meeting of the Y.P.S. of the United Church was held in the Church parlors on Wednesday evening, when the President, Bert Monk, was in charge. Mr. Monk gave a short address following which the Program committee took charge.

Rev. Mr. Scott was appointed chairman to conduct the business part of the meeting which was the installation of officers for the coming year, as follows: President, Bert Monk; vice, Bruce Beer; Christian Fellowship convenor, Eric Porteous, assistant, Mansell Wright; Citizenship, Frances McKinnon, assistant, Margaret Jackson; Missionary, Miss Tanner, assistant, Mary Thompson; Social and Literary, Clara Beer, assistant, Vincent Jackson; secretary, Arthur Patterson, assistant, Pauline Thorndyke; treasurer, Norman Neals; pianist, Hazel Jackson; assistant, Lawrence Steer.

The president greeted the new officials, to which some replied, and the meeting was brought to a close.

COUPLE ARE WED LONDON TOWER

Soldier, Pretty Bride Say "I Do" Above Graves of Beheaded Notables.

"Saddest Spot On Earth."

(By Thomas T. Champion, C.P. Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Dec. 17 (C.P. Cable).—A soldier and a pretty girl were married to-day within the forbidding walls of the Tower of London and in the little Chapel of St. Peter ad Vincula where they used to bury the headless bodies of persons executed at the block on Tower Hill outside.

Beneath the floor on which the couple stood and said "I do," are the crypts in which were buried many notables of old who went under the axe, including Anne Boleyn and Katherine Howard, second and fifth wives of Henry VIII, beheaded four centuries ago for alleged infidelity to that "Merry Monarch."

To-day's bride was Winnifred Hall, daughter of the Yeoman Warder of the Tower, and the bridegroom Cyril Baker, who served recently with the Hussars in India.

The chapel in which they were wed was described by the historian as the "saddest spot on earth" on account of its painful associations.

To-day, however, it looked bright and gay as the bridal party stepped down the aisle. The bride's father wore the full Tudor dress of his office—pe-ribboned hat, scarelt sashed tunic, silken hose and buckled shoes.

Christmas Hymns At Warkworth Meeting

WARKWORTH, Dec. 17 (Examiner Correspondence).—One of the finest Institute meetings was held at the home of Mrs. Jacques on Wednesday afternoon. Reports were heard from the Visiting and Sunshine Committee and several letters were read from the sick and shut-ins who had received fruit and flowers.

Two quilts are being pieced and quilted by the members to be used for relief purposes.

Mrs. Samis, as convenor, took charge of the following program:

The opening chorus, "The Maple Leaf Forever," by all the members; paper, "When Yuletide was Young," by Mrs. Massey; "Silent Night" was sung by all the members, and a paper entitled "Joy of Giving," by Mrs. Black brought to a close this part of the program.

The hostess and her assistants served a dainty lunch, and the singing of the National Anthem brought to a close an interesting meeting.

Miscellaneous Shower.

A miscellaneous shower was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Herminston at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Potter on Wednesday night, when a very large crowd gathered to offer best wishes and congratulations to the happy couple. The many useful and expensive gifts testified to the high esteem in which the young couple are held. The evening was spent in dancing.

Commercial fishing for swordfish off the coasts of Nova Scotia yielded 1,263,000 pounds of these fish worth $236,600 in 1931.

TAX COLLECTOR RETURNS ROLLS

Collections This Year Only Fractionally Lower Than Last Year.

IN SEYMOUR TOWNSHIP.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 17 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The final meeting of the Seymour Township Council was held on Thursday in the clerk's office, Campbellford, with Reeve R. Innes in the chair; all members present.

A letter from the Department of Railways and Canals was read, requesting the erection of a checkerboard sign on the south side of the Healey Falls bridge. This was not dealt with, but left to the incoming council. The report of the Township Board of Health, presented by the chairman, John Wallace, was received and filed.

Four rebates for dog tax were granted: David Lynch, George Van-Volkenburg and Mrs. T. Dunham to the amount of $2 each, and David Brunton to the amount of $4.

The school report was presented by the attendance officer, G. W. Anderson, and the accounts totalling $18,569.00 were passed. Of this amount $16,696.67 was the county levy.

William Fisher, tax collector, presented his roll, which showed that collections in the township this year are only fractionally below last year. To date approximately $36,000 has been collected with taxes outstanding amounting to $5,600.

Nominations for the township were set for December 26 at 1 p.m. in the Regent Theatre, Campbellford, with the election, if held, on January 2. The following are the polling booths with the deputy returning officers and poll clerks: West's School: John Locke, J. Watters; Connelly's School: R. McCullough, Charles O'Sullivan. English Line: Ernest Craighead, Ernest Mitchell. Menie: J. Stewart, H. B. Atkinson. Orange Hall, Petherick's: Alfred Barnum, Lorne Barnum. Orange Lodge, Stanwood: Harold Rutherford, Charles Lawrence. Meyersburg Store: Walter Scott, William Fraser. Inkster's Store, Trent River: F. C. Inkster, John Ruttan.

Following the business a vote of thanks was tendered Reeve Innes by the council for the gentlemanly manner in which he had conducted the business of the council during the year.

Obituary

MISS JOANNA MYLES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, December 17. — The funeral of the late Miss Joanna Myles took place on Thursday morning from the family residence to Our Lady of Monte Carmel Roman Catholic Church, where Requiem High Mass was sung by Rev. Father P. J. Kelly. The large number who attended the funeral as well as the many spiritual offerings showed the esteem in which the deceased was held by a wide circle of friends.

The bearers were Messrs. P. J Crowley, J. F. Jones, J. J. Collins, F. Dodds, T. Lynch and T. A. Walsh.

Interment was made in Hastings R. C. Cemetery.

MISS LILY BRERETON

BETHANY, Dec. 17 (Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Miss Lily Brereton, 72 Rosemount avenue, Toronto, was held on Thursday and burial was made at St. Mary's Cemetery, Manvers.

The late Miss Brereton was the only daughter of the late Dr. George and Mrs. Brereton, former residents of Bethany. She had been in ill health for some years, having developed an acute kind of inflammatory rheumatism when a girl of eleven years of age and all that medical science could do was of no avail.

Left to mourn her loss are two brothers, Dr. Charles Brereton and Mr. Fred Brereton, both of Toronto; her parents and two brothers having predeceased her some time ago.

KILLINGBECK GETS 5 YEARS IN PRISON

WATER IS DOWN OVER 40 INCHES FROM ITS PEAK

Upper Lakes Are Holding Back Tons of Water in Big Reservoir.

RIVER FILLED WITH ICE.

Chief Hydraulic Engineer is Advising Trent Authorities.

The peril of an even greater flood on the Otonabee River than that which for four days last week engulfed wide tracts of countryside in the three townships bordering the river, flooding cellars, destroying produce and causing real despair to families in the flooded area, appeared removed at least temporarily.

Due to the efforts of Trent Canal officials and employees in damming the swollen water of the river back in the Kawartha Lakes and its northern reaches, the flood subsided further on Sunday and was continuing the slow retreat to-day. The Examiner was reliably informed that at Peterborough the flood had fallen at 10 o'clock to-day three and half feet from its maximum level gained on Friday. The drop in the flood waters was general below the city. At Wallace's Point a check showed that the fall from the maximum flood level was two and a half feet this morning. It was reported that Little Lake had gone to nearly summer level.

Danger Is Not Over

Cheered by this marked improvement in the situation, Trent Canal officials still did not deem it time to say that the flood danger was over.

The ice jams extending in almost one solid mass for 17 miles down the river, which had precipitated the danger were still holding fast and the situation there was unchanged. As long as the ice jams block the river bed, it was admitted, the flood danger still existed.

A survey of the river from Peterborough to Rice Lake on Sunday disclosed that in places the hummocky ice had piled up three feet. From the city to Kent's creek the ice was jagged, made up of cakes frozen together, indicating the jams that held fast underneath. The river had first frozen smooth to a depth of three inches. Then the ice had broken, the anchor ice swept down, the frazile formed and added its spongy mass to the whole and the ice jams were formed. How deep these jams extend down into the river bed is not known.

Below Kent's creek all was serene and the river was acting according to custom. There was none of the

RESCUED CREW ARRIVE IN PORT

Abandoned Schooner Set Afire to Prevent it Being Navigation Menace.

SAILORS RISK LIVES.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 (C.P.).—The British freighter Clan Alpine is here with the crew of six men rescued from the British schooner Frank Baxter. The schooner was abandoned on the night of December 12 in latitude 42.49 north and longitude 52.50 west after being set afire, so that it would not become a menace to navigation.

There was a heavy sea running and a strong gale blowing at the time the rescue was made, and the lifeboat from the Clan Alpine was in danger of being swamped while trying to get back to the ship with the schooner's crew.

Captain S. J. Kirby, master of the freighter which is owned by the Clan Line of Glasgow, to-day had little to say about the rescue. It was their duty to go to the aid of any ship in distress and that was all, he said.

Principals in French Political Debate

Since the crisis in France over payment of war debts to the United States, the political situation has been one of chaos. Premier Herriot, who strongly recommended payment, and who staked his Premiership on the issue, lost and resigned with his Cabinet. Camille Chautemps member of Herriot's Cabinet was asked by President Le Brun to form a Cabinet but failed. Now Joseph Paul-Boncour has been asked to take over the reigns of government, and his Cabinet is scheduled to meet to-day. The three principals in the political tangle which has aroused the whole of France are shown above, left to right—Boncour Herriot ,and LeBrun.

DOUBT ARISES OVER JEWELRY HOLD-UP FRIDAY

Claim Fairburn Only Carrying 21 Watches at Time of Robbery.

RINGS FOUND IN ROOM.

LINDSAY, Ont., Dec. 19 (Specal to The Examiner). —John Fairburn, the jewelry salesman, who told the story to the police on Friday night of having been attacked, shot and robbed of his jewelry case on Lindsay Street South, is still confined in the Ross Hospital. The wound in his shoulder is healing fast.

Provincial Constable Nelson interrogated the injured man for over an hour yesterday afternoon concerning his story of the affair in an effort to weave together certain tangled ends. It appears that the first story told the police has had certain variations.

The authorities have learned from the firm for whom Fairburn was working that he only carried about twenty-seven watches, four of these, it is understood, have been disposed of in Peterborough and two in Lindsay. The police have twelve watches in their possession together with a number of rings. These watches were in a case at his rooming house when the police visited it on Friday night. They are covered by insurance.

The police are saying very little about the affair, but it is expected that developments of an interesting nature will follow in a short time.

'Phone Operator Hears Flames, Groans of Victims and Sends Aid.

FOUR ESCAPE.

ATHOL, Mass., Dec. 19 (C.P.) — Mrs. Anna Davenport, 41, wife of Edward Davenport, and their daughter, Gloria, nine, were burned to death by fire that destroyed the home early to-day, our other members of the family escaped.

The alarm was given by a telephone operator who, seeing the red signal on her switchboard, listened in and not only heard the crackling of the flames but the groans of one of the victims. She called a neighbor living half a mile away, then notified the police and a doctor.

Mrs. Larus B. Davenport, mother of Edward Davenport, aged 85, was rescued. Dorothy Davenport, aged 12, saved herself by jumping from a second story window. Harold, a son, and the father were able to make their way from the building unharmed.

"White Army"

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Dec. 19,—(A.P.)— The "White Army,' 'an organization set up by the Cosgrave party, made its first appearance on duty in Dublin to-day when 20 of its members in civilian clothes escorted a consignment of English ale from the pier to warehouses and public houses.

The escort was provided at the request of the Publican Association in view of Republican boycott threats.

ATMOSPHERE OF CHRISTMAS AT CLUB LUNCHEON

Rotarians Heard Carols Delightfully Sung by Choristers of Trinity Church.

A CHRISTMAS MESSAGE.

Joyous Christmas music, an eloquent Christmas message and a discussion on the distribution of Christmas cheer to those in need were features of to-day's most enjoyable Rotary luncheon.

A musical program arranged by Rotarian R. F. Downey and enlisting the services of Miss Mabel Clarry, organist and choir leader, and a section of the choir of Trinity United Church, was thoroughly appreciated by the Rotarians. The choristers contributed a series of favorite Christmas carols including "Oh, Come, All Ye Faithful," "Silent Night," and "The First Noel," in splendid style and Miss Alma Blanchard's fine voice was effectively displayed in a solo number that was enthusiastically received.

Rotarian Rev. Dr. C. V. McLean delivered a brief but inspiring Christmas message, in which he defined Santa Claus as the spirit of goodwill which comes over everybody at the Christmas season. Santa Claus, he pointed out, effected a wonderful transformation each year, changing what would ordinarily be a dark, dreary month into a season of brightness. A condition exemplified by the many colored lights on city streets and the decorations in the stores and residences of the community. Santa Claus, too, was a restorer of youth. He brought with him that elixir of life that men through the ages had sought; the potion that made men young again in spirit. He rose triumphant over international barriers and tariff walls, proving himself invincible and every year taught men the wonderful lesson to give more and hoard less, to think more of others and less of self.

Rotarian A. L. Killaly thanked the choristers and the speaker for their contribution to the program.

Christmas cheer distribution was discussed and finally the question was left with a special committee headed by Rotarian George A. Gillespie to make the necessary arrangements.

There will be no meeting of the club next week, and the next luncheon will be on Tuesday, January 3.

Before adjournment to-day, President James Juby expressed to the visitors and to all members of the club his best wishes for a Merry Christmas.

100 SINGLE MEN WILL FIND WORK ON MINDEN ROAD

City is Allotted 50 Men For Minden-Dorset Road Camp.

25 FROM LAKEFIELD.

A winter's work on the Minden-Dorset road awaits 100 unemployed single men from Peterborough and district. The men are required at once, and with the selection having commenced this afternoon, the city contingent will likely be transported into the camp within a day or two.

Hon. W. A. Finlayson, Minister of Northern Development, communicated by telephone at noon to-day with J. F. Strickland, K.C., M.P.P. Hon. Mr. Finlayson said that in accordance with his promise made to a delegation from Peterborough and J. P. Lancaster, M.P.P., representing the district, he had urged the Ontario Cabinet to open a camp on the Minden-Dorset road for Peterborough men.

Camp Is Now Ready.

"That camp is now ready and we have room for 100 men from the Peterborough district right away," Mr. Strickland reported Hon. Mr. Finlayson as saying. Hon. Mr. Finlayson said that selection and transportation of the men should be made immediately.

The city has been allotted 50 men, Lakefield 25, and North Monaghan 25. About December 27, arrangements will have been completed for the employment of about 25 men from Havelock, Mr. Strickland said.

Mayor Denne and Lakefield and North Monaghan municipal officials were informed immediately by Mr. Strickland of Hon. Mr. Finlayson's message, and were advised that the men must be sent to the camp as soon as possible.

The municipalities were told also that they must clothe the men fully in order to withstand the cold and rigours of their employment. The municipalities must also transport the men to the camp.

Hugh Robertson, of the Employment Bureau here, and A. G. Metheral, relief officer, will likely select the 50 city men. It was under-

Merchants May Keep Stores Open All Week

The shopping public is reminded that all the merchants in Peterborough have the option throughout this week of keeping open late at nights for the convenience of those who are unable to do the purchasing of their requirements earlier in the day. Merchants are, however, urging the co-operation of the many people who can find it possible to shop in the slacker periods throughout the day to do so and thus reelieve any possibility of congestion.

DENY RAILWAYS, CANALS BRANCH WILL BE CLOSED

Never Been Considered in Any Form Manion Answers Press Stories.

POINTS TO WORK DONE.

Claims Department One of Biggest and Busiest in Whole Government.

OTTAWA, Dec. 19 (CP)—"The question of abolishing the Department of Railways and Canals has never been considered by the Government in any manner, shape or form"; this was the emphatic statemet of Hon R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, when approached to-day in connection with a report published in a Toronto newspaper this morning that the department would disappear.

One of the biggest departments of the Dominion Government, vast enterprises such as the completion of the Welland Canal, the Hudson Bay Railway and Churchill terminals, the huge Beauharnois power development near Montreal, the whole canal system throughout Canada, in addition to Canadian National Railways, come under the admistration of Hon. R. J. Manion. The Ontario-St. Lawrence canals, the Quebec-St Lawrence canals, the Trent canal, the Rideau canal, the Carillon canal, Murray canal, Soulanges canal, and the St Peters canal in Nova Scotia, are included in the work coming under the administration of Dr. Manion. The department is the intermediary between the government and parliament and the railways themselves, necessitating a most intimate association with the Canadian National Railways and other railways of the country, which in these times particularly has made it a very heavy task.

Thousands on Payroll

The department probably has the largest number of employees in the government services. Some thousands are on the payroll.

If the Duff report is carried out and trsutees put in full charge of the Canadian National Railways, this would eliminate a great deal of railway work of the department and rearrangement possibly might be considered. "But" Dr. Manion declared, "I repeat there has been no consideration of the matter and until that time there is not likely to be any consideration."

The Canada-United States St. Lawrence waterways treaty—an enterprise which will take 10 years to complete—would ordinarily come under the Department of Railways and canals on ratification of the treaty. "If this treaty is approved, building of the St. Lawrence seaway would likely add tremendously to the work of the Department of Railways and Canals" Dr. Manion remarked.

ATTEMPT TO CONVERT ALSACE TO FRENCH IDEAS IS CONFUSING

France seeks to Dislodge Inherited German Customs.

NOW SPEAK FRENCH

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Copyright, 1932.

COLMAR, Alsace, Dec. 7.—When the average Alsatian, the so-called man in the street, thinks you are a Frenchman, he talks to you in French. He does it with a thick German accent and it sounds excruciatingly funny, but he does his best. But if by chance you drop a word of German, a smile immediately clears up the faces and you can see people feel at ease. Thereafter there is nothing stilted or halting about the conversation. It is natural, spontaneous and pleasant. For the Alsatians are a cordial folk. I find, frank and open, like all the southern Teutons.

Yesterday in the cathedral of Strassburg, I heard a priest deliver a sermon in high-German. The edifice was packed. The rapt attention of the congregation showed that the language was by no means foreign to them. And yet the native tongue is being replaced in Al-

Influenza Epidemic Sweeps Northland

TORONTO, December 19 (C.P.)—Moosonee, most northerly settlement in Ontario has been struck by an epidemic of influenza which is sweeping the entire north country according to Dr. W. J. Bell, Deputy Provincial Minister of Health. There are 90 cases, almost the entire population, stricken with the flu at the northern port.

One death occurred, this case having developed a respiratory complication. Other places affected according to Departmental reports are Kirkland Lake, North Bay, Sudbury, Sault Ste. Marie, Sioux Lookout and Hearst. The type of flu is mild, but there are considered to be thousands of persons suffering from the disease. At several places schools have been closed as there were not sufficient pupils or teachers to make it worth while carrying on.

Biglow is Given Term at Guelph By Judge Huycke

Leniency Urged On Bigelow's Behalf On Account Of His Impaired Health Since The Crash Occurred When Bristow Was Killed.

BOTH PRISONERS DENY THEIR GUILT WHEN ASKED IF HAD ANYTHING TO SAY.

Judge Huycke Tells Killingbeck That He Is Inclined To Think He Is Responsible For The Lot Of Two Boys In Jail.

With a previous criminal record extending over some years, Lavern Killingbeck, a former self-confessed drug addict was this morning sentenced by His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke to a term of five years imprisonment at Kingston Penitentiary upon conviction of receiving a diamond ring knowing it to have been stolen.

Herbert Bigelow, Cavan Township farmer found guilty of criminal negligence in respect to an automobile highway accident which cost the life of Lawrence Bristow on the night of January 23 last, was sentenced to a term of six months determinate and twelve months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph.

He was previously convicted of the offence at the June Sessions and was sentenced to a term of twelve months in Ontario Reformatory on that occasion. A new trial was ordered upon appeal.

R. R. Hall, K.C., who conducted Bigelow's defence obtained leave from His Honor this morning to call Dr. G. R. Scott to testify as to prisoner's mental and physical condition.

Dr. Scott stated that when called to the scene of the accident he found Bigelow had sustained a broken right collar bone; the left shoulder blade was severely bruised and some ribs under the left shoulder were crushed in.

"Bigelow's heart", the doctor testified, "has never recovered since the accident. His heart has been permanently damaged and it would be dangerous for him to exert himself physically". He also added that Bigelow's power of concentration of mind was below normal as a result of the accident.

Leniency Urged

In urging leniency for his client, Mr. Hall urged that the question of the degree of guilt should receive great weight in awarding a proper

WESTERN WHEAT GROUP DECIDED ON BY PREMIERS

Committee's Main Aim Will Be to Develop Market in Orient.

ASK GENERAL PARLEY.

Uniform Legislature for Greater Security of Tenure for Farmers Sought.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 19 (C.P.)—Appointment of an inter-provincial wheat committee to collaborate on major problems now facing Western agriculturists was decided upon at the Prairie Premiers' conference here.

In announcing the decisions reached at the three-day parley, Premier John Bracken, of Manitoba, chairman of the conference, said the committee would consider particularly the possibility of developing a market in the Orient for Canadian wheat as well as the question of international agreements with respect to acreage or export. The subject of world wheat surplus will also come under review.

Premier Bracken, Premier J. T. M. Anderson of Saskatchewan and Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta will be members of the committee which will have one other member from each province. Dr. H. C. Grant, Professor of Agricultural Economics, Manitoba Agricultural College, has been named for Manitoba. The members for Saskatchewan and Alberta will be named later.

The calling of an international conference to consider wheat acreage reduction, price stabilization and other problems of agriculture, received the support of the Prairie Premiers. The Federal Government will be urged to join with other nations in bringing such a conference about at the earliest opportunity, Mr. Bracken said.

Request Deferred.

The Western wheat pools request for the establishment of a Dominion wheat board was deferred, the Premiers deciding to wait for the Federal-Provincial conference to be held in Ottawa in January. At the conference all aspects of a national board will be considered.

Uniform legislation to provide for greater security of tenure, primarily for farmers and home owners, will be introduced when the Prairie Legislatures meet early in February. The legislation will be based on principles already established in the Manitoba Debt Adjustment Act, but the details were not revealed by Mr. Bracken.

"The results of the conference were highly satisfactory to all the delegates" declared Mr. Bracken last night. "We are endeavoring in the absence of one single Government for the Prairies to accomplish by conference some of the advantages that might be expected from a union of all.

"This conference was generally regarded as the most important we have yet held. A score or more of matters of common interest to the three governments were discussed, but for the most part, the understandings arrived at were such as should first of all be communicated at the respective legislatures."

INDIAN VICEROY HAS NEAR CALL BOARDING TRAIN

Lord Willingdon Stumbles as He Attempts to Step on Moving Coach.

ESCAPES UNHURT.

Had Been on Four-day Goodwill Visit to Bombay.

BOMBAY, Dec. 19 (C.P. Cable).—Departure of Earl Willingdon, Viceroy of Indian, and Lady Willingdon for Calcutta yesterday was marked by a series of unscheduled incidents, one of which might have resulted in injuries to the Viceroy when he stumbled getting aboard a train.

The Willingdons had paid a State visit for the races and were at the station. The train started punctually, but it was found the Vicedoy was still chatting on the station platform. The train stopped but was again started before it was discovered the Viceroy had not finished a laughing farewell to Lady Sykes, wife of the Governor of Bombay.

Is Unhurt

Lord Willingdon attempted to board the slowly moving train but stumbled and alarmed Lady Willingdon, who was safely aboard His Lordship, however, was not hurt and got on the train without further mishap.

Then it was discovered Lord Willingdon's son was not aboard, having done to the wrong station, and again the train was delayed until he arrived.

The four-day visit here of Lord and Lady Willingdon was largely occupied by a re-establishment of the cordial contacts with the leading citizens of the various communities and phases of business. In this effort the Viceroy was ably seconded by his wife.

PERSIA READY TO BACK RIGHTS

Will Defend Them By Force if Necessary in Oil Concession Dispute.

WANTS CHANGES MADE.

MOSCOW, Dec. 19, (AP) — The Tass (Russian) news agency correspondent, at Teheran, Persia, reported to-day that the newspaper Shefa E. Serkh, in an article criticising officials of the Anglo Persian oil company for failing to revise its government concession contract as allegedly promised warned that the Persian government is prepared to defend its rights by force if necessary.

"The company tried by means of different flattering promises and deceptions practiced on members of the Persian government to make the world believe concession had been sanctioned," he quoted the newspaper as saying.

"Proof of this was found in the fact that the company's manager, Mr. Cadman, was in Teheran in the Spring of 1926 for the coronation of Shah, at which time he declared he was ready to revise the contract. Six years have passed since then and despite the insistent requests of the Persian government to revise the contract, the company thus far has refrained from doing it under different pretexts."

Kawartha Lakes Used As Reservoir In Checking Flood

Flood Conditions Over The Otonabee River Decreased Rapidly Over The Week-End—Water Has Dropped Nearly Two Feet.

UPPER LAKES HOLDING BACK TONS OF WATER FRAZILE ICE CEASED TO FORM ON SATURDAY.

The peril of an even greater flood on the Otonabee River, because of the danger of the swollen waters of the river piling up still higher behind the 17 miles of ice jammed in the river bed below the city, appeared temporarily removed to-day with reports that the level of the flood waters above the first ice pack was falling steadily.

Throughout Sunday it was reported the flood level dropped 21 inches at the Peterborough Lock from its maximum, which had set a new all-time record of high levels on the Otonabee.

Reduction of the flood waters was due entirely to the united effort on the part of the Trent Canal officials to dam back the water along its upper reaches. Dam workers continued to drop in stop logs at more than a score of places north of the city as far as Minden and Gelert, and while the dams were almost awash with the continued piling up of waters behind them, still the effort had its results in temporarily, at least, removing extreme flood conditions about and below the city.

The ice jams were still holding fast to-day, although there was not so much anchor ice as previously rushing down to join the huge jams.

Trent Canal officials had patrols stationed along the length of the river in order to prevent as far as possible the jamming of other points. In order to give the river more "head" so that the river of its own force might rid its bed of the ice jams, dams at Hastings and Healey Falls were opened to lower materially the level of Rice Lake.

How long the water can be dammed back into its upper reaches is a question. What will occur when this flood tide has to be allowed to flow again and rushes down on the ice jam below the city is the danger. However, Trent officials are hopeful that in some manner the jams have been removed before the pressure in the upper reaches has to be relieved.

FASCISTS TRANSFERRING SWAMPS INTO FARMS

LITTORIA, Italy, Dec. 19.—(AP)—A statement by Premier Mussolini that war against nature was the kind Italy prefers was the guide to-day for the building of this "city" of Fascist creation on the plain between Rome and Naples. "It is here we have conducted and will conduct our real war operations," the premier said at the inauguration ceremonies yesterday, referring to transformation of swamps into farmlands.

"This is the kind of war we choose," he said, but warned "It is necessary for everyone to leave us alone at our work." Streets, squares and buildings will spring into being in this "city", now only a huge field halfway between the sea and Sermoneta mountains.

SLUGS SOLDIER LOOTS CANTEEN

Robber Escapes After Critically Injurying Artilleryman Near Kingston.

TAKES $60 CASH.

KINGSTON, Dec. 19.—Peter Davis, 50 years of age, is in the General Hospital, suffering from a fractured skull, and the police are looking for a man who entered the brigade canteen at Tete de Pont barracks shortly after 9 o'clock Sunday morning, slugged Davis over the head with a piece of iron pipe, and robbed the safe of $60.

The safe had just been opened by Davis, who had charge of the canteen.

Nothing was known of the affair until about 25 minutes later, when Davis staggered out of the canteen on to the square at the barracks, and was noticed by one of the guard. It was at first thought that Davis had fallen down the stairs, but on an investigtaion being made, it was found that the canteen had been robbed.

There was a pool of blood near the safe, while at the foot of a stairway close by, more blood was found and a cap identified as belonging to Davis.

It is believed that Davis was either thrown down the stairs by his assailant or fell down the stairs. Davis was given first aid and then rushed to the General Hospital, where an operation was performed by Dr. L. J. Austin. At the hospital last night it was stated that Davis was in a critical condition, but that he had a chance of recovery.

The victim of the assault resides at 248 Earl street with his wife and three children. He has been a member of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery 15 years, and for 12 years has had charge of the canteen at the barracks.

Western Canadian farmers have won the highest international honours in wheat on eighteen occasions in the twenty-two years since the competitions in Chicago began in 1911.

4 CARD PLAYERS ROBBED OF $420 AT POINT OF GUN

$10 "GIFT" LEFT.

Police Suspect Bandits Are Pair Who Robbed Bank Months Ago.

HAMILTON, Dec. 18. — Lined against a wall by two armed men who entered a downtown apartment in which they were playing cards, four wholesale butchers were robbed of $420 at midnight Saturday.

Both gunmen wore handkerchiefs across their faces. One held a sawed-off shotgun, the other a black automatic revolver.

The police are satisfied that the same men also robbed the Mount Hamilton branch of the Royal Bank of $2,950 one month ago, for similar weapons were used on that occasion and the descriptions tally.

The Loot

James Wood, occupant of an apartment on York Street, lost $90; Richard Roberts, of R.R. 1, Hannon, reported the theft of $250; T. Barker, Victoria Avenue north, lost $75 and $5 was taken from Charles Simon, R.R. 4 Dundas.

Wood told the police that he had invited a few friends to join him in a card game, and that they had been playing only a short time when someone knocked at the door. Wood opened, and saw one man pull a shotgun from under a light overcoat as the second brandished a revolver.

"Back up and face the wall' one of the gunmen commanded.

All the men were covered, so they obeyed quickly. While facing the wall they were compelled to keep their hands in the air, and while the man with the shotgun stood at the door, his accomplice carefully searched the victims. The bandits were in no hurry, and made a thorough job.

"We're going now, but you would be wise to stand there for another ten minutes" was the parting shot from one.

Wood suggested to the bandits that they leave him some money, and when they had gone he found a $10 bill on the table.

The card party guests did not wait the full ten minutes before calling the police, but in the few seconds that did elapse the bandits made a getaway.

The whole area was combed by police until early this morning but without results. Detectives Thomson and Barrett are working on the case.

One man was escribed as being 5 feet 8 inches in height, weighing 165 pounds, and of dark complection. He wore a light overcoat and his light peak cap was pulled well down over his eyes. He wore heavy work boots.

The second man was about 5 feet 6 inches tall and was clad in a light overcoat and cap.

SUCCESS MEETS RELIEF APPEAL

Sacred Concert at Campbellford Great Success—Crowded House.

JOINT CHOIRS ASSIST.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 19 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Unequalled success attended the sacred concert held on Sunday afternoon in the Hollywood Theatre, Campbellford, under the auspices of the Sunshine Club, directed by Mrs. H. T. Cowell. The theatre was packed to capacity, many people having to stand for lack of accommodation.

The concert, which was comprised of the united choirs of the town and outstanding local artists, was held in an endeavor to raise funds for Christmas relief, the appeal meeting with splendid success. Both the Campbellford Branch of the Canadian Legion and the Campbellford Rotary Club sponsored the appeal, and the citizens of the town and district rallied splendidly to the joint demand.

In the absence of Mayor H. N Carr, who was indisposed, the concert was presided over by Major J. M. Bygott and members of the Sunshine Club, beribboned with their colors, acted as ushers.

The program was comprised of vocal solos, choir numbers, readings, a duet and a number by the Campbellford Ionic Quartette. The choirs were those from Christ Church (Anglican), St. Andrew's Presbyterian and St. John's United Churches. All numbers were heartily applauded by a very appreciative audience.

The program was as follows: Four carols by the choirs; vocal solos by Miss Hilda Bonnycastle, Mrs. F. deF. Free, Mrs. C. J. Windrim, Mrs. Davidson, F. H. Lewis, Elmer Jordan, G. Lucy; vocal duet, S. W. Henson and G. Lucy; and Masters Freddie and Carl Runions; readings, Mrs. A. E. Wragg, Miss Rosina Clarke; Ionic Quartette, comprised of Dr. H. O. Richardson, W. Henson, Major J. M. Bygott and Albert Hazel. Accompanists for the afternoon were Mrs. Gwen. E. Lewis, Miss G. Maynard, Mrs. C. J. Windrim, Miss I. Bygott, E. C. Dolman and Albert Hazell.

Nothing Stingy About Australia

LONDON, (By Mail, C.P.). — Christmas gifts began to arrive early for the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Percy Greenaway.

The first was mammoth cake, weighing three-quarters of a ton made entirely of Australian produce.

On its top is a model of the Sydney Cricket Ground, with a miniature score board bearing the final figures for the first match in the current series of England-Australia "tests." It took 149 pounds of flour, 127 dozen eggs, and 178 pounds of sultanas—and other ingredients—to make it.

From the Mayor of Melbourne Sir Percy received a lamb. Both presents will be sent to London hospitals.

MISTAKE COSTS LIFE OF BABY

Third to Die in New York Hospital Since Saturday of Wrong Injection.

NURSE BLAMED.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 (A.P.) — A third baby died Sunday at the New York Hospital and Cornell Medical College Association from what the medical examiner said were the effects of an injection of boric acid solution given by mistake for a saline solution.

Two infants died at the hospital Saturday, supposedly from the same cause. It was believed then that the third baby who received the injection was responding successfully to treatment, but the child lived only a day longer.

John R. Howard, Jr., superintendent of the hospital, said the nurse who prepared the injection was a graduate of four years' standing and that she had a good record. The nurse whose name was not disclosed, has been relieved of duty.

Autopsies showed the infants died of a collapse of the lungs, together with acute inflammation of the stomach, bowels and kidneys.

WOLF HUNTING NORFOLK VOGUE

Farmers Lay Aside Work to Seek Marauders Worth $25 Bounty.

PROTECT FLOCKS.

TILLSONBURG, Ont., Dec. 19.—(C.P.)—Laying down their agricultural tools farmers of Norfolk county to-day picked up their guns and prepared to supplement their income by hunting wolves, the heads of which are exchangeable for a bounty of $25 each.

Following confirmation by Inspector H. C. Cox of the Inspection Branch of the Game and Fisheries Department, that the animal shot in their hunt last week was a brush wolf, farmers of the surrounding country will return to their wolf-hunting to-day with a renewed vigor.

Originally started to rid the country of the sheep-killing quadrupeds, doubt arose, following the bagging of one of the animals, as to whether they were really wolves.

Hon. George Challies, Minister of Games and Fisheries had expressed his skepticism as to the breed of the animal shot. It did not seem possible, he said, that wolves roamed so far south as Norfolk county.

But now supported by official confirmation that wolves are really loose in the district, the farmers will start out with a two-fold purpose in mind—to protect their sheep from the marauding brutes and reap the cash reward for their hides.

JURY DISMISSES $1,000 CLAIM FOR DAMAGES

Albert Wright Sought Damages From Township Clerk of North Monaghan.

HAD NOSE BROKEN.

Scrap Occurred at Clerk's House When Wright Was Getting Pay.

The jury on Saturday evening dismissed a claim for $1,000 damages and costs which had been launched by Albert Wright of North Monaghan Township against Bruce Johnston, clerk and treasurer of North Monaghan Township.

Hearing of the action was protracted, there being numerous witnesses on both sides, including other members of the families of the two parties to the suit.

Plaintiff Wright was represented by Emmett F. Sheehy, while the defence was conducted by F. D. Kerr, K.C.

Albert Wright testified that he had been in the employ of North Monaghan Township Council and on April 11, 1931, he had called at defendant's house at about seven o'clock in the evening. His wife and daughter accompanied him in the car. He sent his daughter into Mr. Johnston's house to collect his wages. Shortly afterwards she came from the house crying.

Subsequently plaintiff, testified he went for the money himself. "Johnston said what the hell kind of a man are you." He also used other objectionable terms.

Plaintiff swore that as he was in the act of signing his name to the pay sheet defendant grabbed him. There was a tussle and the lights went out as we fell to the floor, he said.

"What do you mean when you say the lights went out," asked Mr. Sheehy.

"My lights went out," plaintiff replied.

When he "came to," plaintiff said he was still at defendant's house. Blood was streaming down his face.

He claimed that he smelled liquor off the defendant's breath as they

LEGISLATURE TO OPEN LATER

Henry States Date Likely to be Toward End of February.

REGULATED BY EASTER.

TORONTO, Dec. 19. — Premier George S. Henry intimated Saturday night that, due to the fact that Easter falls much later in 1933 than it did this year, the next session of the Ontario Legislature may not be called until late in February.

"We haven't decided on the date yet," said he. "The House will open in February, that's certain, but the month may be pretty well over before it gets under way."

The Easter date has always pretty well governed the opening and closing of the Provincial House, every effort being made by the legislators to terminate business before Good Friday. Last Spring, the House opened on Feb. 10 and was prorogued on March 30, running three days past Easter. This was the one break, however, in a good many years, in the customary pre-Easter prorogation policy.

Six to eight weeks is the ordinary length of the Ontario House session. With Easter falling on April 16 next year, the House, to get in its usual term, would not need to assemble any earlier than Feb. 23 or Feb. 24.

A very pleasant time was spent on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kitney, River Road, when Mrs. Kitney, who directed the recent production of "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves," entertained the members of the cast at a sumptuous turkey dinner. The evening was spent in playing music games and contests. Mr. Frank Kunst was presented with the prize for selling the most tickets for the performance. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. William McLaren, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kunst, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Pitchford, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Roseborough, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hotston, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stevens, the Misses Freida Pavy, Edith Smith, Lillian Baldry, Vera Davis, Thelma McLaren and Messrs. Harold Pavy, Gerald Cuff, Thomas Parker, Frank Hitchens.

The young son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jennings was christened at four o'clock yesterday afternoon at St. John's Church, the Rev. E. R. James performing the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Draper were sponsors. The baby, who is four months old, received the name of Richard Norman. His christening robe is a precious heirloom which has been in the family for many generations and was made entirely by hand by Quaker ladies, one hundred and seventy years ago.

A number of local music-lovers were in Toronto on Saturday night for the performance at Massey Hall of Handel's "Messiah," by the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir, under Dr. H. A. Fricker. Among those who motored up from here were Dr. and Mrs. N. D. Buchanan, Mr. and Mrs. A. Barton, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Richmond, Mrs. C. H. Crowe, Miss Caroline Littlefield, Miss May Jory, Miss Geraldine Collins, Miss Eleanor Brown, Miss Mary Medd, Miss Margaret Dickson, Mr. M. H. Park, Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park and Mr. Hubert Eisdell of the local Conservatory of Music staff, were two of the soloists. Lawrence Mason, in the "Globe," says of the solo work: "The four soloists were the best that this reviewer has heard in these roles for some time. Dorothy Allan Park's beautiful voice was as moving as ever; Hubert Eisdell is, perhaps, the only tenor hereabouts with sufficient breadth of style for Handelian oratorio, and the only one on Saturday night who was perfectly at home in Handelian floriture; Frank Oldfield was richly impressive, vocally, and Ethel Holland also displayed a fine and pleasing voice." Pearl McCarth , in the "Mail and Empire," says of the two local soloists: "Dorothy Allan Park sings the soprano parts of the 'Messiah' beautifully, knowing what white joy they need but avoiding over-expression. Hubert Eisdell again evinced his extremely fine taste."

A feature of a small recital held by piano pupils of Mrs. C. B. Hughes, 376 Rubidge Street, at the home of their teacher, on Friday evening, was a scale contest which resulted in a tie between Frances Belleghem and Berenice Newman. Jean Johnson received the prize for attaining the highest number of marks during the past year. Dainty refreshments were served later.

Under the auspices of the First Company of Girl Guides, a very pleasant tea for Christmas relief was held on Saturday afternoon in the green room of the Young Women's Christian Association. The guests were received by the captain, Miss Dorothy Kelly, assisted by Lieutenant Ruth Sutton and Lieutenant Loretta McDougall. Tea was poured by Mrs. N. H. Sutton, at a table prettily arranged with a lace cloth centered by a miniature replica of Santa Claus and his tiny reindeer. Tea room assistants were the Misses Alicia Langley, Phyllis Cruthers, Elfie Saunders, Elizabeth McKay and Lillian Bull. Assisting with the service of refreshments were the Misses Jean Stinson, Gladys Carvolth, Betty Middleton and Helen Wemp. A sale of pretty things made by the Girl Guides was in charge of Miss Wilda Saunders and Miss Merle Smith.

The Y.W.C.A. Gym. on Saturday appeared like a glimpse of Santa Claus Land when the 250 children trooped past the huge Christmas tree which was laden with numerous toy packages and sparkling tinsel decorations. The Christmas dancing dolls which were tied to the tree were the Fairy Queen, Sophia Yeotes; the French Doll, Dorothy Boyle; the Christmas Cat, Joy Walker; the Golliwog Doll, Marjorie Boyle; the Christmas dolls in red and white with their clever tap dancing, Isabel Duffus, Thelma Buller, Irma Beatty, Katheleen Thackery; and the darling little Dutch dolls, tap dancers, Cora Charlton, Miriam Brown, Virginia Madill, Helen Hetherington, Jean Johnson, Evelyn Pammett, Marion Guerin, Jean Bell, Isabel Pogue, Dorothy Hutchison. The Babies and Interpretive dancing class gave a fairy dance play, "Fairies in the woods." Carols were sung when the Three Wise Men, Elizabeth McKay, Gladys Watson, Helen Thompson, appeared. The appearance of Santa Claus was greeted by the Jazz Band of the Junior Class, who played "Jingle Bells." Then came the shouts of welcome for Santa, the rush of chubby little tots eager to climb on Santa's knee and whisper their dearest wish, and then the distribution of the mysterious parcels from the tree and the jolly handshake by Kris Kringle. The beating of the drums and blowing of the trumpet soon filled the air with sounds of merriment. Finally the happy but tired children started on their homeward way, hugging their toys and the big orange and candy canes which they had also received. Santa then returned to the busy Canadian Department Store to greet many other children. The Physical Committee donated the candy canes and also assisted at the tree. The Senior Classes donated the special gifts for the club classes, also friends of the Association. Miss C. Littlefield announced that all gym. classes will be held as usual this week with the exception of the Junior and Babies' gym. classes, which will be held Thursday at 4.30 instead of Saturday, and the Intermediate Toe dancing on Wednesday; Intermediate Tap on Thursday at 7 and the massed gym. classes for Seniors Thursday at 8 o'clock, followed by refreshments at 9.30. Gymnasium closed Friday, re-opening January 3rd.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

FOR THE WOMAN who still has one or two more presents to make, the soft cushion cover described to-day may prove just the thing.

* * * * * * *

Not only can the decorative scheme be used for these cushions, but for boudoir pillows, bureau scarf ends, and curtain tie-backs. A set consisting of bureau scarf and tie-backs, makes a dainty gift.

* * * * * * *

Or a boudoir pillow and a bureau scarf makes another good combination set. Two or three pairs of curtain tie-backs would be welcome by any homemaker.

* * * * * * *

For bureau scarf borders and for soft or other cushion tops, plain glazed chintz or mercerized sateen is recommended. For the little floral motifs which you might use, one or more contrasting plain colors may be used.

* * * * * * *

It is imperative to have colors artistic in combination. For example, an orchid foundation chintz with floral units of two darker shades of the same orchid color, with an occasional white unit, is charming.

* * * * * * *

Use yellow for buttonhole stitchery or any preferred colored foundation with different sprigged floral units alone, or in combination with plain ones may be used.

* * * * * * *

These floral units are merely circles of material, approximately three and a half inches in diameter, gathered around the turned-in edge and drawn to leave an opening about half an inch wide.

* * * * * * *

This edge is buttonhole stitched. The units are then flattened in such a way that the half an inch circle comes on centre top. These units are then fastened to the foundation with French knots taken in the centre so the knots are visible through the opening.

* * * * * * *

For the novel sofa cushion tops, a simple design is sufficient, such as a centre circle with the units positioned so close on it that they nearly meet, and end decorations in corners.

* * * * * * *

An attractive corner design consists of lines parallel with the sides of the cushion, with spaces left between, so that they do not extend all the way around the cover.

* * * * * * *

Join these ends with circular lines following the contour of the central circle, and at least one inch from it. Each corner motif, of course, has floral units sewed on the lines as on the central circle.

* * * * * * *

For curtain tie-backs the same foundation as the cushion may be used, or a wide band of white tape. Sew the floral units in a row along the tape or textile band. Sew bone rings at each end of the tape. The floral units should be positioned with edges meeting forming an unbroken row.

* * * * * * *

The time required to make any of the pieces is short. The cost of the finished article is small.

* * * * * * *

But the pieces will be artistic and smart, provided the colors are well chosen.

Salmon Loaf French Fried Potatoes
Stewed Tomatoes Peas
Cucumber Pickles
Cookies Coffee or Tea

Canned salmon is cheap this year. It has good food value and combined with the ingredients included in this recipe, makes a very tasty dish. This recipe will serve six.

To-day's Recipes

Salmon Loaf—Two cups flaked salmon, two eggs, beaten; one teaspoon finely minced onion, two teaspoons minced parsley, one-half cup fine cracker crumbs, three-fourths teaspoon salt, dash white pepper, six tablespoons melted butter, two tablespoons evaporated milk or cream. Flake the fish fine, removing any bones or skin. (Be careful about this). Add the other ingredients and pack into a greased loaf pan. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, about 45 minutes. Turn out on a hot platter, garnish with hard-cooked egg slices and lemon. Serve with an egg sauce if desired; or with escalloped potatoes to give a sauce for the loaf.

A nice variation of this loaf is to separate the eggs, beat in the yolks with the other ingredients and then fold in the stiffly-beaten whites last of all. Turn into a greased ring mold, set in a pan of water and bake in a moderate oven, 375 degrees, about an hour. Turn out on a hot chop plate and fill the center of the ring with creamed peas and mushrooms.

Facts And Fancies

Tangerines

Tangerine sections glaced are among the tastiest of Christmas candies. The recipe for preparing them is as follows: Peel the tangerines and remove as much of the membrane as possible. Then dip in the syrup. Drain and cool. Here are the proportions: Syrup—Two cups sugar, one cup boiling water, one-third teaspoon cream of tartar. Put ingredients into a saucepan, stir over a low fire until sugar is dissolved. After that do not stir. Take care to wipe down the crystals from the sides of the pan frequently. Boil to the very hard crackle stage, 310 degrees Fahrenheit. The syrup will start to discolor. Remove saucepan at once from the fire and put it into a pan containing boiling water. Dip the fruit into the syrup, drain quickly and put onto a greased slab or platter. Kumquats, too, are nice diped in this syrup. They may be diped whole or halved.

There are many ways of serving tangerines. It is especially nice with the skin cut petal fashion and rolled back for easy consumption at the breakfast table. The children, too, enjoy it because it is so easily eaten.

Tangerine sections also find many uses in salads. For example, these sections arranged on lettuce with diced celery and seeded grapes make a tasty salad for the luncheon or dinner.

Replaces Meat

Cheese is a good food economy and will take the place of meat at a meal. It may be combined in a casserole dish, or in a sandwich filling, or a sauce for toast or a vegetable. It is easily digested—if cooked properly—and is filling.

Cottesloe W.M.S. Officers Elected

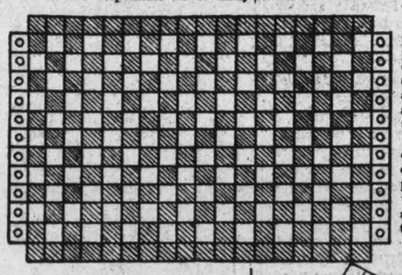
COTTESLOE, Dec. 19.— (Examiner Correspondence.)—The annual meeting of the Cottesloe Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. E. N. McDonald on Wednesday afternoon when after the regular business and part of the monthly program was disposed of, Mrs. (Rev.) Cleland gave a most helpful talk on the work of the Associate Helpers, stressing the importance of getting all the women of the congregation interested in the great Missionary task.

Mrs. Cleland told a very interesting story illustrating the truth that God builds with the material that is sent up to Him. Mrs. Cleland took charge of the election of officers which resulted as folows: President, Mrs. A. Webster; vice-president, Mrs. J. Blakely; secretary, Mrs. C. Jenkins; treasurer, supply secretary, Mrs. McDonald; organist, Mrs. J. E. Gallagher; Missionary Monthly secretary, Miss Laura Webster; Associate Helpers' secretary, Mrs. J. Perry; Temperance, Mrs. W. Forsyth; Press Secretary, Miss Mae Webster.

A hearty vote of thanks was given Mrs. Cleland and Mrs McDonald served lunch when a social half hour was spent.

Cellophane Handbag made at Home

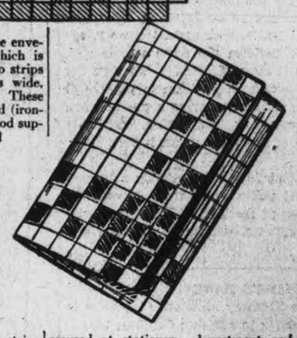
ONE of the newest articles resulting from the popular modern handcraft work which has its basis in the braiding of narrow strips of transparent material and which is now responsible for so many attractive and useful things, is the envelope handbag. "Cellophane," which is the material used, is first cut into strips 10 inches long and four inches wide, doubled so as to be half inch wide. These are tacked side by side on a board (ironing, or bread, or cardboard is a good support). Be sure the strips are folded and tacked straight and that they are very close together.



Then cut 18 strips 6 inches by 4 inches wide and fold in the same manner as the 10-inch strip. Interlace them over and under the vertical strips. Keep pushing each weaving strip tightly upward so the bag will be firm. After weaving, remove the tacks. Affix a strip of gummed tape the entire length of the outside strip on each of the four sides. Turn the loose ends over these strips and fasten them tightly. Coloured strips woven in at top and bottom add to the attractiveness of the finished handbag.

Then sew in a lining, bend the woven strip up from the bottom and down from the top until it resembles an envelope and catch the lower sides with stitches of white silk.

The plain transparent "Cellophane" can be easily secured by saving wrappers as so many articles now reach the buyer in a "Cellophane" cover. Rolls of coloured "Cellophane", to add variety and attractiveness to the purse, can be secured at stationery, department and chain stores.



"CELLOPHANE" is the registered trade mark designating cellulose sheets and films, manufactured in Canada under special arrangements with the duPont Cellophane Co., Inc.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

THE INFORMATORY DOUBLE

Provided your partner has neither bid nor doubled, a double of an adverse suit bid or of 1-No Trump, if made at the first opportunity that you have to double any declaration, is informatory. It asks your partner to bid, unless he can defeat the contract for more than can result from bidding. In no event must the doubler's partner allow the double to stand, unless it can be defeated.

Many players have claimed having invented the informatory double, but no claimant has been able to prove that he invented it before 1911, when Major C. L. Patton introduced this double at the Knickerbocker Whist club.

The only objection ever offered to the use of this double is: "How high a bid shall be doubled?" Personally, I double informatorially the following bids: 1-No Trump; three of a major suit; four of a minor suit. Higher doubles than these are "business doubles," intended to collect a penalty from the other side.

Various schemes have been suggested to make it clear to any partner whether the double means business or calls for partner's bid. Among these plans is Mr. S. S. Lenz' idea, that if you say "Challenge," you ask partner to bid or let the double stand, in case he can defeat the doubled contract. If you say "Double," you intend to defeat the contract. The suggestion has not been widely adopted.

I just saw the following hand dealt. Z made an opening bid of 3-Spades. Not knowing which of three strong suits to bid, and fearing that whichever bid he made might not be overcalled. A made an informatory double. Y passed. B bid 4-Diamonds. Z passed. A raised the contract to 5-Diamonds, which held the contract.

	♠ J 9 5 ♥ Q J 10 4 ♣ 8 7 6 2 ♦ J 10
♠ 3 ♥ A K 8 3 ♣ K Q J 4 ♦ A K 8 4	Y A B Z	♠ 8 4 2 ♥ 9 6 ♣ 10 5 ♦ 9 7 6 5 3 2
	♠ A K Q 10 7 6 ♥ 7 5 2 ♣ A 9 3 ♦ Q

The opening lead was the K of spades. It won the trick. Thinking that it could do no harm to oblige dummy to ruff, the Q of spades was led. Dummy trumped and the return lead from dummy was the K of clubs, to clear that suit. The Ace won, and Z led his Ace of spades, obliging dummy to ruff with its last small trump.

The Ace and I of diamonds were led, and they dropped all opposing trumps. Of the six tricks played Z had won two (one spade trick and one club trick). The declaring side had won four tricks. The declarer spread his hand. He held no spades, only two hearts, which the A-K in dummy must win; the good 10 of clubs, four long trumps. He could not possibly lose another trick, and it was useless to prolong play.

Had Y been A's partner, instead of B, Y would have responded to the informator double with 4-Hearts. All A-Y could have lost at hearts would have been one spade trick and one club trick. The holdings of A were so powerful that his partner could have gone game with almost any kind of hand. The curse of informatory doubling of high opposing bids is that players do not know what constitutes a thoroughly sound informatory double. Tomorrow we will discuss this important subject.

That Body of Yours

DEFECTS IN SPEECH

You will likely be surprised to learn that nearly one in every hundred children of school age has defects in speech.

Unfortunately children do not outgrow these defects, and habits of speech which are formed in early childhood are very difficult to alter later in life.

Dr. Baruch Silverman, Mental Hygiene Institute, Montreal, tells us that most of the speech defects aside from those caused by some definite disease of the central nervous system, can be generally classified into three groups, known as delayed speech, lisping, and stuttering.

Of these defects stuttering is the most common, and interferes most with the happiness and ability of the patient.

There are a number of theories as to the cause of stuttering, but naturally the treatment interests us must.

The general rules of hygiene must be observed, because stuttering is apt to so affect the individual that he avoids people, avoids outdoor exercise, and lives within himself so much, that this whole physical make up suffers.

Dr. Silverman reminds adults and teachers that they can help to develop normal speech, and prevent defects in children under their care.

How?

1. Physical defects of the mouth, teeth, tongue, nose and throat should be corrected.

2. Proper food, sufficient sleep, some exercise with also frequent rest periods are necessary.

3. The child should be encouraged to use words correctly, to name objects, especially things he wants. Avoid baby talk.

4. He should not be allowed to imitate the stuttering speech of another child or adult.

5. Left-handed children should not be urged to use the right hand, as this interferes with normal speech development, and sometimes proves to be a cause of stuttering.

6. The child should be kept free of unnecessary excitement, emotional outbursts, jealousies, persistent nagging or undue harshness, as this interferes with his self-confidence and his normal self-expression through speech.

The above simple rules should be worth much to parents and teachers, who are caring for children with speech defects.

CAROL SERVICE IS ATTENDED BY CAPACITY CROWD

Friendly Hour Group of Y.M.C.A. Sponsored Program in Collegiate.

GREENLAW SANG.

This year's general rule of very small attendances at public gatherings was shattered to pieces last night, when the big Collegiate auditorium, with a seating capacity of over eight hundred, was filled for the community Christmas carols service sponsored by the Friendly Hour Group of the Young Men's Christian Association. Assisting in the program was A. E. Greenlaw, the popular singer of Detroit, while the Male Voice Choir also assisted forming a fine vocal background on the stage for the community singing by the audience. Members of various church choirs of the city also augmented the group on the stage, and the orchestra of the Sunday School of George Street United Church played several splendid numbers and accompanied the singing of Christmas carols and hymns in which the audience joined with gusto. It was directed by W. H. Cunningham.

It was an attentive and appreciative gathering of men and women, taking part in the tuneful Christmas carols and applauding to the echo the solo numbers by Mr. Greenlaw. His very fine, rich, bass-baritone voice, as on other occasions, drew enthusiastic appreciation from his hearers. A cold prevented many encores by the vocalist, but he gave of his best, as always. His superb, expressive voice and fine musicianship earned him the sincere attention of a delighted house.

Mr. Greenlaw sang, by request, "Steal Away to Jesus," and a lovely, expressive encore, "My Mother's Prayer," with all the power and depth of his rich, mellow voice. Another request selection was the favorite composition, "The Old Rugged Cross,' and the last vocal solo was a religious Christmas song, "The Great White Throne."

Arthur Collison played Mr. Greenlaw's piano accompaniments.

Directed by T. Phillips, the members of the Male Voice Choir sang in pleasing, soft tone, "Hymn Divine," while an octette from the choir rendered "Watchman, What of the Night?" in splendid style. Members of this group were Messrs. A. Phillips, T. Williams, Fleming, Junior, McDonald, H. Flowers, Toaze, A. V. Lillow, W. F. Skitch.

The hymns and Christmas carols in which the audience joined with enthusiasm, led by Mr. Phillips and the choir on the stage, with the orchestra playing accompaniments, included: "All Hail the Power," "O Come All Ye Faithful," "Joy to the World," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," "One in Royal David's City," "Christians Awake," "Silent Night," "While Shepherds Watched," "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," "As With Gladness," and "Abide With Me."

At the conclusion of the program, Cecil Lapp, who acted as chairman, reiterated his expression of thanks, to all who had taken part in the program and to the audience, ending with an invitation to attend the regular after-church song services held at the Y.M.C.A. every Sunday evening.

G. H. Roper spoke very briefly, repeating the welcome of the Y.M.C.A. and the Friendly Hour Group and their appreciation of the fine attendance.

The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe.

YOUTH IS FACING GREAT PROBLEM

A. R. Piper Addresses Business and Professional Men's Club.

DUTY TO PERFORM.

"Youth is up against difficult problems in times such as we are now experiencing and the Y.M.C.A. is doing a highly commendable work in helping youth face these problems," declared A. R. Piper of this city, addressing a dinner of the Business and Professional Men's Club at the Y.M.C.A. Saturday evening. "I have the highest respect for the contribution of the Y.M.C.A. to the world of progress and thought."

"We are brought by present conditions to the necessity of facing facts," Mr. Piper said. "I think it is for the better that it is so. We are brought to the realization that the money values of life have been taken away from life by the exigent conditions which exist and that, accordingly, we must build up a philosophy of life in which other values will replace the money values."

Further, in his address, Mr. Piper declared, "We should learn to face the problems of life as the scientist faces his problems. The scientist welcomes the word of the man who points out where he wanders astray. He proceeds with an open mind, seeking to guide himself always by the truth whether or not it agrees with his preconceived ideas."

Central Truth

Mr. Piper spoke of the value of such books such as the astronomical works of Sir James Jeans—"The Stars in Their Courses," "The Universe Around Us" — in orienting the reader with regard to his place in the universal scheme of existence. There is a great central truth in the mechanics of the universe and similarly there is a great central truth in the spiritual realm of the universe. It should be man's aim to align himself as closely as possible with this great central spiritual truth.

Speaking more specifically of the Y.M.C.A. and its work, Mr. Piper illustrated with several statements of the Y.M.C.A. position which were put forward at the World Conference held at Cleveland last year.

In the moral confusion and spiritual poverty disclosed by the distressing social conditions of our day we find a fresh summons to a distinctively religious emphasis in the entire programme of the Young Men's Christian Association. When confronted, for example, by such a tragic spectacle as millions of men threatened with starvation at the same time that our granaries are overflowing with food, we become acutely aware how far short we have come of making spiritual forces regnant in our social life. What appear on the surface as economic and political problems are at bottom spiritual problems. The failures of civilization mean a failure of the agencies of organized religion to produce personalities with a commanding Christ-like passion for justice and brotherhood. Clearer than anything else to-day, we hear the call for a more heroic personal acceptance of the full meaning of the Christian Gospel.

Has an Obligation

"Without neglecting its duties toward individuals in order to extend the Kingdom of its Master, the Association has an obligation to take a large share in making Christian principles increasingly operative in social life with a view to the achievement of a Christian social order.

"We believe there is necessity for nothing less than a fundamental change in the spirit of our economic life and that this change can only be effected by accepting as the basis of industrial relations the principle of co-operation in service for the common good in place of unrestricted competition for private advantage."

C. S. Cummer, who acted as chairman at the dinner, announced that the dinner was the first of several proposed for the Business and Professional Men's Club and the Business Men's Section of the Y.M.C.A.

THREE DAY BUNS

(Contributed by Leeanna)

First day—Take one cup luke warm water, 1 yeast cake (let soak until dissolved). Add 1 cup flour.

Second day—Add six cups lukewarm water, 1 cup lard, 2 cups sugar, 1 tablespoon fine salt and enough flour to make a "tight" dough, knead as often as it rises to double the bulk. In the evening put in pans.

Third day—Bake them.

When I bake these buns, I set the first part of the recipe at 4 o'clock p.m. Next morning at 7 o'clock, add the second part of the recipe and in the evening at 7 p.m. put them in pans. When I put them in pans I make them about the size of a fifty cent piece and two inches apart each way. Let rise all night in a cool place and third day in the morning at 7 o'clock, start baking them. Each pan of buns should bake in about 20 minutes in moderate oven. This recipe will make about eleven dozen of buns. For a small family only half the ingredients might be used.

Wife Preservers

You can make fruit cake, tarts and cookies as well as pies of mincemeat, so it pays to make a goodly quantity.

HIGHWAY CAMPS.

Premier Henry, returning from Ottawa the other day, intimated that more highway construction camps are likely to be arranged, providing an opportunity for employment for many young men.

While it is true that the amount of relief furnished by this means is by no means proportionate to the expenditure involved there are many people who believe that the expense is justified because of the benefit to the morale of the workers who are given jobs.

Undoubtedly when men are kept in idleness for many months and are provided with assistance that they have not earned there is a serious letting down that is likely to have a permanent effect.

Obviously unemployed men who are given a chance to do highway work, even at small wages, will be the better both in body and in spirit, and they will succeed in maintaining their self-respect and in keeping their heads held high.

It is decidedly better to absorb as many men as possible in useful employment than to maintain them without any work in return, although the latter policy is much less expensive and may eventually have to be followed if the financial burden proves too great to bear.

If in the meantime highway camps can absorb a proportion of the idle men of the country it may be found that the expenditure involved will prove well worth while.

CHRISTMAS CHEER.

The Examiner would like to call attention once more to the fact that whether or not Santa Claus will pay a visit to hundreds of Peterborough homes this Christmas depends upon the generosity of the churches, service clubs and similar organizations.

Briefly, the situation is this:

There are over 600 families who are dependent upon the relief organization for the necessities of life. Naturally none of those are in a position to supply Christmas cheer for themselves, and as the relief committee has decided that it will not distribute anything more than the regular grocery orders to these households, there is an imperative call to other organizations to see that Christmas means at least something out of the routine for hundreds of victims of the unprecedented economic conditions.

It will be a happier Christmas all round if those who will enjoy the festival in their own comfortable homes can have the satisfaction of knowing that every family in the city has been thought of and been given something to mark the special nature of this most significant anniversary.

Several organizations, The Examiner knows, have plans in hand to take care of a certain number of families, but with over 600 to be looked after the task will require a general rally of the generous-hearted.

Nothing, of course, should be done without consulting Relief Officer Arthur Metheral, who is in close touch with the whole situation.

WHY GOOD MEN ARE NEEDED.

It is generally agreed that a difficult year lies ahead of all municipal bodies, and while that prospect may daunt weak-spirited citizens, it should have just the opposite effect upon others who see in the situation a call to service and are willing to take off their coats and go to work in the public interest.

The Examiner hopes that this will prove to be the case and that nomination day proceedings will indicate a willingness to serve on the part of citizens well qualified by experience and training to take a prominent role in piloting the municipal ship safely through the troublesome waters that can be seen ahead.

There is room for such men in the City Council and the Board of Education, both of which are confronted with unusual problems that demand ability and decision to solve.

The Council's task will be to maintain reasonably efficient public services and carry on the city's business as economically as possible, having regard to the fact that a good many taxpayers have been hard hit by the conditions and that therefore a greater than normal proportion of the civic taxes will not be paid.

With the Board of Education, the problem is much the same.

That body has the responsibility of seeing to it that adequate and efficient educational facilities are provided and at the same time they are confronted by a demand for lowered expenditures, a demand that comes from hundreds of the taxpayers who find it almost impossible to discharge their civic obligations and who are asking that since education forms the biggest single item in the municipal budget there must be a substantial saving effected.

AN INEVITABLE STEP.

The decision of the relief committee to stage a drive for the raising of relief funds by public subscription was inevitable under the circumstances.

It was so patently unfair that the city's entire share of relief expenditures should be paid by the taxpayers that no other policy could have been arrived at but to appeal to those best able to help to contribute voluntarily.

The Examiner is confident that the campaign, which will probably be launched early in the New Year, will be a complete success, for we have an abiding faith in the willingness of the people of this community to adequately support every worth-while cause, and we can think of nothing more likely to arouse their generosity than a knowledge of the fact that hundreds of families are in dire need of assistance.

As pointed out by James Dutton at Friday night's meeting, the situation at the present time is more serious than ever, inasmuch as it has become necessary to increase the relief given many families who are now at the end of their resources.

The evil effects of a prolonged period of depression grow in intensity as the months drag on, and naturally therefore there is greater need of assistance at the present moment than at any time since the slump began.

This condition is generally realized, and those in the community whose circumstances permit them to come to the aid of others less fortunate are undoubtedly ready to measure up to their responsibilities.

ELIMINATING POLICE DUPLICATION.

One Western Ontario county which has persisted in retaining its own constabulary has now decided to abandon it and to turn over the work of policing its villages and townships to the provincial force which already possesses representatives in the territory mentioned. In all probability other counties which continue to maintain police departments of their own will eventually follow suit.

It is ridiculous for counties to put themselves to the expense of operating police forces of their own when the provincial police, trained in the work, are already on hand to perform the same service and, perhaps ,to perform it more efficiently. To wipe out county police departments would seem to partake of only common sense, especially during a period when curtailment of expenditures is desirable. Certainly it eliminates a form of duplication that is both costly and unnecessary.

The county constabulary was probably necessary before the provincial police made their appearance. But with the creation of the latter force all necessity for its existence disappears.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

CANADA'S BANKS.

Secretary of the Treasury Mills adds his voice to that of President Hoover in advising Congress that it is essential to make a change in the American banking system, in order to provide one more fortification to meet the stresses of depression. Mr. Mills finds that the present system works reasonably well when times are normal, but is anything but satisfactory when business starts for the cellar. He reiterates his personal belief in the wisdom of extending the branch banking system, as we know it in Canada.

In this same connection, President Hoover's annual message to Congress—discussing the desirability of altering the bank laws—contained this paragraph: "In Canada, where the situation has been in large degree identical with our own, there have not been substantial bank failures." As a matter of fact, there has been not a single bank failure in this country since the beginning of the depression, or, for that matter, for some years earlier. Our bank failures, looking back over a long period, have been few and far between.

There are many Canadians who criticize our banking system, who say that it is not elastic enough, who contend that it is too difficult to secure loans and that it hampers the expansion of business. Whenever we hear these criticisms, however, our mind always reverts to the fact that the free-and-easy, highly elastic banking system of the United States has not stood up under the strain and that millions have been lost to depositors as well as shareholders. And then we contrast this with the splendid position of Canadian banks as a whole. They have been conservative, but they have been safe. They have not loaned money to every Tom, Dick and Harry, but the money of their depositors has been kept secure.

As we noted in these columns recently, Sir Charles Gordon, president of the Bank of Montreal, puts the situation clearly when he points out that the banks are merely loaning out the money entrusted to them by the depositors and that the depositors' money must be protected. This means, of course, that banks must be careful with their loaning, that they must have reasonable assurance that they will get the money back from those to whom they loan. Even with the great care exercised in this way, they have their losses, but here is where we find great advantages in the branch bank system as we have it in Canada. A certain branch in Toronto, for instance, may make a bad loan, may lose practically the whole sum lent out to an individual or an organization. The effect on the general condition of the bank, however is negligible. Under the American small bank system one really bad loan is liable to wreck the bank and carry with it all the money of both depositors and shareholders.

It may be that the law governing the operations of Canadian banks could be improved in certain ways, but we can see no basis whatever for suggesting that any radical change be made. The real proof of the pudding is in the eating. The Canadian banking system has maintained its position under severe testing. It is a bulwark of strength to the country. It has been one of the chief factors in maintaining confidence through difficult times of both war and peace. Our banks, individually, have been well managed. Their systems reflect many decades of study and intense concentration. They combine the views of many men. They represent, it seems to us, almost the utmost in fiscal safety, plus enough in the way of progressive outlook to make possible a reasonably satisfactory method of carrying on the country's business, public and private. There are disadvantages, we admit, but they are more than made up for by the advantages. Our banking practice has been built up through the years. It represents no sudden changes of thought. It is the result of gradual adjustment and improvement. Like all other human institutions, it will never be perfect, but it has served its purpose well, it has played its part in the general development of the nation and, in days of stress and financial turmoil, it is the dependable sheet-anchor of our national structure.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The favorite song in some sections of North Monaghan is "River, Stay Way From Ma Door."

Don't forget there are over 600 families on relief here to whom the public will have to play Santa Claus this Christmas.

Fortunately it is only in price that Christmas poultry has reached a new low level. The quality is as high as ever.

Inducing capable men to come out for public office is one of the big duties of the hour, and a most important one from the general viewpoint.

Mayor Stewart of Toronto is a candidate for a third term, and it looks like a safe wager that he will get it. The slogan, "A good mayor for bad times," just about describes Toronto's chief magistrate.

SEPARATE SCHOOL QUESTION

Editor, "The Examiner":

In a recent editorial you have presented your views on the present demands of the Separate School authorities of Ontario for a change in the law governing taxes of incorporated companies, i. e. Utilities, etc. Your editorial apparently is based on the reading of a pamphlet mailed you by Mr. Quinn, on behalf of the Catholic Taxpayers' Association of Ontario. If your conclusions are based on the presentation of one side of the argument only, it is regrettable that the position of the Public School supporters was not also considered. We are taking the liberty, therefore, of enclosing a copy of a pamphlet on the same question, for your perusal.

Your editorial gives space to a comparison of the school systems of Ontario and Quebec. Were you to go into this matter fully you would find that the Quebec school system would suffer terribly by comparison. You have not told your readers that the money paid into the "Neutral Panel" in the province of Quebec is mainly from Protestant stockholders, nor that the tenant of a house has no say as to the school system to be supported, nor that there is no provision whatever for the teaching of English in the Roman Catholic schools in that province.

When comparing the two systems it must be borne in mind that in Ontario we have a common school system. Quebec has not. There they have a Roman Catholic system and a Protestant system, and the Protestant schools were not accorded Protestants in that province until 1869, six years after Roman Catholic schools were accorded Roman Catholics in Ontario in 1863. If the Protestants had not a system of their own where would they send their children. Not to a public school, because there are none but to a Roman Catholic school. This makes all the difference in the world when comparing the systems established in the respective provinces.

Then, too, in Montreal the money paid into the "Neutral Panel" is paid mostly by Protestants. Approximately 75 per cent of the total comes from Protestant taxpayers but as 75 per cent of the population is Roman Catholic the Roman Catholic schools get 75 per cent of the money. In one year, from figures in our possession, Protestants paid into this so-called "Neutral Panel" $1,707,086.00 but the Protestant schools got back a little more than $500,000.00, which means that over one million dollars of Protestant money in one year went to the support of a system to which they were not in agreement. Surely you would not want such a condition here. How generous, too, might we ask, is the school of the majority in Quebec to their own who do not happen to be French?

The B.N.A. Act as quoted by you did not grant Separate Schools to the Roman Church but to individual Roman Catholics, and it did not exempt Roman Catholics from payment of all taxes imposed for common schools. It did exempt the "owner or tenant in the city, town, village or section where he resided" if he chose to support separate schools. (Sec. 14 of the S. S. Act) To suggest a division of taxes of utilities and corporations on a basis of population is to assume that every Roman Catholic is a separate school supporter. He is not. He is a public school supporter until he signifies his wishes to support a Roman Catholic Separate school. This is quite clear in the Act, and the fact is that thousands of Roman Catholics in Toronto, Ottawa, Sault Ste. Marie, Midland and other places are Public School Supporters.

The Roman Catholic Schools are not on a par with Public Schools. Notwithstanding all the arguments of the Separate School authorities, the Public School is the common school of Ontario, open to all race, colour or creed. If the Public School was a Protestant school there might be some logic in the argument of your paper, but as the school of the majority is a Public School it places it in a superior position to a school that is separated, as its name designates, from the school of the majority for the teaching or Roman Catholicism. This can not be denied or successfully contradicted. Archbishop McNeil admits that the school systems are alike "Except for the teaching of religion". But that is all the difference in the world. One school is a religious school, the other is not, but is a public school for all people and, as such, must be so maintained.

Public school supporters are not unmindful of the provisions of the Confederation pact and are not uneasy regarding a suggested invoking of that Act. That Act guaranteed certain rights to Roman Catholics with respect to Separate Schools. You know, and everyone else knows that they were not granted what they are claiming now. If they were, they would seek redress in the courts. They do not do this. They know they have not a chance in the world of gaining their point is quite patent. Instead they seek to win the sympathy of the Public School supporters, with the aid of The Examiner, from whom they would steal millions of dollars each year. Father Burke said that this change would mean "Millions of dollars to them". If it means millions to them it means millions taken from the Public School treasury by stealth or surreptitious means to help finance their own schools. This is the situation, frankly, and the present agitation will be met with a stiff opposition of those who believe in the Public School.

No government can grant what the Separate School are asking. No government would dare do so. If this agitation is going to be kept up by those who want to make a raid on the Public School treasury it can be met in a very effective way by a counter agitation for the abolition of the dual system entirely. Both would mean a change of the B.N.A. Act and one demand would be as fair and just as the other.

Negro Soldiers Given Tributes

LONDON, Dec. 19 (C.P.)—Colored men stood around Sir Ian Hamilton at the Cenotaph in London recently and heard him pay tribute to the bravery of negroes in the war. After setting a wreath in their memory against the Cenotaph, Sir Ian, who had made a special journey from Scotland to do so, said: "Although war is a wicked and cruel thing, it has one great merit in that it draws folk together into one family. All men and women are equal; color is no bar."

Recalling the fine service of the Senegalese soldiers in the Dardanelles, he said: "No men could have died more bravely. Over and over again, fighting for Greater Britain, your race has shown qualities of courage and self-sacrifice second to none, but this is the first time in modern history that the debt has been publicly acknowledged."

The ceremony followed a service for colored men in Westminster Abbey and a visit to the Unknown Warrior's grave, where a wreath was laid.

YOU CAN DO SOMETHING

I HEARD that lazy fellow say, excusing his laziness, pleading for his own indifference to life — I heard him say, "Well, a man can't do everything, can he?"

No, a man can't do everything. That's right. It's a world of specialization, and a man can't be an aviator and a poet and soldier and a priest and a dreamer and a doer and a farmer and a sculptor and a newspaper man and a wanderer and a householder all in one. No, if he divides himself into so many pieces, it may well be said that he'll turn out in the end to be little more than nothing at all. That's a fact, lazy fellow, but there's many a thing a man can do, just the same, and take a deal of pleasure out of life in the doing of them.

I'll make up a list for you and you can take your choice of them as you please. A man, I'm telling you, can do much if he's a will to do.

He can jump in the air and click his heels. He can smile. He can climb a tree, take a walk, go swimming, work in the garden, cut the lawn, learn the names of a flower or two, hunt for four leaf clovers, admire the changing colors in the autumn of the year.

He can admire the sunset, look twice at a pretty girl, make up his mind to take better care of himself. He can have a good appetite, enjoying the food that's set before him he can worry less, by liking life more. He can pardon insults, shake hands with people, walk easily through crowds.

He can read a book. He can like a good job well done. He can saw a board, mend a broken chair, wash the car, spend a moment with a sunset, talk to a tree, make friends with a dog, play tiddledy-winks with a child, admire a distant star ....All these he can do.

He can dig a little beneath the surface of life. Soften that grudge that is in him. Sandpaper that rough spots of existence. Tackle what problems befront him. Fight pessimism. Face the dark. Find locusts and wild honey in the wilderness, or even bring honey forth from the body of the lion that would beset his path.

No, lazy fellow, a man cannot do everything—but he can do enough to make his life a strong adventure. Is it not so?

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

OUR FIRST TELEGRAPHS

ON THIS DATE, in 1846, the first telegraphic communication was established in Upper Canada, although tests had been made the previous July in Toronto. The line had been completed from Toronto to Hamilton and statins in both cities were ready for business. In Toronto the company had been allowed temporary space in the then new city hall, the front of which now forms part of the St. Lawrence market. It was a Saturday, and at 12 noon there gathered a number of "prominent citizens" who saw the operators carry on conversations with other operators at Hamilton, 40 miles away. The usual compliments and congratulations were exchanged between the two cities and the public were invited to make use of the service, free gratis and for nothing for that day only. Many did so. One Hamiltonian (he may have been a Scot, though it is not so stated) availed himself of the "deadhead" privilege to notify a Toronto customer that a bill was due that day and asked for its payment. Ernest Green, a historian of the event, writes: "The offices were crowded all day," and why not when no charge was made? The first news despatch telegraphed in Upper Canada was sent from Hamilton to the Toronto papers on Christmas Eve following and told of a fire in the "Ambitious City" in which nine house were destroyed. It was not until Jan. 14, 1847, that telegraphic communication was secured with Buffalo and the Toronto newspapers began to abandon the old system by which (in summer) they had been dependent for foreign news on Buffalo papers sent by rail to Lewiston and thence by boat to Toronto.. The company which brought about this great change was almost wholly a Toronto one, Clarke Gamble, barrister, was president: Thomas G. Ridout, cashier of the Bank of Upper Canada, vice-president; with E. F. Whittenmore, William B. Jarvis (sheriff of the Home district), James Brown and Thomas Denne Harris, all of Toronto; Daniel McNab and Richard Juson, of Hamilton, and J. L. Ranney, of St. Catharines, as directors. It was not until Aug. 3, 1847, that telegraphic communications was established between Toronto and Montreal. The new invention attracted considerable public attention, the more especially as the company availed itself of all the adjectives in the dictionary as well as passages from Scripture, to emphasize "the marvellous character" of the new utility. A message form of the Niagara-Queenston line, used on March 6, 1848, and still preserved, bears the question: "He directeth it under the whole heaven and His lightnings unto the ends of the earth."

Pre-War Lady

CHAPTER 43

"Your friends are sweet to me," Emilia said to Esther.

"Why not?" said Esther in her red bathing suit, hanging on to the edge with one wet hand. "You're a lamb, besides being Pre-War Lady and Manuel Rose's bride-elect."

"Anyhow, Esther'd probably tell us to get the hell out of here if we highhatted her—is it seventh cousin, Ess? I'm going to ask Emilia when you aren't around; she can't tell anything but the truth. Horrible disability." John Landon dropped his black head in the water again; he had been putting some refinements on his crawl. "Besides most of 'em are half in love with you," he called back through the churning water. "All but—me—I'm true to poor old Esther."

Esther sprang on him and he went under with her.

"Well, it's true," said Landon as they slipped into the water. "You got that thing." He began to sing it, "You got that thing, that certain thing—"

Emilia dropped into the cool water. When she lifted her head from her own dash across and back, Manny was coming across the lawn in his bathing suit. He reached down and kissed Emilia; Esther, crawling out wet-armed, pulled him down and kissed him.

"Good egg," she hailed him, "to get here in time to play round a little."

"Well, I wanted some tennis," said long, tennis-built Manny, sitting down on the edge and taking Emilia's wet hand. Of late he never was anywhere near her without making some gentle persistent gesture of possession. She did not mind it exactly. But she knew, though she scarcely dared face it in her mind, that she dreaded the letting loose of the fires that lay under this light glow.

He turned to where Miss Myra sat near the edge of the waters in her canopied chair, watching the pool with pleasure.

"I brought along my old mother," he said. "The chauffeur will drive her somewhere for dinner — she's old-fashioned, you know, nothing but kosher cooking, bless her heart. But she wants to hear the concert."

"I know," said Miss Myra, beaming and resolutely broad. "I suppose it's the way I feel about—about sewing on Sunday."

She rose to hobble in to welcome Mrs. Rosen, that wigged and cryptic matriarch. She would never cease to feel caste and rank distinctions, but she would never admit or show it. And as Mrs. Rosen felt the same way but did it perhaps a little more subtly, they got on very well. Each felt that the other was surprisingly human. Neither of them liked all this sitting on turf. They would rock comfortably on the broad, screened veranda and discuss the young people and what was going to become of the world, and have a good time.

Manny seemed in unusually high spirits. He yelled and skylarked with young John, he scrambled after Esther and nearly ducked her; presently they all crawled out cool and dripping and played a couple of sets and jumped in again to get cool. S me of them drifted in from the river and swam and played more tennis and swam again, and finally trailed to the house to dress, after tea and iced drinks under the nearest umbrella. It was one of those days when everything has been lightly harmonious; when the weather and the people and the talk have been easy, merry, content. Emilia found herself laughing, one with the rest, not the lady from Mars, the stranger from nineteen-eighteen. And Manny, as they lingered behind the others, held her and spoke softly.

"I'm getting encouraged about you. I think you like me a lot more than you ever did."

"Oh, yes."

"You're different from other women, you'd never let go before people the way these kids do. A little from you means a lot."

She remembered how she had clung in Roger's arms, the day in Pelham. She could be for Roger the girl Emilia, gay and passionate and vividly alive; never for Manny. But Manny must never know that. He went on talking boyishly.

"I was discouraged. I—" he laughed a little, shyly, "I wrote a sad song hit about you."

"Vain person!"

"They always are hits," he said simply. "But you've been so sweet I know I was a fool to be discouraged. I'm going to tear it up when I get home tomorrow and do a happy one."

"Don't waste it," she told him, laughing. "Write the happy one too."

Dot's corps of ticket sellers had done good work. It was an outdoor concert; Dot had commandeered the Valaty lawn.

"Then the poor lambs of invalid soldiers can get the good of it, too," she had decreed. "And besides, the audience can see whom they're doing it for."

Esther was privately cynical about this.

"Dot is thorough established doing good under Roger's nose," she observed. "She's so old-fashioned. Why doesn't she tell him she wants to marry him? Believe it or not, it will never dawn on him any other way."

Emilia was grateful for a still more old-fashioned thing, the control of voice and feature which made her able to say smilingly, "He will probably awaken to it some day."

Esther was about to answer her with fury when Manny's leisurely voice called up from the floor below, "Wear that light blue satin dress with the lace petticoat showing through the slit, Emilia, and the blue ribbon round your hair. Some of the boys remember that dress. They asked for it."

She'd rather they hadn't. That had been Roger's favorite dress, too, exactly like one she had worn in her wartime concerts. Then she was ashamed. If the soldiers wanted it they must have it. But it was so phantom-like, this dressing in the blue satin and singing for the soldiers. She wondered if she could go through with it. There would be so many ghosts to sing to, there in the Valaty garden.

Their party swept laughing through the gap in the lilac hedge and divided; she and Dot and Manny to the arbor, which was to be the stage entrance, the rest into the audience.

Manny the indefatigable had brought up a couple of floodlights; the soldiers, those of them who could do light work, had strung colored electric lights over the space filled with folding chairs. They defined, in a square, the block of seats, and crossed above the audience's heads. The platform, knocked up of rough boards by the same soldiers, was having the toy piano Manny brought from Pelham pushed into it from the moonlit lawn. The floodlights focused on it from both sides.

Suddenly it became to Emilia, standing at the entrance of the rose arbor, unreal and incredible. It was all a dream, certainly, one of those vivid and impossible dreams where one place and scene are fused with another place and scene and people from times and places which have never touched unconcernedly about together.

"If I was telling the dream to Roger," she thought, "I would say, 'Instead of you and father and Robin, I dreamed our lawn was full of strange people. Cousin Myra was there, only she had gray hair and was lame, and there was a girl in a red lace dress who said she was baby Esther, but she was grown up. But I must have had my war-work on my mind too, because there was a platform and a queer little piano, and some of the audience was soldiers sitting in front. But the queerest thing of all was Manny Rosen. He was accompanying me on the strange piano; but he was all tidy and groomed and in becoming evening clothes. And in the dream he was a famous man—I suppose because he was always saying so when the boys tormented him, poor Manny!—and I was going to marry him!'"

The sense of dreamlikeness faded, fortunately, as Dot bustled past her and melted, in the dusk outside the strung lights, into a group of her anxious aides. After all, it was real, this strange postscript life had vouchsafed her. Not the life anyone would have planned for her, but whose life is? And this crazy, youthful trick of orienting every thought and feeling to Roger, of inventing long conversations with him about everything that happened to her, the moment her mind was free for a minute—that would wear away. She must find more to do.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

MONTREAL—Provided the law does not interfere a merry Christmas is in store for thieves who broke into an east-end butcher's shop over the week-end and stole 30 turkeys, 35 chickens, 100 pounds of butter and $43 in cash to purchase the trimmings.

PLANT RE-OPENS

HAMILTON, Dec. 19 (C.P.)—After being shut down for several months, the National Sewer Pipe Company here re-opened its plant to-day, with nearly 100 employees being recalled. The men are placed on a part-time basis, but every one will "draw a pay" for Christmas.

3 MONTHS IN JAIL.

LONDON, Ont.—Ernest Palmer, 65, army pensioner, to-day was sentenced to two months in jail for supplying liquor to a 19-year-old girl.

HOLIDAYS.

TORONTO.—The Mondays following Christmas Day and New Year's Day will be generally observed throughout Ontario as holidays. Since the holidays this year fall on Sunday, practically all places of business will be closed December 26 and January 2.

60-FOOT SAUSAGE

SHIPPENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 19 (AP)—Walter Etter to-day claimed a new record. In the course of his winter butchering, he says he stuffed a sausage sixty feet long with 48 pounds of meat.

DIES AFTER CRASH.

BRANTFORD.—Joseph R. Campbell of Chippawa, Ont., died to-day from injuries received when his car struck a train near Waterford. His skull was fractured. An inquest will be held.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WINNIPEG EXCHANGE.

WINNIPEG, December 19 (C.P.).—Influenced by firm overseas cables, wheat scored fractional gains in early trade to-day, and although slight recessions occurred from time to time, top levels were well held.

Values at mid-session were ¼ to ½ higher. December and May each gained ¼ to 40¾ and 43½, while July advanced ⅜ to 44½.

Trading generally was mixed with most of the support credited to the seaboard houses, presumably against export sales out of Vancouver. Offerings were noticeably light and the feelingtoward the market continued friendly. Export business over the week-end was not large, and apart from a little buying by Chicago houses intermarket operations were uninteresting.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.— A.P.) — Prices continued firm in the late stock trading to-day. The market was unable to push beyond the gains of the first hour or two, but held steadily to its earlier advance. Allied Cheemical and American Can were uv more than a point while Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Consolidated Gas, U.S. Steel common were slightly higher. Loew's was under some pressure. Transfers approximated 800,000 shares.

STANDARD EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, December 19 (C.P.).—Prices continued firm on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day with accumulation fairly active in a number of issues. The leading gold shares have slowed down from their stirring movements of recent weeks, but prices show no suggestion of weakness and the average trader is looking for more activity in the New Year.

Eldorado moved up to $1.27, a two-point gain, with a turnover of more than 6,000 shares. News from the mine and the advance of operations at the company's plant at Port Hope has stirred up new interest in the Great Bear Lake group.

In the coppergroup, Noranda and Nicke picked up from 5 to 15 cents, and Hudson Bay was a few cents stronger at 3.15. Sherritt-Gordon was unchanged at 35, and Ventures was off a coupe of points at 65.

TORONTO EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Dec. 19.—(CP)— The Toronto Stock market began Christmas week with a firm front and with a moderate amount of accumulation apparent in anticipation of a better market after the holidays. Strength marked the interlisted group under a fair volume of buying.

Brazilian was carried up to 10 today and it closed with a gain of ⅛ at 9⅞. Advances of about the same margin were chalked up for International Nickel while C. P. R. closed unchanged at 15¾.

British American continued the leader in volume in the oil selection and it closed unchanged at 7⅞ while Imperial Oil held at 8½ and International Petes improved slightly to 11¾.

WORKMEN RECALLED.

TILBURY, Ont.—Several hundred workers were recalled to the plant of Hudson-Essex of Canada, Limited, to-day and the shops will operate on full-time indefinitely. Extra workers have also been taken on at other plants working on orders for the motor car firm.

FEAR INDIANS LOST.

VANCOUVER.—Fears for the safety of a party of 21 Bella Coola Indians who have been missing since Wednesday have increased with the announcement here by Captain J. Boden of S.S. Venture that the gas boat which his officers assisted was not the boat Seiner J. & J.

CHEQUES GO OUT

TORONTO.—Cheques for the balance of the regular pensions for widows and orphans of the clergy and for aged and disabled clergy in the ecclecIastical province of Ruperts' Land have been mailed from the Toronto office of the Pension Fund of the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada.

If you want silence and solitude—don't advertise.

Steam Auxiliary Is Used At Pump House

"Frasil" clogged the turbines in the city power house for two hours this morning and the steam auxiliary had to be called upon, R. L. Dobbin, manager of the Utilities Commission, said this afternoon. However, Mr. Dobbin said that with the rising temperature the "frasil" would not form. He thought there would be little more trouble at this time unless it gets colder.

100 SINGLE MEN

Norris has been elevated to the presidency. Sir Herbert assumes the newly-created position of chairman of the Board of Directors, according to an announcement made to-day at the conclusion of the regular monthly meeting.

WATER IS DOWN OVER 40 INCHES

menacing ice packs. The ice was smooth and black and the water was flowing freely beneath.

Dams Are Holding

That's the situation below the city, but above as far as Minden and Gelert the Trent officials were still pursuing their efforts to dam the water back. While some of these dams were reported to be almost awash, they were holding back the flood tide which had threatened to add their volume to the waters that had inundated stretches below the city.

How long the water can be dammed back into its upper reaches is a question. What will occur when this flood tide has to be permitted to flow again, and rushes down on the ice jam below the city presents the danger.

Trent officials, however, stated to-day that everything was safe north of the city, intimating that a large amount of water could still be dammed back and held for some time.

In order to give the river more "head" so that the flowing water might increase its speed and move away the jams of itself, the dams at Hastings and Healey Falls were opened further and Rice Lake levels fell quickly in response.

Adding to the hope of the Trent officials that the city might safely escape the flood danger, a bridge of ice formed over Little Lake and on the river above the Quaker Oats plant. These ice bridges, it was explained, will stop more anchor ice from floating down and adding to the jam.

"It is still wholly a matter of nature, and there is little that can be done to remove the ice jams" a veteran riverman said.

Everyhing Possible Done

In this connection, R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, answering a message sent by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., complaining that no such effort was being forwarded by canal officals to remove the flood, said: "Your wire received. Officers of this department have been working on this flood condition since last Tuesday, four days ago. They state that you are wrong regarding stop logs at Buckhorn being in same position as they have placed in 27 extra stop logs at that point. From reports of my officers I believe that everything is being done that can be done; however, am sending our chief hydraulic engineer, A. Jost, who leaves here to-night (Saturday) to advise and assist.

Throughout the week-end the river below the city was patrolled by canal employees in an effort as far as possible, to prevent further jamming.

That the river was rising slightly again this afternoon was the information reaching The Examiner late this afternoon.

CLAIM MILK COMBINE AMONG TORONTO DEALERS

TORONTO, Dec. 19 (C.P.). — An application to the Registrar of the Combines Act for an investigation into retail milk prices in Toronto, together with an inquiry into the possibility of the existence of a combine among some of the larger milk distributors is now being prepared, Ald. D. C. McGregor said to-day. The application, he said, is now in its final stages and will probably be forwarded to Ottawa in a few days.

It is understood the application will set out the wide "spread" which accrues to the dairies between the prices they pay the farmers and the prices they received from householders. At present this spread is more than six cents a quart, Mr. McGregor said.

HELD FOR DESERTION.

BELLEVILLE.—Clarence Cooper, Napanee, was arrested near here to-day and will stand trial for desertion of his wife and family and breaking parole. Mrs. Ruby Keller, at whose home he was arrested, was taken into custody, pleaded guilty to vagrancy and was remanded for a week.

JOINT EXAMINATION.

LONDON, December 19 (C.P.).—Satnley Baldwin, Lord President of the Council, told Parliament to-day that the United States Government had agreed to undertake with Great Britain a joint examination of the whole question of war debt payments.

TWO KILLED BY TRAIN.

HATFIELD, Pa.—Two persons were killed when their automobile was struck by a Reading Company express train at a little-used crossing in Hatfield to-day.

The dead were Mrs. Newton Hoffman, 40, and Leroy Herman, 21, both of Hatfield.

LIGHT KEEPER, SON MISSING

Searchers Comb Lake Erie's Shore for Signs of Wreckage.

LEFT POST WEDNESDAY.

PORT MAITLAND, Dec. 19.—(C.P.)—With Lake Erie's shores a welter of slush ice and heavy sea rolling, intrepid fishermen from this district today resumed their search for Richard Foster, 61-year-old lighthouse keeper and his son, James, 25, missing for some days.

Disregarding their own safety, a party of searchers started out this morning in a small fishing tug and a gasoline boat and headed into the lake. High banks of ice along the lakeshore, with slush ice extending for nearly a mile, made their task no easy one. Beyond the ice whitecaps were breaking into foam.

Foster and his son are thought to have left the lighthouse on Mohawk Island last Wednesday. It is a one-hour sail from Dunnville. They failed to reach the village. A party of searchers yesterday visited the light, and found the revolving light had been changed to a stationary one, as is usual in the wintertime. The Fosters had packed their personal belongings and evidently left for shore.

The search was continued yesterday, and appeals were sent to the United States coastguard, which today swung into action with the Canadian searchers.

Today the boats cruised up and down the shoreline, endeavoring to find the small craft used by the Fosters.

Fast C.P.R. Train Stops At Port Hope

An arrangement of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company of extreme convenience to the travelling public of Peterborough and district is announced by W. Fulton, assistant general passenger agent at Toronto in a communication addressed to John R. Marshil, president of Peterborough Chamber of Commerce.

In future, anyone wishing to travel to Montreal on the fast train leaving Toronto on the Lake Shore route at 3.30 p.m., may join the train at Port Hope by notifying the city ticket agent here. The train which has not previousy been stopped dat Port Hope, will be halted as it is required to pick up passengers The stop at Port Hope will be made at 4.51 p.m. upon due notification being given. Time of arrival at Montreal is 9.45 p.m.

Another concession of importance to the traveling public will now make it possible for people from Peterborough and other points to motor to Port Hope to make train connections for Toronto or Montreal, and to leave their automobiles in storage at the C.P.R. freight sheds free of charge.

Stream-Lined Train Sets Up New Record

HAMBURG, Germany, Dec. 19.—(AP)—A new stream lined combination Diesel motor and electric train has set a new speed record of 142 minutes running time for the 180.09 miles between here and Berlin. The average speed of 76.09 miles an hour is said to be a world's record for motor trains.

Over the first half of the run the train was clocked at 93 miles an hour but the engineer slowed down to make the planned 142 minute schedule. This cuts 37 minutes off the present running time.

The utmost efficiency is embodied in the new train. Not even the door knobs project from the body, so that wind resistance is minimized. A wide strip of metal completely encircles the train at the bottom, extending well below the axles and forming a windshield for the wheels.

Girl With $50,000 Theatre Usherette

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP)—One hundred million persons have said, sometime or another: "I'd be fixed for life if I had $50,000." Anne Caldwell had $50,000. Today she's a theatre usherette at $12 a week.

The $50,000 came to her as settlement in a breach of promise suit she brought several years ago against a wealthy Pittsburgh man. Miss Caldwell before that had appeared in Broadway theatrical productions.

She met inquiries concerning her financial status today by saying:

"Of course, nobody really has money to spare nowadays. Let's say that what I have is tied up rather tightly. She said she was writing a play.

"But primarily I'm an usherette right now. I get $12 a week—and I like it."

WASTED TIME.

PITTSBURG.—A bullet bounced off the cranium of Murray Duff, negro, seizing Willam Jackson, who was accused of the shooting, Duff pummeled him on the head until the man swooned. Jackson was arrested, charged with felonious shooting.

"It wasn't felonious shooting, Boss," the negro told police, "it was wasted time."

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

BIGELOW GIVEN GUELPH TERM

sentence to meet the condition, and that due consideration should also be given to the pain and suffering already undergone by the prisoner and his impaired physical and mental condition that were consequences of the accident.

The interests of justice might well be served, Mr. Hall submitted by giving Bigelow suspended sentence.

In answer to the formal question as to whether he had anything to say why sentence of the court should not be passed, Bigelow replied, "I am not guilty sir. I am not in very good condition".

"Bigelow your case has given me a great deal of anxiety and especially so since your conviction the other day", His Honor said. "You have been convicted that by your recklessness and wilful misconduct you caused a person serious bodily harm. Worse than that the man that was with you was killed. The jury says you are responsible for killing that man".

Second Case

The judge added that his duty had been made more difficult in view of another case of a similar nature that had been tried at that sessions, and which had resulted in the acquittal of a young man on a charge of criminal negligence as driver of a "great big truck."

His Honor pointed out that Bigelow had driven his car on the left hand side of the road for some distance before inclining to the right and then running into the ditch. Drawing a comparison with the other case to which he had referred, he said, the other man drove a much more dangerous contraption from the right hand side of the road to the left side, and crashed into a car inflicting permanent injury upon the driver of the car.

"The ways of some men and juries are beyond my understanding", he exclaimed.

"If I did let you go on suspended sentence as your counsel suggests the idea would get abroad that anybody around Peterborough could go out and drive upon the highways regardless of the rights of other people, and that a jury would let them off. The public has to be protected and the impression must not be allowed to get around that drivers can commit offences on the highways with impunity."

Killingbeck Sentence.

Mr. Hall acted on behalf of J. A. O'Brien, who had conducted Killingbeck's defence and who had been called to Ottawa to keep an appointment with the Honorable the Minister of Justice.

"The unfortunate part of this case as I heard it from Mr. O'Brien," stated Mr. Hall, "is that Killingbeck has had a number of previous convictions for similar offences." Whenever offenders were found who came back for the commission of similar offences, Mr. Hall submitted, it was indication of some mental and moral instability. It was a malady requiring medical attention.

His Honor—I have not heard anything about prisoner's physical condition. Generally in the case of offenders of this kind they are unusually mentally alert and of sound physical constitution.

Asked if he had anything to say, before sentence of the court was pronounced, Killingbeck remarked, "Your Honor, all I can say is that I did not receive that ring."

"I have heard what you had to say," His Honor stated, addressing the prisoner sternly, "and you have ability and experience enough to know that what you have to say as to being not guilty cannot have any weight with me in view of the jury's verdict."

"It is a very contemptible thing you have done. You are stated to have said that you have been dealing with crooks for fifteen years. I believe you have not only been dealing with crooks, but that you have been making crooks. These young boys of 'teen age were under your influence," he remarked.

"I am inclined to think that you were responsile for a lot of the dereliction of these boys and I am going to see you do not have the opportunity to trouble them again for some time to come."

Choosing Successor To Rt. Rev. D.T. Owen

HAMILTON, Dec. 19 (C.P.)—A distinguished gathering of clergy and lay delegates of the Anglican Synod of Niagara will assemble here to-day to appoint a successor to Rt. Rev. D. T. Owen, recently consecrated Bishop of Toronto.

Following the celebration of Communin, the voting will be proceeded with. A clear majority of votes of both clergy and laity must be obtined by the Bishop-elect. A decision is not expected until late in the day.

Among those prominently mentioned for the honor are Very Rev. Dean Broughall of Hamilton; Rev. Archdeacon Scovil, Guelph, and Rev. Canon Riley of St. Catharines.

Remodelling Black's Store An Advantage For Christmas Trade

In an interview with P. Black on trade conditions in Peterborough, Mr. Black expressed himself as satisfied with the amount of business coming his way, considering the economic situation generally. In regard to his abandoning one of his two stores last summer, and remodelling the other at the corner of George and King Streets, to take care of his ladies' and men's wear under one roof, that he asserts, was a move in the right direction—the costs of operating are lower and his clients get better service and greater values.

For this Christmas season, Mr. Black, who is one of Peterborough's oldest merchants, has stocked up with a plentiful supply of Ladies' Coats and Dresses, Men's Outer and Inner Clothing, Ladies' Lingerie, Scarfs, Berets, and Coat and Pullover Sweaters, together with Textile Household Needs. Any of these would make gifts practical and acceptable at prices consistent with economic conditions.

PAUL BONCOUR FORMS CABINET

New French Premier Follows Herriot's Steps—Assured Support of Leftists.

SOCIALISTS HOLD KEY.

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
(C. P. Staff Writer).

PARIS, Dec. 19. (C.P. Cable)—Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour's Cabinet held its first meeting this afternoon when it laid down the general lines of a declaration of the policy it will submit to parliament on Thursday.

Constituted much along the lines of the Herriot cabinet it has already been assured the same parliamentary support of the left wing groups. As with Herriot, Socialists led by Leon Blum will give their general support to the new cabinet but they do not participate in the ministry.

On the continued support of the Socialists the life- of the Paul-Boncour cabinet largely depends. The new cabinet has been generally welcomed with a feeling of relief and the belief that it will be able to end the "crisis' more rapidly than anticipated. The Echo de Paris predicts that its policy declaration will be of modest dimensions. After a tribute to Herriot and the necessity of following his internal and external policy the declaration will, according to the Echo de Paris, touch on the questions of the de touch lightly on the questions of the debts over which the Herriott government fell. It will declare for disarmament conditioned by security.

TACKLE FISHING.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Dec. 19. — (A.P.) — J. C. Pentecost, building contractor, tells a fish story. After a successful day of angling in the Lake of the Ozards last September, his $40 rod and reel slipped from the boat into 40 feet of water. Last week he returned to the lake, made a cast at the spot where the outfit was lost and hooked it.

FRESH RUMORS ON TEST CARGO

Expect Bennett to Bring Back Word Preference Will Be Allowed.

NOTHING OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(C.P. Cable.)—Although no authority can be obtained for the statement it is the impression in interested quarters that the test shipment of Canadian wheat brought on the liner Laconia will receive the British preference of six cents a bushel.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada to-day discussed the matter with various members of the government but it is understood no official statement will be made until Premier Bennett returns to Canada. The British customs have not yet ruled on the eligibility of the Laconia shipment for the preference.

Decision on whether the Laconia shipment of wheat, consigned from Canada via the United States, in bond, is or is not entitled to the preference will likely prove of immense importance in determining the channels to be used for shipment of wheat into Britain on which the preference is sought.

The shipment of Canadian wheat was sent in an endeavor to find just how the British preference of six cents a bushel on Canadian wheat would be applied when the grain comes via the United States, and customs officials have so far made no ruling.

Premier Bennett had luncheon with Stanley Baldwin, Lord Privy Seal, and other government leaders who had attended the Ottawa conference.

HAVELOCK MAN HAS ARM BROKEN

Accident Occurs to Norman Bensflick While Cranking Car.

KNOX W.M.S. ELECTION.

HAVELOCK, December 17 (Examiner Correspondence). — While cranking the truck belonging to Mr. John Scott, proprietor of the Home Bakery here, Norman Bensflick had the misfortune to break his right arm on Friday morning, December 16. The fracture was reduced by one of the local doctors.

Mr. Bensflick, who is assistant baker at the bakeshop, has been driving the car for the past few days in the absence of the regular driver, Joseph Little, who is confined to his bed with an attack of rheumatism.

Knox Church W.M.S.

Election of officers for the ensuing year, was the chief business on hand at the annual meeting of the W.M.S. of Knox Church, held in the Sunday School Room on Thursday afternoon, when there was a splendid attendance of the membership. The president, Mrs. R. A. Buchanan, was in the chair for the first part of the meeting. Mrs. (Rev.) Hugh Brown took the study, which was on mission work in British Guiana. Mrs. A. S. Thompson contributed a reading on Thanksgiving. Mrs. Will Martin gave a reading, "Not Omitting the Fourth Stanza," which refers to the hymn, "Take my life and let it be." It is the story of a woman, a president of a W.M.S., who being in a hurry to close the meeting announced the closing hymn, saying, "We will omit the fourth stanza."

The president vacated the chair for the election of officers, and the following were elected: President, Mrs. Robert Scott; vice-president, Mrs. W. Martin; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. A. S. Thompson; secretary, Miss K. Anderson; treasurer, Mrs. F. J. Squire; Welcome and Welfare secretary, Mrs. C. Jamieson; Literary and Library secretary, Mrs. J. W. Ketchen; Home Helpers' secretary, Mrs. R. A. Buchanan; Glad Tidings secretary, Mrs. A. Watson; Supplies secretary, Miss M. Sexsmith; Press secretary, Miss K. Anderson; Mission Band leader, Mrs. Jamieson; Y.W.A. leader, Mrs. S. Barlow.

The retiring president, Mrs. R. A. Buchanan, thanked all the members for the splendid support given her during the year, and bespoke for her successor the same measure of loyalty during the coming year. The new president, Mrs. Scott, thanked the members for the honor conferred upon her, and invited the Auxiliary to her home for the next meeting in January.

Christian Endeavor Society.

Knox Church Christian Endeavor Society held its regular meeting in the basement of the church on Monday evening, December 12, when there was a goody attendance of the members and a number of visitors from other church denominations.

This being the ast meeting before Christmas, the program arranged took the form of a Christmas festival. Following are the numbers:

Huron Indians' Carol, recited by Tom Brown; Scripture reading from the second chapter of Mattnew, Miss Martin; vocal solo, "Away in in a Manger," little Dora Ketchen; chorus, "O Radiant Morn," by the Glee Club, the latter composed of young girls ranging in age from six to twelve years, who did remarkably well; vocal solo, "The Bells Are Ringing," by Mrs. T. C. Jamieson, the Glee Club joining in the chorus.

The topic of the evening, "The Gospel of Peace," dealt with the Nativity, and was illustrated by lantern slides. Suitable pieces in keeping with the pictures were sung at intervals throughout. At the picture of the Birth in the Manger, "Holy Night" was reverently sung by Miss M. Sexsmith. During the Presentation at the Temple, the Nunc Dimittis was recited by Mrs C. Dewey. Jack Ketchen and Lloyd Anderson also recited during the showing of the slides.

A picture, "How Jimmy Tended the Baby," was also shown and caused much merriment. The singing of "Come let us sing of a wonderful love" brought a successful and enjoyabe evening to a happy ending. The next meeting will be held on December 29, at 8 o'clock.

CAMPBELLFORD

NEWS ITEMS FROM THE TRENT TOWN DISTRICT

Campbellford is beginning to take on the air of Christmas with the decorating of the stores and special illuminations. All stores this week will be open at nights for the convenience of Christmas shoppers. The local Post Office also has started to feel the season's rush, although so far the business has not reached the volume of last year.

The collection of fruit by the Sunshine Club was held on Saturday, the Campbellford Rotary Club supplying the cars in which the girls made their house-to-house canvass. This was done by wards, and a very gratifying response made by the citizens. The fruit collected will be stored in the Armouries and used for needful cases by the relief committee of the town.

Mr. Maynard Watson of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, Toronto, is spending his vacation with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. O. C. Watson, Queen Street.

Mrs. J. R. McGerrigle has returned to her home in Montreal after visiting relatives in town and district.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Mills of Galt, Ont., are on holiday in town the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Malcolm.

Obituary

JOHN DOUGLAS BLAKELY.

TRENT RIVER, Dec. 19 (Examiner Correspondence).—The death occurred Sunday morning of John Douglas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Blakely, of West Seymour (formerly Jessie Dunham), aged 4 months, following an illness of pneumonia.

JOSEPH LOWES.

The death occurred at his residence, Lot 1, Concession 2, Ennismore, on Sunday of Joseph Lowes, at the age of 69 years.

The late Mr. Lowes was a native of Emily Township, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Lowes and had resided in this district all his life. Besides his wife, he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Albert Davies, of Cobourg, and one brother, John C. Lowes, of Ruddell, Sask.

He was a member of Bethel United Church.

Funeral services are to be held at the family residence on Tuesday at 2 p.m., with the Rev. Mr. Reddick officiating. Interment at Omemee Cemetery.

FIGHT MILK PRICE WAR

LONDON, Ont.—Pooling of city milk supplies by producers to overcome the present low prices may result as the newest step to combat the price-slashing dealers' war. Producers discussed such action to-day.

The producers aim to retain control, forcing the distributors to come to them. They believe in this way the prices will be regulated and costs lessened.

Odors are said to effect the memory of a human more than any other factor.

NOTICE!

TO THE PUBLIC AND TO THE FARMER

There will be two farmer's markets this week, the first on Wednesday and the second on Saturday, as usual. This is an excellent opportunity for the buyer to meet the producer for his holiday requirements.

WEATHER MILD OVER ENGLAND

Country Experiencing Warmest December in Past Seven Years.

57 DEGREES IN SOUTH.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(AP)—While cables tell of snow and cold, in Canada and the United States, this country was experiencing the warmest December in seven years today, especially in the south where an average temperature was 57 degrees.

In the north, however, rains and gales on a big scale caused disastrous floods. The lakes of Derwentwater, Bassenthwaite and Thirlmere, in Cumberland county, familiar to tourists, overflowed following six hours of incessant rain and many miles were flooded and hundreds of persons driven from their homes.

Streams became rushing rivers and part of the town of Maryport, a watering place 26 miles southwest of Carlisle, was flooded by four or five feet of water. People were rescued from upper windows. Serious flooding also was reported in wide areas of Scotland with roads impassable and bridges damaged.

Two deaths were reported.

WARSAW.

The Presbyterian W. M. S. and Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. William Dunsford on Thursday afternoon. There was a good attendance for the W.M.S. as it was their annual meeting and consequently carried on longer than usual, many could not remain for the Aid meeting at which there was little business transacted and some knitting handed in.

The W.M.S. officers for 1933 are: President, Mrs. Richard Tedford, re-elected; first vice-president, Mrs. Munro; second vice-president, Mrs. Thomas Borland; secretary, Mrs. David Rose; treasurer, Mrs. James Greystock; organist, Mrs. W. H. Clements; assistant, Mrs. Munro; welcome and welfare secretary, Mrs. T. H. Crowe; supply secretary, Miss Maggie Miller; librarian secretary, Mrs. Milton Drain; glad tidings secretary, Mrs. R. W. Payne; home helpers' secretary, Mrs. John Clifford.

During the past year twelve regular meetings were held. The June meeting was a good fellowship meeting, to which members of other W.M.S. organizations were invited.

The treasurer's report was one of splendid work done, and showed the finances to be in an exceedingly good condition.

Mrs. McQuaig read the one hundredth Psalm and the circle of prayer was Mrs. Munro and Mrs. Charlie Tighe.

WOOLER.

Mrs. E. M. Wessels is spending a week with Mrs. (Dr.) E. A. Wessels in Toronto.

Mrs. Lester Richards spent Wednesday evening with her mother at Stockdale.

Mr. Esli Terrill returned home after spending ten days back north at Millbridge.

Mrs. Ellen Murray, of Wellington, is spending a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Crews.

Marmora

Mr. and Mrs. John Simmons of Campbellford spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. R. Phillips.

Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Merriam and Miss Noreen Osborne of Harwood visited Mr. and Mrs. Dan Osborne last Sunday.

Mr. W. Henderson of Glanmire visited Mr. and Mrs. Manley Lavender on Thursday.

Mr. Angus Nicholson is spending a few days with his daughter, Mrs. W. C. Spry.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Holden and Mr. and Mrs. W. Holden of Sarnia spent Friday in town.

T. E. Laycock, recently chosen as Liberal candidate for the riding of North Hastings, attended the Liberal Convention of North Ontario at Beaverton on Tuesday.

Mr. J. L. Slattery, B.A., honor graduate of Toronto University, has been engaged as assistant on the staff of Marmora Continuation School and will commence his duties on Jan. 3. The new teacher comes highly recommended, having had six years' experience as a teacher in public and separate schools, and was also on the high school staff of St. Michael's College, Toronto, as a part time teacher while attending university.

This year the 1st Marmora Company of Girl Guides are planning to send out a number of cheer baskets. To furnish these, they are appealing to the citizens of the village for a "pound" shower. The venture was tried last year with good success, and the girls hope to do equally well this Christmas.

Schools close on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 22 for the Christmas vacation, to re-open on Tuesday, Jan. 3.

The certificates recently awarded to Mac Bonter and John McCrodan by the Humane Society for saving Frank Said of Havelock from drowning at Crowe Lake last summer will be presented at a meeting of Stirling Community Club, which is being held in Stirling Hall next Monday evening.

Mr. Jack Neil of Shanick had the misfortune to break his arm on Tuesday morning. He was cranking Arthur Sheridan's truck on the latter's property, when it back-fired causing the injury to the unfortunate man.

Trent River

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McQuaig and Mrs. McQuaig Sr., of Toronto, were guests Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. John Ruttan.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Fife of Norwood, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Stillman of Campbellford were recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McNeely.

Tuesday guests with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McNeely were Mr. and Mrs. George Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. John Scott, and Miss Doris; Miss L. L. Quinn, Peterborough, and Mr. Boast of Norwood.

Christmas rehearsals for the pantomime and tableaux were held Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Brown; there was an attendance of about thirty. After rehearsal a very pleasant social hour was spent; Mrs. Brown served dainty refreshments.

A social and literary night was held Friday at the Efficiency League meeting.

Cavan

The people of the community had a social gathering in the Cavan Community Hall, on the evening of December the fifteenth in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Hunter, whose marriage recently took place.

A good program was given, presid over by the Rev. Mr. Williamson of Grace Presbyterian Church, Millbrook, of which church Mr. Hunter is a member. Mr. Williams, was a most genial and efficient chairman and in giving the chairman's address was listened to with interest and pleasure by the large gathering present.

All joined in singing "O Canada," after which Mr. D. Gallagher sang with Miss Dorothy Cobley as accompanist. Miss Cobley contributed a piano solo, which was much enjoyed. The little Misses Claudia Papineau and Mary Richards delighted the audience with a song and encore. Miss Annie Tinney sang a solo in pleasing voice and responded to an encore. Harmonica and piano duets were given by Messrs D. Gallagher and D. White. The hearty applause given showed the appreciation of the crowd.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunter were invited to the platform and an address read by Mr. Harry Freemantle and a beautiful inlaid table and mirror were presented to them by Messrs. Clayton Card, Ernest Armstrong and Willie Howden.

Mr. Hunter made suitable reply, thanking his friends for the gift and good will and best wishes expressed to Mrs. Hunter and himself. He concluded his remarks with the wish that one and all might have as much happiness as the gift had given them.

"For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" was sung after which all adjourned to the basement where lunch was served by the young men of the community.

After lunch, dancing was enjoyed with the Millbrook High School Orchestra furnishing the music.

Miss M. E. Hunter, Millbrook was among those who gathered in the Community Hal on Thursday evening at the social gathering in honor of her brother and his wife.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Dec. 19. — With prices 12 cents a pound lower than last year extensive buying of turkeys for Christmas is anticipated this week on the produce and dairy market here.

Retail stores will start to-day to purchase their supplies, which wholesale houses were securing last week from Western Canada and other Canadian points. The general prices for cars of turkeys at the close of the week were 17 cents a pound for "A" grade, 15 cents for "B" grade, and 12 cents for "C" grade.

Further declines in egg prices were recorded last week, while butter and cheese quotations advanced fractionally. Potatoes were unchanged. On Saturday eggs dipped lower with other lines remaining firm.

Fresh eggs, in carlots, which dropped seven to eight cents the previous week lost two to five cents a dozen last week. To retailers eggs, in cartons, declined the same amount, as fresh eggs in carlots and storage eggs, in carlots, eased a cent. At the end of the week graded fresh Ontario extras, in carlots or less, were selling on spot at 36 cents, firsts at 31 cents, and pullets at 27 cents a dozen. Storage extras, in carlots, were quoted at 21 cents, firsts at 18 and seconds at 17 cents. Last week's receipts were 4,620 cases.

Butter prices advanced a quarter of a cent last week, being quoted at 21⅛ to 21¾ cents a poundf or carlots or less of No. 1 finest grass make. Receipts for the week were 1,066 boxes.

Current receipts of Ontario colored cheese gained a quarter of a cent at 9½ to 9¾ cents a pound. Current Ontario white was firm at 8¼ to 8½ cents. Ontario early season make remained steady at 10½ cents for white and 11 cents for colored. Receipts last week were 1,911 boxes.

Potato quotations held unchanged last week, New Burnswick or Prince Edward Island Green Mountains, per 80-pound bag, sold at 90 cents, and Prince Edward Island Green Mountains, per 90-pound bag, at $1.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, December 19. — Wheat values were moderately higher yesterday, despite renewed selling pressure here from traders, who made simultaneous purchases in Winnipeg.

Export sales of 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat helped to lift prices. Winnipeg reports indicated there was little unsold Canadian wheat, except that on farms.

Evidence that distress selling which on Friday tumbled the Winnipeg market to a new all-time stimulated the upward trend in bottom price record had ceased, Chicago.

Liverpool Market Steadier.

Encouraging factors were greater steadiness in the Liverpool market than had been expected, and deliveries on contracts at Liverpool were apparently passing into strong hands. Higher premiums for immediate delivery wheat at Missouri River markets also aided advanced quotations for future deliveries here. The high premiums were ½c above a similar jump on Friday.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, December 19 — A good export business which included several cargoes to the Orient from Vancouver, and Southern and speculative support, brought a rally in wheat prices during the short week-end session on the Grain Exchange here on Saturday, and the close was 1⅛c higher in all futures.

December closed at 40½c, May at 43¼c, and July 44⅜c.

Chicago spreaders were buying Winnipeg-July against sales of the corresponding month in the South at what looked like an attractive spread, while some of the buying in the pit had the appearance of straight investment buying.

Offerings were very much lighter than on Friday, but there was some selling that looked like the cleaning up of stop-loss selling. News from abroad was without interest. Liverpool was fractionally off. Buenos Aires unchanged, and Chicago stronger.

Cash wheat and coarse grains trading was dull and uninteresting.

JURY DISMISSES $1,000 CLAIM

were locked in a clinch. It was ten minutes or more before plaintiff was sufficiently recovered as a result of the fight to drive his car home. He attended the clinic some days later and was examined by Dr. Cragg. "My nose was broken," plaintiff said, "and it was set by Dr. Clark before I went to the clinic."

Cross-examined by Mr. Kerr, plaintiff denied that he had been drinking on that occasion.

The Defence

Bruce Johnston, the defendant said it was a part of his duties as treasurer of the township to make disbursements of public money. He had spoken to plaintiff's wife on a previous occasion of the necessity of her husband coming for his own pay. He had adopted that procedure not for the purpose of being "ugly," but in order that he could keep proper records.

On the night of April 11, 1931, plaintiff's daughter had come to the door and handed defendant a note requesting that her father's wages be paid to the girl.

Defendant, testified that he was not convinced as to the signature on the note being that of plaintiff, and he told the girl that her father would be required to call for the money himself.

Plaintiff came into the office. "I had the paysheet on my desk and Wright leaned over to sign it, but did not do so. He was very contentious and I told him to get out, and grabbed him by the shoulder. He made a sudden grab at me and we fell to the floor. Wright was on top of me. He was under the influence of liquor," Johnston swore.

Defendant stated he gave Wright a further opportunity to sign the paysheet, but all that plaintiff could do was to exclaim, he would send who he liked to draw his pay.

Subsequently the fight was renewed and Johnston admitted he struck the plaintiff.

Johnston stoutly denied that he had been drinking. "He did not smell liquor off my breath Mr. Kerr and gentlemen of the jury. I had no liquor at all that day," he testified.

Testimony was provided by Dr. W. S. Fitzpatrick who had examined Wright and found him suffering from a condition affecting the sinus and other parts of the nose. The septum of the nose, he said deviated sharply to the left.

Dr. T. W. H. Young called by the defence described causes other than a blow that might bring on sinus trouble. He was permitted by His Honor Judge E. C. E. Huycke to leave the witness box in order that he might be better able to explain to the members of the jury, with the the aid of x-ray plates of plaintiff's nose, and which he put into court as exhibits.

Evidence was given by Police Chief Samuel Newhall that Wright had received a broken nose, some twenty-two years ago.

Obituary

ANTHONY SHERWIN

CENTRETON, Dec. 19 (Examiner Correspondent).—The death occurred of Mr. Anthony Sherwin, Cobourg, on Wednesday. The deceased was in his 88th year and was born in Haldimand Township. The greater part of his life was spent on a farm north of Centreton with his wife, who before her marriage was Miss Mary Ann Free.

About two years ago, Mr. Sherwin went to live with his daughter, Mrs. H. Mann, where he passed away. The deceased was a member of Centreton Methodist, now United, Church. In politics, he was a Conservative.

The funeral service was held in Centreton United Church on Friday afternoon. Rev. Mr. Neville officiating. The remains were laid to rest in the family plot in Centreton Cemetery.

Left to mourn the loss of the deceased are his widow and two daughters, Mrs. Phineas Warner of Toronto and Mrs. H. Mann of Cobourg, and three sons, Arthur and Percy and Lance of Cobourg. Mr. Sherwin was the last member of a large family.

LILIAN BRERTON

LIFFORD LINE, Dec. 19 (Examiner Correspondence)—The remains of Lilian Brerton were laid to rest in St. Mary's cemetery, Lifford on Thursday afternoon, the funeral cortege having proceeded from her late home in Toronto. She was the only daughter of the late Dr. George and Mrs. Brerton, the former being a well-known medical practitioner in this vicinity for many years, the latter predeceasing her daughter but one and one-half years ago and being interred in the same family plot.

Deceased had been seriously ill only thirty hours although she had not enjoyed good health for a number of years, passing away at the premature age of thirty-three years.

The funeral proceedings were in charge of William Spiers, undertaker of Toronto, a profusion of most beautiful flowers covering the grave.

Left to mourn the loss of an affectionate sister are two brothers, Dr. Charles and Fred of Toronto, deceased having made her recent home with the latter and his wife.

Rev. Holden, rector of Manvers parish conducted the graveside service which was not largely attended. A funeral service was held in the Toronto home on Wednesday evening.

Pall-bearers were H. Rose and J. Hulse, of Toronto, Roy Lock of Ida, Harry O'Brian, Brunswick, Samuel Murphy of Bethany and George Peters of Lifford.

WOMAN 106 DIES.

SUTTON.— Eliza Anderson, the oldest resident of Sutton West, is dead in her 106th year. Miss Anderson, who died yesterday, had been in possession of all her faculties until about a year ago. She had lived in the district virtually all her life and retained an old family Bible in which was inscribed information regarding the members of her family.

Miss Anderson was the second centenarian in the district to pass away recently. Dr. Robert Noble died a month ago in his 103rd year.

Nova Scotia's record of tourist travel for the summer season of 1932 shows an increase of 13 per cent over 1931 in the number of visiting automobiles bearing Ontario and Quebec licenses.

BUENOS AIRES IS HELD UNDER STATE OF SEIGE

Plot to Overthrow Government Lands 117 Political Leaders in Jail.

WARSHIP IN HARBOR.

Former President is Sent Back to Exile on Lonely Island.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 19. (AP)—A state of siege was in force in this seventh largest city of the world today while arrests of political leaders implicated in a plot to overthrow the government mounted to 117.

The state of siege (distinct from martial law in that civil courts continue to function) was invoked yesterday for a 30-day period.

Governors were requested to indicate whether a state of siege should be declared in their respective provinces. Three have favored it and three others deemed it unnecessary. Pending other replies, President Austin P. Justo withheld his signature to the state of siege decree until to-day.

The 82-year-old Hipolito Yirgoyen, who lost the presidency in the 1930 revolution and accused leader of the radical movement, resumed his lonely life in exile on Martin Garcia Island in the mouth of the Uruguay River.

Another ex-president implicated in the plot, Marcelo T. De Avlear and other prominent leaders probably will be deported to Europe. They were held on the warship Vienticinco de Mayo, now in the outer harbor and scheduled to start on a cruise.

Given His Choice

The government said ex-President Yrigoyen was offered the choice of being exiled to Europe but preferred to return to the farm house on the little island. He was a prisoner there from the time of his overthrow until President Justo was inaugurated ten months ago.

Quiet prevailed throughout the country press reports said. Torrential rains fell yesterday and contributed toward maintaining calm conditions. The majority of soccer games and horse races were suspended along with other public gatherings.

Both houses of congress adopted a measure declaring a state of siege in this city of more than 2,000,000 population. The police chief issued a communique whichs and authorized public meetings were not banned.

PAINTING HONOR FOR BARRYMORE

Silent Screen Personality Proves Loquacious in Role of Artist.

SOCIETY ACCEPTS POINTS.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Dec. 19 (A.P.)—Lionel Barrymore, the actor, and Lionel Barrymore the artist, are quite different personalities.

The former dislikes greatly talking about himself or the work that has made him one of the screen's outstanding personalities. For years, interviewers have been praying that he'll unbend and speak freely—as do Sister Ethel and Brother John. But he won't and probably he never will.

The artist, however, is as loquacious as the actor is tight-lipped.

Particularly does the man who signs his oils and etching simply "L. Barrymore," feel like talking since the New York Society of Etchers hung two of his prints in its National Arts Club exhibit, in New York City. This is not the first time his work has been displayed, but he regards this exhibition as the most important.

To him, the honor means more than a dozen starring roles or any awards that might be given for enacting those roles. Lionel is frankly proud of his accomplishment.

Wandering Uptown to See Toys Little Tot Lands in Police Station

For over two hours on Saturday afternoon, a small boy remained at the Police Office under the care of a kindly policeman. He had been found mingled among the crowds of shoppers on George Street, cold and crying, and absolutely at a loss to know how he was ever going to get back home to mummy and dad.

The little fellow had apparently wandered up-town, probably to get a peek at some of the toys on display in the gaily lighted windows; but once having become lost he was unable to tell the police his name or address. It was only after persistent questioning that the child said he lived on "Sherry Street." The officers took the child to Perry Street, and restored him to thankful parents.

The incident has led to a suggestion from Inspector James Reid that children of tender years, especially at such times of the year, should have their name and address attached to some portion of their clothing, or should be taught to memorize their own name and street address. It would greatly assist the police and would lessen the anxiety of parents whose children have wandered away from home.

COUNCIL HOLDS FINAL SESSION

Warkworth Officials Order Last Accounts Paid for Year.

WARKWORTH, Dec. 19 (Examiner Correspondence). — The last meeting of the Municipal Council for 1932 was held here in the Town Hall Thursday, December 15th. The following members were present: Alfred Merrill, Reeve; James Lamey, Deputy-Reeve, C. J. Boyce and A. E. Wartman, councillors.

Communications were read as follows: Minister of Public Works, re bridge; Canada Ingot Iron Co.; E. L. MacNachtan.

On motion of Wartman and Boyce, the county rate, $15,123.95, be forwarded to county treasurer. Carried.

Accounts amounting to $237.75 for police village and $16,986.49 for the Township of Percy were ordered paid on motion of Lamey and Wartman.

Moved by C. J. Boyce, seconded by U. E. Wartman, that at the time of election the following questionnaires be submitted, namely: Do you desire to return to statute labor system of township upkeep?

Are you in favor of township road superintendent being dismissable by municipal councils?

Pupils Presented Interesting Recital

Junior pupils of Deane Miner gave a very interesting violin studio recital on Friday evening in the Art Rooms of the Conservatory of Music. An appreciative audience applauded each number on a well-played program which included the following selections: Solo, "Loin du Bal," by Catherine Corkery; solo, "Melodie," by Alex Carlisle; solo, two movements from a Dvorak Sonatina, by Jack McKone; solo, "Liebesfreud," by Harry McDonald; five numbers, Prelude, Allemanda, Sarabanie, Minuet and Giga, from a Suite by St. George, played by a string ensemble composed of pupils, Catherine Corkery, Alex Carlisle, Jack McKone, Harry McDonald, Eric Mason, Jimmy Lillico and Jack Ferguson.

Accompanists were Mrs. D. R. Howat and Margaret Corkery.

C.G.E. Employees Hold Annual Treat

Santa Claus journeyed down from the frozen north on Saturday afternoon to be present at the Collegiate Auditorium where more than one thousand children of the employees of the Canadiann General Electric Company were assembled for the annual Christmas Tree treat.

The children and their parents were cordially welcomed in brief talks by O. A. Salmonsen, Works' Manager; Bob Cotton, president of the C.G.E. Social and Athletic Club, and Mrs. K. Morris, representing the Board of Education.

The arrival of the bewhiskered gentleman was heralded by a loud jingling of bells and soon the heads of two reindeer were seen outside of the window of the stage which had been arranged to represent the interior of a living room, on the night before Christmas. Santa climbed through the window and greeted the children in a very friendly way, promising them plenty of good things.

The childhen were then ushered up to the front of the auditorium in lines by a squad of thirty capable men, where they received candies, nuts, oranges and toys, the latter varying according to the age of the receiver, and in a very short time the throng of happy kiddies were wending their way homeward.

This Christmas entertainment has become an annual feature under the auspices of the C.G.E. Social and Athletic Club and is certainly a highlight in the lives of the employees' children. The dispatch and efficiency exhibited by the committee and their helpers in carrying out the various details of this undertaking is well worthy of mention as the entire program is usually completed in less than two horus.

RINK IS BUILT AT BRIDGENORTH

Residents of Village United to Cut Timber and Erect Rink.

FLOODED ON SATURDAY.

This winter for the first time in history the village of bridgenorth will have a rink. Building of this rink in less than a week's time was one of the greatest community enterprises ever put over by Bridgenorth. The determined manner in which all difficulties in its construction were overcome and the work carried on without a hitch, the rink stands as another example of what can be accomplished through co-operation of the villagers and the willingness to work.

The building of the rink was decided upon at a meeting last Tuesday evening at Fred Jopling's home where a group had gathered to discuss the proposition. Committees were immediately formed to take charge of the various branches of work.

Armed with axes and saws, the villagers entered the woods of Melville McWilliams, who had donated enough timber for the rink, and cut down trees. This timber was skidded three miles to a roadway and then hauled by trucks to Peterborough, where it was taken to a sawmill and cut up into boards.

The boards were then transported back to Bridgenorth, and at Sam Bell's garage for several evenings the villagers, using nails, hammers, and saws, and with utmost despatch, put the boards together.

The boards were then put up on a piece of property that had been levelled for the purpose. A rotary pump was installed, and pipes laid, and on Saturday several floods were put on the rink.

Arrangements are going forward already to have the rink illuminated with electric lights, and the work will not stop until dressing rooms for ladies and gentlemen have been built. The rink will be open to skating during Christmas week, and Peterborough skaters are invited to visit the rink and enjoy the sport.

CONVENT CHILDREN PRESENT CONCERT

Same Program Will Be Rendered in Lyceum Tuesday Evening.

The glorious feast of Christmas was fittingly heralded this afternoon, when, at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum before an appreciative audience of children, the following artistic programme was staged by the children of St. Mary's Convent:

Opening chorus, "Merry Christmas Bells"; "Rays of the Christmas Stars"; Pantomime, "The Holy City"; "Santa Claus is Coming" orchestra; drama, "There Was No Room in the Inn"—Scene I, A Jewish home on Christmas Eve; orchestra; Scene II, The cave of Bethlehem; orchestra; "Prompting the Hen", Jean Thomas; semi-chorus, "Twinkling Stars"; "Sun Bonnet Babies"; Scene III, The Angel's return; Scene IV, The reward of charity; Star drill; orchestra; Scene V, Christmas morn"; Tableau; "With Glory Lit the Midnight Air"; God Save the King.

The same progamme will be rendered to-morrow, Tuesday evening, at the Lyceum, at eight o'clock.

WOMAN GETS 2 YEARS; HAD BUILDINGS BURNED

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Dec. 19. (CP)—Mrs. Beatrice Gillrie was sentenced to two years in Portsmouth penitentiary to-day for illegally collecting insurance policies on buildings she had ordered burned. John Turner, 28, was sentenced to six months definite and one year indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory on a charge of arson.

"I am fully to blame for this and I still think I should get all the punishment," said Mrs. Gillrie as Turner was sentenced. She admitted having persuaded Turner to set fire to one of two houses on which she collected the insurance.

The suggestion Mrs. Gillrie had brought undue persuasion on Turner was made by his counsel. The buildings concerned were burned in Clinton township last year.

Leafs Regain International Group Lead

CANADIENS BEAT MAROONS 3-1 WHILE IRWIN CLAN TAKES 3-0 DECISION FROM DETROIT WINGS

Crippled Senators Battle Rangers to 2-2 Tie on Saturday Night.

WINGS HUMBLE BRUINS 2-1

Americans Wage Scoreless Tie With Chicago Black Hawks.

TORONTO, Dec. 19.—(CP)—Aftermath of five week-end National Hockey League games today left Montreal Maroons ousted from Canadian section leadership by their intra-city rivals, Canadiens, who sunk the Maroons 3-1 as Toronto Maple Leafs hurdled into first place with a 3-0 victory over Detroit, at Toronto.

In the third of Saturday night's games, Ottawa Senators, minus the services of right-wing Frank Finnigan, Bert McInenly, utility man, and Alex Connell first-string goalie, held the clever New York Rangers to a 2-2 overtime tie. Rangers were forced to overcome an early two-goal lead to divide the points at Ottawa.

Sunday night's two games saw Jack Adams' Red Wings, playing their second game in 24 hours, humble the mighty Bruins of Boston 2-1 in a game featured by a free-for-all after the final bell and Americans wage a scoreless overtime tie, first of the season with Chicago at New York.

Fast rounding into the form that won them renown, Canadiens hurtled through the Red team with all their old time speed, a rookie Art Giroux started them on the victory-path with a first period goal. Paul Haynes, brilliant Maroon centre and his wingman Larry Northcott, leaders of Canadian section point-makers, combined for the tying goal in the second period.

Johnny Gagnon was on the shooting end of three-way passing bout with Howie Morenz and Aurel Joliat for Canadiens' second goal during a mass attack while Hooley Smith and Cyclone Wentworth were doing time. The third goal came from the stick of Pit Lepine on assists by George Mantha and Wildor Larochelle as the three brokeaway from a final gang attack of Maroons in the last two seconds of play.

Johnny Gagnon

Lorne Chabot was at the peak of his game to shutout the Red Wings, his second of the season, while his team mates furnished him with an early lead that stood up. Harold, ironically called "Lucky" Cotton, scored his first goal of season to start the Leafs on their way. Chuck Conacher took Harvey Jackson's pass for the second, both coming in the first six minutes of the game.

After that Detroit warmed to their work and only the brilliance of Chabot and some indifferent sniping kept them scoreless as they outplayed the Leafs in the second period. Bob Gracie, left wing speedster, teaming with Joe Primeau and Conacher while Jackson was relieved owing to a heavy cold, scored the final goal on Primeau's pass.

Ottawa Senators, crippled with injuries, took a two-goal lead over Rangers on Syd Howe's first-period goal and Bill Touhey's marker in the second before Murray Murdock evened matters with two Ranger goals in the middle session. Touhey and Gus Forslund aided Howe on his goal and Howe assisted in Bill's score.

Ossie Asmundson had two assists, one on each of Murdock's goals while Cecil Dilpon also gathered a point on the second score. The tie enabled Rangers to stretch their lead at the top of the United States section to four points over the second-place Bostonians.

Bruins Go Down

Boston waged a rough and bruising battle with the Red Wings Sunday night but went down fighting. The fighting broke out after the final bell as tempers rubbed raw during the game, broke out in sore spots. Fleet Eddie Wiseman shot Detroit into a first-period lead on a pass from Carl Voss. Johnny Sorrell, left wing sharpshooter added another in the second on Walter Buswell's pass before Marty Barry shot in his 11th goal of the season on Eddie Shore's pass, and saved the Bruins from a shutout.

Roy Worters and Chuck Gardiner were much too clever for the sharpshooters in the game at New York. Nick Wasnie, Americans right winger and Ted Graham, blocky Chicago defenceman, provided one of the few thrills of the game when they tangled in a corner. Both drew major penalties.

Makes Brilliant Run In First Night Game

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 19 (C.P.).—Playing in the first night football game of his career, Alex. Duncan crashed over with a touchdown after a brilliant run. But while the cheers of the huge throng rang in his ears, blood gushed from his lips and his head ached. After the score, Duncan, former High School star, awoke and surveyed the scene of action. The vicious tackler he had just bowled over proved to be a big oak dresser in his bedroom. Duncan limped back to bed.

Diamond Czar At Joint Conclave of Majors

LONDON TECS OBTAIN KING LEAGUE LEAD

Victory and Tie Over Week-end Dislodges Indians From the Top.

HERD BLANKS STARS 2-0.

Referee Mickey Ion Taken From Rink Under Protection of State Police.

TORONTO, Dec. 19. — (CP) — London Tecumsehs picked up three points in their double-header over the week-end and today were leading the International Hockey League parade with a one-point margin. Tecs' 5-2 victory over Windsor Bulldogs Saturday and their scoreless tie with Cleveland Indians Sunday enabled them to dislodge Syracuse from the top position.

Buffalo Bisons assisted materially in the dethroning of the Stars. Before a crowd of rabid Syracuse fans, Mickey Roach's proteges last night eked out a 2-0 decision, in a game which saw Referee Mickey Ion escorted from the rink under protection of state police. Bisons inaugurated a profitable week-end, when they inflicted a 5-2 loss on the luckless Indians at Fort Erie Saturday.

To date there have been two scoreless games played in the current schedule and London have participated in both of them. Cleveland presented a surprisingly formidable defence and gave the Tecs few scoring opportunities, in their clash last night. Frank Daley, moved from a rearguard position to one on the wing, and Val Hoffinger, a former London player led the Redmen in their attack on the London net and kept Goalie Herbie Stuart on the hop throughout.

Tecumsehs laid back, hoping to capitalize on a single thrust for the deciding goal, but the Indians' defence was air-tight at all times.

More speed afoot gave the Tecs their easy win over Windsor. The loss broke the Bulldogs two-game winning streak which started when playing Manager Jack Arbour took charge last week. London's five goals were well distributed, Gillie, Holway, Groh, Quenneville and Hicks counting them.

Cormier and Earl Roche scored for the losers. Normie Smith, Bulldogs goalie turned in a brilliant performance, as the speedy Tec wingers swept in on him continually, sniping at him from all directions. Harvey Rockburn, Windsor's new defenceman, drew half of his team's six penalties.

A Furious Battle

It was a wild, wide open game that Buffalo and Syracuse put on for the benefit of the Syracuse fans. Bisons got their two goals in the final frame while three of the Syracuse players were in the penalty box. Gamey Lederman scored on a solo rush and Godin batted in a pass from Arbour.

Robertson, Teasdale and Savage were sitting with the timers, when Bisons barged through for their winning margin. When they were at full strength again, the homesters threw every man forward on the attack but Bus Taughrer, in the Buffalo nets kicked all shots out.

Referee Ion's decisions displeased the crowd and they booed him at every opportunity. A number of the fans tried to reach him as he left the ice and police protection was necessary before he was able to leave the arena.

A meagre number of fans watched the Bisons rout Cleveland Indians Saturday night. Buffalo had a decided edge in the last two stanzas in which they scored their five goals.

Carr and Schultz opened the scoring in the second period when they beat Emmett Venne after plays in which Roth and Lederman helped. Frank Daley took advantage of some ragged play inside the Buffalo defence to score the Clevelanders' only goal early in the third period.

Buffalo came back with a rush after this to ram home three goals off the sticks of Lauder, Roth and Berlett. The latter's goal was a result of some neat passing, in which he combined with Carr to work his way into an excellent scoring position.

NEW TRACK FOR LONDON

A new race course is planned for the west end of London. The site chosen is the stretch of ground at Park Royal, where, in pre-war days Queen's Park Rangers used to play in the Southern Football League. Under a special act of parliament, tracks within ten miles of Charring Cross must be licensed by a public authority. Kempton Park and Hurst Park are just outside this area. The site of the new course is in the area and Middlesex county has to pass on the plan.

HOCKEY CLUB AT LAKEFIELD RE-ORGANIZED

District League Also Formed at Annual Meeting of Game Enthusiasts.

APPOINT REFEREE.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 19. (Examiner Correspondence).—The hockey season was inaugurated at a well attended meeting held in the Lakefield rink on Friday night. There was a greater amount of real "pep" in the meeting than for some years. The season is early and rink manager Lennox has a fine sheet of ice and the boys are "rarin' to go."

H. R. Wagar was elected president of the hockey club, F. L. Erskine secretary-treasurer, J. R. Hull, manager and B. Blewett the coach.

The District League also organized; there were representatives of the Central Garage, High School and Rink Rates and three outside teams, Young's Point, Bridgenorth and Gill's.

W. H. Casement, the donor of the District League trophy, was elected honorary president and Ira Lennox was elected president, Frank Carroll of Young's Point was elected vice president and Thomas Chaplin was elected secretary. An executive committee with a representative of each team entering will be formed. The executive will draw up a schedule and a slate of rules and regulations.

W. G. Morrison will present a cup to the player in the league who displays the greatest amount of sportsmanship, goal getting, conduct on and off the ice to count.

No player who has played O.H.A. or in the East Peterborough League is eligible to enter the District League with the exception of two high school boys who each played one junior game last season.

Official Referee

Braden Blewett, who is one of the veteran hockey players of the village, was appointed official referee of the games and in the event of his not being able to be present that he will appoint a substitute.

The meeting adjourned after the business had beenn settled but some of the enthusiasts remained for informal discussions of plans.

Bridgenorth was represented by Messrs. A. M. McWilliams and Ernie Connors: Young's Point, by Capt. H. J. Young and Frank Carrol; Gill's Greyhounds by Messrs Harry Gill and Gordon Kidd.

Warsaw, the winner of the Casement Cup last year, was not represented but it is understood that the team will be in the league.

Buckhorn, Selwyn and Curve Lake will also enter, it is expected and the District League will be bigger and better than ever.

Peterborough Will Play Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 19.—(By Examiner Staff Correspondent.)—To start off the hockey season in this district it is understood that home and home games will be staged this week between Campbellford Intermediates and an Intermediate team from Peterborough, the tentative dates for this being set for Campbellford at Peterborough on Tuesday and Peterborough at Campbellford on Friday. If these games are arranged it will give both teams a good work-out in preparation for their respective O. H. A. group openings and it is hoped make a good getaway for hockey in Campbellford.

GEARMEN TIE TOOLMAKERS

Drafting Room Takes 5-2 Victory From Office in Senior Game.

IN C.G.E. HOCKEY

An opening program which consisted of four bruising, hard-fought battles started the C.G.E. Inter-department Hockey League off for the Season on Saturday afternoon at the Brock Street Arena, when every team in the league got into action, most of them without any preliminary practise. This year the league is made up of four senior and four junior teams, just the right number to enable every team to play each Saturday afternoon between the hours of one and five.

The official touch was included in the program when Ned Hardie, of the Switchgear departmept, Frank Bowness of the Drafting Room and Bill Nelson from the Punch Press faced off before the start of the first senior tussle.

The Switch Gear team making their debut in group one of the league justified the league officials' selection of them for that position when they held the well balanced Tool room team to a 1-all decision in the first senior tilt of the day. The Switch-Builders trotted out a young team that worked splendidly together and showed every indication of becoming a real threat for league honors. Whatley and Mowry on defence with Maudsley, Paggett and Higgins on the forward line all teamed up to form a clever fighting unit. Paggett sung the tying tally on a pass from Higgins after Jones had been lured out of the Tool Room net. For the Toolmakers, Alex Macgregor, George Jay and Mickey Williams were outstanding, the first two combining to get the only goal of the day.

The teams:
Switchgear—Goal, Hope; defence, Mowry and Whatley; centre, Maudsley; wings, Higgins and Paggett, alternates, Menzies, Cordery, Hurst, Playford and Lawrence.
Tool Room—Goal, Stan. Jones; defence, Connors and Sanderson; centre, Macgregor; wings, Williams and Jay; alternates, Wheeler, Earle, R. Routley and Gerow.

Clever Net-minding

The Drafting Room in their tussle with the Office team made the latter look as though they were considerably weaker than last year when they ploughed their way to a 5-2 victory but the very reverse of this is true as the Pen Pushers repeatedly stormed the Drafting fort in attacking waves that certainly should have resulted in more than two tallies, but for exceptional net-minding by Kearnes between the gas-pipes for the winners, and poor marksmanship by the invaders when they were close in combined to keep the Office players from tallying. Another salient feature in this game was the fact that Tommy Miller was bucking an off day and turned in a poor performance in the Office net. The Drafting Room on their performance Saturday appear to be the strongest team in the league and unless something of a radical nature develops should be the team to beat for the silverware. Howe and Davis on defence turned in a nice performance in that position but on the offensive were slightly eclipsed by Magee and Williams who opposed them in the same positions. Palmer, Cadd, Rooke and Allen put plenty of punch into the front line for the winners and were the main factors in the Drafting win. For the losers Tuck and Payne were the best.

The teams:
Drafting, Goal, Kearnes; defence, Howe and Davis; centre, Palmer; wings, Rooke and Allen; alternates, Cadd, Shields, Masterson and Price.
Office—Goal, Miller; defence, Eddie Williams and Magee; centre, Burnley; wings, Gray and Payne; alternates, Tuck, Masters, Alcock.

Cop 4-1 Verdict

The Armature Winders found the going rather tough against the Structural Steel outfit who carried home a 4-1 verdict. The Steel Workers showed a great deal more finish and team-work in their playing and although two of the goals were of the fluky variety, they nevertheless deserved the win. Harmer, Kearney and Darling were classiest performers for the winners each of them figuring in the goal-getting.

Milliken, Millard and Muir played splendid hockey for the losers, Millard getting the only goal unassisted. The team on the whole played rather loose hockey and showed lack of practise, but should shake down into a good team after they get a few games under their belts. Pearson, in goal, was one of the cleverest goal minders in junior hockey last year but wasn't clicking on Saturday.

The teams:
Structural Steel—Goal, Black; defence, Darling and Howarth; centre Pilling; wings, Kearney and Harmer; alternate, Murphy.
Armature Winding—Goal, Pearson; son; defence, Calladine and Auld; centre, Millard; wings, Milliken and B. Wilson; alternates, L. McGillen, D. Menzies, C. Muir and M. Wilson.

The Fractional Motors and Machine Shop gave a rather mediocre performance which finally wound up 1-0 in favor of the Machinists. Neither team had their strongest line-up out and as a result the play was pretty ragged at times. Hatton on defence for the Motor crew was easily the best player for that side. Opposing him Ashmore Craig and Pearson played clever hockey, the latter player securing the only counter of the game.

The teams:
Fractional Motors—Goal, Routley; defence, Hatton and Rainey; wings, Hollingsworth and Hall; alternate, Fanning.
Machine Shop—Goal, Tice; defence, Ashmore and Hetherington; centre, Craig, wings, Pearson and Lazenby.

Referee for all four games: Archie Weir.

STRANGE PARTNERSHIP EXISTS HEAVY CHAMP WITH PROTEGE

Ernie Schaaf Seems Lost in Ring Without Sharkey in His Corner.

ON COMEBACK TRIAL.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(A.P.)—One of the strangest partnerships in modern pugilistic history is that which ties Ernie Schaaf to world champion Jack Sharkey.

Sharkey owns a "piece of Schaaf's contract and has taken an active interest in the Boston blonde's career. With Sharkey in his corner to do some high-powered coaching, Ernie has been virtually invincible. Without him, the big blonde seems lost.

After fighting his way into the forefront of the heavyweight lists, Schaaf suddenly well into a dismal slump last summer when Sharkey was too busy with his own fistic concerns to bother about Ernie. He droped decisions to Stanley Poreda, Max Baer and unknown Winston and seemed headed for the scrap-heap.

Then Sharkey, the heavyweight title won, resumed his place in Schaaf's corner and Ernie proceeded to knock out Winston in six rounds at Boston last week.

Back in Corner.

Sharkey will be in attendance again this Friday night when Schaaf battles Porea, a hard-punching youngster from Jersey City, in Madison Square Garden's feature ten roun dbout. Poreda has been classed as one of the most promising of the younger crop of heavyweights. He is a deadly hitter ,fast and fairly clever.

Young Corbett, Fresno welterweight contender, opens the week's program to-night, battling Joe Glick, Brooklyn veteran, in a ten rounder at San Francisco. Boston and Philadelphia also are holding shows to-night. Andy Callahan and King Tut will put on a lightweight duel in the Boston garden, and Lou Brouillard of Worcester, Mass., former welterweight champion, tackles Jimmy Smith at Philadelphia.

CRUTCHFIELD HURT IN HARVARD BATTLE

McGill Hockey Team Makes Clean Sweep in U. S. Invasion.

BOSTON, Dec. 19 (C.P.).—McGill's red-clad hockey players had made a clean sweep of their early season invasion of the United States collegiate ice-ramparts, but the 4-2 win they scored over Harvard here Saturday night cost them one of their star players.

The services of Gordon Crutchfield, wingman, were lost, probably for some time, when he crashed into the boards during a heated exchange and suffered a slight concussion of the brain. He was carried from the ice and was unable to return to the fray.

The victory gave the McGill men wins over Yale and Harvard on consecutive nights in the series between those American universities, the University of Toronto and McGill. From out of the series the international intercollegiate champions will emerge.

The Harvard men held their own up until the end of the second period, in the face of the smooth-working passing of the Montrealers, but the final period was dominated by the Canadians' brilliant play.

Lepin for Amerks, Hockey Rumors

On top of the New York Ranger's victory over the Americans in the first clash between the Manhattan hockey rivals came more rumors of possible shake-ups in the Star-Spangled camp.

One story is that the Montreal Canadiens have decided to dispose of the disgruntled Pete Lepine and may sell or trade him to the Amerks. "Pit" was suspended recently by Manager Newsy Lalonde, but there is no question about his ability to play smart hockey in centre ice if he feels like it.

SPRINGFIELD WITHOUT TEAM

Col. Hammond, Owner of Indians, Unable to Make Rink Accommodations.

MAY BREAK UP TEAM.

BY GEORGE MAGUIRE
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19. — (CP) — News of the probable disbandonment of the Springfield Indians, crack Canadian-American League squad, spread through Gotham hockey circles with amazing rapidity last night.

The real shock came when Col. John S. Hammond, president of the New York Ranger hockey club, confirmed the probability the team was through as a unit for the balance of the 1932-33 season, at the least.

Lack of patronage was not the underlying cause of the trouble involving this team of 14 stalwart Canadians, recruited from Vancouver, Winnipeg, Regina, Ottawa, Toronto, Quebec and other cities of the Dominion. Bankruptcy proceedings against theowners of the rink threw the team out into the cold and tonight any one desiring icemen can purchase players on the hoof, by the dozen in pairs or individually.

Col. Hammond announced he would be forced to break up the Ranger Farm team. He will likely take two puck-chasers to fill out his Ranger roster. Efforts will be made to find places for the others on any major or minor league team desiring their services.

Frank Carroll, Indian coach and considered one of the keenest mentors in the minors will be brought to New York where he will help coach Lester Patrick groom the younger members scout through the Ontario Hockey Association, Quebec Amateur Hockey Association and the minor leagues for talent.

Carroll, a Toronto product, has been with the Indians since the team was first formed.

FOUR TEAMS IN TIE.

MILWAUKEE, December 19 (C.P.). — With less than 24 hours of the six-day contest remaining, four teams entered in Milwaukee's second international bicycle race were in a tie for first place in the mileage standings at 1 a.m. to-day.

Bernhard Steubecke, Germany, and Albert Crossley, Jr., New Bedford, Mass., set the pace for the eight surviving teams with a sprinting and jamming exhibition which put them far out in front of the field last night in point standing. The pair had amassed 765 points in 124 hours of riding.

Foxx Grabs Off Three Individual Leaderships During 1932 Ball Season.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19. (AP)—The 1932 American League batting championship to-day officially belonged to David Dale Alexander, Boston's first baseman and a graduate of Toronto Maple Leafs, of the International League, but the bulk of honors accomplished with the stick went to Jimmy Foxx of the Philadelphia Athletics.

Alexander, who graced the Detroit bench until traded with Roy Johnson to the Red Sox for Earl Webb, amassed an average of .367, to outfinish Foxx, who had led most of the season, by three points. Alexander's average fell 23 points shy of the winning mark of Al Simmons of the Athletics the 1931 winner.

Played in 124 Games

The big Boston slugger made his mark in 124 games, while Foxx played every one of the A's 154 contests. Foxx, however, grabbed off three individual leaderships, after crowding Babe Ruth's home run pace for the year in which the Yankee hero set the major league record of 60, Foxx slipped just a little and finished with 58. He led the league in scoring with 151 runs and his total base collection of 438, was much the better.

Just to make it unanimous among first basemen for the choice positions, Lou Gehrig, the Yankees' great wallopper, finished third with an average of .349. Seven points farther back was Heinie Manush of Washington and Babe Ruth landed fifth with 341, although handicapped by illness.

Although no batting records were established, two noteworthy performances yielded ties. On June 3 Gehrig smashed Philadelphia pitching for home runs in four consecutive times at bat, and on June 20, Roger Cramer, who was unable to finish the season because of injuries, tied another mark in combing white six pitchers for six hits in as many times at bat during a nine inning game.

Joe Sewell the world champion Yankees' third baseman, in his 3th season, as an American League regular, fanned only three times, while Carey Selph, Chicago infielder, went 89 games without striking out. The best hitting streak was produced by Manush who connected safely in 22 consecutive games.

Leads Three Base Hits

Joe Cronin who will manage the Washington Club next season, led in three base hits, with 18, and Eric McNair, young Philadelphia infielder, won the honors in doubles with 47. Simmons, although he finished eighth among the regulars, produced the most hits, 216.

In team efforts, the Athletics had a collective mark of .290, while the Yankees and Cleveland followed with .286 and .285, respectively. The Yanks did the most scoring, making 1,002 runs, with Washington hold its opposition to the lowest total, 716.

TRINITY JUVENILES ASSURED OF PLACE

Defeat St. Paul's "A" Team 14-11 in Church League Basketball.

Trinity Juveniles practically assured themselves of a place in the Church Basketball League first-half finals by beating St. Paul's 'A' team, 14-11, in a great game at the 'Y' Saturday evening. The latter will have to fight it out with the two George Street teams for the other play-off berth. Though Murray Street Juniors lost a 15-13 decision to Trinity Juniors, yet they won the first half. St. Paul's lost, 12 to 8, to a pickup squad, when St. John's defaulted to them.

St. Paul's "A" had most of the play in the first game and should have won, but for poor combination. Latimer went good defensively with the other four going well as forwards. Trinity played a three-man defence, with Thorburn and Davern playing up front. Ward was the best player on the floor, with Thorburn also going well. The score was 8-6 for the losers starting the second half, showing how close play was.

The teams:

St. Paul's "A"—A. Clark, G. Clark, D. Anderson, R. Latimer and R. Pulkinghorn.

Trinity—W. Ward, J. Thornburn, C. Davern, M. Gates and E. Edmondson.

Referee, V. Holmes; scorer, Don Charlton.

The Trinity-Murray Street junior affair had no effect on the standing, as Weistenholme is over-age. It ended 15-13 for Trinity, going overtime to settle the issue. Hayes scored the winning basket in the extra session. V. Holmes and Galley were best for the Murray Street outfit, but both sides turned in a smart game. The teams:

Trinity—M. Stanger, J. Wolstenholme, S. Hayes, M. Gadd and W. Ward.

Murray Street—V. Holmes, D. Welch, C. Lasenby, J. Miller, L. Galley and B. Gerow.

Referee, Russ Kitchen; scorer, D. Charlton.

St. Paul's won by default from St. John's Junior, and then dropped a 12-8 count to a pickup squad. It was 4-2 for the pickups at the end of the first half, and they also shaded their opponents in the last go. McIntyre and Dinsdale were outstanding. The teams:

St. Paul's—G. McIntyre, G. Morrow, E. Ascot, G. Clark and A. Clark.

Pickups—Dinsdale, Kingdon, Anderson, Pulkinghorn, Thorburn.

Referee, A. Holmes; scorer, D. Charlton.

The Campbellford Intermediates—they're grouped with Trenton and Belleville in the O.H.A.—will be here at 8.30 tomorrow evening at the Brock to play the new edition of the Petes. We don't know the local lineup till after their practise tonight, nor do we know much about that Campbellford outfit. They always trot out a strong, aggressive team, and we understand they have a couple of good newcomers. The two squads play back in the Hydro town Frday. We're looking for a good crowd at tomorrow's game, as the Petes promise to do plenty this winter.

• • • • • •

It might not be a bad idea to have the Lindsay Vics down here for an exhibition game early next week. The Petes don't start their O.H.A. schedule till December 30th, Bowmanville coming here then, and the locals would be in the pink for that if they had three stiff games under their belts. The Lindsay team is out of hockey this winter, and they would likely be willing to come down and show the fans and players here just how good they would have been. Along about February, the Vics and Petes play ther annual Haboco Cup series.

• • • • • • •

We like the intermediates' schedule. There should be five fast, fairly well-matched teams in, and there will be plenty of hockey for them all. The Petes play December 30th here, and in Port Hope the next Friday. They lay off then till January 13th, but are kept busy from then till the finish. Orono is here the 13th, the locals go to Bowmanville the 16th, they entertain Cobourg here the 20th, and journey to Ormé Gamsby's bailiwick the 23rd. The last home game is January 27th, Port Hope playing at the Brock, and the Petes finish in Cobourg the 30th. First and second teams then play home and home games, the winner going on in the playdowns. The Petes should be in perfect shape when the bulk of their work comes, and there should be great ice then, too.

• • • • • • •

We're chock full of ideas for Blue Monday. It just occurred that the East Peterborough League might invite Lindsay to enter a team—with possibly some restrictions on them because of their strength—in the district loop, along with Norwood, Lakefield, Westclox and a four team from here. We imagine Lindsay would be willing, if the other teams were, and it might prove advantageous to the whole circuit. Travelling expenses would be higher, but so would box office receipts. It might be worth talking over before drawing up the E.P.L. schedule around the end of this week. Yeah, most of them are rotten but still they're ideas....

• • • • • • •

The Southend Hockey League meets at eight bells in the Raybestos Wednesday night, and there should be a big turnout. It's the closing date for entries, and every team and prospective one should have a representative on hand, as a flock of important league business must be dealt with. There are some ten or eleven teams in so far, the junior section being the only one to give the officials a headaches this year—this series not responding as in other years. We'd like to see at least two or three junor squads in. Looks like four bantams, four juveniles and four intermediates all right.

• • • • • •

Eight C.G.E. teams swung into action to open the hockey season here on Saturday afternoon at the Brock. There was a pretty fair crowd out, and they saw some smart puck-chasing by the senior teams, Drafting Room winning, while Switchgear and Toolroom battled to a fine 1-1 tie. Machine Shop and Structural Steel intermediates won their games, but play was rather ragged, lack of practice and condition being the cause, coupled with poor team-work. They play every Saturday up there.

• • • • • • •

The forward passing in the neutral zone didn't get much of a trial, the boys shying from this new rule like colts from a blowing paper bag on a roadside. But they proved over-anxious skating into the enemy defending zone, and this caused plenty of bell-ringing when the puck-carrier wasn't the first man over the third blue line. The C.G.E. Shop League is unique in one rule. They do not permit defencemen to body-check potential pass-receivers in the defence area, although that is permitted by the new O.H.A. rule. They want to reduce accidents, and it may be a good thing, at that.

• • • • • • •

Another week or so will find the local army of hockey players moving bodily into the sporting limelight to monopolize sports for some three months. There'll be eight C. G. E. teams, four Westclox, about a dozen or more each in the South-end and Church loops, three or four gals' squads ,six or so School League outfits, at least four City Loop ones, a couple E. P. L. teams from here, two O. H. A., and others. Over half a hundred hockey teams going in a town this size, providing plenty of games for those interested, and sport for fans every night there is ice. We doubt if there's a city twice the size of Peterborough anywhere that goes in stronger for hockey—and all th's on natural ice.

• • • • • • •

Looks like three sections of the Ladies' Basketball League this winter, made up of four teams each. No depression there. The schedules will likely open two weeks from this Friday, running through till the play-offs in March. The teams in now are busy working out in preparation for a keen race in each division, senior intermediate, and junior. All registrations of prospective entries must be into the hands of the secretary, care of the Y.M.C.A., by the first of the year.

Picking 'em off the grapevine: Springfield Indians dropped out of the Can.-Am. hockey loop, leaving five teams in....The bruising Boston team didn't like losing 2-1 in Detroit last night, so they staged a free-for-all fight on the ice and in the corridors after the game....An all-star French team walloped a touring Edmonton amateur puck squad, 3-0, recently in Paris....St. Louis Cards have Hornsby back, but they swapped Sunny Jim Bottomley, star first-sacker, to Cincy for Carroll, pitcher, and Crabtree, outfielder....Not many from around here taking in any of the hockey games in Toronto so far this winter.

GRANGE'S RUN WINS NATONAL RUGBY HONORS

Old "77" Nips Nagurski's Forward Pass to Score Brilliant Touchdown.

VICTORY FOR BEARS.

Understood Red Grange to Retire From Professional Football After 7 Years.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—(AP)— Old "77", Red Grange himself, may play no more football, but even if he doesn't the touchdown that won the 1932 national professional championship today was added to his laurels.

Grange

Mauled and battered by seven years of the professional band of football, Grange came out in the final period last night at the Chicago stadium to catch a forward pass from Bronko Nagurski, for the points that brought victory to the Chicago Bears over the Portsmouth Spartans in their playoff game.

Paul Engebretsen kicked for the extra point, and a piece of ill fortune made the Sparts take a safety to make the score 9 to 0, but it was Grange's touchdown that provided enough points for the title-bearing triumph.

Grange has played with the idea of retiring from football after this season, and with a championship won, and years of punishment behind him, may decide to do so.

The contest was played in the stadium on a gridiron considerably less than regulation size, but the 12,000 fans who sat warm and snug in comfortable seats, saw a battle that lacked few of the thrills of the outdoor game. Punting and forward passing attacks functioned to bring exciting moments, and a couple of goal-line stands gave the fans thrills without any of the disadvantages of December weather.

Grange had been knocked out of action in the first period, but after three scoreless periods, he went back to work. The break came when Dick Nesbitt intercepted a pass from Father Lumpkin and ran ten yards to the seven yard line. Nagurski tried the line twice for a total of two yards, then drifted back and shot a bullet pass that just cleared the Spartan secondary, into Grange's hands.

A bad pass from centre a few moments later was fumbled by Wilson, substitute Sparton quarterback and he was forced to fall on the ball back of his own goal line, giving the Bears their final points.

The game was played on a field 80 yards by 45 yards, with 400 tons of dirt packed six inches thick over the stadium floor.

SCREEN ODDITIES

If it had not been for a nervous horse it is quite possible that fans never would have known Clark Gable as an idol of the films. During the filming of location sequences for the talkie which first brought Gable's possibilities to the attention of producers, dynamite exploded prematurely and killed several persons. Gable was riding a sensitive, high-strung horse which seemed to sense the impending accident and bolted, carrying the future star well out of danger before the explosion. Curiously enough Gable had learned to ride especially to obtain his part in the picture.

Many unusual occupations dependent upon motion pictures are followed in Hollywood but possibly the strangest business is that of Carl Koehler who supplies human skeletons for film purposes. It is difficult to obtain skeletons in this country so they are imported at a cost of from $75 to $125 apiece. The best skeletons are obtained in Germany, the Pyrenees and other mountainous sections where the physical condition of peasants is hardy.

Stars are not the only film persons who are forced because of countless unwanted calls to frequently change their telephone numbers. The practice is pursued by most studio people from the highest executives down. At Paramount even Oscar, the studio's Negro bootblack who occasionally appears in pictures, has had to change his number.

Grove Gave Yanks Most of Troubles

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Lefty Grove of the Athletics gave the Yankees more trouble than any other pitcher in 1932, according to Joe McCarthy, manager of the Yanks.

Asked how Grove compared with Vernon Gomez, New York's southpaw ace, McCarthy said:

"Gomez was not saved for easy opposition. He wanted to pitch every time Grove went for the A's. And you'll remember Gomez beat the Mackmen in his first seven starts."

Niagara Falls Cops 8-2 Win On Saturday

TORONTO, Dec. 19. — Niagara Falls roared around Varsity Arena on Saturday night, dropping the University Blues in an 8 to 2 defeat to improve their position in the O.H.A. senior standings. The colorful crew from Cataract city, playing their best hockey of the season, were much the better and deserved the one sided win. Varsity was outskated, outplayed and outscored by a collection of high class hockey players who played at the peak of their form as a team and individuals.

Trouble had been rumored in the camp of the Cataracts with the team playing much below the form expected, but Saturday the players struck their stride, passes clicked, combination worked almost perfectly, both on offensive and defensive, and few teams in amateur hockey could have stopped them in their grand stampede for scores. Nipper Wilson directed the team from the bench with the silent Gene Fraser on the side admiring the men who recently heard his scoldings for their average play.

VETERAN SPORTS EDITOR PASSES AT PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH, December 19 (C.P.). — Official scorer for the Pittsburgh Pirates' Baseball Club for 40 years, John H. Gruber, 79, first man to tabulate batting averages — a milestone in sports writing — has passed out of the major league ball parks for good.

Gruber, whose interest in baseball transformed him from a typesetter to a sports editor and finally to a statistician of the game, died at his home shortly before midnight last night, a victim of bronchial pneumonia.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

BOWSER TURNS TAIL

Old Mother Nature is very good to her children and when they get hurt she heals their wounds quickly. Within a few days after his fight with Yowler the Bob-cat, when he was so badly clawed and bitten, Bowser was feeling quite himself again. So, when one morning Farmer Brown's Boy came out of the house with a gun in his hands and whistled to him, Bowser barked joyfully and jumped about his master as if he were quite crazy. You see it was a long time since he had seen a gun in the hands of Farmer Brown's Boy. The sight of it recalled to Bowser the old days when he and his master had so often hunted over the Green Meadows and through the Green Forest. You know there is nothing Bowser so loves as a good hunt. He never had been able to understand why Farmer Brown's Boy had put his gun away and given up hunting.

"Now," thought Bowser, "we shall have another glorious hunt for Reddy Fox. If I can once find his trail I'll drive him around to where my master can shoot him," and he started to race ahead to hunt for Reddy's trail. A sharp whistle stopped him. He looked back, wagging his tail.

"You come in here at my heels, sir," commanded Farmer Brown's Boy, and Bowser obeyed as he had been taught to do. He didn't understand it, but he obeyed.

Through the Old Orchard toward the Green Forest they went, Bowser sniffing and snuffing in the grass eagerly. Near the edge of the Old Orchard he caught a whiff of scent which told him that Reddy Fox had been along there some time during the night before. Instantly Bowser stopped and with eager little whines began to run this way and that way with his nose to the ground trying to find out which way Reddy had gone. A sharp command from Farmer Brown's Boy bade him come on.

"Go Find Him, Bowser! Sic him!" he commanded.

Bowser stopped sniffing and snuffing and obediently followed his master. But Bowser was sorely puzzled. He knew that Farmer Brown's Boy had known that he had found a trace of Reddy Fox, yet here they were going straight into the Green Forest. It was clear that Farmer Brown's Boy was not going to hunt Reddy Fox. Bowser was disappointed, but the sight of the terrible gun on the shoulder of Farmer Brown's Boy relieved him a little. They must be going to hunt some one or that gun would have been left at home, so he would try to be patient until he should find out who that some one was.

Deeper and deeper into the Green Forest his master led the way. Presently Bowser began to grow uneasy. The farther they went the more uneasy he grew. You see they were getting nearer and nearer the place where a few days before Bowser had been so scratched and bitten by Yowler the Bob-cat. He had no desire to meet Yowler again. A dreadful thought popped into his head. Could it be that it was Yowler himself Farmer Brown's Boy meant to hunt?

Presently Farmer Brown's Boy ordered Bowser, ahead. "Go find him, Bowser! Sic him!" he commanded.

In the joy of being ordered to hunt, Bowser bounded ahead. He didn't know whose trail he was to look for, but he was to hunt for some one. Perhaps he would find the trail of old Granny Fox or the trail of Jumper the Hare. He began to run this way and that way sniffing eagerly among the leaves. He had quite forgotten Yowler the Bob-cat.

So they went on for some distance, Bowser eagerly hunting for the trail of some one, any one, who would leave a scent he could follow with his wonderful nose. And then suddenly he came on a trail, a fresh trail, the strong scent from which filled his nose. But instead of opening his mouth and sending his great voice rolling through the Green Forest as he usually does, Bowser stopped. The hair on his neck stood up in stiff little ridges. He growled softly, then he deliberately turned and with his tail between his legs sneaked back to his master and crept behind him.

What Today Means to YOU

by MARY BLAKE

"SAGITTARIUS"

If December 19th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a.m. to 8.30 a.m., from 11 a.m. to 12 noon and from 8.20 p.m. to 9.30 p.m. The danger periods are from 9.30 a.m. to 10.45 a.m. and from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m.

It is possible that you will experience a keen disappointment of some kind on this December 19th. A friend of long-standing will slight you, or will fail to live up to your ideals of what friendship is. Do not let this affect you too strongly as the chances are that in time you will find that that person was not truly worthy of your friendship. A sacrifice made on this date will be rich in reward. Favorable for romance.

The child born on this December 19th will start life under auspicious circumstances. He will experience little sickness during his life although he may have his share of the expected children's diseases. Look for this little one to make a very definite place for itself in the home, at school and in any and every group in which it finds itself. The child will show great strength of character and moral courage. It will always fight its own battles.

Born on December 19th, you are a keenly sensitive person with highly developed powers of intuition. You seem to feel your way through life and through life's problems and you have an unerring sense of anticipating events in ample time to prepare yourself to meet them. You are never at a loss in an emergency, and in times of stress your qualities of leadership and courage come strongly to the fore. You are modest and retiring.

If December 19th is your birthday the chances of your making a success of your life are better than average. You will probably hold some high office; at any rate, your work will require a good intellect and you will have that to offer. Sensitive and spiritual you are, and these qualities will make you a person who enjoys and appreciates the artistic. No doubt you may yourself actively pursue a vocation in one of the arts and you need not be surprised to find yourself a noted painter, musician, or writer. You are inclined to be lacking in patience. Do not let yourself chuck a job righ in the middle of it as you are often inclined to do. You will show ability in any line of work you get into.

POLICE "GUESTS"

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. — Mrs. Doris Strong and her six children, who were refused admission to Canada, remained at police headquarters in Niagara Falls, N.Y., to-day as "guests."

Herbert Strong, said to live in Toronto and anxious to have his family with him, has not been seen here, Canadian immigration officials said.

It is believed that an epidemic disease which existed anterior to Hippocrates (460-360 B. C.) was diphtheria.

POLITICAL GROUP RETAINS OFFICERS

Marmora District Liberal-Conservative Association Lay Pans for Year.

MARMORA, Dec. 17 (Examiner Correspondent).—The annual meeting of Marmora, Mermora Township and Deloro Liberal-Conservative Association, held in the White House, Marmora on Friday evening, under presidency of R. A. Elliott, despite the coldness of the weather attracted an attendance of over fifty. The chairman, though not giving a set speech, reviewed in interesting manner the events leading up to the formation of the association and some of its activities during the past year. The minutes of executive meetings held throughout the year were read by Secretary-Treasurer G. B. Airhart. Discussion was allowed on some of the matters which the association had taken up.

The election of officers resulted in all being re-elected with the exception of three of last year's members of sub-committees.

Following is the list of officers: President, R. A. Elliott Vice-presidents: R. E. Bonter, L. E. Neal, and C. H. Buskard. Sub-committees.—Marmora Village, Mrs. Nathan Mumby, Messrs. W. A. Sanderson, Dr. H. Crawford, R. Nayler and R. Neal. Marmora Township, Mrs. Bert Inkster, Irvin Wells, Charles Jones, Irwin McCoy, and W. R. Bonter. Deloro, Mrs. A. Milliken, Messrs. S. B. Wright and G. O'Neill, Junior.

Under general business the question of a ladies' association was introduced by R. E. Bonter and supported by Dr. Crawford and others in the audience.

10 PER CENT. ON RELIEF

LONDON, Dec. 17 (C.P.) — This city spent $62,000 on direct relief last month, a new record figuree, it was announced to-day. Nearly 2,000 families are now dependent on the relief department. Total number of individuals is 8,403, or more than 10 per cent. of the city's population.

How fast does radium lose its value?

What is the difference in weight between sea water and fresh water?

Is there any substance that cannot be frozen?

Correctly Speaking—

In dividing a word at the end of a line place a hyphen after the first element of the word, and there only; never put a hyphen at the beginning of a line.

Words of Wisdom

Who falls for love of God shall rise a star.—Jenson.

Today's Horoscope

Persons born on this day are shrewd and determined and desirous of their own way in everything.

Answers to Foregoing Question

1. Radium loses half its value in approximately 1,800 years, no matter how it is packed.

2. Sea water will weigh about one and a half pounds more per cubic foot than fresh water at the same temperature.

3. Helium has never been frozen.

HINT NINE REDS ABOARD LINER HEADED TO SEA

Immigration Officials Refuse to Deny or Confirm Halifax Reports.

One Sent To U. S. Saturday.

Presumed Labor League to Continue Fight Whether Aliens Deported or Not.

HALIFEX, Dec. 19. —(CP)— Although no official confirmation could be obtained from immigration officials here, it was generally understood today that Halifax had seen the last of 10 aliens who were brought to the city last May for deportation as Communists. On Thursday John Stalberg, Montreal manager for the Finnish Daily Vapaus, was placed on a train for an unannounced destination in the United States, where he holds citizenship by naturalization. Now it is believed the other nine left last night on the liner Dresden which arrived yesterday from Bremen and sailed for New York before turning on her eastward voyage.

Called nightly by newspapermen, H. M. Grant, head of the immigration service in Halifax had always said, "they are still in detention here." Last night he declined to say anything. Sightseers at the ocean terminals thought they had observed a little knot of prisoners being placed on board the Dresden. The liner does not call at Halifax on her eastward trip.

Stay Refused

Recently Mr. Justice O. S. Crockett of the Supreme Court of Canada refused to grant a stay of proceedings on the deportation order standing against the 10 aliens. The stay had been sought pending action by the Canadian Labor Defence League to carry an appeal to the judicial committee of the privy council. The Crockett decision had no bearing on the merits of the appeal, but meant the aliens could be sent out of the country in the meantime.

It is presumed the league will go ahead with its legal proceedings, regardless of whether the men have been deported. Lionel Ryan, Halifax barrister who has represented the league before the immigration tribunal which issued the original orders, and before Mr. Justice W. F. Carroll, the full bench of Nova Scotia, and the Supreme Court of Canada in habeas corpus proceedings, had nothing to say last night as to what future action would be.

JUVENILE L.O.L. OFFICERS ELECTED

Past County Master F. Millard Has Charge of Installation Ceremony.

(Contributed)

On Friday evening, Dec. 9, the largest crowd of Juvenile Orange Lodge members that ever assembled together in its history met in the Orange Hall for the annual election and installation of officers for 1933.

After the usual routineof business, District Master Bro. Jack Wilson took the chair and conduoted the election of officers in a most creditable manner, assisted by Sisters W. Wilson, J. Little and J. Mann of Vimy Ridge L.O.B.A. and Mros. Bradley and W. Wilson of L. O. L. 80.

The following are the officers elected: Worshipful Master, Bro. J. Young; Deputy Mistress, Sister H. Mann; Chaplain, Sister A. Sanderson; Rec. Sec., Bro. oGrdon Saunders; Fin. Sec., Sister G. Mann; Treasurer, Sister E. Millard; Director of Ceremonjes, Bro. Nelson Foster; First Lecturer, Sister Elsie Foster; Second Lecturer, Bro. G. Hawkes; Pianist, Sister G. Mann; Guardian, Bro. W. Wilson; First committee, Bro. B. Sanderson; Second Committee, Sister P. Wagar; Third Committee, Sister G. Glover; Inner Tyler, Bro. T. Bradley; Outer Tyler, Sister E. Wilson.

Following the election, Past County Master F. Millard was called upon to conduct the installation ceremony which was splendidly accomplished with the assistance of Sister A. Brown, G. Foster and J. Little of Vimy Ridge L.O.B.A.

This was followed by the serving of dainty refreshments to all assembled after which they adjourned until Friday, December 16 when they met together again as strong as ever to welcome a visit from Santa Claus. Previous to Santas' arrival a delightful program was presented to them by the Pumpkin Threshers Orchestra which was thoroughly enjoyed by old and young alike.

The role of Santa was performed in splendid fashion each child received an appropriate gift and went to their homes with a determination to make 1933 a record year in the history of juvenile Orangism in Peterborough. Great credit is due to their Guardian Bro. William Wilson and his assistants for the splendid termination of 1932.

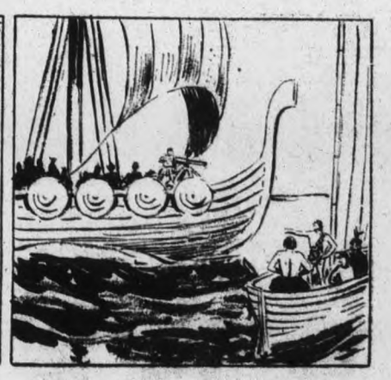
TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE No. 91 By Edgar Rice Burroughs

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service, Inc.)

"Look!" suddenly cried The Red Flower of Zoram. "A sail!" exclaimed Tarzan. Excitement ran high in the longboats as they watched the distant speck upon the blue. "Will we be saved or captured again for new torments?" was what Jason was thinking. "There is another—there are many of them," said Lajo, the Korsar, presently. "We are saved!" "Not if the ship is manned by unfriendly people," answered Tarzan.

"Only my countrymen sail this Korsar Az," said Lajo. "That is all right for you," remarked the ape-man, "but they will be our enemies." Soon the white sails disappeared in the distant haze and with them went both fear and hope. They waited awhile in silence. Suddenly the mist lifted and they found the ships much nearer. "Come about and run for it," commanded Tarzan, "perhaps they have not yet discovered us."

"We have not enough men to fight them," he said, "but we may escape." The longboat tacked about and was soon scudding in an opposite direction. But with its small sail the craft was far from fast. And as all eyes watched the far off sails, they saw the distance between them decreasing and discovered they were being pursued by a considerable fleet. Rapidly the distance closed.



Manned by fifty oars, each ship was short and broad of beam, carrying two sails, and over the sides of the ships were hung the shields of warriors. "Pellucidar is a queer place, I'll tell the outer world," exclaimed Jason Gridley to Tarzan. "It not only boasts of Spanish pirate gents but now come the Vikings' ships!" "Slightly modernized, however," replied the ape-man. "Look at that gun mounted in the bow!"

Cricket Results

LAUNCESTON, Tasmania, Dec. 19 (C.P. Cable).—The English cricket Test team which recently won the first Test match from Australia, easily defeated a Tasmanian team here to-day by an innings and 126 runs.

The scores were: M.C.C., 502 (Sutcliffe 109, Paiaudi 109, Ames 107, Paynter 102); Tasmania, 229 and 147 (Putman 58 not out, Badcock 57, Mitchell six for 70, Badcock 43 not out, Mitchell 5 for 74, and Brown 3 for 28).

The bowling of Mitchell, aided by a pitch which had been dried hard by a hot sun, was largely responsible for the collapse of the Tasmania team.

STURGEON LAKE IS COVERED WITH ICE

Earliest in History, Lake Waters Frozen to Allow for Traffic.

LINDSAY, Dec. 19 (Special to The Examiner).—For the earliest period in the history of the oldest inhabitant, Sturgeon Lake is covered by a sheet of ice of sufficient thickness to permit of traffic over its surface. There is twelve inches of black ice, according to the statement of Capt. Gray, who resides at Sturgeon Point. When ice-cutting operations on the lake commenced last February, the ice was only eleven inches thick.

The local plant of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol, Limited, it was announced to-day, was turning out 360 gallons of wood alcohol and eight tons of acid daily. This output, it is understood, is for the British market.

Stories of bears and wolf packs are coming out of the north country. These animals, it is reported, have been coming pretty close to the settlements and invading farms, but no serious losses have been reported. Trappers and hunters state that the bears are very cross, and in one or two instances have shown fight.

Dean T. J. Crowley, of Sault Ste. Marie, who has relatives in this district, has been elevated to the title of Monsignor by His Holiness the Pope. This honor comes to him on the occasion of his thirtieth anniversary to the priesthood. Dean Crowley was born in Peterborough. He received his early education at the old Lake Street and Murray Street Separate Schools, attended St. Michaels' College, Toronto, and Grand Seminary, Montreal, and was ordained at St. Peters' Cathedral, Peterborough by the late Bishop O'Connor.

Pleasing Program Christmas Concert

The Christmas entertainment and distribution of prizes was held on Friday, Dec. 16 by Murray Street Baptist Sunday School. A large crowd of scholars, parents, and friends being present and enjoying a fine program.

After the opening remarks by Dr. A. J. Madill, the superintendent, a presentation of White Gifts was made. All the scholars in turn coming to the platform and bringing some gift suitable for distribution amongst the needy families of the city. A large assortment of groceries,, meat, candles, vegetables, fruit and cash gifts was the result, there will be distributed during the coming week by a committee under the direction of the Pastor, Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe.

A reciation by Eileen Sellers and a sketch by the members of Jim McLenaghans' Class were then enjoyed by those present.

Prizes for regular attendance were presented to the following: Elsie Foster, Patricia Madill, Jean Barringer, Virginia Madill, Arthur Lasenby, Nelson Foster, Bobby Graham, Jack Quinn, Gordon Saunders, John Dowson, Ruby Harding, Sylvia Boorman, Dorothy Lemmon, Mildred Goheen, Elsie Lemmon, Davis Graham, Chalmers Gillespie, Harold Pammett, Kenneth Gillespie, Donald Shiner and Elmer Tighe.

A large number of certificates were also presented to the scholars who had completed the courses in memory work. The next item on the program was a play, "The Enchanted Christmas Tree," presented by a group of scholars directed by Miss Dorothy Irons. The principal characters in the play were taken by Dorothy Boorman, Ruth Ellis, Gordon Saunders, Bill Ellis, and Gordon Pammett, while Fred Trotter had charge of the scenery and lighting effects. Santa Claus and a distribution of candies and oranges was made to all the children present, bringing a very successful program to a close.

Presentations Made To L.O.L. Members

(Contributed.)

At the annual meeting of J. W. Bell Memorial L.O.L., No. 1175, held last week, a large number of members and visitors saw Bro. C. H. Luffman re-elected to the Worshipful Masters' chair for the fifth term in his affiliation with this lodge in 1912.

Passing through the different orders of business until the order, "Remarks for the Good of the Order" was reached a very pleasant ceremony was performed in asking Bro. James Garside and Bro. F. A. Rathbone to come before the altar, where an appropriate address was read each one, and the Worshipful Master presented an honorary certificate first to Bro. Garside and then to Bro. Rathbone. Bro. James Garside is a charter member of this lodge, which was organized March 11, 1907. Bro. Rathbone is a Past Master of this lodge, who was affiliated in 1908, taking the Worshipful Masters 'chair in 1919.

Each replied in a very appreciative manner.

Proceeding the Order of Business was the election of officers. The following were elected and re-elected for the year 1933:

P.M., Bro. H. G. Rumary; W.M., Bro. C. H. Luffman, re-elected; D.M., Bro. A. E. Price; Chaplain, Bro. J. Clarke; Rec. Sec., Bro. J. Hobson, re-elected; Fin. Sec., Bro. A. McDonald, re-elected; Treasurer, Bro. R. Wilson, re-elected 24th consecutive year; Marshal, Bro. W. Jewel, re-elected; 1st Lecturer, P. Luffman; 2nd Lecturer, G. Wilson; 1st Committeeman, Bro. W. Sanderson, re-elected; 2nd Committeeman, Bro. W. J. Hanoock; 3rd Committeeman, Bro. J. Garside; 4th Committeeman, Bro. F. A. Rathbone; 5th Committeeman, Bro. L. Bleasdell; Inside Tyler, Bro. S. Edwards.

Bro. Jack Wilson, District Master, presided in the chair for the election of officers.

Bro. Robert Ritchie, County Master, presided for the installation. A very pleasant evening was brought to a close with short speeches, after which refreshments were served.

sace by a foreign idiom. Children are taught in French in the public schools, the language in use in the courts is French, although German is necessarily used in events where litigants do not understand a single word of French as is often the case in the rural regions. Only the church adheres to German in religious instruction.

Seek to Absorb State.

The French state seeks to make Frenchmen out of the two million Teutonic Alsatians. There is nothing new about this policy of the French Republic. It is the same policy which was followed uninterruptedly for a thousand years by the French kings, who welded a single, uniform state out of a heterogeneous mass of tribes, nationalities and races. French Flanders to-day is only a geographical indication. The people speak French and not Flemish. It is the same with the Basques, Languedocians, Provencals and to a large extent with the Bretons.

The policy of the French state, whether kingdom, empire or republic, has always been toward centralization. The process has nowhere been accompanied by violence, let it be well understood, nevertheless persistent official pressure has virtually destroyed all un-French cultures in the territory known as France. The turn has now come for Alsace to undergo this transformation. Slowly, gradually, German is to be uprooted and to be replaced by French.

In the interest of the national state this policy is, of course, of importance. For in time it is bound to produce a greater, or rather a complete homogeneity. To the individual, however, it is positively disastrous. Children taught in a foreign language and a foreign culture, are not well taught. It goes against the grain. It is unnatural. It damages character. The classical example in Europe of what happens when a people have a foreign language imposed on them may be seen in Belgium. There is a minority, but a minority which rules the roost has for a hundred years sought to impose its language, French, on the land of Flanders, which is a unilinguad country, speaking Flemish, which is the same as Dutch.

The result is an unparalleled backwardness among the Flemish people. Once foremost in art and culture, they had sunk to the lowest level of any people in Western Europe. The difference between the people of Holland and the people of Flanders, who are one and the same tribe, linguistically, historically and ethuologically, is staggering. Holland is foremost in the ranks of civilization, Flanders hindmost, I would almost say. Of late years there is, however, the beginning of a national revival in Flanders.

Clergy Battles for People.

There, too, the Roman Catholic clergy has battled heroically for the rights of the people, refusing to see Flanders further reduced in culture, which turned out to be neither French nor Flemish. In Catalonia, too, the same spectacle. For ages the Catalonians have held out against the centralizing policy of Madrid. The famous Benedictine monastery of Mount Serrat near Barcelona was for ages the centre of national Catalonian culture. The learned monks printed books in Catalonian long after the language was forbidden by Primo de Rivera and Alphonso XIII.

Ireland is another example and so, to a certain extent, is French Canada. In all these countries it is the lower clergy, "le petit clerge," as the French say, which has watched vigilantly, never falteringly, over the natural rights of the people.

The Catholic church takes the view that it is contrary to the natural order to impose a foreign language on a people. It resists wherever this policy is imposed with the danger of estranging a race from its natural sources, thereby denaturing its character. It is a just view and a liberal view. Catalonians, Flemings, Irishmen and others owe an immense debt of gratitude to the church for this enlightened policy of safeguarding their national cultures.

To-day this is again the battle that is being fought in Alsace. The French Republic with its centralizing tendency is in the field against a strong, deeply-rooted native Teutonic culture. The fight, which is bloodless, but which is nevertheless shaping the destiny of a people, is sharpened, that is rendered, more bitter, by the fact that the official policy of the French state is at the same time frankly anti-clerical and anti-religious. French is replacing the German language rapidly. But in the country German remains intact.

It is going to be a long struggle. In the end France will conquer. This is inevitable. The pressure is too great.

When the last German officer was about to leave Colmar at the close of the war and was handing over the city administration to his French successor, he said in parting: "We go after fifty years of uninterrupted trouble with the Alsatians. Now you have a try!"

Nelson, B.S.A., asking for a 50c per pupil grant from council for each pupil from Smith attending the "Short Course."

The clerk, by motion, was instructed to have 100 copies of receipts and expenditures of Smith Township for 1932 up to Dec. 15th, printed for distribution at the nomination meeting.

Moved by McConkey-Armstrong, that the treasurer issue cheques to the order of the road superintendent, Thomas H. Graham, for the following amounts and purposes: Pay sheets, Nos. 177 to 182 inclusive, $85.51; Pay Sheet, No. 183, Emily boundary road account, $228.21; Pay Sheet No. 184, North Monaghan boundary road account, $175.09. Carried.

Election of Officers

By-law No. 909, appointing deputy returning officers and poll clerks, fixing their salary, and fixing the polling places in the respective polling subdivisions received its several readings, and was passed.

After carefully considering A. Blodgett's appeal, no remission of taxes was made.

A tax certificate was sent Messrs. McMaster, Montgomery, Fleury and Co., of Toronto, stating that the county books show no arrears against any part of Lot 29, Con. 9 and that the township books show no arrears against the present owner of such property.

The county treasurer was instructed to take Lot 1, Plan 39, of Smith Township, out of the tax sale list, and to delete all arrears of taxes against such lot from the county books.

Council decided that in the matter of the appeals of W. D. E. Strickland and Richard Batten for rebates in taxes from erroneous assessment, no remission be made; and in the appeal of the Susan Irwin Estate for cancellation of penalty on arrears of taxes, no action be taken.

J. A. Middleton was present, and reported that he had collected to date the sum of $26,617.57, which does not include the amount of taxes collected by the Royal Bank at Lakefield.

The matter of A. E. Parberry's cutting wood on the 15th concession line was left in the hands of the road superintendent to investigate.

Moved by McConkey-Westlake, that St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, be advised of the contents of a letter received, advising council that Mrs. Beauvais owned a house in Killarney, Ont. Carried.

A tie vote was broken by Reeve Mann voting for the amendment, which granted 50c per pupil to all who attended the Agricultural Short Course from Smith.

Moved by McConkey-Fowler, that council take advantage of the unemployment relief fund as provided by the governments, commencing at once; and that the relief officer register all claimants for direct relief slips. The clerk was asked to procure all necessary forms forthwith. Carried.

Moved by McConkey-Fowler, that the following accounts be paid: Edward Young, groceries to Mrs. Godfrey, $12; James Brownlee, caretaking of council room, $5; Peck, Kerr and McElderry, account for 1931 and 1932, $55; Municipal World, dog tags and blank forms, $13.86; A. The teachers of this community are holding their annual Christmas concerts on the following dates: Miss Eleanor Stinson of Fife's School on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 22nd; Miss Mary Torpey of the Cobourg Road School, on Thursday afternon, Dec. 22nd; Miss McKelvie, of Fleming's School on Thursday evening, Dec. 22nd; Miss Richards of the Dutch Line on Wednesday evening, Dec. 21st, and Miss Comrie of Elgin School on Friday evening, Dec. 23rd. Each school will have a Christmas tree and a well-prepared program.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. George Whitred, who celebrated the 34th anniversary of their marriage on Dec. 7th, also to Mr. and Mrs. William Whitred, who recently celebrated their 30th anniversary.

Mrs. H. F. Battersby, Miss Margaret Battersby, also Mrs. Roy King, all members of St. George W. A., attended the regular meeting of St. James' W.A., held at the home of Mrs. John Drope of Roseneath. An invitation was extended to all the members, but it was impossible for some to attend.

Mr. Joseph Trotter and son, Bruce, completed threshing operations for this year on Thursday, moving their threshing machine and engine to their home place.

Having fulfilled its purposes of holding back the waters of the Bay of Fundy during construction of harbour improvements at West Saint John, the world's largest cofferdam, in places 90 feet high, is now being removed.

YOUNG HUSBAND ADMITS BURNING WIFE AND CHILD

Sole Reason Was Need of $1,100 Insurance to Stave Off Threatening Creditors.

ACT COOLLY PLANNED.

Ignited Gas Poured Around Room Where Bride of Year and Baby Slept.

(By Elmer Dulmage, C.P. Staff Writer.)

OWEN SOUND, December 20 (C.P.). — A bedroom fire tragedy in which a young mother and her infant daughter perished, was revealed last night as cold-blooded, premeditated murder for money by Melville Wilkie, 23-year-old husband and father of his victims.

Amazing Confession.

A coroner's jury, inquiring into the deaths here on December 6 of Mrs. Gertrude Wilkie, 20, and her six-months-old child Norma, heard Crown Attorney W. D. Henry, K.C., read what veteran legal men termed the most amazing confession they had ever heard, then returned this verdict to Coroner Dr. A. E. Rutherford:

"They came to their deaths by fire which was caused by gasoline being sprinkled in the bedroom where they slept and being lighted by a match thrown in the room by Melville Wilkie."

Spectators Stunned.

A packed court room sat in stunned silence as the Crown Attorney read in full a confession which Chief Constable Thomas E. Carson said was written "voluntarily" by Wilkie on December 13, just a week after his bride of a year and their child had been fatally burned in a brief, sharp "flare" fire that broke out as they slept in a single bedroom.

In the confession, read while Wilkie, with charges of double murder already placed against him, slumped down in his chair before the coroner's bench, the young owner of a transport business told how he set fire to the gasoline he had sprinkled around the death room, then raced frantically from the house as the flames swept over the sleeping forms of his wife and child, killing the infant before she could be taken from the 10-by-9-foot inferno, and fatally burning the pretty wife.

His sole reason for setting the death-dealing blaze was to obtain $1,100 insurance that he hoped would put his business in a stronger

THOUSANDS HIT BY INFLUENZA

Many Succumb in Southern States But Canadian Cases of Mild Type.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE LOW.

TORONTO, Dec. 20 (C.P.). — Thousands of persons in Canada and the United States are to-day suffering from a mild type of influenza which has, particularly in the southern states, brought numerous deaths. In Canada, however, the epidemic has not been deadly, and in most cases persons affected have recovered within three days.

In Quebec, the epidemic gave pupils of the Seminary there a break when authorities announced Christmas holidays would start immediately since they believed cessation of classes would help check the spread of the disease.

Northern Ontario reported hundreds of cases, but few fatalities. Despite reports to the contrary, Moosonee was entirely free of the epidemic and no deaths had occurred there. Only a few cases were reported. Cochrane schools were poorly attended, but no alarm was felt at that point. Additional relief teachers were called into service at North Bay when members of the regular staffs were laid low by the epidemic, but conditions are practically normal now.

But Will It Deal from Bottom of the Deck?

An electric bridge table that will give bridge players "a new deal" was hailed by leading Canadian bridge experts as a great forward step in increasing the speed of the game and in eliminating misdeals, etc. The players shown at the new table are (left to right), Mr. Chapman, Mrs. Sinclair, Mr. Watson, and Miss Sinclair, all of whom are outstanding Canadian players who rank high on the continent as contract experts. On on eside of the new table is a little drawer in which the cards are placed. When the drawer is closed the mechanism starts automatically. In front of each player is a little compartment into which thirteen cards are automatically dealt. After shuffling and dealing the cards the mechanism automatically stops and the players are ready for the next hand. The shuffling action is said to be so efficient that even if the deck is placed in the table 52 times with all cards in exactly the same order, each deal will result in a different set of hands.

$1,600 SETTLES COATES ACTION FOR DAMAGES

Havelock Couple Sued in Supreme Court For $2,500.

2 WITNESSES CALLED.

Action Follows Accident on Highway Near Cornwall in 1931.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Coates of Havelock accepted a settlement of $1,600 in their action against M. H. Snyder of Montreal before Mr. Justice Raney in the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court Monday afternoon for $2,500 damages resulting from an automobile collision on October 13, 1931, two miles east of Cornwall.

F. D. Kerr, K.C., was counsel for the plaintiffs and Gordon Shaver, K.C., of Toronto, for the defendant.

The evidence of only two plaintiffs was heard recounting the circumstances of the accident, the extent of the injuries suffered by Mrs. Coates and of the damage to their automobile. Mr. Shaver intimated a willingness to discuss a settlement after Mr. Coates had been examined, but Mr. Justice Raney, on Mr. Kerr's suggestion, decided to hear part of the testimony of Mrs. Coates. His Lordship and counsel then retired, and the case was terminated by agreement.

Mr. Coates is principal of the continuation school at Havelock. On October 13, 1931, he was driving in a westerly direction two miles east of Cornwall, accompanied by his wife on the front seat, his mother and his baby of four months occupying the rear seat. Replying to Mr. Kerr's examination, Mr. Coates said that as he approached the place where the accident happened, a hayrack drawn by a team of horses was coming from the west and beyond it, also going towards the east, was Mr. Snyder's car.

"I saw the car 75 or 100 yards behind the hayrack," Mr. Coates said. "I was on the right hand side of the road, and the approaching car was fairly well in toward the centre of the road. When I was about twenty yards from the wagon, Synder's turned out to his left to pass the rack. I slowed up and pulled over to the right. The other man applied his brakes at that moment. I could see his car slowing up. It pulled toward the south side of the road. Its tail end swung toward the north and the head of the car then came around the north. It crossed the pavement in front of my car. My left front bumper and wheel collided with his right front wheel."

Taken to Capital

Mr. Coates said his wife was taken to the Cornwall general hospital

Some Bandits Are Most Particular

MONTREAL, Dec. 20.—(C.P.) Some bandits are particular. Three of them pointed guns at H. Lavoie, druggist, last night. "Put hands up, brother — but not too high," they cautioned him. "Somebody might see you through the window with your mitts in the air."

So Lavoie discreetly raised his hands an inch or so above the counter. He was tied in a chair in the dispensary and the three got away with $40 from the till.

TWO HOLD-UPS ROUSE POLICE

Hamilton Man Robbed of $29 —Storekeeper Has Shop Looted.

THIEVES TAKE CAR.

HAMILTON, December 20 (C.P.). — With two armed robberies within a few hours, Hamilton police to-day cast a wide dragnet for suspects. Shortly after Alexander Walker reported to police he had been attacked and robbed by two men, Sam Grlica, storekeeper, reported he too had been held up, bound and gagged by two bandits.

Walker lost $29. While crossing a railway bridge, he reported, an automobile drew up and an armed man stopped him. At the same time the bandit threw some blinding substance into Walker's eyes, threatened him with death and took his money.

Grlica opened his store door in response to a knock and two men forced their way inside. They carried him to his bedroom and tied him up, and then took all the valuables in sight. Before leaving, the men took Grlica's car keys, opened his garage, and drove away in his automobile.

City Practically Free Contagious Disease

The city is practically free of all disease, C. S. Stapleton, sanitary inspector, reported to the Board of Health this morning. The only contagious disease known of are three mild cases of mumps. Last month it was reported that two patients with scarlet fever had been confined to the Isolation Hospital.

The meeting of the Board was short. Two residents of Water street, near Central School grounds, complained that their property was being flooded by water running off the school grounds. They said the flooding of their property made an unsanitary condition. The Board did nothing with the complaint, maintaining that it was a question for the Board of Education to settle.

SIX ROBBERS HOLD-UP BANK GET $36,692

7-MINUTE JOB.

Leader Scoops Cash From Cages Into Bag—All Flee in Sedan.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 20 (C.P.). —Six robbers to-day escaped with $36,692 after holding up, with sawed-off shot guns, employees and customers in the branch bank of the Pennsylvania Company for Insurances on Lives and Granting Annuities at 45th and Walnut Streets, West Philadelphia.

They fled in a green sedan. Officers of the bank said that the loss is covered by insurance.

While four of the men whose hands shook as they held sawed-off shotguns, kept eight employees, two workmen and a customer covered, the other robber, armed with a pistol and carrying a burlap bag strapped around his neck, entered the teller's cage.

He scooped virtually all of the money in the cash drawers into the bag, and at a signal from the leader, the robber band ran to a sedan with a sixth man at the wheel. It disappeared west on Walnut Street.

The holdup, which apparently was well planned, took only seven minutes and was carried out while hundreds of persons passed outside. The company at first announced that $36,692 was taken, the amount of money known to be in the cages. It was later discovered that the robbers had overlooked some small coinage.

Wife Beater Warned Woman No Chattel

HAMILTON, Dec 20 (C.P.)—"You apparently have the idea, like a great many more Englishmen, that a woman is a chattel and that you can treat her as you like," observed Magistrate Burbidge to Joseph Scarborough, charged with assaulting his wife in Police Court to-day.

"You must get rid of these ideas in Canada. If you had caused actual bodily harm, you would be facing the penitentiary and the cat o' nine-tails. To teach you that you should not use violence, we should have to use violence," said the Magistrate.

Mrs. Scarborough said that her husband had struck her on the back of the head three times with his fist. The assault resulted from a family squabble.

The accused claimed that when he married Mrs. Scarborough he had to teach her to cook.

Magistrate Burbidge bound the accused over to keep the peace, especially towards his wife, for a period of one year on his own recognizance.

JUSTICE RANEY DISMISSES CASE AGAINST WRIGHT

Suit Brought By Dawson Bakeries is Dismissed in Supreme Court.

DEFENCE NOT CALLED.

No Evidence Submitted of Infringement of Copyright.

The suit of Dawson's Bakeries against George Wright of Oshawa for an injunction and damages in connection with the use of the registered trade mark "Hunnydips" was dismissed with costs at noon to-day by Mr. Justic Raney in the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court.

At the conclusion of the evidence for plaintiffs, Mr. Justic Raney said he could see no purpose to be served by proceeding further in this action.

"I have heard no evidence whatever," His Lordship said, "of any infringement. That leaves the only issue of "passing off" to be considered. There were some sales this year subsequent to the trade mark at the defendant's shop in Oshawa. Some customers asked for "Hunnydips" and were served with doughnuts dipped in some saccharine solution. The word suggests that doughtnuts made by the plaintiffs were dipped in honey. I think the word 'Hunnydips' is a descriptive phrase."

This morning's evidence concluded the plaintiff's case, and on His Lordship's intimation that he would dismiss the case, A. S. W. Greer of Oshawa, counsel for the defendants, asked permission to examine Mr. Wright briefly, in order to support defendant's claim for costs.

Mr. Dawson, corroborating the evidence of his wife who was examined first, said that Dawson's Bakeries had been manufacturing "hunnydips" for more than twenty years. As the business expanded and the popularity of the products increased it was decided to register the name, and on February 25, 1931, this step was taken and the registration of the trademark was secured from the Dominion government. Although honey constituted one of the ingredients used by the plaintiffs, it was only a small percentage of the formula. In conceiving the name, Mr. Dawson said it was not inspired particularly by the word honey, in its literal sense, but a common or slang meaning as

Democrats Shy Off Proposal for Group To Review Problem

Virginian Senator Fears Joint Discussion With Foreign Nations Will Bring Solid Front Against U.S.— Better To Deal With Each Separately.

FRANCE FINDS BUDGET COVERED U.S PAYMENT VOTE WHICH OUSTED HERRIOT, UNNECESSARY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.— (AP) — Democrats today were clearly shying away from active participation in President Hoover's proposal for a commission review of the war debts problem, and he was expected at the capitol to go ahead on his own initiative. President Hoover and Governor Roosevelt were understood already to have exchanged views and the Democratic president-elect, it is understood, is leaving the issue with the existing administration. The governor's attitude was described as sympathetic but firm against dividing responsibility with the president.

Friends of the president-elect were convinced he would stand by his previously announced policy that debt negotiations should be conducted through regular diplomatic channels and separately with the debtor nations.

Meanwhile, it became apparent that Democrats in congress were not inclined to listen to the presidential suggestion that members of congress serve on the debt commission.

Power With President

Senator Swanson, of Virginia, a Democratic member of the U. E. arms delegation who had been regarded as perhaps the first choice of the President for a place on the debts agency said:

"The power to negotiate all foreign relations is left with the President under the constitution.

The methods he adopts have been left entirely with him under law and custom. I think a situation has developed that makes it wiser for the United States to conduct separate negotiations. The United States is really the only creditor nation, and joint negotiations would only bring a solid front against us.

"Of course any negotiations that the President may effect are not operative until Congress has approved.

"I concur with the sentiment expressed by President-elect Roosevelt at his conference here with President Hoover, that the negotiations be direct and separate."

MAN WHO ALMOST CAUSED WAR LIVES PEACEFULLY IN PARIS

Alfred Dreyfus Visits Unknown Soldier's Tomb Every Morning.

CASE STILL LINGERS

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Copyright, 1932.

PARIS, Dec. 8 — Every morning around eleven a quiet and shriveled up old man black eyes that peer questionally at passers-by walks the whole length of the Avenue Friedland in Paris to the Arch of Triumph, where flickers the flame of remembrance to the Unknown Soldier. For a moment the little man stands there contemplating Napoleon's gigantic memorial to the Grand Army. Seemingly he is unaware of the roar of motor-traffic which circles around the Arch into the dozen majestic avenues that converge on the structure, like the spokes run into the hub of a wheel. Then he goes back along the Avenue Friedland and disappears in one of the imposing residences in that aristocratic quarter.

Pierre van Paassen

Passers-by hurry along. Nobody pays attention to the little man. Nobody knows him apparently. Yet once his name was on everybody's lips. Once he was the centre of world interest. Men battled over him in the streets of Paris. He said his fate divided France into two armed camps. He split families in

Not Guilty

AKRON, O., December 20 (C.P.). — Wilson Kugler, 19, of Atlanta, listened carefully to the reading of a charge of highway robbery against him. 'Guilty or not guilty?' demanded the judge. "Not guilty" said Kugler. "I only got $400 in that robbery, not $1 300." He'll be back next week for sentencing.

Miners On Strike For Increased Dole

RESERVE, N.S., Dec. 20. (CP) Two colliers were idle here today as pickets patrolled all approaches to enforce a strike for increased dole.

Three hundred miners who trooped toward No. 5 and No. 10 to work were turned back to their homes. Only about 20 maintenance men were allowed to enter, and it was stated the pits would be idle until relief grievances were adjusted.

The strike was declared as a result of a mass meeting last night which many miners said they did not have sufficient food to fill their lunch cans to go to work to-day.

Efforts to secure additional relief orders from the municipal authorities had failed.

DIES OF GUNSHOT WOUND

PORT HOPE, Ont., Dec. 20 (CP) —Samuel Cook, 27, died in hospital early to-day from gunshot wounds. A shotgun lay beside him when he was found. Cook, a married man, is said to have had marital difficulties recently. Coroner Dr. F. W. Diamond decided that an inquest would be unnecessary.

FIND MISSING SARNIA CHIEF IN TENNESSEE

Taken Into Custody as He Calls for Reply to Brother Asking $40.

DISAPPEARED NOV. 15.

Claims He Was "Taken For a Ride" By Bandits, Robbed, Left in Shack.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 20.—(AP) —A man identified by police here as Burton J. Batty, fire chief at Sarnia, Ont., was picked up by officers today.

The request to hold Batty came from A. J. Ravanaugh, chief of police at Rochester, N. Y.

Batty told arresting officers he was robbed and taken "for a ride" by two bandits at Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 14. He said he regained consciousness "in a Negro shack near St. Louis" several days later and discovered he had been robbed of $280.

Batty was taken into custody when he called at a telegraph office for a reply to a telegram forward to his brother, Maynard Batty, Brockport, N. Y., asking for $40.

Faces No Charges

SARNIA, Ont., Dec. 20.—(CP)—A five weeks search for Burton J. Batty, fire chief of this city, came to an end today with the report from Memphis, Tenn., that a man identified by police as Batty was picked up there.

Batty disappeared mysteriously on the evening of Nov. 15 after answering a telephone call from Port Huron, Mich., across the St. Clair river.

Sarnia, Port Huron and Michigan State police took up the search, there were no charges of any kind against him.

Batty's wife and associates said the phone call was anonymous and that it came from a Port Huron hotel. Batty was said to have crossed as passenger on the ferry. At that time he was dressed partly in uniform, wearing also a civilian raincoat and hat. He was said to have had only $2 with him.

There was some speculation of foul play but Sarnia and Port Huron police were unable to find any trace of the man in either city.

Man Examining Gun Wounds Wife, Baby

GLENCOLIN, Ont., Dec. 20 (CP) —Mrs. John Falkins and baby today are recovering from wounds received in a peculiar accident when a gun being examined by Falkins was accidentally discharged.

Falkins was in an adjoining room. The shot passed through a partition striking Mrs. Falkins and the baby who were in bed. The baby was only slightly injured. Mrs. Falkins suffered from loss of blood through a wound in the forehead and from shock. Her condition is not serious.

RIVER FLOWING AT NEAR NORMAL FLOOD IS PAST

Only Five and Half Feet Above Summer Level at Locks.

FLOW GETTING AWAY.

Formation of Ice Pack North of Quaker Oats Aided Situation.

Danger of an even greater flood of the Otonabee River, which with its bed jammed fast with ice for 17 miles below the city has been threatening for the past four days to inundate with consequent damage larger stretches of countryside, seemed definitely removed today with steadily lower flood levels being reported all along its course.

At Wallace's Point the flood tide swept slowly back until the river there was but one foot nine inches above its summer level. At the Peterborough locks the waters had subsided so that this morning the river was but five and a half feet above normal level. Little Lake no longer threatened to overrun its banks but was back to normal.

The fall in the flood is due almost entirely to river being dammed back in the Kawartha Lakes and in its upper reaches in Haliburton Township. The hundreds of stop logs that had been dropped in at a score of dams had reduced the flow of the river to almost normal.

Flow Getting Away

Below the city, it was indicated that flow was getting away beneath the miles of ice jams. Either the jams have loosened somewhat or else the river has worn a larger course beneath them.

One of the big factors in the improvement in the situation was the formation of an ice pack north of the Quaker Oats dam to Auburn. The formation of this jam had been the main hope of canal employees to avert a greater flood. If this ice had not jammed above the Quaker Oats dam it would have floated down and joined with the other jams below the city to hold the river in greater check.

For the first time in many days Trent Canal officials looked optimistically upon the situation, and they smilingly intimated that the flood danger was practically over.

FOUR OFFICERS ARE WOUNDED

Battle Follows Attempt to Attach Negro Farmer's Livestock.

ONE NEGRO SLAIN.

TALLASEE, Ala., Dec. 20 (C.P.).— Four Tallapapoosa County officers were wounded and at least one Negro killed in a gun battle precipitated by an attempt to attach a Negro farmer's livestock near here yesterday.

Posses to-day hunted South Central Alabama for more than a score of alleged Negro radicals accused of participation while four Negro suspects were held in jail.

Reports persisted that more than one Negro was slain either during the gun battle or by posses searching for suspects but these were difficult to confirm. Jim McMullen, Negro farm hand, and a reputed leader of the disturbance, was found dead in the yard of Cliff James, the Negro farmer at whose home the shooting took place.

The deputies wounded were Clifford S. Elder, D. A. Ware, J. H. Alford and J. M. Gantt. Elder and Ware were placed in a hospital here but were not considered dangerously wounded.

Officers searching the homes of James and Simpson reported finding quantities of Communistic literature and other documents relating to the Share Croppers' Union and expressed belief the disturbance was incited by Radicals.

CHURCHES ARE GRANTED DROP LIGHT RATES

Religious Affiliations Experiencing Difficulty in Financing During Depression.

40 PER CENT. REDUCTION.

Action Taken by Campbellford Commission at Final Meeting of Year.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 20. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Churches and all religious denominations in the town of Campbellford will benefit in the year 1933 by a forty per cent reduction on their light bills. This was the action taken by the Campbellford Water and light Commission Board at their last meeting of the year, held last evening in the clerk's office and presided over by Commissioner J. O. Benor.

The resolution authorizing this action was sponsored by Commissioners J. Blue and J. O. Benor and was presented because it was felt by the board that churches and religious affiliations were experiencing great difficulty in financing during this time of depression.

It was felt that the board should if possible assist all churches as a matter of community welfare and it was thought that this reduced rate could be given without impairing the operation of the utility. This reducion will benefit the Parish Hall, the Salvation Army and The Bretheren, also.

Water By-Law Passed

The new water by-law also went through its third reading and was passed, signed and sealed. This brings the regulation of the management and setting of rates for the town of Campbellford up to date and makes the present regulations conform with present day conditions. The old by-law was passed in 1907.

A resolution was also passed authoring the manager to make such experiments and investigations as he deems necessary to gather data to bring to the board, so that the board may be advised as to the practibility of establishing a power rate for the sale of electrical energy for domestic and commercial heating purposes. This was sponsored by Commissioner Benor and was to encourage a greater consumption of power by presenting a more attractive rate to the consumer.

The board approved the verbal agreement with the manager whereby the yearly hydrant rental to the town for 1932 was reduced from $20 to $10 per hydrant on account of the increased number of Hydrants now in use over and above the number in use when the $20 agreement was made between the town council and the Commission Board.

It was also decided to insure the commission truck against public liability damage and fire, the manager being instructed to place the insurance.

Commissioner Benor expressed his appreciation and thanks to the members of the board for the splendid co-operation he had received during his term as chairman, and also to the employees of the system for the whole-hearted way they had co-operated with the board in the past year. On behalf of the employees Clerk J. F. McGregor replied thanking the chairman for his kind words of appreciation, pointing out that some of the staff had taken no holidays this year for the reason that pressure of work made them forgo this privilege.

Farmer Fined $20 For Shooting Deer

Proof that there are deer in Peterborough County was furnished Saturday afternoon when a Harvey Township farmer appearing before Police Magistrate Langley in county court pleaded guilty to shooting a deer out of season. After a severe reprimanding during which he was lectured on the game laws, he was fined $20 and costs. It understood that informations on similar charges have been sworn out against two other Harvey men.

WEEK OF PRAYER BEING PLANNED

Millbrook Churches Plan to Unite for Special Services.

MILLBROOK PERSONALS

MILLBROOK, Dec. 20.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Three local clergymen of the community have arranged for having their congregations join with the other Protestant churches of Canada in a special week of prayer, at the beginning of the New Year, the first service being in Grace Presbyterian Church on Wednesday, January 3, with the minister, Rev. H. R. Williams, in charge, and Rev. Mr. Simpson, rector of the parish of Cavan, giving the address.

On Thursday, January 4, the gathering will be in St. Thomas' Anglican Church, the rector presiding and Rev W. W. Jones giving the address, while on Friday evening the meeting will be in St. Andrew's United Church, the pastor in charge, and Rev. Mr. Williams speaking. The subjects, as presented in turn, will be: "God as Revealed in Jesus Christ"; "God as Revealed in Man," and "God as Revealed in the Home, the Community and in Industry," the three pastors uniting in this petition: "May the Lord direct your hearts to seek His peace, and His presence upon these joint gatherings."

Personals.

Mr. John Ridge, who has been absent for some months past as engineer on one of the Great Lakes' boats, is at home with his family here until navigation opens once more in the spring.

Mrs. Vernon R. Hunter will receive for the first time since her marriage on Tuesday, December 20, from 2 until 5 p.m., at her home, Eighth line, Cavan.

Local places of business have donned their Christmas dress and are very attractive, though there is no word of having the community tree and visit of Santa Claus which was initiated last year. Christmas trees, suppers and entertainments are, however, much in mind at present, the Public School presenting its annual entertainment in the school assembly hall on Wednesday, December 21, at 8 p.m.

St. Thomas' Sunday School teachers and officers will entertain the scholars at a hot supper at 5.30 p.m. on Thursday, December 22, followed by a tree and program, the parents being invited. Christ Church, Ballieboro, waits until December 26 for a similar event, and St. John's, Ida, until Friday, January 6. Trinity school, at the Marsh, has chosen Wednesday, the 21st, for its tree and concert and the public is welcome.

Grace Presbyterian Sunday School will have its Christmas tree and supper for the scholars on Thursday, and St. Andrew's school will present its regular concert on the evening of Monday, January 2, the anniversary being on New Year's Day which falls this year on Sunday.

A small leather-bound geography, one hundred and forty years old, is a possession of Miss Mary Eagleson, it having been the property in school days of her grandfather in Ireland, the title being, "Goldsmith's Grammar of Geography." The fly-leaf bears the inscription, "An easy grammar of geography, intended as a companion and introduction to the 'Geography on a Popular Plan for Schools and Young Persons,' with maps. The fortieth edition, corrected and improved by the Rev. J. Goldsmith, author of the Law Grammar, of the Wonders and Miracles of Nature and Art, etc., etc. The book was printed in London, England, for R. Philips, No. 7, Great Bridge street, and to be had at all booksellers in town and country. Price 3s. 6d., bound." The printer was J. Adlard, Duge street, West Smithfield, and considering its age, the book is still in good condition. A number of maps are folded and inserted at intervals through the book, which opens with a number of definitions of geography, the next page being devoted to information on "The Universe, the Solar System and the Earth as a Planet," and then the preface, which states, "The author of Geography on a Popular Plan has been persuaded by some of his friends to print in a separate form an elementary work as an introductory grammar to that pleasing and important science." Beginning with Europe, treated of country by country, Africa, Asia, Australasia, North and South America, all have a limited space devoted to description, and there are questions to test the pupil's knowledge as "Examples for Practice." A vocabular of proper names is at the close and quite inclusive, and the final pages list "Elementary Books for the Use of Schools, Teachers and Young Persons," by Richard Phillips, and by other writers.

A Little Help

VICTORIA, Dec. 20.—(CP)—There is in New Westminster a coung couple who are willing to get married, if they receive just a li'tle assistance.

In a letter to Hon. W. A. MacKenzie, the would-be bridegroom has suggested that it could be accomplished for as little at $150, including the honeymoon. He proposed that the minister of mines and labor permit this amount forthwith, the clear understanding being that the gift would remain in confidence and would not be divulged by the recipients, ever.

It was not the high cost of playing cupid, but doubt as to whether later in life he would be praised or blamed by the couple for his match-making that held the minister back.

POLICE QUESTION WOUNDED MAN

Not Inclined to Believe Story of Hold-up as Related by John Fairbairn.

UNEMPLOYED LEAVE

LINDSAY, Dec. 20. — (Examiner Correspondence).—The local police have given out the information that they are not inclined to believe the story given them of the hold-up on Lindsay street south on Friday night when John Fairburn, jewelry salesman, claimed to have been attacked and robbed of a case of jewelry, valued at $1,000. Fairbairn underwent an examination at the office of County Crown Attorney Anderson yesterday where he questioned the list of jewelry which the firm he represented claimed he had in his possession, Provincial Constable Nelson informed The Examiner last evening. He also admitted that it might have been the other leather grip which he had in his possession the night of the supposed robbery. Constable Nelson is notifying the firm to send a representative to Lindsay as soon as possible. The officer also has the names of two or three parties who claim that they saw Fairburn, around eight o'clock Friday night (the hour the alleged robbery is reported to have taken place) and he had no case in his possession.

Another contingent of young men (36 in all) left yesterday for the north to work on the Coboconk-Dorset highway. This makes a total of sixty-four men from Lindsay. Nearly all are unmarried. They will not return to town until March or April.

Adam Smith, British political economist, was regarded as the founder of economics as a separate branch of human knowledge.

SOVIETS IGNORE CHRISTMAS DAY

Holiday Spirit Unknown to Children Bor nSince Revolution 15 Years Ago.

FEW CHURCHES LEFT.

MOSCOW, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Soviet Russia will ignore Christmas Day this year just as it has during the 14 others that have passed since the October revolution. In this country—where Christmas is outlawed—the day will have nothing of the holiday spirit and religious significance associated with it elsewhere. For more Russians, Dec. 25 never had any significance. The Greek orthodox Christmas fell on Jan. 7, which was the date generally observed during the czarist days.

The "living church," a small offshoot of the old orthodox religion, adopted the new calendar, however, and celebrated Dec. 25 as the day of the nativity.

The few remaining members of this church still observe the day by attending religious services in the few edifices left to them.

A few others—mostly old persons, belonging to the orthodox faith — observe Christmas on Jan. 7.

Children born since the revolution, now including those up to 15 years old, have never known what Christmas is.

The uncompromising anti-religious attitude of the communist party and the activities of the All-Union Atheist Society have served to root out the religious instincts of all save the most ardent followers of the church.

So successful has been this campaign that the Atheist Society no longer considers it necessary to make counter-demonstrations in an effort to prevent people from observing Christmas and other religious holidays in the churches.

$32.36 Is Raised By Sacred Concert

CAMPBELLFORD, December 20 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—As a result of the sacred concert staged on Sunday afternoon by the Sunshine Club of Campbellford, and arranged by Mrs. M. T. Cowell, the sum of $32.36 was given by the citizens of town. This money will be used for relief purposes, and to provide Christmas cheer for the needy. Half of the amount, $16.18, has already been handed over to the Campbellford Branch of the Canadian Legion for this purpose.

WIRE FROM MISSING CHIEF

SARNIA (C.P.)—First intimation of the whereabouts of Burton J. Batty, Sarnia fire chief, missing since Nov. 15, came in a telegram received to-day by Chief of Police W. J. Lannin from Maynard Batty, a brother, at Hamlin, N.Y.

The wire was to the effect that Maynard Patty had received a telegram from Memphis, Tenn., signed "Bart," asking him to forward $40 so he (Bart) could return home. Whether the writer meant return to Hamlin, N.Y., or Sarnia was not clear.

NO BARBER SHOP.

WINDSOR. — Riverside Council chamber will not become a barber shop. Some Council members wanted to let unemployed use the space for that purpose, provided it would be kept neat and clean, but unemployed who have had a shop in another municipal building, reported their plans were complete to set up an establishment in a house nearby.

Volunteer workers are keeping unemployed and their families all nicely "barbered up" without cost.

HOSPITAL HEADS ARE EXONERATED IN SMITH DEATH

Jury Suggests Inquest Would Have Been Avoided if Rules Followed.

REFORMS SUGGESTED.

Less Institutjonal Attitude Urged Along With Record of Visitors.

TORONTO, Dec. 20. — While bringing in a verdict exonerating the authorities of the Ontario Hospital at 999 Queen Street west in connection with the death of 84-year-old Robert Smith, a coroner's jury last night expressed the opinion that had the hospital officials followed certain rules, there would have been no necessity to inquire into the patient's death. Relatives of the elderly man were not informed of his death and an autopsy and burial were carried out without first obtaining permission from the next of kin.

"We find that Robert Smith came to his death on November 5 from terminal pneumonia and myocardial failure and further conditions, consequent on old age, and from the evidence we find no negligence or contributory act by any official or persons at the time of death," read the verdict.

"From the evidence, we are strongly of the opinion that this inquiry might have been avoided had the following three points been observed:

"1. A simplified visitors' record kept in each ward.

"2. A less institutional attitude assumed by the superintendent and his assistants.

"3. A more definite responsibility assumed by relatives."

"We therefore recommend that the officials make a positive effort to put the above into effect."

The jury took three-quarters of an hour to reach a verdict.

Coroner Sums Up

In his summing up of the evidence, Chief Coroner Dr. M. M. Crawford pointed out that this was a very unusual case and therefore every latitude had been allowed in the matter of obtaining evidence.

"I think possibly a remark or two may be made at this time on the question of autopsies," said Dr. Crawford. "There has been some suggestion that indignities were offered to the remains. It is an offence under the Criminal Code to do this and it entails severe penalties. It has never been defined in the code that performing an autopsy under proper conditions is an indignity to remains. Some of the greatest advances in medical science have come from results discovered after death. If a man is to be a good surgeon, he must have pathological knowledge. A great advance has been made in our Ontario institutions during the past 25 years. A patient entering an Ontario hospital 25 years ago was practically sunk. Now it is different. As you have been told to-night, about half the people admitted are returned to civil life and are able to carry on.

"It is a tribute to those engaged in this work and it is largely due to the study of pathology after death. Many of he public are averse to autopsies on loved ones. That feeling is changing to-day. On our own department it is no uncommon thing for requests to be made for autopsies, particularly in cases where death was sudden. I say this to illustrate the change in view.

Resented Not Being Told

"I dont' think the family of this man have ever made any complaint that he was ill-used. The whole case boils down to this: The family resents strongly that they were not informed of his death and they resent strongly the performing of an autopsy without their knowledge. Dr. James was honest enough to admit had he called the West Toronto Post Office and the public trustee he would have got more information as to the addresses of relatives. I dont th'nk any criminal charge could possibly come out of that. The only charge would be indignity to human remains. If you feel that this offence was committed, it is your duty to say so in your verdict. If you feel that certain suggestions should be made, it is your duty to make them.

"The relatives have rightly objected that they were not notified of the autopsy and that it was done without permission. They feel that the treatmetn they received at the hospital was not the treatment they should have received under the circumstances."

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Pays in Pennies

SHELDON, N.D. December 20 (C.P.). — It was a load off his mind, to say nothing of his arm said E. E. Good, Sheldon dairyman, as he deposited a 32½-pound bundle in the Ransom County Court House.

"Here's my personal property tax payment—count it," Good told officials. They did—all afternoon. There were 4,260 pennies. Good said he's been saving the coppers for three months.

SYNOD CHOOSES DEAN BROUGHALL NIAGARA BISHOP

Rector of Hamilton Cathedral is Elected on Fourth Ballot.

SUCCEEDS BISHOP OWEN.

Rev. Canon Riley Second Among Sixteen Candidates Proposed.

HAMILTON, Dec. 20.—Very Rev. Dean L. W. B. Broughall, dean of Christ's Church Cathedral, was elected sixth Bishop of the Anglican Diocese of Niagara late yesterday afternoon when, on the fourth ballot, he obtained a majority vote of clergy and laity.

Balloting commenced at 11 o'clock yesterday morning following celebration of Holy Communion in Christ's Church Cathedral, and the result was not known until shortly before 6 o'clock.

Rev. Canon Riley of St. Catharines and Rev. Archdeacon Scovil of Guelph finished in second and third positions. It was evident from the first ballot that one of the three would be chosen.

The Balloting

First ballot (clergy).—Broughall 24, Riley 18, Scovil 12, Mackintosh 11, Hallam 9, Armstrong 5, Gordon 2, Robertson 1, Judd 1, Ballard 1, Stewart 1, Woodcock 1, Wallace 1. (Laity)—Broughall 28, Mackintosh 13, Scovil 9, Riley 8, Robertson 2, Gordon 2, Judd 2, Hallam 2, Samuel 1, Smith 1, Armstrong 1, Leake 1.

Second ballot (clergy)—Broughall 27, Riley 26, Scovil 13, Mackintosh 12, Hallam 5, Gordon 1, Armstrong 1. (Laity)—Broughall 36, Riley 13, Mackintosh 10, Scovil 8, Hallam 2, Judd 2, Gordon 1.

Third ballot (clergy)—Broughall 35, Riley 35, Scovil 6, Mackintosh 6, Hallam 3, Gordon 1. (Laity)—Broughall 40, Riley 19, Scovil 6, Mackintosh 4, Hallam 1, Gordon 1.

Final ballot (clergy)—Broughall 43, Riley 35, Mackintosh 14, Gordon 1. (Laity)—Broughall 47, Riley 19, Scovil 7, Mackintosh 2, Gordon 1.

Made Unanimous

When the result of the fourth ballot which gave Very Rev. Dean Broughall a majority, was announced, Rev. Canon Riley immediately moved that the decision be made unanimous. Rev. Canon Scovil seconded the motion, and the delegates by standing vote and prolonged applause, endorsed the motion, and finally joined in the singing of "Praise God from Whom all Blessings Flow."

Right Rev. J. C. Roper, senior bishop of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario, who presided, congratulated Bishop-elect Broughall and said that his election had a deep personal touch for he (Bishop Roper) had known the mother of Bishop-elect Broughall for many years. "Her home was my home, and I remember you since your time," he continued. "I have watched your career with interest, and I believe indeed that you will be successful in the sphere to which God has called you."

Calmly accepting the verdict, the new bishop in expressing his thanks to the clergy and laity said like the rest of those present he was only human. He mentioned that he had served for 25 years in the diocese, and it was a source of joy to think that he had won a place in the affection and regard of the people. The election was happily conducted, he added, and the motion which made the decision unanimous was appreciated to the fullest extent, especially as it was sponsored by a life-long friend, Rev. Canon Riley.

Envoy To Canada

Senate Democrats are expected to block confirmation of the appointment of Nathan William MacChesney, Chicago lawyer, to be minister to Canada, succeeding Hanford MacNider. MacChesney is an old friend of President Hoover.

UNABLE TO PAY.

SASKATOON.—Claiming inability to continue to pay one-third of the cost of unemployment relief, two Northern Saskatchewan cities to-day had decided to ask immediate lessening of the burden of governments.

The most famous woman in Chinese history, known as the Great Empress Dowager, and virtually the ruler of hina for almost half a century, was Tze-Hsi.

"WHO GOES THERE?"

says the wise shopper

Challenge of the sentry on guard, abrupt and imperative in the dark. "Advance and give the countersign!"

To the woman in the home, alertly watchful over her household budget, passwords are important. Everything offered for sale is subject to suspicion unless it bears the countersign—the familiar trademark—the name of a manufacturer or merchant whom she knows.

Every day she studies the advertising columns. From them she determines values, and decides what she will buy and where. She knows that advertised goods are safe goods, backed by the reputation of the maker and the merchant.

When she goes shopping—whether for a bottle of ketchup or for a pearl necklace—she challenges each product with a 'Who goes there?' And if it has the password of advertised excellence she makes her purchase without hesitation.

The advertisements in this paper are a safe guide to buying. Read them every day. Keep in touch with the latest news of price, style and quality. Then buy with the assurance that you will get your money's worth.

position and stave off threatening creditors, the statement said.

Hesitated For Days.

"For some days before Monday, Dec. 5, I lay around and did not know what to do. I stayed in the garage some nights until 4 o'clock in the morning," read the alleged statement. "I would go over to the garage for a while, then go back home. Maybe pick up the baby and nurse it for a while, then go to the garage for a while."

The statement explained that Wilkie's creditors were pressing him hard. He was in danger of losing his trucks.

"My wife had a $1,000 insurance policy. I thought if I could get that, I could pay off all I owed and go on and work in peace," read the statement.

Bought Naptha.

It went on to tell of the purchase of naptha from Orval Stewart, a filling station attendant, early on the night of December 5. The purchase was made with a cheque for $1.50, and Wilkie received $1 in change. He left the gallon can of gas at the service station and attended a wrestling show at a nearby arena.

After the wrestling card Wilkie returned to the station, then went downtown and played a game of billiards with a friend, had lunch and started to walk home. He picked up the gasoline on the way and took it home. The house was dark.

"I stopped at the door and stood for a few minutes, and then went upstairs," read the statement. "I went in the bedroom and set the can down just inside the door.

Held Baby In Arms.

"The baby was stirring. I went over to the carriage and tried to quiet the baby. She started to cry. I picked her up. I walked around with her in my arms. I sat down on a chair and put the baby to sleep. Then I put her back in the carriage.

"I took the top off the can, and poured some gas on the clothes that were piled on a little chest between the door and the dresser. I took the rest of the gas near the head of the bed and poured it on the floor. I took the can in the other room and put it behind the door.

"I went into the bedroom and turned off the light, stepped back into the hall and pulled the bedroom door shut. I took a match from my pocket, lighted it on my pants and threw it on the floor in the hall. The gas was running out between the two doors. I grabbed my hat and overcoat, ran downstairs and out through the back yards and jumped over the fence."

Fled From Scene.

The statement described his wild flight. He raced down a street to the docks several blocks away. He could hear his wife's creams and saw from a distance smoke issuing from the upper window.

Then he returned. He ran the last 100 yards to the front door, around which was grouped neighbors and his sister, Teena, suffering burns received when she attempted to reach the baby in the flame-swept bedroom.

Relatives of Wilkie, including his mother and sister, Teena, related how they were awakened by a rumbling roar in Gertrude Wilkie's bedroom. They told dramatically how she rushed from the room screaming in pain from burns that turned her flesh black, of the entrance to the home a few minutes later of her husband.

Called Doctor.

Wilkie, they said, tried to soothe his wife, called a doctor and went with her to hospital just five blocks away.

As Mrs. Wilkie screamed "Save my baby," Wilkie tried to dash upstairs to the blazing bedroom where the child lay in a carriage. But neither he nor neighbors who rushed into the downstairs of the house were able to beat their way past the terrific heat they met at the stairs-top.

Insurance agents described how Wilkie several months ago placed $1,000 insurance on the life of his wife and purchased a policy on the child's life that after three months had a value of $100. He collected the smaller amount two days after baby Norma died.

Mrs. Wilkie's parents testified they opposed the marriage of their daughter and Wilkie 13 months ago because "he kept her out late at night when he courted her." They said the young husband tried to borrow money from the girl's father, Samuel Cameron, early this year.

Stewart Testifies.

Late in the afternoon the Crown produced the witness who said Wilkie purchased a gallon of naphtha gas from a filling station a few blocks from the Wilkie home and carried it away shortly after midnight. This witness, 21-year-old Orval Stewart, a close friend of the alleged murderer, said Wilkie told him he wanted the gas to kill bedbugs.

Stewart's testimony early in the evening made spectators lean forward in their seats as he related how Wilkie met him several times after the fire and finally offered the young filling station operator "a handful of money — I could see one yellow back," to keep secret the sale of the gasoline to Wilkie on the night of the fire.

"I said 'No,' and pushed his hand away," Stewart testified. "I told him I would help him in any way I could, as a friend."

Crown Attorney Henry climaxed the evidence by reading the statement Wilkie is said to have given the police. It followed several talks he had with the accused, Chief Constable Carson said.

Bedfellows

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 20. —(AP)— Dr. James E. Condren, dentist, slept with a rattlesnake for five nights without knowing it. He noted a "queer clicking sound" when he first crawled into his bunk at a deer camp to which he had gone on a hunting trip. Five days later, on breaking up camp, he found a 38-inch rattler coiled up under the mattress. A companion killed it.

ROTARY MEMBERS DISCUSS RELIEF

Committee Named to Handle Buying and Distribution of Necessities for Christmas.

CAMPBELLFORD, December 20 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Matters relative to the coming Christmas relief program which is being undertaken by the Campbellford Rotary Club in connection with the distribution of Christmas cheer to the needy and especially to the children of the town were discussed at the weekly meeting of the club held yesterday, President Elie Brunelle took the chair and conducted the discussions.

At present the club has a list of children totalling 186, many of whom will need clothing. The goods for this purpose will all be purchased from local merchants, who have promised to meet the demands as reasonable as possible, and the local Daughters of the Empire have signified their willingness to assist the club by making garments if goods were bought to be made up.

The distributing centre for the work will be the office of A. J. Armour on Front Street, the following committees being appointed by the president to handle the arrangements: Buying, J. C. Windrim, E. C. Dolman; Distribution, C. H. Davidson, Chares Calver, A. Rappaport, C. B. Williams; Packing, E. H. Greig, A. J. Armour, S. A. Maguire; Toys and Candies, S. H. Neale, and Roy Smith.

The report of the Buckingham contest, which in towns of 2,500 and over was won by the Campbellford Rotary Club, was given by the secretary, who reported that the club registered 996,000 votes. They had received the award of 250 toys, which could be seen at the E. C. Dolman store on Bridge Street.

Some discussion followed receipt of the sum of $16.18, half of the proceeds from the Sunday sacred concert arranged by the Sunshine Club, under the direction of Mrs. H. T. Cowell for the purpose of raising funds for Christmas cheer. Owing to the fact that it is contrary to the constitution of the Rotary Club to accept money raised by collection in this way, this money will be returned to Mrs. Cowell, on the motion of the club.

The club went on motion as giving Abraham Rappaport, manager of the local theatre, a hearty vote of thanks for the wonderful way in which he worked to ensure the success of the Buckingham contest. Speaking in reply to the meeting, he stated that in the near future he was going to give a free matinee to the children of town and a free show to the unemployed. This contribution was being made by the Regal Film Exchange, Toronto.

A cheque for five dollars will be forwarded by the club as a donation to the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives.

League Is Adjourned; No Sino-Jap Solution

GENEVA, Dec. 20 (C.P.).—The League of Nations Assembly's Committee of 19, finding itself unable to agree upon any proposals for settlement of the Sino-Japanese controversy in Manchuria, adjourned to-day until January 16.

Meanwhile Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general of the League, assisted by a sub-committee of five members, will continue negotiations in search of a basis for conciliation.

Negotiations appeared somewhat more hopeful to-day, expressing the view some evidence of conflicting positions taken up by Chinese and Japanese representatives might eventually be modified so as to permit the beginning of a procedure for friendly adjustment.

80 P.C. TAXES COLLECTED.

BEAMSVILLE. — Practicaly 80 per cent. of the taxes in Clinton Township have been paid. On Friday a 5 per cent. penalty came into force, and the Council is considering a proposal made by a deputation of citizens that I per cent. penalty be charged for the first month after the taxes became payable, with increases of 1 per cent. for each succeeding month until the maximum is reached.

$1,600 SETTLES COATES ACTION

about noon and was able to leave at 4.45 that afternoon. They returned to Havelock by train, arriving home at 5 o'clock the next morning.

Mr. Coate's statement of damages amounted to $539 apart from the cost of repairing the car at Cornwall. The total account included $183 for dental treatment by Dr. J. J. Craig of Peterborough and $80 for medical treatment by Dr. Carleton of Norwood. Plaintiff said his wife suffered severe facial injuries in the accident. Her lower front teeth cut through her lip, her face was covered with blood from an impact with the instrument board of the car. One knee was hurt and there was a bump on her right breast. At home she was in bed for a week.

To Mr. Shaver, plaintiff said his wife went to visit her father at Brussels, Ont., less than three weeks after the accident and remained there a month. Shortly after her return she drove to Peterborough and back to Havelock. For the first two weeks, Mrs. Coates was unable to do her housework, which was done by plaintiff's mother who had gone to their home to stay until after the Christmas holidays. Mr. Coates' claim of damages included $42 for nursing and other work done by plaintiff's mother.

Mr. Coates said that their elder baby was four months old at the time of the accident. A second child was born to his wife on November 7th last.

Plaintiff agreed with Mr. Shaver that Mr. Snyder had pulled out to pass the hayrack, then slowed down and nosed in behind the wagon after being about half way up alongside it, that the accident would not have occurred if Mr. Snyder had not applied his brakes, and that the brakes were unequally adjusted causing the car to turn out across the road in front of Mr. Coates' automobile.

The first half hour of the court was taken up in a diversion regarding the selection of a doctor to examine Mrs. Coates.

"My learned friend Mr. Haight has been very poorly," Mr. Shaver said, "and I did not come into this case until Saturday. I find that there has been no physical examination made of Mrs. Coates. I am asking for permission to have such an examination while the case is in progress."

Selecting A Doctor

Mr. Justice Raney agreed, but Mr. Kerr and Mr. Shaver found their opinion in conflict as to the acceptability of various doctors who were mentioned.

Mr. Shaver first proposed Dr. T. W. H. Young, Medical Officer of Health. G. N. Gordon, K.C., was sitting beside Mr. Shaver at his table. Mr. Kerr said that because of a long standing intimacy between Mr. Gordon and Dr. Young he would prefer some other doctor being chosen by the defendant. Mr. Shaver protested that Mr Gordon had nothing to do with the case.

Dr. Malcolm McCulloch and Dr. A. W. MacPherson were next mentioned, but were passed up.

"I'll rely on the Crown Attorney," said Mr. Shaver. "I know him."

Mr. Justice Raney requested George Sherry, clerk of the court, to submit a list of names of doctors.

These names were Doctors Neal, Yelland, Waite, Young, Cameron, MacPherson and McCulloch.

Mr. Shaver consulted Emmett Sheehy and Mr. Gordon, and finally Dr. Neal's name was underscored in agreement by counsel, but Sheriff Hall's telephone enquiry elicited the information that Dr. Neal's office was "full of patients" and he was not available.

"Do you expect me to manufacture a physician," Mr. Justice Raney remarked.

Mr. Sherry wrote another list and the names of Dr. Moir and Dr. Clark were approved by both counsel.

Sheriff Hall ascertained that Dr. Clark was immediately accessible and he was called to the court house to examine Mrs. Coates for the plaintiff and in the presence of Dr. Carleton of Norwood.

Obituary

THOMAS TUCKER.

MADOC, Dec. 22. — (Examiner Correspondence.)— The funeral of the late Thos. Tucker, at one time a jeweller in Madoc village, was held on Friday afternoon, December 16th, at his home in Madoc village, was held on Friday afternoon, December 16th, at his home in Madoc village. The officiating clergymen were Rev. G. W. Rivers, B.A., B.D., of Trinity United church, and Rev. P. Gatley Reynolds of St. John's Anglican church.

The late Mr. Tucker has been seriously ill for some time. He was a member of Trinity United church. He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife, and a brother, Walter Tucker of Ottawa. One brother, John, predeceased him a short time ago.

Interment was made in Lakeview cemetery, Madoc. Pallbearers were friends and neighbors of the deceased.

Mr. Ed. Sandford, of Eldorado, uncle of Mrs. Wm. Roberts of this village, dropped dead in Eldorado yesterday.

twain. He was the cause that old friends sprang at each others' throats like tigers. For his sake men went to prison. Others committed suicide in the storm that raged around his name.

To-day nobody knows Captain Alfred Dreyfus, the Jewish artillery officer, who was once accused of high-treason and sentenced to the hell of Devil's Island. Five years of his life he spent on that torrid rock. Until the storm broke in France and the demand for a revision of his trial became well-nigh general, Clemenceau, Zola, Scheurer-Kerstner, Picquart were the men who had come into protest. The workers threatened with a general strike if Dreyfus wasn't released. Complications of the Dreyfus affair brought France more than once to the verge of civil war, once a break with Germany seemed inevitable.

History of Case

A charwoman at the German embassy in Paris, who was also in the employ of the French Intelligence Service, was in the habit of collecting the scraps of paper from the ambassador's waste-basket and carrying them to the experts at the Intelligence Bureau. One night she brought a small collection of scraps which after having been pieced together, proved to be a memorandum about a new French gun that operated on a hydraulic principle. Only an artillery officer could have written the details. Only a staff officer could have had access to the information. Dreyfus was the first and only Jew on the staff, which had always been exclusively occupied by the sons of aristocratic families. For that reason he was hated. Dreyfus was, moreover, a half-German, as his family hailed from Alsace.

Dreyfus was charged with high treason. He denied indignantly. He was locked up in the military prison of Cherche-Midi. Before he was tried by court-martial, a note had been slipped into the judicial files of the bearing on his case, purporting to be a letter from the German to the Italian military attache in Paris, in which Dreyfus was named. This note was a forgery. The officer who had written it confessed that he had done so to clinch the case against Dreyfus defence with his forgery and having been arrested by order of the court, he committed suicide in the Fortress of Mount Valerien.

Condemned to Devil's Isle

Dreyfus was, nevertheless, condemned to life-long imprisonment on Devil's Island. His brother, Mathieu, a prominent Paris banker, who believed in his innocence, spent a fortune to learn the truth. Slowly the suspicion grew that a Jew had been made the scape-goat for another's guilt.

Alone George Clemenceau, who then owned the newspaper Dawn in Paris, was convinced of Dreyfus' complete innocence. So was Zola, the great novelist. Yet it was a risky thing to accuse the high-command of the army of dishonorable trickery. The army was sacrosanct. France was very sentimental about her army after the defeat of 1871. The army could do no wrong. To lodge an accusation against the high command was tantamount to undermining law and order and to the danger of damaging France's prestige abroad Paris was dividing into Dreyfusards and anti-Dreyfusards. The church openly took sides against Dreyfus.

Then like a bolt of lightning Clemenceau published Zola's open letter to the president of the republic. It opened with the words: "I accuse." He did accuse the general staff of shielding the real culprit and of having condemned Dreyfus without proof, merely because he was a Jew. That letter, one of the greatest documents of modern history, threw Paris in a fever of excitement. Hundreds of thousands jammed the boulevards. There were pitched battles in the streets every night. Zola was ordered arrested. He fled to London. Clemenceau earned the name of "Tiger" for tenacity with which he fought for the rights of the Jew. The lawyer who had defended Dreyfus before the court-martial was mysteriously shot as he left the Palace of Justice.

War Threatened

The agitation grew steadily. It spread beyond the frontiers. The Jews, and with them liberal-minded people all over the world, were aroused. The Czar made a statement against Dreyfus. The kaiser was drawn into the row when he declared that Dreyfus was not the secret agent who had furnished Germany with the plan. Wilhelm was called a liar by the French anti-Dreyfusard newspapers. The Kaiser threatened with war.

Finally Dreyfus was brought back. A new trial was ordered. But again the secret court found him guilty, only this time it imposed a sentence of ten years' banishment. Before Dreyfus could be sent back to Devil's Island, a staff colonel broke his silence. He was Picquart. Picquart knew the secret. He knew the real traitor. To get Picquart out of the way the general staff had shipped him of to Africa to a dangerous tribal war. Picquart saw the trap. Before embarking at Marseilles he wrote to Clemenceau: "I will not carry the secret into the grave to which I am being sent!" He named Major Esterhazy as the German agent. Esterhazy was a Hungarian count who had reached the officer's rank via the Foreign Legion. Esterhazy fled to London, confessed his guilt in an article in the Daily Telegraph. Later he went to Japan, where he obtained a post as instructor at the High Military Academy. He died only a few months ago.

France had a violent election. The issue was for or against Dreyfus. The Dreyfusards won. Parliament exonerated him, gave him the Legion of Honor, made Him a colonel. The battle for freedom of conscience, for that is what it really was, had been won.

Immediately thereupon Clemenceau, Briand and Viviani, all three ardent Dreyfusards, took measures against the church for the part it had played in the Dreyfus affair. Separation of church and state and the confiscation of all church property in France were a direct outcome of the treason-trial.

Even to-day the passions have not cooled off in spite of the lapse of years. In 1931 there were nightly demonstrations in front o fa theatre which gave a play based on the Dreyfus affair in his royalist paper without calling him the Jewish traitor.

Another indirect outflow of the Dreyfus affair was the Zionist World Movement. Theodore Herzl, correspondent of the Vienna Neu dorial distinction in Paris, lived through the anti-Jewish agitation in Paris and decided the hatred of the Jew, which he saw unleashed, had to do with their lack of a home. He began the Jewish movement for the restoration of their old fatherland, which culminated in 1917 with the Balfour Declaration and the assumption of the mandate over Palestine by Britain.

Dreyfus served as a general in the Great War. He was one of the few witnesses on that rainy night when the coffin of Clemenceau was carried to the motor-van which drove it to the Vendee, there to be buried in a standing up position, next to the Tiger's father.

ADVERTISING for the MERCHANT of TO-DAY

Conducted by HAROLD S. EDGAR

A series of weekly articles on advertising and merchandising prepared for the merchants of Peterborough district with the co-operation of The Peterborough Examiner.

WHAT SHALL BE MY ADVERTISING BUDGET!

Merchants and manufacturers alike puzzle over the question of the percentage that shall be set aside for advertising to develop sales. They do not worry over this problem in regard to other expenses in doing business.

They do not say, how much money shall I spend for insurance, but tell the agent what insurance protection they require, and then pay the bill. They do not make it a theoretical question as to the cubic content of the store, but figure out what assortment of goods they need, and then look for a store that will give them the necessary space.

Unfortunately advertising is not quite so tangible as floor space, and even more important than insurance—as unless you can keep the goods moving in and out, store space is a liability and insurance does not protect against deterioration or change of style.

One hears of certain manufacturers who set aside a definite percentage of sales for publicity work. This may range from 25 to 30 per cent. on luxuries sold at a high profit, to less than 5 per cent. on certain necessities for which the public have a constant need, and all the manufacturer requires to do is to keep his name before the people.

In the retail trade there is a big variation between one store and another. One man with a certain trade can cut his advertising to a minimum, depending on inherited custom, and the people who throng the street. While another man who is in not so attractive a store, possibly on the wrong side of the street, has to dig down deep for the necessary publicity to offset the fact that he was not SOMEBODY'S GRANDSON and has not the most valuable location.

The tallest president of the United States, Abraham Lincoln, when asked what was the proper length of a man's legs, said, "They should be long enough to reach the ground," and the correct advertising budget for a business is to be large enough to do the work, yet sufficiently restricted to enforce careful thinking and expenditure of perspiration.

A sound basis of expenditure cannot be figured out accurately before hand. The merchant must spend the amount necessary to build a success; anything less may mean reaching only a half-way goal or even a failure. However, as time goes on and methods are tested and results checked up, he can arrange an average percentage basis that will serve for normal conditions.

An advertising budget, however, should always be elastic so that increased expenditure could be met if necessary to bring business. While if business was coming easier than anticipated, it would be foolish to over-spend when funds could be conserved for expansion or heavier drives later.

A driver to-day motoring over a familiar road from one city to another may be able to estimate what will be his gasoline expenses, but let him travel another 200 miles on an unknown road and figure on the same mileage and see how far out he will be. Even the fact that the road is unknown will increase his gasoline consumption, and many a merchant to-day in his business outlook is facing a road that is not quite as well known as he would like it to be.

As stated, it is not possible to give any definite recommendation as to the size of an advertising budget, but realizing that goods unsold do not show a profit and that overhead goes on even if sales are limited, every dollar possible should be set aside for advertising, and in the general term "Advertising," I would include anything that has to do with making your goods and your store, favorably known to your possible customers.

It will hamper your business if you have to squeeze your publicity budget too tightly, but between the two evils I would choose that rather than too large a budget which would encourage lavish expenditure. The best advertisements are those that are written to make every word count, with a careful study of the people to whom they are addressed and due regard to the value of display. The most wasteful advertisements are those when the merchant has ample space and concludes that size will command attention and the matter contained in his message is, therefore, of minor importance.

THIS WEEK'S CHALLENGE.

It is so important that every home in Peterborough should have a measure of Christmas cheer this year that The Examiner has no apology to offer for again sounding a call to the generous citizens of Peterborough to rally to the rescue.

Well over 600 families are on the local relief list, which means that unless there is prompt, generous and well organized action some at least of these people will have a bleak Christmas.

In addition, there must be a large number of families close to the relief margin, families which have managed to struggle along on meagre income and have not called upon the relief organization for assistance, despite their condition.

If some of these cases could be discovered and dealt with quietly and generously at this Christmas season and at the same time all families on the relief rolls could be taken care of, Peterborough would have the joy of feeling that something of Christmas had found its way under every city roof.

The situation presents a challenge to well-to-do individuals, as well as to the churches, service clubs and other organizations, the assistance of all of which will be necessary to adequately deal with the matter.

Once again may The Examiner stress the fact that it is only through consultation with the city's relief officer that overlapping and confusion can be avoided; by all means let him know of needy cases where Christmas cheer would be appreciated.

"THE PORT OF PROFIT."

Attention has been drawn by the Mail and Empire to the fact that the name of Agnes C. MacPhail, M.P., appears in the directorate of a Western Canada oil company.

There is, of course, nothing wrong in that condition; it is Miss MacPhail's privilege to associate herself in the promotion of any business enterprise she chooses.

But the amusing angle to the situation, of course, is that Miss MacPhail is one of the leaders in a new political movement built up around the idea of the elimination of private profits.

The revolutionary organization she is endeavoring to persuade the people of Canada to adopt frowns on the thought of individual gain, so that it is somewhat surprising to learn that while she is engaged in this great crusade, her name is at the same time being used to induce Canadians to invest their savings in a commercial enterprise.

The literature issued by this oil company that includes Miss MacPhail as a director makes interesting reading, as the following extracts will show:

"Modern business has its daring Clipper Captains. . . . With course boldly charted, weather eye cocked shrewdly skyward . . . skirting hidden reefs and treacherous shores . . . they land a dry cargo on every trip. . . . Bring our ship safely to Port of Profit. . . . Leaving our oil out of the picture for the moment, our gas alone at five cents per 1,000 cubic feet will bring a return to the company of $1,000 per day."

This, it must be admitted, does not read a great deal like an extract from a C.C.F. speech.

HELPING SCOTCH MINERS

A good many Peterborough people have been using Scotch coal in recent months without thinking a great deal about what is involved in the purchase of such fuel and what it means to other citizens of the British Empire to transfer orders that have hitherto gone elsewhere to an Empire country.

The Ayrshire (Scotland) Post shows just how important this new Canadian business has become to the miners of that district.

Says the Post:

"While the miners generally have something to grumble at in the present lack of work, there is one class which has not been troubled during the past months. Rankinston has the distinction of possessing the only anthracite mine in Ayrshire and the hundred men who have found employment there have had a comparatively busy time this summer. Apart from smaller amounts to local users of this smokeless fuel, about ten thousand tons have been sent to Canada since the mine was worked almost a year ago and the miners have experienced only one idle day during that period. With the closing of the St. Lawrence, the last shipment—about 1,200 tons—to Canada is being made this week."

Importations of British coal into Canada have greatly increased during the past summer, and the change in the trend of coal trade is a most significant development, the value of which we are better able to appreciate after reading such paragraphs as the above. Every ton of coal purchased from Great Britain means employment for British miners and better business for the Empire generally.

THE CASE OF THE RAYBESTOS COMPANY.

Among the matters local ratepayers will have to decide at the coming municipal elections is the question of granting a fixed assessment to the Canadian Raybestos Company for a term of ten years, beginning with next year.

At the outset it should be understood that under the new arrangement this industry is not to enjoy the benefit of its present assessment; on the contrary, for the next ten years it is proposed that the Raybestos Company shall be taxed on an assessment two and a half times as great as that now prevailing.

At the present time it is paying full taxes on a $10,000 assessment; after this year, if the by-law is endorsed by the ratepayers—and it undoubtedly should be—the company will pay full taxes on an assessment of $25,000 and heretofore will continue to pay full school taxes and local improvement taxes on its full assessment.

The Raybestos Company has recently completed a substantial addition to its plant; a work that provided a measure of employment and put money in circulation at a time when both these factors were decidedly helpful and one that will eventually mean a greater number of permanent employees.

It is customary when such manufacturing operations are undertaken for industries to seek concessions in the shape of a moderate fixed assessment and to make sure of such an arrangement before the work is taken in hand, but the Raybestos management, feeling that the launching of their building project would be of general benefit, did not wait for a concession; they went ahead with the work confident that when the time came the ratepayers would play fair with them.

The Examiner believes that their confidence is not misplaced, and that the ratepayers, remembering the good record of the company since its establishment here and realizing that what it is seeking means a substantial increase in its assessment and therefore a larger tax return, will endorse the by-law.

A DEEPENING IMPRESSION.

Although utterances of Congressmen evince little consideration of the merits of the war debt controversy, the press of the United States is speaking out significantly. The Boston Herald observed of the British Government note, that it was "a notably comprehensive, forthright and persuasive document," and that "if London intended to go over Washington's head and appeal directly to the American people, it has, we believe, succeeded, whatever Congress may do." Expressions of a similar nature have emanated from the New York Times, New York Herald-Tribune, New York Evening Post, New York World-Telegram, Christian Science Monitor, Detroit Free Press, Kansas City Star, Birmingham Age-Herald, San Francisco Chronicle, Atlanta Constitution, Hartford Courant, St. Louis Globe-Democrat, Charleston News and Courier and others, and prominent citizens have contributed letters of similar tendency to the press. The New York Times recently spoke in a remarkable tone, its article having been quoted entire in our issue of Nov. 24, but we requote a few lines again:

"It is now fifteen years since this country began to make loans to the Allies for the prosecution of the war which we had just entered. The money was our contribution before we could send men or guns. At that time, as the debates in the Senate and the House show, there was a general air of making a gift rather than a loan. The anxieties and impulses of those days many have forgotten. Forgotten also is the fact that most of the money voted the Allies was spent in this country."

Moreover, the United States Government itself can be quoted against its present attitude, since in a statement entitled "Foreign Debts Due the United States," was contained these words:

"This debt is not a debt for dollars sent to Europe; the money was all expended here, most of it for cotton, wheat, food products and munitions of war. Every cent used for the purchase of these goods was spent in America; American labor received the wages, American capital the profits; the United States treasury the taxation imposed on these profits."

Dr. William T. Hornaday, an eminent American of Stamford, Conn., in a published letter in the New York Herald-Tribune, said the facts were "perfectly devastating" and were "enough to bring the blush of shame to every self-respecting American," and condemned the "robber prices" which were paid for the food, clothing, shoes and war materials for men "fighting with their backs to the wall." He declares that instead of Britain and the Allies owing the United States, it should be the reverse.

History of Napoleonic times repeated itself in the World War. As in the former war, Britain was the implacable foe of Napoleon and repeatedly when her allies were crushed she maintained the contest and provided the funds to keep their armies in the field. In both contests she had the honor of spending more than any other power for military purposes. As the great William Pitt (the second) declared in a momentous utterance shortly before his death, England would save herself by her exertions, and would save Europe by her example!

It takes a long time for these considerations to sink into American minds, but the attitude of so many of the better of the American press ought to achieve an effect, whilst there ought also to be ground for hope from the new administration shortly to be installed in Washington. The calmness and steadiness of the British people and their statesmen in this situation is beyond admiration, as it has been in other stages of history. No recrimination or harsh comment has escaped from a responsible statesman; the attitude was that the British signature having been once placed to an obligation must be honored, even at a sacrifice. But surely introspective Americans will enquire whether they have saved themselves by their exertions, in view of fifteen months when their Allies did all the dying, and whom they have saved by their example?—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Oshawa raised $35,000 for relief at an expenditure of $290. It would be well worth finding out just how it was done.

Although the number from Peterborough is not large, the opening of a new highway camp will benefit the local unemployment situation to some extent at least and is therefore to be welcomed.

The Otonabee River is usually such a well behaved, orderly stream that its prank of staging a flood in December is surprising.

Mr. Bennett has been made a Knight of Grace, but if it were left to Mr. King the Premier would not even be accorded a day of grace.

No Peterborough family without Christmas cheer should be the community motto at the present time.

At least it is to be admitted that Russia is not worrying about how to pay her debts to foreign creditors. That function she leaves to the creditors. —Toronto Mail and Empire.

There would be less unrest if persons dependent on relief were not constantly made to feel their position by irksome and unnecessary restrictions and regulations.—Oshawa Times.

INFLATION

Dear Editor:—

The inflation of currency is a much talked of subject these days; it has entered the realm of practical politics. Efforts are being made to frighten people by the use of the word "inflation" and there is confusion in people's minds in regard to it.

An expansion of national currency to correspond to an increase in national wealth ought not to be called inflation—indeed, unless such increase in currency is forthcoming, deflation and falling prices result.

In a Land of Plenty, a land of bursting elevators and over-stocked warehouses, we find much unemployment, factories idling and an impoverished agriculture. The gross annual revenue of Canadian farmers dropped by at least one billion dollars in the last four years. Farmers' debts remained fixed in terms of dollars, which means that farmers must sell from two to three times as much produce now to pay their indebtedness as was the case three years ago. Their cost of living and production has fallen but slightly. The continuance of such conditions will drive the agricultural industry into bankruptcy and Canadians into as yet unknown suffering. The lack of farm purchasing power is the direct cause of business stagnation, the rising tide of unemployment, and the huge deficits of governments, which are resulting in general business paralysis.

Something must be done, and that quickly, which will enable Candians to use the wealth they possess—and that "something" in my opinion is the issuing of money by the Federal Government against goods and services, without interest, in quantities sufficient to move goods and absorb services.

Such action would:—

Automatically increase the prices of exporting farm products.

Enable farmers to pay their debts with dollars nearer in purchasing power to those which they borrowed some years back.

Enable farmers to buy goods on the market, start factories running and thus absorb the unemployed.

Lower the expenditures of governments for relief of unemployment.

Increase the real revenues of governments.

Ease the railway problem through an increasing volume of traffic.

Stimulate exports and revitalize the West, with accruing benefits to Eastern Canada.

Place Canadian farmers more on a parity with their chief competitors in Australia and South America.

It would NOT:—

Impair Canadian credit abroad, since Australia has been able to finance in London at 3½ per cent with her currency far below the pound sterling.

Prevent refunding debts in New York, which involves only a change in our American creditors.

Prevent meeting interest charges in New York, as these can be made in gold or goods.

Cause the cost of living to rise as quickly as the prices of basic commodities, and would give at the same time greater security of employment and increased personal revenues.

The economic strain has reached the breaking point. The Government can relieve the strain. Will it do it?

Yours sincerely,
Agnes Macphail.

OUR FIRST POST OFFICES

ON THIS DATE, in 1788, Benjamin Franklin, then deputy postmaster of the British Colonies in America, came to Quebec and opened the first post office in Canada. There had been mail routes under the French regime, but they were military rather than commercial. After the treaty of Peau had finally made Canada British, the merchants of Quebec were desirous of a regular post office; and, owing to Franklin's promptness, the post office was the first of the institutions of government which was placed on a settled footing after Canada became a British province On arriving at Quebec, Franklin opened a post office there with subordinate offices at Three Rivers and Montreal, and established a monthly service between the Canadian post offices and New York, arranging the trips so that the courier should make as close connection as possible with the packet boats which sailed monthly each way between New York and Falmouth, England. The postal system into which Canada was thus incorporated was of vast extent. It stretched from the river St. Lawrence to Florida. New York was its pivotal point, the mail couriers running north and south connecting there with one another, and with the packets from England.

This handling of the postal service ended, at the outbreak of the revolution, when of course, mails between New York and Quebec were abandoned and from that time began the development of our post office as a British service in British America.

V. SACKVILLE-WEST — she wrote "The Edwardians," "All Passion Spent" and "Family History"—wants to change the English language .... Just a little .... She doesn't like that word "that." Sometimes "that" is a conjunction and sometimes it is a "demonstrative adjective and demonstrative or relative pronoun.' So you could write such sentences as "That that that that author used shouldn't have been used in that place".... Miss Sackville-West suggests, therefore, that when "that" is a conjunction we should spell it "that", but when it is an adjective or a pronoun we should add "t" and spell it "thatt"....She uses her system in "Family History," which is a good book, and writes such sentences as "I don't know that thatt would break his heart"....It's a bit annoying at first. In fact, she admits in her foreword that thatt way of spelling the word annoyed her, too, when she read her own proofs on "Human History."

Nothing will come of it, however. Nobody will take up Miss S-W's suggestion. Changes in the language don't come about in that way. They just happen .... The Browser merely thought you might be interested, that's all.

So many women write good novels. In England: Sheila Kaye-Smith, Rose Macaulay, May Sinclair, Virginia Woolf, Rebecca West, Sackville-West, and plenty of others. In America: Willa Cather, Ellen Glasgow, Julia Peterkin, and many more, too.

Once upon a time, years ago, a woman asked the Browser whether he'd ever read Jane Austin and he replied, quite casually, that he never read "women novelists." Whenever he thinks of that now he gets red from ear to ear....He makes amends whenever he can.

Rose Macaulay's "The Shadow Flies" is just one more example of the versatility of the woman who wrote "Potterism" and "Told by an Idiot." It's laid in the time of Robert Herrick and she says she has tried to avoid using a single word that wouldn't have been spoken in that century....A strong book and true and tender, too.

In "Diana Stair," Floyd Dell tries to make us believe that back in the thirties and forties of the last century the young people were thinking the same thoughts and saying much the same things that they say to-day....but the Civil war killed that renaissance off.

Scribner's magazine promised the first of some short stories by Ernest Hemingway for January, but withdrew the promise, in small print, in the December issue.

Carolyn Wells has written her own epitaph and its

"Here lies our darling Carolyn,
She danced o'er Death's dark wave;
We've seen her merry, but till now,
We never saw her grave."

Dorothy Parker's famous one is shorter and better: merely, "Excuse My Dust."

Carl Sandburg's "Mary Lincoln: Wife and Widow" is a decent sort of book, as you'd expect from Carl. He shows you that bitter temper and turbulent egoism of Mary Todd, but he lets you see, too, that she was inwardly a tormented woman, who could not help her unhappiness.

Harcourt, Bruce & Co. admit that Louis Untermeyer's little book of verse, "Food and Drink," out last spring, didn't sell. That never happened before.

Stephen Vincent Benet, James G. Cozzens and Edwin Granberry won first, second and third prizes in the O. Henry Memorial awards. Blanche Colton Williams, who has been chairman of the award for years, has resigned, saying something about O. Henry being "dated." And so he is, but so are all the geniuses. Their age always is branded in letters of flame on their candid brows. And it matters little.

The Browser still is reading Prescott's "Conquest of Mexico," still telling all of his friends about it, still demanding that they read it, too. More thrilling than any romance or detective story to the poor old jaded, world-weary

BROWSER.

A ROMANCE

CHAPTER 44

They had made an aisle between the seats, out of the border of rose trees that led to the arbor. She hoped the trees they had bent down carefully when they put up the platform wouldn't be injured. . . . Dot was through talking now, and Manny's long hands were making music that pulled your heart out on the little piano. He could always play like that. But of late perhaps Emilia was fanciful, his music had been more moving than he could ever remember. It had never been anything but popular music, it never would be. He made his own lyrics, he wrote—some said stole—his own tunes. A little piece of Mendelssohn was likely to pop up somewhere, set to his trite, heartbreaking words; a scrap of a Chopin ballad that every Broadway boy and girl would sing for a season. But after all the magic was in the welding. He stopped suddenly with the chords that summoned Emilia; she shook off her feeling of trance and came forward and began to sing; the waltz from Maytime. Manny spelled her, now and again; he sang his own songs, a last year's favorite, a couple of his early ones. Emilia sang some of them also.

"This comes mighty near to song-plugging," Manny said to the audience with a grin, and switched back to the old things Emilia had sung. Presently he was playing Brahms, absently, effectively.

The concert was nearly over. Manny stopped suddenly. Emilia had sung, he had sung or played, off and on for nearly two hours. Emilia had been standing shielded from sight within the arbor, staring away from the audience out over the silvered Hudson.

"You sing now, Emilia." She came to with a start. Of course—she shouldn't have had to be called. She pulled her eyes back from the silvered water, from the light-strung boats drifting up and down—from Roger. The sick men, ranked in chairs or wheel chairs along the lawn, who had been strong, rough, laughing young soldiers the last time she had sung to them, the slim, child-like girls and casual young men who had been children then, the shadowy audience of her old neighbors, were all waiting expectantly for her. The past and present suddenly clashed into one as never before.

She had never, she knew it now, come away in spirit and thought, from being eighteen. All of her but the body that walked and spoke had been tranced in that year for her. And to-night by the magic of the cheap conquering music, perhaps by the fantastic fusion of past and present in this hour, suddenly she was awake, alive, here, a woman in possession of herself and of the present. The waves of it flowed over her. She was weak and shaken as with a tremendous shock. She threw her arms out, grasping the rose-wound posts behind her for support. Her throat locked and her heart beat violently. But the professional's instinct of not failing her audience held her.

"What shall I sing?" she asked to gain time.

"Sing the first thing I ever heard you sing—'Bendemeer's Stream.' Here by the stream and the roses."

Was he being [illegible] or was it merely a deliberate stage [illegible]t, Manny's sure-fire sense of the dramatic? She could not know; equally she could do nothing else but what he asked.

Manny struck the opening chords for her. Time had come full circle. She was artist enough to be able to begin, clearly, sweetly, to go on, in spite of all; to detach her emotion and make it drive her song for her.

"There's a bower of roses by Bendemeer's stream
And the nightingale sings in it all the day long;
In the days of my childhood 'twas like a sweet dream
To sit in the roses and hear the bird's song——"

She was looking straight ahead, between the ranks of seats, as she sang. There was a little stir. Two men late, were coming in as quietly as might be, trying to slip into seats without making a disturbance. She could not see the one behind. The moonlight fell clearly on the face of the foremost. Time had indeed come full circle. . . . It was Roger.

She tried to go on. For a moment it was impossible. She reached behind her, catching at the posts again for support; presently she made it. Manny, watching her face, improvising an interlude, carried her for the brief everlasting moment; she made herself finish.

"That bower in its beauty I'll never forget,
And oft when alone in the spring of the year . . ."

She went on, straight through two stanzas. When she had finished there was that breathless silence which is the artist's highest award; then applause, pounding, long, excited. She stood smiling mechanically, holding to the piano, weak again now that the necessity for doing was over.

"Will you give them an encore?" Manny whispered.

"I can't!" she gasped. "In ten minutes—five—not now——"

He smiled at her; over his face came the expression of profound love, protection, tenderness, which no man ever gives to more than one woman in a lifetime.

"Rest then. Do not be unhappy. Life is coming right for you," he said, as if he answered not her words but clairvoyantly her mood. And aloud to the audience.

"She's tired. She's sung a lot to-night, you know." And as the insistent applause went on: "Here, you crazy bums, don't you wear out my Pre-War Lady! What would Windward Gardens do without her? Would you make a poor manager lose all his audiences?"

"Naw, but you do something then, Manny," called back one of the soldiers, caught back to youth and gayety.

The rest clapped. "That's it. Let us in on the ground floor, sing us your newest hit, Manny."

"Well, if you won't swipe it before it's copyrighted. I need all my royalties these hard times," he grinned back. But his face, as he turned to tuck his long legs under the little piano, dropped suddenly into more than its accustomed expression of Lincolnian sadness. He began playing something Emilia, who thought she knew everything he ever did, had not heard. He had neither a sweet nor a well-trained voice, but it had strength, perfect enunciation and that intolerable movingness which puts a song across more than any beauty or technique.

The prelude was partly a frank use of the song she had just sung. Perhaps he was using some of the words to build his own song round. Presently he began to sing. The words she knew would be terrible at first hearing, the music would carry them for you. But you could no more forget music or words than any other thing written by a genius of folk-music.

"I never loved but one girl in the world,
I thought maybe she loved me.
I gave her everything I had in my heart,
All of the sad, all of the bad, all of the glad."

(The chords caught your heart. This was going to be a bigger hit than the last one which had ravaged America and England for a year.) He had reached the refrain:

"It wasn't your fault, dear, you couldn't love me,
It wasn't your fault, dear, you couldn't forget,
In a bower of roses by Bendemeer's stream
Your heart was entangled in an old-fashioned dream,
All I can do if I love you is to say
I want you to be happy when I've gone away. . . .
It wasn't your fault, dear, you couldn't love me,
Girl in an old-fashioned dream; I'll never forget!"

"Gosh, he's clever," she heard, strung to superacute hearing, a whisper from one of Esther's boys on the end of the front row. "He's utilized Miss Vale's atmosphere in a way that's nobody's business. Tin Pan Alley stuff, but I ask you does it get you?"

She saw the faces in the moonlight, trying not to be moved; the women and girls, drying their eyes, the men trying fiercely to get rid of tears without showing it.

That was the end. The attendants began helping the convalescents in. The townspeople were crossing the lawn in groups to their cars in the lane. Esther's house party was drifting back through the gap in the lilac hedge. She could hear the snatches of singing.

"Girl in an old-fashioned dream
I'll never forget."

CHAPTER 45

Emilia stood and waited by the arbor, while the men moved the platform and wheeled away the tiny piano. Manny was childishly dependent on her for praise for his work. She must tell him how good it was, how well it had gone. Esther, hand-in-hand with fair-haired young Emmett, last through the hedge, turned her smooth dun head for a last look. Emilia saw her face, that wise brown childish face, bore an unmistakable triumph, a mature look of achievement, which suddenly told her something.

Manny, turning, drew her into the deserted arbor.

"Yes," he said, "you're right. You are slower-witted than Esther, my poor darling little Pre-War Lady. One of these girls would have known." He put his arms around her once tightly; then, before she had more than felt the pounding of his heart, set her off and held her, and looked down into her frightened face. "Your little Esther told me, that first day she came to see you. My old mother said so, too. They said you'd never love me, the way I wanted. They said you loved somebody else. But I thought it was that fool Stoddard. And I knew you had no use for him. But—I saw, to-night. It's Scarlett. I haven't any weapons against him. He's got ghosts to back him up. I saw your face. I saw his, too, in the moonlight, looking at you. I wouldn't believe till to-night——"

He set her away and turned to go. She caught his hand.

"Manny, Manny, the best, the kindest——"

"All well, but that isn't loving me." Suddenly he burst into harsh speech. "I said it in the song. There'll be that. They'll play it, they'll sing it all over for a year. Longer maybe. When you hear it you'll remember, you can't help remembering."

"Manny, Manny, if you give me up there'll be nobody else. If you leave me I'll be all alone, with no love, nothing. I can never marry anybody but you."

But he had pulled her arms from around him; he had the strength of his long-armed sinewy physique. He strode out of the arbor, into the Valaty house. She had forgotten they were putting him and his mother up there tonight.

She heard laughter from the next lawn. It was a warm night, some of them would as usual be ending the evening with a midnight swim, floating, half-naked, young, gay, on their backs under the moon. Singing. Somebody had brought out a ukulele and was trying to pick out Manny's tune. As Emilia slowly passed him he found it, a slender black and white shape on the edge of the pool.

"Girl in an old-fashioned dream, I'll never forget."

She hurried in from the moon-lighted lawn. She did not want to meet Roger. She fled upstairs and looked out. Her window did not give on the back lawn; she leaned in the dimness of the back veranda. Yes, Roger was there, she saw his smooth fair head and broad shoulders, the gleam of his shirt-front, Esther hanging adoringly to his arm—her heart turned over. She mustn't meet him, not tonight in moonlight, or she would do the wicked unfair thing everything of her wanted to do. She would say to him or to little Esther, "Manny has broken our engagement." And he would say those heavenly, those hurting words to her, "You are the only woman in the world who is what I have always wanted. You are free now, marry me."

She lingered to watch him. She saw, with a pang so sharp as to show her what she gave up, Dot Gordon running up to him and chattering to him; Dot's piquant face, uplifted and intent. Dot had slipped into a gay little bathing suit, so short and white and clinging that it might have been nothing at all. And men were men.

DRIFT TO FARM NEARING RECORD

Three Square Meals a Day and Comfortable Bed Proves Powerful Magnet.

NO SIGN OF LET-UP.

(By James W. Douthat, A.P. Staff Writer.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 (A.P.)—The powerful magnet of three square meals a day and a comfortable place to sleep has lured so many persons from the city's bright lights that the farm population of U.S. is approaching the record-breaking 32,000,000 established in 1910.

So rapidly has the city-to-farm movement continued during the last three years that Department of Agricultural experts believe the number living on the soil at the end of this year will be only slightly below the peak figure.

While there is a large normal flow of population to and from the farms, the accelerated drift country-ward in recent years was attributed by the department to economic conditions. Behind the city dwellers' decision to leave, officials said, lay the belief that they could at least obtain a living on a farm.

Until 1930, the drift was toward the cities, but in that year 416,000 more persons went to the farms than the number leaving. Last year the total swelled to 656,000 and for the first three months of this year the net gain was 263,000.

If you want silence and solitude—don't advertise.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (C.P.).—Dull but persistent selling continued in the late stock market to-day, many leading shares declining 1 to more than 2 points. Losses of about 2 to 3 were recorded by Air Reduction, American Telephone, American Tobacco "B," Loew's, Union Pacific, New York Central and the Common and Preferred shares of U.S. Steel. Santafe, Allied Chemical, American Can, Case, Consolidated Gas, Dupont, National Biscuit and Public Service of N.J. were off 1 or more. General Electric dipped about a point. Transfers approximated 1,000,000 shares.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE

Montreal, Dec. 20. —(CP)— The Montreal Stock Exchange ticker ran idle for long periods this afternoon as the list showed only two or three changes from the morning standing. Demand was extremely light, hardly sufficient to support the market, and prices drifted gently lower.

Brazilian came out in board lots for the first time in the middle of the afternoon session, easing 3-8 to 9⅛. Canadian Pacific was down ¼ at 15⅜ while International Nickel was off 1-8 at 8 7-8.

Steel of Canada preferred registered the widest loss, losing ¾ at 27¼. B. C. Power yielded 5-8 to 17 5-8.

Consolidated Smelters scored the only advance, moving up a point to 62. Yesterday the issue lost four points. Shawinigan at 10 and Dominion Bridge at 14¾ were unchanged.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Dec. 30. (CP)—Quite unexpectedly and almost in the midst of the holiday lay-off, the gold stocks broke into activity this afternoon on the Standard Mining Exchange. The buying centred in Wright Hargreaves, Teck Hughes, B.C. Pioneer, Siscoe and Lake shore but there was substantial trading also in Howey and Granada, Macassa and San Antonio.

After holding several days at 33.25 Lake Shore swung up to $34 but did not hold all the gain, the close being at 33.75 up 50. McIntyre gained 10 to 23.10, Hollinger was unchanged and Dome a few cents stronger. Under heavy buying Siscoe moved up strongly to 94, for a gain of four and B.C. Pioneer had a net gain for the day of 30, closing at 4.60.

Nickel and Noranda showed only small change from $9 to $10 respectively.

TORONTO EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Dec. 20 (C.P.)—The whole Toronto Stock Exchange list weakened slightly this afternoon under the stress of holiday lethargy and the uncertain Wall Street trend. Selling developed in Massey Harris on the gloomy outlook for the implement industry and the stock fell to 2½, it low point for the year. Cockshut Plow traded at 3¾.

Interlisted charges lost the ground they gained in the last two days, Brazilian dropping to 9⅜ for a loss of ½. C.P.R. to 15½, down a quarter, Smelters down ½ to 61, while Nickel and Ford A were unchanged.

The weakening process reached out to the utilities. Montreal Power at 30⅞ was down ⅛. Small losses were marked up for Distillers Seagram, Canada Bud Breweries and Walkers Common, but Walkers Pfd. held firm at 9⅝.

Oil shares had an off-day with a light turnover in B.A. at 7⅛, unchanged, and Imperial Oil showing a loss of ⅛ to 8⅛. Consolidated Bakeries sold at a new low.

TORONTO CHEESE

TORONTO, Dec. 20 (CP)—The Toronto wholesale cheese market was steady to-day with dealers buying large, colored, paraffined and government grades at 9¾c.

BRITAIN SEEKS CANADA TRADE IN CHEMICALS

Committee in London to Study Question of Replacing United States.

AS CANADA'S PROVIDER

LONDON, Dec. 20 (C.P.)—Plans to win the Canadian chemical market are being formulated here, it has been learned. Leaders of the British industry propose to form a united sales organization to combat competition from United States.

Details will be considered by committees of the Association of British Chemical Manufacturers. The scheme was presented to the Economic Conference, Dr. E. F. Armstrong. The houses represented in the organization would sell on an agreed basis approximately to cost, and share in the expenses and profits according to their repective turnover or other convenient plan.

On account of its proximity to the United States, the Canadian market, Dr. Armstrong said, is a difficult one for the British to compete in. Canadian buyers find it easy to obtain quotations of United States goods by telephone and also prompt shipment of goods. Further, it is simple and comparatively inexpensive to send high class representatives and technical experts from United States in cases of complaint.

"I believe," said Dr. Armstrong, "from the brief survey of the situation I made that Americans give Canadians an even better service than that given the American customer. I am certain the fight will be a keen one for the American will not give up such a valuable marked without a struggle."

MONARCHISTS ON WAY HOME

Six Spanish Exiles Allowed Visit Claim Many of 132 Reported Are Ill.

AT LONELY GARRISON.

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands, Dec. 20 (C.P.).—The gunboat Canavos, carrying six Monarchists back to Spain from exile in Africa, anchored here to-day and the prisoners were removed to a hotel where they remained under guard.

They declared 132 others, bolemen, army officers and members of the families, deported last September, remained at Villa Cisneros, the lonely Spanish garrison on the West African coast. Some of them, they said, were sick.

The deportees said they were only allowed two liters of water a day to drink and to use in washing their clothes.

One of them said he would be returned to Villa Cisneros after visiting a sick wife in Spain. Others said they were ignorant of where they were being sent or whether they would be released on arrival at Cadiz, Spain.

T. P. LOBLAW IS CHANGED MAN

Oxford Group Has Changed the Life of Prominent Business Man.

GAVE DINNER FOR GROUP.

HAMILTON, Dec. 20.—(CP)—An invitation to the Oxford Group to dinner changed the life of T. P. Loblaw, Toronto, he said in an interview following a meeting of the Oxford Group here last night at First United Church. The prominent business man said "something" had put it into his heart to hold the dinner.

Mr. Lobaw told of his long association with the Presbyterian and United Churches, adding "but never before have I been able to discuss in a practical and unembarrassed manner what Christianity and God meant to me."

He said he would be "just as keen a business man as ever," but that the movement would "enable me to overcome my faults."

KILLED IN TRIPLE CRASH

MONTREAL.—Paul Lepage, 16, of Cordon, Que., died in hospital here to-day and a fire lieutenant is suffering from cuts and bruises about the body as a result of a tri-cornered collision between an automobile, a motor truck and a horse-drawn vehicle. Two others narrowly escaped serious injury. The accident happened at Pont Viau last night.

NO MOIRA FLOOD FEARED

BELLEVILLE.—Fears the Moira River here would overflow its banks following a rise of three feet in the level of the Bay of Quinte were allayed to-day when the river water remained at its customary level.

Anchor ice which had frozen at the mouth of the river was moving out to-day.

Canadian Tobacco Is Sold In England

TORONTO, December 20 (C.P.).—Eight million pounds of Canadian tobacco has been sold to an English tobacco company, Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, declared to-day. This order, he said, had relieved the situation among Ontario tobacco growers who had been unable to sell their crops.

Some weeks ago, after a conference with Col. Kennedy, the growers planned to form a co-operative company to mark the crop. In view of the English order, he said, the company wil not be formed until next year.

PRISONER REMANDED.

KINGSTON, Ont. — George A. Hendrie, charged with assaulting Peter Davis at the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery canteen here, was to-day remanded until Dec. 26 when he appeared in police court. He pleaded not guilty. Hendrie was arrested at Smith's Falls early to-day.

Crook in Drama Who Wins Favor

LONDON, Dec. 20 (C.P.) — Raymond Massey, well known actor in London, formerly of Toronto, Ont., plays the role of a crook in Frederick Lonsdale's play, "Never Come Back," being produced at the Phoenix Theatre here, and he does it so cleverly that he wins the favor of his audience even as a crook.

He is of the decent sort though in a crowd of imbecile aristocrats who form a telling background for his characterization. His name is Smith.

CANADA'S TRADE IS HOLDING UP

Stevens Refutes Statements Dominion Contributed to World Crisis.

NEW PACTS, BENEFIT.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 20. (CP) — Statements that Canada has contributed to the acceleration of the world crisis wwere refuted here by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Federal Minister of Trade and Commerce, who addressed members of the Macdonald-Cartier Club last night.

"Canada, although only 10,000,000 in population, is still the seventh trading nation of the world," he said, adding statistics prove that Canadians are holding up their trade better than any other nations, except two.

Leaving the United States out of the picture, Canada's trade with the rest of the world for the first 10 months of 1932, he said, is equal to the trade of 1930. "In other words, we have not lost in our trade with the world."

"The government does not pretend" Mr. Stevens continued, "that the measures adopted by either federal or provincial authorities are a final solution of our problems but we do contend we are discharging an immediate responsibility in regard to present conditions.

"The world crisis commenced in 1929. We took office in 1930. So whoever was to blame, it was not the Conservatives."

Mr. Stevens dealt in detail with the Imperial Conference agreements and declared: "There are great benefits accruing from the Ottawa agreements."

Hon. T. G. Murphy, Minister of the Interior, launched a vigorous denunciation of proposals for depreciating Canada's currency. Mr. Murphy predicted such a policy would have nothing but the most dire effects so far as Canadians generally are concerned.

an endearment, and the second part of the name was applied more strictly in its actual meaning. This thought was illustrated in the advertising that accompanied it, and Mr. Dawson submitted as an exhibit a window sign showing the figure of a bathing girl diving into water. A "honey" "dipt" or about to take a dip into a swimming pool.

Plaintiff said he had spent a very considerable sum of money as a regular advertiser in Peterborough and Oshawa papers, had used window and theatre signs, and had created a demand for "hunnydipt" products by supplying them free at church suppers, children's dinners and similar contributions where the name and quality of the product would become known and receive favorable publicity.

It was admitted that the defendant had not used the Dawson trademark as such, but Mr. Dawson stated that he had asked for "hunnydipt do-nuts" in Mr. Wright's store and received doughnuts of their manufacture. Mr. Sheehy contended that infringement could be oral, and there was also the alleged act of "passing out" the defendants products as the plaintiff's.

Mr. Dawson said that the Wright doughnuts were somewhat similar in appearance to "Hunnydipts", but that the difference was apparent at a glance to the experienced baker and confectioner. It was alleged that the public was of the impression that "Hunnydipts" were also sold in the Wright store, and as a consequence plaintiffs stated that they had suffered a serious loss of business by "unfair competition."

Robert Begley, called by E. F. Sheehy, plaintiff's counsel, testified that he had known "Hunnydips" for nine or ten years, but not outside Peterborough. While living in Oshawa he had purchased this confectionery after Mr. Dawson opened a branch of his business there.

"I didn't try to buy "Hunnydips" before the Dawson store was opened, and I never heard of the product there until Mr Dawson came there."

Thomas Graham, Bowmanville, next witness, testified that last April he had asked for "Hunnydips" at the defendants Betty Cake shops in Oshawa and a clerk told him, "We don't sell them any more." Witness said he had been sent to Mr. Wright's store by Mr. Dawson as his employee, but was not working for him.

John H. Cridland, painter of this city, said that on November 16, 1931, before Dawson's store was opened in Oshawa, he and Mr. Dawson had lunch in the Betty Cake shop in Oshawa.

"After lunch Mr. Dawson asked the clerk for half a dozen of "Hunnydips" and she said she had never heard of them."

Feature of Copyright

Mr. Sheehy in arguing that there had been an infringement of copyright said that the word "Hunnydips" was the essential feature of the trademark. The pictorial detail of a girl diving into water was the central idea of the trademark.

"That would not occur to one person in a million", His Lordship said. "The impression would be that the confectionery had been dipped in honey."

"No one went into the defendants store and asked for Dawson's "Hunnydips"."- Mr. Justice Raney remarked.

Mr. Sheehy said that if customers in Oshawa had asked for honey-dipped doughnuts in the defendant's store there would not be the same objection, but the phonetic element was important when the customer asked for "Hunnydips". Mr. Sheehy's argument ranged over precedents, and Mr. Justice Raney mentioned a case involving a trademark of corsets.

George Wright, defendant, said he had been a baker forty-five years and had been treating doughnuts with a honey process for four years.

"I made up my own formula," defendant said, and produced a notebook in which it was written. "I gave the idea to the Fleischman Yeast Company four years ago, because this was a yeast-raised product. The company improved on it only in appearance, and for a cheaper solution. Probably a year after they sent out this formula to every baker in the country."

Mr. Wright said he first heard of the trademark in April. When it was first called to the attention of a clerk, as a complaint, he advised her not to use the word honey-dipped.

"I never heard of this word 'Hunnydips' until I was served with the writ in this case," Mr. Wright said.

To Mr. Sheehy, defendant said he was not suggesting that his formula was the same as Mr. Dawson's.

"I have no idea what they use," Mr. Wright said.

DEMOCRATS

—The New York Herald Tribune to-day publishes the following copyrighted despatch from Paris:

"As an anti-climax to its refusal a week ago to pay the war debt instalment due to the United States, the Chamber of Deputies has just learned that it had voted on April 1, an appropriation to cover the $19,261,432.50 which it subsequently defaulted on December 15. The appropriation was contained in the 1932-1933 budget.

"Premier Edouard Herriot, who was voted out of office by the Chamber lart week because he demanded that it approve the payment due to the United States, need not have risked his political neck. True, he had pledged himself to consult Parliament on the question, but that was not until after the appropriation already had been approved as part of the budget. The budget vote was taken when Pierre Laval was Premier. M. Herriot succeeded him in the office in June, two months after the payment had been approved without any one's having paid any attention to it.

Amazes Deputies.

"The disclosure, in a newspaper, of the action taken last April, amazed Deputies, who only too plainly had been ignorant, during the bitter debate last week, that the proposed payment which they were refusing already had been sanctioned by them. If any officials remembered about the budget, they remained silent.

"Speculation was rife to-day whether the disclosure of the appropriation would have any effect on the policy of the new Premier, Joseph Paul-Boncour."

Canadian Radium

PARIS, Dec. 20. — (C. P. Cable.)—It was announced here to-night arrangements have been made to furnish Mademe Curie, famous discovered of the radium treatment for cancer with supplies of radium from Canada. Madame Curie has been handicapped in her research of recent years by inadequate supplies.

The new arrangement has been effected by Major Bernard Day, representing interests closely connected with the recent development of the new Great Bear Lake fields where radium is being extracted in large quantities from pitch blend deposits.

Jail Breaker

Irene McCann, called one of Missouri's most "hardboiled" women, who with another prisoner escaped from the prison farm near Jefferson, Mo. The women sawed their way out of cells designed especially for incorrigibles. Mrs. McCann was serving a ten-year sentence for murder and had made a previous escape but was recaptured.

SMALL DISPUTE TIES UP MINE

Workers Strike as Officials Refuse to Fire Man They Ousted.

ARGUMENT OVER AXE.

SPRINGHILL, N.S., Dec. 20 (CP)—A personal difference between two miners, branching out into the question of a union's integrity and the right of a company to deal with its own employees, threatened the Christmas-week pay envelopes of 1,200 men to-day.

Three weeks before George Charmenski's axe had disappeared; he accused Hank Condy of stealing it; a meeting of the local union, United Mine Workers of America, absolved Condy and ordered Charmenski to appear before it and apologize. This Charmenski did not do.

And so, last night, the Springhill local, solemnly called together, expeled Charmenski for a term of 99 years.

Forthwith Sub-District Board Member Howard Tattrie and International Board Member William Hayes were appointed a committee to interview Mine Superintendent Alex McLeod. The superintendent refused to dismiss Charmenski; the company had nothing against him. The union declared its members would not work with a non-union man.

And so, when the "change shift" whistles blew, at 11 o'clock last night, only the men who man the pumps and guard against accidents went down.

Canadian Provinces Pay Off $10,873,000

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (C.P.). — Canadian provinces retired $10,873,000 of funded indebtedness payable in United States gold coin in December, according to the Dominion Securities Corporation.

The bulk of these payments consisted of $6,158,000 Province of Manitoba 4 per cent. bonds and $4,015,000 Province of British Columbia 4 per cent. notes, both retired December 15. Since about $2,500,000 of this total was refunded in New York, the effect has been a net reduction in the U.S. dollar obligations of these two provinces of $7,673,000. Other maturities paid off add $700,000 to this figure.

Flu Costs North Bay School Board $176

NORTH BAY, Dec. 20 (C.P.) — The recent epidemic of influenza that swept through this city cost the public school board the sum of $176, according to accounts for the past month submitted at the Board of Education. The added expenditure was for the services of 13 occasional teachers who, replacing members of the regular teaching staff taken ill with the 'flu taught for a total of 44 days.

"SIAMESE TWIN" PUPS.

OTTAWA.—Dog fanciers here are thumbing record books in vain to find a precedent for the birth of "Siamese twins" to a pure-bred Boston terrier owned by Henry Girouard. The pups, joined from head to girth, lived over an hour. One was a male, the other female. There were seven pups altogether in the litter.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO Dec. 20. (AP).—Reports that Canada and Argentine were competing sharply and offering wheat lower prices led to early downturns to-day in grain values here. Prospects that the United tSates government crop report this afternoon would make an unfavorable exhibit failed to act as an immediated offset. Opening at ¼-¾ setback, Chicago wheat futures held near the initial range. Corn started ⅛-⅜ down and subsequently altered little.

1933 WILL SHOW NEW RECORDS IN CANADA'S GOLD PRODUCTION

Approximately $63,500,000 Taken From Mines of Four Provinces During Past Year.

MAKE NEW HISTORY.

TORONTO, Dec. 20. (C.P.).—Canada stands on the threshold of the greatest gold production in her history. During the year just passed, approximately $63,500,000, or nearly enough to meet the recent British war debt payment to the United States, was taken from the mines of four provinces. But, according to mining men and prospectors, 1933 will show new records.

Production figures for the four "gold provinces," Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba and British Columbia, are approximately as follows:

Ontario	$48,000,000
Quebec	9,000,000
Manitoba	2,500,000
British Columbia	4,000,000

The reason for the expected increase is not hard to find. Day after day, winter and summer, prospectors are conning the northlands for the precious metal. Some of them, backed by large mining companies, head into the wilds by aeroplane, covering in a few hours distances it would take days to cover ordinarily. Others, unable to finance aeroplane flights, for planes cost money, are still using the time-honored methods. Some of them squat beside a running stream, and with a dish-pan and their experience manage to "pan" a good living.

Sink Shafts In Winter.

Still more of them are sinking shafts even in winter. They pile brush on their frozen claims, fire it, and then wait. The heat penetrates the frozen ground and soon they are able to dig or hammer at the quartz veins.

The fact that gold cannot be exported from the country has given added impetus to their efforts. For the Canadian Government pays the premium the miners would ordinarily receive by selling their metal in the United States.

Years ago, there were few prospectors in the north. A miner might go for months without seeing another. But things are different now. Just a short time ago, prospectors in the Great Bear Lake district held a "field day" with hundreds attending. Among them was one woman. Years ago, too, food supplies presented a problem. The problem is solved now. For in most of the districts stores are operating. And the stores sell everything from the ever-handy can of beans to the latest thing in dry-goods. Practically all their stocks are brought in by aeroplane. Strangely enough, canned peaches are sold by the case. The prospectors simply can't get enough.

"More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold," an old prospector paraphrased.

Hospital Gets 25 Cents from Will

LONDON, Dec. 20 (C.P.)—A bequest of a shilling was made to St. Paul's Hospital, London, in the will of Dr. Edward Dennis Vinrace, a surgeon of Birmingham, who died worth about $50,000. The deceased had been a visiting doctor in the out-patient department of St. Paul's Hospital, an honorary apointment, for some years, but this had terminated five years prior to his death. At this time he had a practice in Bloomsbury, London, but at the time of his death he was retired and a resident of Birmingham. No explanation as to why he had left the hospital only a shilling was forthcoming, but it is understood he had resented the automatic termination of his engagement as honorary surgeon under an age limit.

CANOE COMPANY WINDOW DISPLAY

In Tune With Seasons and Gladdens Hearts of Lovers of Winter Sports.

BEST OF EQUIPMENT.

Giving another example of the progressiveness of Peterborough manufacturers and adding a note of color to George street is a display of skiis and toboggans in the window of the store just south of the Bank of Toronto. In tune with the season, the window display gladdens the heart of all lovers of winter sports.

The window is worthy of close inspection, since it displays neatly the famous products of the Peterborough Canoe Company, the handiwork of local skilled workers. Everything exhibited in the window can be purchased in local stores and the display was made possible through the co-operation of the Bank of Toronto with the Peterborough Canoe Company.

Keen Canadian youngsters will raise a loud cheer if Santa Claus brings some of these articles on Christmas morning. Skiing is now without doubt one of the most popular sports throughout Canada, not only among the youth, but also among those who crave to stay young and enjoy life's thrills.

The age-old sport of tobogganing has maintained its popularity, too, and with the weatheman promising a real winter, should be enjoyed to the full this year.

Skiis and toboggans manufactured by the Peterborough Canoe Company have gained a reputation for quality that is known across Canada. Sixty Peterborough men were employed for three months making skiis and toboggans to supply Canada, and in doing so the money that formerly went to Norway, Switzerland, and the United States for such goods remained in Canada. No skiis or toboggans made anywhere excel those made in Peterborough.

"Buy Peterborough Goods for Quality," is the slogan that travellers of J. J. Turner's Ltd., which firm co-operates with the Peterborough Canoe Company in the sale of its products, are spreading across Canada.

Mr. Lyons of Galt who has been preaching in the Gospel Hall at Lang was called to take charge of the funeral service of the late Clifford Barrons.

Mr. John Edwards of Lang and Mr. Parrington of Peterborough attended the funeral of the late C. Barrons.

Miss Valla Johnson of Toronto is visiting Cordova friends.

We are sorry to report that Earl Steenburg is confined to his home through illness.

Friends of Mr. W. Hamilton will be pleased to learn his condition is much improved.

Miss Evelyn Steenburg of Healey Falls is spending the Christmas season with her parents here.

Mr. D. Buchanan is able to resume his duties as principal of Cordova public school after being confined to his home through illness.

There is a slight epidemic of mumps throughout this district, but no serious cases have developed.

During the next three months Sunday School sessions will be discontinued at the Free Methodist Church.

Lifford Line

A jolly card party and dance was held on Friday evening in Lifford Community Hall with about sixty people attending, the extremely cold weather preventing a number from being present.

Progressive euchre was enjoyed until eleven o'clock when W. L. Hannah announced the prizewinners as follows, ladies' prize, Mrs. George Page, a box of stationery; gents' prize, G. Page, a pack of cards; consolation prizes went to Marguerite Neals and Thomas Mulligan.

The Lifford Line A.Y.P.A. met for their semi-monthly gathering on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Sisson it being impossible to hold the meeting at the home of Miss Addie Scott as arranged on account of the illness of her sister.

About twenty members and a few guests were in attendance and an excellent program was put on with Misses Muriel Hanna, Aileen Peters and Isobel Sisson in charge.

A delightful contest "Vehicles" was put on with prizes awarded for same. Miss Aileen Peters asked some very original riddles which the members found brain-twisting as well as most entertaining. Miss Vera Strachan gave an appreciated recitation while Miss Trimble contributed an interesting reading.

George Tims, Percy Hamilton and Robert Sisson provided good music at intervals.

Miss Aileen Peters delighted the gathering by dancing "The Sailor's Hornepipe."

Mrs. W. L. Hannah and Muriel assisted the hostess family in the service of refreshments and a jolly recreation period was enjoyed.

It was arranged to hold the next meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Peters on December 29. A debate "Resolved that the Automobile has done more good than harm" will be an interesting feature. Aileen Peters and Percy Hamilton taking the affirmative and Bill Ridout and Harold Thwaite taking the negative sides.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 20. — Wheat tumbled yesterday to within ⅛ cent of the season's lowest price for Chicago May contracts.

A collapse in the Liverpool wheat market to new all-time bottom quotations on March delivery pulled values down both here and at Winnipeg. Enlarged export demand for Canadian wheat, however, led to subsequent rallies.

Wheat in Chicago closed nervous, ⅝c to ¾c under Saturday's finish. Corn at ¼c to ⅜c decline to ⅛c to ¼c advance. Oats, ⅛c to ¼c up, and provisions varying from 12 cents setback to an equal gain.

A factor in the setbacks of Chicago wheat values was selling on the part of a house with foreign connections. The price downturns here were also accompanied by considerable stop-loss selling. On the other hand, there was late purchasing attributed to United States Government sponsored agencies.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Dec. 20:— Active trading in Christmas turkeys featured the produce and dairy market here yesterday. Local distributors were buying their supplies to take care of retail purchases. Prices were slightly lower, sales being reported at 16½ to 17 cents a pound for A grade, 14½ to 15 cents for B, and 11½ to 12 cents for C grade. It was reported today that a lone sale had been made last week at 16 cents for A, 14 cents for B and 11 cents for C.

Fresh eggs were generally lower. Grade Ontario fresh extras in carlots or less at 34 to 36 cents and first at 20 to 31 cents were both off 2 cents, while pullets held firm at 27 cents a dozen. Storage eggs, in carlots, were unchanged at 21 cents for extras, 18 cents for firsts, and 17 cents a dozen for seconds. To retailers, fresh specials and fresh extras, in cartons, lost 2 cents a dozen. Receipts were 255 cases.

For carlots or less of No. 1 finest grass butter, 21½ to 21¾ cents a pound remained the general quotation. Receipts were 16 boxes.

Cheese was unchanged at 8¼ to 8½ cents for current receipts of Ontario white, 9½ to 9¾ cents for current Ontario colored, and 10½ to 11 cents for Ontario early season make. Receipts were 117 boxes.

Potatoes were steady at 90 cents for New Brunswick or Prince Edward Island Green Mountains, per 90-pound bag, and $1.00 for Prince Edward Island Green Mountains, per 90-pound bag.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, December 20. — A little export business reached the pit of the Grain Exchange here yesterday in the early stages of the market, but when this petered out a gradual sagging brought prices down to a close that registered losses of ⅝c to ⅞c.

December closed at 40¼c, May at 42¾c, and July at 43¾c.

Offerings were not pressing, but traders found liquidation difficult. Export out of Vancouver was estimated at 750,000, but Atlantic sales were small. The general run of news was bullish, but had no effect on the market.

Argentine exporters reduced their weight basis suggesting the new crop is not shaping up to expectations, and reports of weather were unfavorable. The official estimate of the crop showed a reduction of 25,000,000 bushels from Broomhall's forecast.

Export was not reflected in the cash wheat market, and spreads there remained unchanged in dull trading. Cash coarse grains trading, too, was negligible.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Dec. 20.—Prices on eggs to country shippers and retailers held steady yesterday on the local market and brokers offered graded lots at the lower levels in effect last week-end. The demand for fresh supplies was fair, but heavier receipts were quite ample to meet requirements. Country shippers were quoted 30 cents for extras, 25c for firsts, 20c for pullet extras and 15c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned, while retailers were offered extras in cartons at 38c, extras loose at 36c, firsts loose at 32c; pullet extras loose at 26c and seconds loose at 21c.

Butter

Trade in creamery solids was slow, but prices were steady and the undertone of the market was firm. Brokers offered choice Ontario makes at 21½c and No. 2 grade at 20¾c, with Western finest at 21½c delivered Toronto. Prices to the trade on prints were steady with those quoted last week at 24½c for No. 1 and 24c for No. 2.

Cheese

New cheese was in demand and supplies being light prices advanced ¼c per pound. Brokers offered new large at 10c, new twins at 10¼c, and new triplets at 10½c, while quotations to the trade were unchanged.

CAMBRIDGE BANS CHAPERONS BUT OXFORD RULES REMAIN

Pentagon Club Now Invites Men But Oxford Colleges are Strict

HAVE REAL GUARDS

Oxford, Eng. — Chaperonage has been abolished at Girton, the famous women's college at Cambridge, but Oxford women undergraduates are still unemancipated in this respect.

There is, moreover, no apparent intention of relaxing the chaperonage rules here—at any rate in the near future.

When women undergraduates have men to tea in the precincts of colleges they must entertain them in special rooms, and chaperons must be present.

When women visit men undergraduates the chaperons must always be there, too.

With chaperons in cars, on the river, at dances, and present at other functions, the life of an undergraduate woman at Oxford is indeed well guarded.

The chaperon watches over her almost from matriculation to degree, and in addition the student has to obtain permission to do most things—to go out at night, for instance. When she does go out, she must say where she is going.

The girls must obtain permission to go on the river, and pass "efficiency tests" with the object of making sure that they will not drown themselves.

It must also be made clear that they will not indulge in unladylike conduct.

Recently, however, the Pentagon Club, the chief women's club in Oxford, created a sensation, and members are now allowed to invite men guests to tea if they write their own names and the names of their guests in a book and comply with a few other formalities.

This is regarded as the greatest step towards woman's emancipation in Oxford for years.

The men's colleges have regulations about women. Women are not allowed in them after 9 o'clock at night without special permission, and there are colleges in the halls of which women have never dined.

BRIGHTON HOPES TO SAVE SUSSEX DOWNS

Town Planners Ask Landowners to Co-operate

Brighton, Eng. — The Brighton, Hove and district joint town planning advisory committee will ask the authorities to set up a "downland preservation joint committee".

Sir Herbert Carden, who presided, said it was recommended that the committee delegate the town planning powers to a joint executive in the belief that this was the only way for securing the preservation of the downs and park lands as a whole. Landowners will be asked to co-operate.

The downs area above the 300-foot contour amounts to about 30,280 acres.

FIND WHOLE FAMILY BURIED IN HOME 2,300 YEARS AGO

Scientists Piece Together Astonishing Story Revealed in Durham Stone Quarry

ROOF OF CAVE FELL

London.—Geologists climbing about a newly found cave in a limestone quarry at Bishop Middleham, Durham, have pieced together the astonishing story of a family which perished there 400 years before Christ.

There were eight people in the family, and they all used the cave as their home. The men stood well over six feet high.

The family's milk probably came from cattle and goats, the remains of which were found near the cave. There were badgers and wolves in profusion for the men to hunt with fine bone spears.

The "kitchen" was at the back of the cave. Marks of smoke on the stone show where the fire had been.

The family lived happily—but they died together in the cave which had been their home. The roof collapsed without warning, and for 2,300 years their bones lay under the stone.

The cave itself was hidden until a modern quarryman fired a shot, which revealed the entrance to it.

Then scientists were summoned. They included Dr. Arthur Raistrick and Professor Hickling, of the geological department of Armstrong College, Newcastle, and Miss Bates, of the British Museum.

Dr. Raistrick said to a reporter: "The men lived in the early Iron Age. This discovery provides a definite link between the Bronze Age and the early Roman times."

One of the specimens found in the cave was shown to Professor G. Elliot Smith, the anthropologist.

"This is obviously the lower jaw of a neolithic woman," he said. "She was a frail woman, about five feet high.

"She lost the teeth on one side of her jaw before she died—probably because she ate too much sand with her oatmeal."

TWO GIRLS START ON BIG SECRET AIR TRIP

Going to Cape Town, But Did Not Tell Even Their Parents

London.—Two young English girls—neither is more than twenty-three—made a secret start from Heston aerodrome the other day, on a flight to Capetown.

Their friends and most of the aerodrome staff thought the pair were merely off on a trip to Paris.

Both are accomplished airwomen. One is Miss Joan Page, daughter of Sir Arthur Page, chief justice of Burma, and one of the five women in England licensed to fly as a pilot for hire. The other is Miss Audrey Sale Barker, famous ski racer.

The two women had planned this holiday flight to Capetown for some time.

They expected when they reached Marseilles, there to meet Sir Arthur and Lady Page, who are on their way to Burma, and to give them the surprise of their lives.

The flight will continue by way of Corsica and Tunis, and down the length of Africa on the route used by Imperial Airways liners.

An R.A.F. machine will escort the airwomen's plane across the Sudanese desert from Khartoum.

STAKES WIFE AT $1.08 RECEIVES 41 WOUNDS

Polish Woman Resents Low Value Set on Her

Warsaw.—A Polish woman of twenty-six mutilated her husband, inflicting exactly 41 wounds. The man kept a wayside inn and she helped him. One night he started to gamble. He lost everything. Then he staked his wife, putting a value on her of $1.08. It was the amount that infuriated her, according to her testimony to the police.

SILKEN MYSTERIES IN BACHELOR'S MANSION

Sir Philip Sassoon Lends His House for Exhibition of Lingerie

London.—Society women flocked to Sir Philip Sassoon's house in Park Lane the other day. Each one of them brought a hush-hush presentation of a silken slip, gossamer nightdress, or some sort of fancy undie. In some cases they put them on a statue in the house.

Sir Philip Sassoon is society's coldest bachelor, society's richest baronet and society's fine arts patron.

He entertains prime ministers. His purse and personality have played a large part in public affairs. His house has been the setting for priceless antique exhibitions. Now he has lent it to the Royal School of Needlework for the display of negligees and nightdresses.

The Queen and the Duchess of York attended the show.

ENGLAND'S "PERFECT EVE" DEVELOPS A PUNCH

(1) Frank Brangwyn, eminent English artist, when recently engaged to paint murals for Radio City, New York, complained loudly that women are not what they were and that he couldn't find a model for a figure of Eve. Now, after he has seen Miss Celia James, 19, of Brighton, Eng., he takes it all back. She is O.K.—perfect. Celia punches the bag to keep in form. CHINESE PRINCESS IS MRS. CHENG IN LONDON

Ex-Emperor's Sister and Her Husband Will Probably Visit Former Tutor

London. — The ex-emperor of China's sister will arrive in London in a few days with her husband. As far as is known she is the first Chinese princess to visit England.

The princess and her husband will be staying here as private persons, and they wish to be known as Mr. and Mrs. Cheng (Cheng being the young man's surname).

"Mrs. Cheng is pretty not yet 21 years old. She speaks a little English and was married last April in Manchuria.

She is a daughter of Prince Chun who 30 years ago was sent to Berlin from Peking to apologize to the kaiser for the death of the German minister during the Boxer rising.

"Mrs. Cheng is pretty, not yet 21 small boy, became emperor of China, is now regent of Manchukuo, the new state which set up after the Japanese occupation of Manchuria.

Mr. Cheng, too, is not much beyond 20 years of age. He is a grandson of Mr. Cheng Hsiao-hsu, prime minister of the Manchurian state. He speaks English.

It is the wish of the young couple while in London to meet privately representative people. They will probably during the first part of their stay be the guests at Kew of Sir Reginald F. Johnston, who has known both the princess and her husband since they were children. Sir Reginald was tutor of the princess's brother and saved the lad's life by getting him away to the legation quarter in a motor car during the trouble of 1924 in Peking.

CRUISING CHRISTMAS FOR MANY BRITISHERS

Never Before Have Shipping Companies Had Such Heavy Yuletide Bookings

London.—There is to be a cruising Christmas this year.

Thousands of people are abandoning the traditional fireside Christmas for the first time to spend the holiday on the high seas.

Never before have the shipping companies had such heavy Yuletide bookings.

The success of the summer holiday cruises, and the cheap rates is responsible.

Hundreds of people will eat their Christmas dinner in the Mediterranean or amid Atlantic islands. Many others will be on their way to Palestine and the West Indies.

One of the cheapest trips is offered in the Asturias—five days at sea for eight guineas—spending Christmas Day at Santander.

CLAIM NEW ENGINE CAN CUT RAIL RUNNING COST IN HALF

One-Man Oil-Electric Locomotives Demonstrated at Newcastle-on-Tyne

RUNCIMAN INSPECTS

Newcastle-on-Tyne, England.—Mr. Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, paid a special visit to Newcastle to examine new oil-electric locomotives built here, which, would, it is claimed, if put in general use, save £22,000,000 yearly to British railway companies.

The locomotives have Diesel engines, coupled to electric generators and motor power. They are capable, it is said, of hauling 900 passengers at a time at over 70 miles an hour.

The driver sits behind plate-glass windows, and by merely pressing the self-starter and pulling a lever, can operate the locomotive with greater ease than is required to drive a motor car. It is claimed that by using these oil-electric locomotives, railway running costs would be cut down by 50 per cent. and services speeded up.

The demonstration was with four 1,700 horsepower locomotives, ordered by the Buenos Aires Southern Railway, and ready to be shipped to South America.

Each new locomotive can be handled by one man at a fuel cost of only 7 1-2d. to 8d. per hour, and used both day and night continuously.

A six-months' trial with an oil-electric motor train has just been completed on the L. and N. E. R.

NAIRN'S NEW HARBOR COST KEEPS RISING

Estimate of £47,000 Already Exceeded by £14,000

Nairn, Scotland.—Nairn's new harbor, which was estimated to cost £47,000, has already exceeded that amount by over £14,000, and considerable more work has to be done.

Local fishermen will benefit greatly when they can berth their boats practically at their own doors instead of trekking away to Inverness.

Nairn, too, will benefit by the increased trade of repairing and outfitting.

NEW LIVERPOOL CATHEDRAL IS PLANNED TO HOLD 50,000

Contributions Include Amazing Outpouring of Small Gifts and Personal Treasures

WILL COST £3,000,000

Liverpool, Eng.—Dr. Downey, Roman Catholic archbishop of Liverpool, has revealed in a pastoral letter read in all churches of the archdiocese that the foundation stone of the proposed new Liverpool Metropolitan cathedral will be laid on Whit-Monday next, June 5.

The new building will be one of the largest cathedrals in the world, holding 50,000 people, and costing £3,000,000. It will be the centre of Roman Catholic life in the north of England.

Great significance lies in the thousands of acts of personal sacrifice for the building. Gold rings, old watches, cheap trinkets treasured for sentimental reasons have been sacrificed to provide money for the cathedral. Children have sold pencils and cigarettes and saved their pennies. A famous tenor has recorded his voice for the same object.

Dr. Downey has received postal orders of 6d., or 3d. in stamps, as mites towards the £3,000,000.

From the poorest parishes in Liverpool, where there is much unemployment, the income has been the greatest. Never has it fallen below £1,000 a month since the cathedral fund was started.

SAYS TRAIN WRECKERS TOOK A SHOT AT HIM

Man Was Investigating Obstruction on Track Near Napsbury, Hants

Napsbury, Eng.—An attempt to wreck a train and the firing of a shot at a porter who was sent to investigate were described to newsmen by L. M. S. railway officials here.

It is alleged that two heavy sleepers were dropped from a bridge shortly before the approach of the express train from St. Pancras to Bradford and Leeds.

But for the fact that a local engine ran into the first obstruction, the express might have been wrecked. The engine-driver reported to a signalman that he had run into the sleeper, and the express was held up four miles from the scene.

A porter who was sent along the line to investigate, states that when he reached the spot near the bridge he discovered that the local engine had cut a sleeper in two. He was about to leave to report when, he states, a shot was fired at him, and another sleeper was dropped from the bridge the bridge on to the line.

Police and railway officials were rushed to the scene and an extensive search of the line and of the surrounding district was made.

RUNAWAY RECORD SET AT DARTMOOR

Bloodhounds, Planes and 150 Police Eluded a Week

Exeter, England.—The two Dartmoor runaways, John Michael Gasken and Frederick Amey, were recaptured near Exeter, 25 miles from the prison, after nearly seven days of liberty, a record in the long years of Dartmoor's history.

They eluded aeroplanes, bloodhounds and 150 police on foot and in cars. The hounds, they said, were at one time within ten yards of them. They took their capture good-naturedly, told the police all about their adventures, and were given a hearty meal and cigarettes.

BREACH-OF-PROMISE SUIT AFTER 31 YEARS

But Miss Powell Loses Case Against Dr. Reidy at Swansea, Eng.

Swansea, Eng.—Breach of promise after 31 years was alleged against Dr. W. A. Reidy, when Miss Sarah Ann Powell sued him at assizes here. She lost her case.

Miss Powell, who is 51, entered the court with a parcel from which she produced a cream dress, saying she made it in 1913 as a wedding dress. Her 82-year-old mother came to court with her.

Conducting her own case, Miss Powell said she had waited for marriage since the Boer War. She met the doctor in 1901 at Mass-y-cwmmer.

"He keeps on saying he is going to get married at a reasonable time," she said. "I have waited all this time, 31 years last July. I am waiting still, all the time, and I am getting a bit upset over it."

She added that the doctor had never written to her or given her a present.

Mr. Trevor Hunter, K.C., for the doctor said: "I suggest all you have said is a delusion."

The judge said the law required corroboration, and there was none.

NOTED YOUNG MAN KILLED ON TOP TRAIN

Son of Sir Robert Kindersley, Famous Banker, Meets Strange Fatality

London.—In a strange tragedy near Farnham, Surrey, Richard Kindersley, son of Sir Robert Kindersley, famous banker, lost his life.

He drove away from a house at Worplesdon where he had been dining, and two miles along the road to Bagshot met with an accident, crashing the car he was driving. He went to Brookwood Station, hoping to find a telephone by which he could inform the police.

Then he must have clambered on the roof of a coach of a train and met his death by striking his head against a bridge.

It is supposed that, shaken by the car smash, he was told by the station signalman to look for the porter on the up platform and that he was searching in the shadows for the porter when the down Farnham train came in.

Mr. Kindersley, realizing that the train would take him to some place at which he could get garage attention, dashed across the line and climbed on to the footboard of the train just as it was starting—the train stopped for only thirty seconds.

Perhaps the door he tried would not open readily—any way, it would have opened against him. Probably he remembered train-jumping exploits he had performed at Hollywood, and chose to climb to the roof of the carriage as the best way out of his dangerous position.

An amazing feature is that the young man passed safely through the long Pirbright tunnel, the top of this tunnel being only about eight inches above the highest part of the coach roofs. As the train passed under the Foxhill bridge, he was struck and killed.

He was found dead, lying across the top of the coach when the train reached Farnham.

FAMOUS DOCTOR NOW MEDICAL FREE LANCE

Sir W. Arbuthnot Lane, 76, Off Register, to Fight Disease by Prevention

London.—Sir William Arbuthnot Lane, one of Britain's leading surgeons, and a famous expert-on diet, has by his own request had his name removed from the medical register on the ground that he had ceased to practice.

Sir William has just returned from a voyage to South America. He is seventy-six years old. For some time he has been president of the New Health Society.

In reply to a wireless message sent to him by the London Express, he said:

"Being firmly convinced that, by prevention alone, diseases peculiar to civilization can be avoided, I am determined to be free from the restrictions imposed by the general medical council.

"I am hoping thus to be more able to help in educating the public in the knowledge of the laws of health."

FLYING FERRIES WILL ADD DUBLIN SERVICE

Planes to Holyhead Will Connect With Those Going to London

London.—An important air development of the near future is a Dublin-Holyhead service, which is being planned to start early next year and will connect with a service to London.

Holiday traffic this year has encouraged the growth of short-distance air-services. The "ferry" services between Portsmouth and the Isle of Wight, Blackpool and the Isle of Man, Bristol and Cardiff, and between Hull and Grimsby have become especially popular.

The Bristol-Cardiff air service covers the 15 miles across the Bristol Channel in less than 15 minutes. This air service has been extended to Bath.

EX-KAISER SPURNS RELATIVE WHO BECOMES DISHWASHER

Russian Husband of Former Ruler's Sister Won't Capitalize Wedding, He Says

INCOME CUT OFF

Luxemburg—"I am ready to do anything for money, except to capitalize my marriage to Princess Victoria, the ex-Kaiser's sister," Alexander Zoubkoff, the former dishwasher and brother-in-law of the ex-Kaiser, says.

After a brief life of luxury as the husband of the wealthy Princess Victoria, who secured a divorce and died recently, Zoubkoff is now penniless, hungry, and without work.

He has considered writing his memoirs and giving lectures telling of his many love affairs, but he insists that he will not mention the name of his former royal wife.

When he first came to Luxemburg he lived in a castle along the Moselle. Piece by piece his worldly goods were lost, and in recent months he has kept himself from starvation by working as a waiter or dishwasher in Luxemburg restaurants, as a sandwich board man in the public parks, and once as a taxi-cab driver.

The ex-Kaiser will do nothing for his brother-in-law. Zoubkoff tried several times to get word to the ex-Kaiser in Holland and wrote many letters, but received no reply.

When Princess Victoria obtained her divorce, Zoubkoff's income was cut off. Then she died, and her property went to the Hohenzollerns. Zoubkoff, who is a Russian, aged 31, was told to stay out of Germany.

Possessing a Nansen passport, which the League of Nations granted to Russian and other homeless exiles, he must be invited by a foreign government before he can go abroad.

His own family, while not wealthy, lives in comfortable circumstances, and now that her son is in real need his mother is understood to have guaranteed to pay his hotel bills so long as he stays in Luxemburg.

MILAN HONORS IL DUCE WITH 360-FOOT TOWER

Marks Eleventh Year of Fascism With City's Highest Structure

Rome. — A giant tower, greater in height than any building hitherto erected in Milan, is to be built in that city to commemorate the eleventh year of Fascism.

Milan, being a flat city set in the midst of a plain, has always had an affection for tall buildings, and the present tower will be 360 feet high. The original plans had envisaged a building 254 feet high, but it was discovered that the Madonna on the cathedral was higher than this. The plans were therefore scrapped and the new designs completed.

The scheme has received the approval of Signor Mussolini, who has decreed that the tower, defying all competitors in Italy, shall be called "the Lictor." It will be built in the central public gardens, and as well as being used for wireless and as a lighthouse for aircraft, it will have a top story of glass containing restaurants and a complete promenade.

TOO MANY OFFICIALS FOR SOVIET BUDGET

Government Seeks Retrenchment to Balance Revenues

Moscow.—The "Pravda" publishes an elaborate program of administrative economies. Sarcastic references are made to the superabundance of government officials. Drastic curtailment is proposed.

The Soviet government is also faced with the problem of balancing its budget and reducing expenditure. All-round retrenchment may produce unemployment. Hopes are fixed upon improved relations with Austria and France.

An article is published in the "Isvestia" on the desirability of a Franco-Russian trade agreement. It argues that if an agreement is possible with Japan, despite the clash of interests, much more is it possible with France, despite political incompatibility.

MAN FOUND BURNED

John Golden of Isle of Wight Meets Tragic Death

Shanklin, Isle of Wight.—A verdict of accidental death was returned at the inquest here on Mr. John Golden, a well-known resident, aged fifty-four, whose charred body was found in a shed demolished by fire at the back of his house in Clarence Gardens here.

KILLED WOMEN HE 'LOVED' WHILE 'UNCONSCIOUS', IS PLEA

Austrian Declares Uncontrolable Impulse Forced Seven Murders

Linz, Austria—A man who admits that he has killed seven women during the past 20 years began his trial here a few days ago for murder.

He is Franz Leitgeb, a 53-year-old butcher, and the defence is that he is a maniac similar to Peter Kurten, the Dusseldorf ripper.

Leitgeb says he acted under an uncontrollable impulse when killing the women he loved, but the public prosecutor declares that the "impulse" was greed for money.

As a young man Leitgeb, in 1912, strangled his 45-year-old mistress. She was found sitting on her bed with a rope round her neck, and suicide was accepted as the explanation.

In 1916, he was sent back from the war, and a comrade asked him to take a basket of provisions to his wife. The night after he had brought her the provisions, the woman was found dead in a blazing room. Her death was dismissed as an accident.

In 1920 he strangled his 80-year-old stepmother. Leitgeb maintains that even in this case the murder was committed during an embrace.

Although the old woman's property was stolen, nobody at the time suspected Leitgeb of the murder. He strangled and robbed two other women in the same year.

In 1921, Leitgeb was sent to prison for ten years for robbing a lonely peasant woman in a forest.

After being released in 1931, he strangled and robbed a village midwife.

This year an architect's wife was found murdered in her bedroom at Linz. A stranger wearing a black bandage round his face had been seen in the neighborhood. He was recognized as Leitgeb.

Leitgeb told the judge at the opening of his trial that he had been "unconscious" during all his murders.

PIED PIPER WANTED

Czech Farms Invaded By Hordes of Mice

Prague.—Czechoslovakia is in dire need of a Pied Piper. A plague of mice, sometimes so thick that motorists have imagined that a whole road was moving for several miles, has been troubling farmers in East Slovakia. The mice have now swept into sub-Carpathian Russia. They have already damaged the maize crop, leaving destitute half a million farmers who depended on the crop for their winter food.

WOMAN AND CHILD FALL UNDER TRAIN

Remarkable Escape From Death at Walton Station

Walton, Eng.—A young woman and a child had a remarkable escape from death at Walton station when the engine and part of a train passed over them.

The accident was seen by a crowd of people waiting on the platform.

The woman, Mrs. Rouse, of Shrubbery lane, Walton, who had a child aged about four in her arms, was seen to fall in front of the engine of a train from Alton as it steamed into the station.

The driver pulled up almost instantly, and the stationmaster and a railway workman extricated the woman from beneath the train at a point two coaches behind the engine.

The child was lying near, and when rescued, she started to cry for "Mother".

The woman and the little girl were removed to Walton hospital in the ambulance. Mrs. Rouse was suffering from severe shock and abrasions.

ADMIRAL GRAYSON AGAIN APPEARS ON AMERICAN POLITICAL SCENE

"White House Cupid" Makes Plans for Roosevelt Inaugural.

WILSON CONFIDENT.

(Central Press Canadian Writer)

WASHINGTON, D.C., December 20 — Another figure of the Wilson administration is rising to the fore with the advent of a Democratic regime.

Rear-Admiral Cary T. Grayson, U.S.N., retired, will be director of the Roosevelt inaugural ceremonies. It does not matter that the President-elect has requested simple ceremonies. There will be a certain amount of celebrating. Washington has been through too much gloom. It must rejoice for a day.

Some folk say that Admiral Grayson was closer to Woodrow Wilson in his last days than Colonel Edward Mandell House. Certain it is, Admiral Grayson, who was President Wilson's physician, ruled his bedside (and virtually the White House) in conjunction with Mrs. Wilson.

Guarding a President.

The two decided when there was to be a Cabinet meeting, when the President could see a person, and for how long.

Colonel House was not at the executive mansion during the final days of the Wilson administration.

Thus, of this later period, Admiral Grayson stands out as one of the powers behind the throne.

Dr. Cary Travers Grayson is a Virginia gentleman, suh, a breeder of race horses, a man of tact and background, of virility and aggressiveness.

He knows the administrative secrets of Washington as few other men do.

Fortunate Assignment.

As a young naval surgeon, Dr. Grayson was assigned to the Presidential yacht, the Mayflower. That was during the Theodore Roosevelt administration. The next President, William Howard Taft, summoned him to the White House, and Woodrow Wilson retained him there.

Woodrow Wilson had the incapacity to be an intimate friend to more than a few. Dr. Grayson was one of the few. President Wilson advanced Dr. Grayson in rank over many others to Rear-Admiralship. He took him wherever he went—on both European trips, on American tours. Dr. Grayson was with him when he broke down at Wichita, Kas., and he was with him four years later when he died.

Admiral Grayson retired from the Navy four years ago. He has since devoted himself to a small practice and his racing stable. One of the foremost horsemen in America, he has been president of the Capital Horse Show Association.

Born at Salubria, in Culpeper County, Virginia, on October 11, 1878 (and thus 54), Cary Grayson always desired to go to sea. After being graduated from William and Mary College, he entered the Navy as Paymaster.

Follows Father.

He served a year, then followed in the footsteps of his father — an eminent physician. He studied medicine at the Medical College of Virginia, in Richmond, and at the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn. Following which, he attended the United States Naval Medical School.

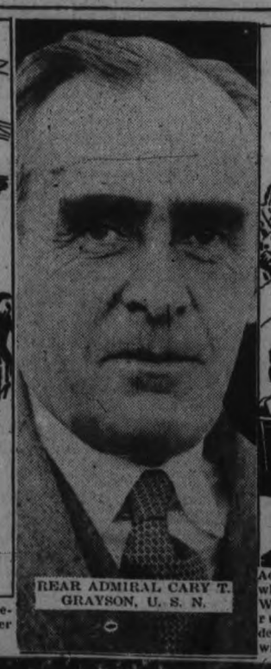
In 1904, young Grayson was appointed an assistant surgeon in the Navy. A year later he was assigned to the U.S.S. Maryland, and on this vessel he made a trip around the world.

Then came his assignment on the Mayflower.

Newspapers used to refer to Admiral Grayson as the "White House Cupid." He was supposed to have brought President Wilson and Mrs. Galt together. And he was best man at the wedding of William G. McAdoo and Miss Eleanor Wilson. Then Dr. Grayson himself fell victim to Cupid. He wed Alice G. Gordon, wealthy society girl, in May, 1916, in New York. President and Mrs. Wilson were chief among the notables at the wedding. Dr. Grayson had met Miss Gordon when she had visited Miss Helen Taft at the White House.

Needless to say, both social and political Washington welcome the charming Virginian back to the national scene!

Virginia gentleman and a breeder of race horses.



REAR ADMIRAL CARY T. GRAYSON, U. S. N.

Admiral Grayson, who was Woodrow Wilson's physician, ruled the president's bedside, with Mrs. Wilson.

The inauguration of Woodrow Wilson

Another figure of the Wilson regime is rising to the fore in United States politics. Rear-Admiral Grayson, personal physician to the ex-President, is looking after the plans for the inaugural of President Roosevelt.

LONDON'S OPERA UNDER NEW PLAN

Five Interests Represented on Council, Which Will Guide Operatic Presentations.

LONDON, Dec. 20 (C.P.)—A five-fold pact has been entered into by the big opera interests in London for the co-ordination of the following: The Covent Garden Opera Syndicate Limited, Imperial League of Opera, Old Vic Theatre, Sadler's Wells Theatre and the British Broadcasting Corporation. The idea is to create a new organization to be known as the "National Opera Council," which will be mainly an instrument of patronage and will occupy itself with advancing the interests of various opera seasons in London and the provinces.

The official statement with reference to the agreement entered into by the five organizations for the formation of the National Opera Council says:

"It's membership will number about 250 and include the most distinguished musical amateurs in every part of the country. The business of the council will be conducted by a small working body of about two dozen of its members.

"The Board of the Covent Garden Opera Syndicate has been enlarged to include representatives of the other opera organizations mentioned above. The enlarged Syndicate Board will receive all sums payable by the Broadcasting Corporation and all funds raised by the League and by the Council, and will decide how these funds shall be apportioned.

"Apart from the Covent Garden Opera Syndicate Limited, the Old Vic and Sadler's Wells will organize and manage their own seasons independently. Sir Thomas Beecham has joined the Board of the Covent Garden Opera Syndicate as artistic director and in this capacity will act as artistic adviser to the Old Vic and Sadler's Wells Company.

"The working body of the National Opera Company will act in an advisory capacity to the enlarged Board of the Covent Garden Opera Syndicate."

GOOD REPORT READ ON YEAR'S LABORS

Mount Pleasant Women's Auxiliary Holds Annual Meeting Last Week.

CAVAN, Dec. 20. — (Examiner Correspondence).—Mount Pleasant W.A. held their annual meeting at the home of Mrs. Garnet Shields on Wednesday afternoon, December 14th. The president, Mrs. T. Graham, reported a splendid year's work.

The following officers were elected for 1933: President, Mrs. T. Graham; vice-president, Mrs. Garnet Shields; recording secretary, Mrs. Norman Fee; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. Tully; financial secretary, Mrs. Foster Eggleson; treasurer, Mrs. H. Rutherford; representative to the Official Quarterly Board, Mrs. N. Fee; parsonage committee, Mrs. T. Graham and Mrs. W. H. Lowes.

Following the business session an interesting social program was given, during which Mrs. T. Graham contributed a recitation, Mrs. Garnet Shields gave a selection from Nina Moore Jamieson, and Mrs. Rutherford and Mrs. W. H. Lowes also gave readings.

The pastor, the Rev. J. E. Whitham, gave a brief address on "Come Ye Apart."

During the business period the treasurer reported a balance on hand, and it was decided that the W.A. would put on a play early in the New Year.

Mrs. Shield served lunch and a social time was enjoyed.

DANCE IN PARISH HALL

APSLEY, Dec. 20. — (Examiner Correspondence). — A dance was held in the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Women's Institute and was a very pleasant affair, about sixty persons being present. Music was provided by the Crosby brothers of Coe hill. At eleven o'clock dainty refreshments, provided by the members of the institute, were served. The feature of the evening was the draw for the Christmas cake made and donated by Mrs. Dean, the winner being Mrs. W. Hales. The proceeds from the cake tickets and door admission amounted to $18.75.

The first school concert of the season was given by S. S. 1, Burleigh, under the direction of Miss Purdy, in the school-house on Friday evening, the Rev. W. F. Ridding being chairman and W. Earnshaw impersonating Santa Claus in the distribution of gifts.

On Thursday night the thermometer dropped to 29 degrees below and on Friday night to 26 below. At Coe Hill on Thursday 35 below was registered.

The A.Y.P.A. held a musical night on Saturday. An interesting program of songs and instrumental pieces were given by the members. Refreshments were served at the close of a pleasant evening.

GLENALDA.

Dnice White, aged seven, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan White, passed away in Belleville Hospital on Wednesday. The funeral was held on Sunday in Glenalda United Church, the Rev. N. Macdonald officiating. Interment was made in Glenalda Cemetery. The many friends of the bereaved parents sympathize with them deeply. Mrs. White is in ill-health and is in Coe Hill Red Cross Hospital.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. Asa Smith, last week, a daughter.

A prayer meeting, conducted by Messrs. Schole and Phillpot, was held at Walter Grieves' home on Wednesday evening and was well attended.

Mrs. Aaron Post is in Havelock under the care of Dr. Holdcroft, recovering from a long illness and operation.

The Plains of Abraham and Abraham Hill, Quebec, are named after Abraham Martin, called "The Scot," first King's pilot on the St. Lawrence river.

BOX OF DOLLS.

The Examiner Relief Fund acknowledges with many thanks the receipt of a box of eighteen dolls, presented and dressed by the girls of Miss Olive Prest's Sunbeam class of the Sunday School of St. James' United Church. For several Christmases past, these young ladies have dressed dolls for The Examiner's Relief work and the generous remebrance is much appreciated.

BEDDING REQUIRED.

We have been asked for bedding by a very large family who have no means to buy sufficient covering for themselves. The men of the house, who are cutting wood, are also short of warm underwear and socks. Anyone willing to help this family is asked to telephone The Examiner and we will call for articles.

MAY BE CANDIDATE

Max Sloan, working contractor in the employ of his father is giving serious thought to the advisability of declaring himself as an aldermanic candidate in the forthcoming municipal elections. It is learned that Mr. Sloan has been approached with a view of seeking election, by a number of local citizens. He has not yet reached a decision, but will be in position to make definite announcement on Thursday.

Obituary

MARTHA WITHERS

The remains of Martha Withers were laid to rest in the Little Lake Cemetery on Monday afternoon, the funeral cortege having proceeded from the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. Sutherland, 544 Bethune street.

After an illness of several months the deceased quietly passed away on Saturday afternoon, December 17, at the age of 72 years.

She leaves to mourn her loss a sorrowing husband; five daughters, Mrs. J. Nelson, Winnipeg, Mrs. B. Dennis, Overstrand, England, Mrs E. Sutherland, Mrs. V. Wood, Mrs. O. Kellele, Peterborough; also four sons, Walter, Herbert, Ernest and Cyril, all of Peterborough.

The deceased had been a faithful member of the Salvation Army and the funeral service was conducted by Adjutant E. M. Falle.

ROBERT GRAHAM

The death occurred to-day of Robert Graham at his residence, lot 24, Concession 11, Keene road, Otonabee Township.

He was born on July 31, 1858 in South Monaghan Township a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graham He had resided in this district all his life.

Mr. Graham is survived by three brothers, John James of Peterborough, William of Port Elgin and Andrew of Toronto, also two sisters Agnes and Mary at home.

The funeral is to be held on Thursday from the family residence lot 2, concession 11, Otonabee to Riverside Cemetery, Lindsay. Services will be conducted by the Rev. J. D. Paterson, rector of All Saints' Church, Peterborough at 2 o'clock p.m.

New Cottage Built For Gull Lake Man

David Bennett, well-known hermit of Gull Lake, is due to spend one of the happiest Christmases this year of the more than 70-odd that he has seen. This, despite the fact that early last Spring trouble smote heavily upon Old Dave. His cabin at Bennett's Landing was burned to the ground and everything he had was consumed in the fire.

However, old friends in Peterborough rallied to his aid and this Christmas he will watch the smoke curl up his chimney inside another and newer log cabin. His Peterborough friends not only built him the cabin, but also outfitted it for him with bed, blankets, dishes, stoves and everything needed for a hermitage. Aldermen Fred Tuggey and Daniel Holland built the chimney, and others, notably Harry Evans, were equally active on the old man's behalf.

FALLIS LINE STUDENTS HOLD ANNUAL CHRISTMAS TREE EVENT

Good Program Consisting of Dialogues, Songs and Recitations Given by Pupils.

VISIT FROM SANTA CLAUS

MILLBROOK, Dec. 20. (Examiner Correspondence).—The annual Christmas concert and tree of the Fallis Line School was held on Friday evening in the church, the choir being taken by the chairman of the trustee board, J. H. McKnight, until the late arrival of Rev. Mr. Jones.

An opening chorus, "Joy to the World" brought all the school to the platform, several having a dialogue part while all joined in singing "The First Nowell" with the verses punctuated by the speakers' descriptive sentences. Recitations by some of the younger pupils including Vera Fallis, Willoughby Belch, Lloyd Fallis, Martha Belch, Allie Henderson, Muriel Davidson, and by David and Nan Fallis, called forth warm applause, as did also the dialogue, "The Spirit of Christmas" with Bea Fallis in the title role wearing a long robe of filmy white, silver trimmed, and cape of brilliant scarlet, with head band of the silver and wand to match.

The duet, "I don't want to play in your yard" by Marjorie Sutton and Nan Fallis, wearing blue aprons and caps with long ties, was a popular number, and the dialogue, "Mrs. Muggins' opinions on servants and husbands" caused plenty of laughter with its clever home thrusts, the characters being: Cousin Amanda Jane (Edna McKnight); Mrs. Muggins (Ruby Fallis) and Betty, the maid, (Bea Fallis). A song by the mama dolls in costume and with appropriate actions by seven girls, was a pretty number, and one of the high lights of the program was the pantomime of "Silent Night" for which the scholars were massed in the background singing the words, and in the front Bea and Nan Fallis and Marjorie Sutton, in white and silver, acted out the spirit of the verses. Mary Burnham was the accompanist of the evening, and organ solos were played by Edna McKnight and Ruby Fallis.

Tom Belch's recitation "The Twenty-Sixth" caught the listeners' fancy, and the chorus "Good King Wenceslas" portrayed in action with Eric Fallis appropriately costumed as the King, Donald McKnight as page, and Tom Belch as the poor peasant, was a clever and popular selection. Isabelle Aiken gave a recitation and Lorraine Henderson also, and the acted story, "Mother's Little Girl" made a strong appeal. Bea Fallis gave a recitation and the concluding dialogue, "Deaf Uncle Zed" had a lesson all its own and was well acted, Eric Fallis taking the part of the supposedly deaf uncle, Marian Belch the spoiled daughter of the home, Ruby Fallis, Mrs. Fairweather and the sister of Uncle Zed, Tom Belch, Don Pedro Jeanette's admirer, and Cameron Sutton and Donald McKnight the two little sons who voiced the family's dislike of the rich uncle, with his continued "Hey" to every remark; Edna McKnight filled the maid's role and was the only one kind to the old man and so fortunate enough to actually reap any of his favors.

"Welcome to Christmas", and "Who do you think will come tonight" were choruses that appropriately preceded the jingling of sleigh bells and the arrival of dear old Santa (Lavergne Fallis) the children uniting in saying, "Good evening Santa", the latter telling of his many adventures in reaching the church, and with several eager helpers, proceeding to dispose of the many gifts on the beautifully - trimmed tree, the teacher, Miss Jean Burnham, being well remembered as the parcels were distributed.

"Farewell, Santa" carolled the scholars as the red-coated old gentleman took his departure, and a treat of homemade candy was passed through the audience. H. A. Fallis moved the hearty vote of thanks to Miss Burnham for the fine program provided, and the excellent manner in which the fifteen young performers had acquitted themselves; Milton Fallis seconded the motion, made on behalf of the trustee board and the ratepayers of the section, prolonged applause telling of the accord of all present.

Miss Burnham replied briefly thanking the parents for their willing and helpful co-operation, and the National Anthem brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

Offer 14 Prizes For Best Displays

Fourteen prizes amounting to thirty dollars will be given to farmers for the best displays of produce on the market next Saturday.

This competition has been sponsored by the Ontario Department of Agriculture and the arrangements are in the hands of J. B. Nelson. No entry fee is charged, and displays must be ready for judging not later than 9 a.m. Only Ontario products may be exhibited, such as butter, eggs, poultry, fruit, honey, meat and so on. The goods shown must have been raised by the farmer exhibiting them. Another condition of the contest is that an exhibition must be arranged by members of the family whose products are entered. The first prize is $10; second, $5; third $3; fourth $2 and there are also ten prizes of one dollar each.

The competition has been undertaken as a means of increasing the demand for home-grown farm products of this province.

Lei Of Self Fabric

The LEI idea, taken from the floral tribute given travelers by Hawaii greeters in lieu of the keys of the island, has become firmly incorporated into fashion's domain.

The lei of ruched self-fabric is used in bolero effect by Lanvin on this gown in fuchsia sheer crepe. The lei is caught in the middle of the back by a jeweled buckle.

PLENTY OF FOWL FOR CHRISTMAS

No Finer Specimens Were Ever Offered for Sale in City.

PRICES VERY LOW

No finer fowl ever graced a Christmas dinner table than the noble birds now decorating the windows of the city's butcher shops, and never before in history could you walk away with such large birds for so little cash.

There's no doubt about it, breeders of turkeys and geese have done the best they could for us this Christmas. There's a bloom and polish to the prime birds that radiates goodfellowship, and the sure satisfaction of hearty appetities. Weak, puny members of the flock must have been kept at home in the barnyard, because all are big stalwart fellows.

Prices Tumbled

Prices have tumbled to rock bottom. A veteran meat merchant scratched his brow to-day in in an effort to call back to mind a Yuletide when turkeys and geese sold so cheap. He confessed he couldn't. "As it stands now there just about as cheap as any other meat," he said. You can buy the finest turkey in any store for 20 cents a pound and geese are five cents cheaper. Less likely birds range four to five cents lower per pound." In war days turkeys frequently brought 70 cents a pound, and the buyer was glad to get 'em.

This same butcher stated that the quality of the birds had never been better. Cheap grain is the answer. The farmers all stuffed their growing birds with grain, result turkeys and geese that are joy to behold and that cause one to ponder how they never supported themselves on their slender legs.

New weight records for turkeys and geese have been established. To-day in a shop a young goose was examined that tipped the scales at 20 pounds. It measured three and a half feet long and had a breast on it of battleship proportions. On the market on Saturday a young turkey weighing 30 pounds was brought in by a local man who expects a crowd around his dining table Christmas day.

Hall's Bridge

Under the auspices of the Lakehurst Presbyterian Church Mission Band a very successful concert was held on Wednesday evening last; the proceedings were enlivened by a very amusing debate.

The subject being, "Is a city man in the country at a greater disadvantage than a countryman in a city?"

Miss Thorn and Jack Nichols of Selwyn taking the affirmative and Miss Irene Gall and Mr. Parnall the affirmative. The judge, Mr. Archie Wilson, gave the decision in favor of the negative.

The Christmas service at St. Matthew's Anglican Church will be held at midnight, Saturday, December 24th.

OUR MAIL

Dear Anne:

I have been trying today to get most of my Christmas greetings sent off and then I thought of you and by a strange coincidence I looked up my diary to see when I wrote you last. I found it was one year ago today.

Well, many things have happened since then; also many letters have been written, but none have come your way—not that I have not thought of you for I have and I trust you have never thought I had forsaken the Page. To tell the truth, Anne, I love to write letters. I love to cheer folk along for life is not easy. There is so much in life to disturb one's peace of mind and that reminds me I liked the article you wrote on the "Peace of the Soul" in the issue of The Examiner of December 16.

We cannot shut our eyes to the fact that we live in a spiritually sick world. I think I could go a step farther and say we live in an insane world and is it not highly advisable that those who love the good and the true, to seek out and find friends in those who are of the same mind so that we mutually cooperate and help each other.

It is true, Anne, that when "The Prince of Peace" reigns in the soul we shall have peace more and more as we advance in the upward journey but there are many adversaries both within and without but the upward journey is gloriously worthwhile.

I wish to all the neighbors the best wishes of the advancing season and to yourself Anne, and The Examiner a very Happy Christmas and a Prosperous New Year.

Yours sincerely,
WATER LILY.

I am so delighted to know that you haven't forgotten about the Page, Water Lily. I had often wondered whether you had lost interest in it or whether you were ill, and I am indeed glad to know that you still read the letters. Thank you for your kind wishes and the same to you.

* * *

Dear Anne:

Evidently I am not the only one too busy to write. Either I am getting slow or there is more to do or perhaps I have spoiled the other members of the household, but it seems I am pushed all the time. I was away for a week and I wonder if the rest and change was good or otherwise for me.

Oh, but this is a glorious day! How lovely it would be to go out and walk and walk. I cannot help thinking at almost every turn, especially when there is something that really seems necessary, without which I must get along, of the many who have not food or fuel, nor enough clothing and the Christmas season so near.

We, as do many others, give what we can and help where we can, but it seems so little. If only work and pay could be evenly distributed—I do not mean everyone alike, that is not the nature of things. Wishing however is only idling.

Thank you, Anne, for all the helps. I often want to tell you of some particular help you have given, but there are so many calls upon my time, or I get too tired and it is not done. But now while I have a few minutes I want to wish you and all the neighbors a Very Merry Christmas and a Bright New Year!

Yours sincerely,
QUID EST.

I do hope that week has helped you a little, Quid Est, because I know you really did need a rest. Thank you for your kind wishes and the same to you.

ECZEMA NOT A SKIN DISEASE

When we learn that about one half of all skin disease is eczema, it would seem that the work of the skin specialist in trying to decide just what type of skin ailment is present, should not be so difficult.

What is eczema?

There are many definitions but that of Sir Malcolm Morris is considered as descriptive as any, "Eczema is a catarrhal inflammation of the skin, occurring without any visible outside cause, and during some stage of the inflammation there is always a serous or watery condition of the affected part."

The attack usually begins by itching and burning in some parts of the skin. Soon these spots becomes red, and little tiny blisters form. There is swelling, redness, and a tenseness of the skin. The itching becomes more troublesome as the inflammation becomes worse.

There have been so many causes suggested for eczema that skin specialists are now of the opinion that eczema shouldn't be classed as a skin ailment at all. Dr. R. Friedman, of Philadelphia, insists that the term eczema is simply a group of symptoms, and not a true disease in itself. He says that just as a physician never speaks of dyspepsia any more, as the word means difficult digestion, without telling the variety or cause, so also should the word eczema not be used as being a special skin disease.

As the disease begins, progresses, from a while appears to get better, then becomes worse again, all sorts of names are used: erythematous (redness of skin), vesicular (blisters), papular (pimples), pustular (puss in the blisters), squamous (scales). As a matter of fact all these are but different stages of the same process. Pain and itching are the only internal symptoms.

The cause of eczema may be due to external irritation, to depressing emotions, to gland disturbances, to sensitiveness to certain foods, to tiny organisms.

No single treatment is of help owing to the various causes of eczema. While searching for the cause the general rule is to use soothing preparations or creams containing zinc or salicylic acid, at first, and if the condition becomes chronic to use an irritating or stimulating preparation such as a weak solution of carbolic acid.

Waistline Marked in Many Ways

Various Placements of Important Feature of Sartorial Architecture Are Sketched in Paris

Left, crepe satin gown with navy vevet incrustations marking waistline; center, navy blue velvet bodice with two lines marking waist; right, fancy black silk frock with velvet belt and pink flower.

By LUCIEN LELONG

Special Cable to Central press

PARIS.—It is not an exaggeration to say that the placing of the waistline is the most important boundary in style architecture. All other lines—horizontal as well as vertical—depend upon this one, in the composing of a harmonious silhouette.

The parallel history of race and costume evolution would seem to indicate that the waistline has a psychological—not to say biological—as well as a sartorial significance. The low waistline has always been the sign of primitive peoples; the long torso-ed, short-legged can-can having been their ideal, while a vestimentary trend toyard long-limbed effects has always accompanied the advance of civilization.

Diversity Rules

This season, as you know, there is a great diversity of opinion among Paris creators to to the location of the waistline.

One couturier launches the mediaeval mode with the girdle worn low on the hips; others sponsor the directoire division, with "waistline" just under the bust; still others compromise by waistlines indicated high in front and drooping toward the back. Princess gowns, doing away altogether with the belt of contention, are frequently seen. Wide belts are another solution of the problem; and draped wrap-around frocks, tied hither or yon, soften all the central part of the torso, so that the waistline is suggested rather than defined.

Generally speaking, the low waistline is kind to the large woman who is beginning to take on weight; the very high empire waist implies extreme youth and a supple, lithe slenderness. The stiff, thin type looks nearly as badly in it as the fat one.

Personally, whatever the mode of the moment, I am in favor of an individual arrangement for each woman. There is an ideal silhouette for each season, it is true, but one cannot achieve it by applying the same rules of composition to all types of feminity.

This season, I am sponsoring the natural waistline, in the majority of cases—that is, a waistline that looks natural; for the belt placed at normal on a very tall, short-waisted woman, for example, will appear almost empire in effect. In this case, a slight lowering of the waistline is essential to maintain the balance. On the other hand, the short-legged, long torso-ed woman must wear her belt, if any, much higher, if she would appear to follow the same style as the tall one. It is thus the function of the couturier to transform Nature into style without seeming to do so.

I have many princess gowns with waistline suggested by a bow or an incrustation, back or front, high or low, as the balance of the figure requires.

Long-Limbed Effect Graceful

My corselette evening gowns with a contrasting fitted or semi-fitted doublet from above the bust to below the hips, are a happy solution of the waistline problem for many women, indicating, as they do, both a high and a low level, while sufficiently revealing natural curves. They may be trim and tailored for the plump woman, and more softly draped for an over-slender one.

Crushed velvet girdles and sashes are flattering waistline treatments, and the girl with a good figure may permit herself the uncompromising flat tailored belt, of whatever width and in whatever location she pleases.

How to Fashion Belts from Package Wrappers

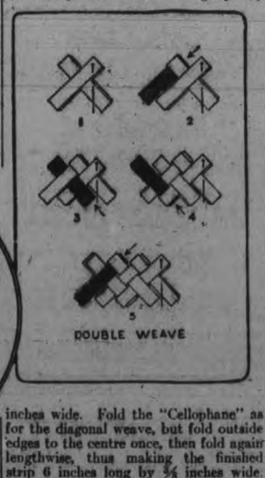
SMART, colourful, shimmery belts, made from the transparent coverings of cigarettes, cigars, cakes, candy and other packages, are the craze both in New York and Hollywood, the movie folk sometimes making their belts on the lot between shots. "Cellophane" has thus taken its place as a material for the practice of another home art easily acquired in these practical times. It is used, not only for belt making in various woven and braided versions so attractive with sports clothes, but for matching hand bags and hats as well.

Unusual colour combinations and patterns are achieved through various methods of weaving the strips. One of the simplest is the Rick Rack, shown in the circle at the left. Cut strips of "Cellophane" 4 inches long by 8½ inches wide. Approximately eighty are needed to make the average length belt. Fold outside edges lengthwise to the centre twice and then fold in half lengthwise, keeping the raw edges in. This makes a strip 4 inches long and nearly ½ inch wide. Fold across the centre, making the strip 2 inches long. Fold each end to the centre, making the strip 1 inch long. The 1 inch link is now finished. Slip two links together as shown, keeping the edge with several folds toward the top. Continue until desired length is obtained.

Many belts, when finished, look like mother of pearl and colourful buckles of plastic materials are to be had in many designs. Needle and thread may be used to secure the links if this is thought necessary.

Another most popular belt is the Double Weave. For this belt cut strips of "Cellophane" 6 inches long by 1½ inches wide. Fold the "Cellophane" as for the diagonal weave, but fold outside edges to the centre once, then fold again lengthwise, thus making the finished strip 6 inches long by ¾ inches wide. Make the links exactly as for the diagonal weave belt. Hook two links together by inserting the ends of one through the sides of another. Hold the two together with a pin, as shown. Insert a third link (arrow) through the closed end of the first two. Insert a fourth link, looping it outside the first and through the second. Be sure that this link is passed on both sides of the first link, and not both sides on top of it. Insert a fifth link, as shown, and continue until desired length is obtained.

"Cellophane" in plain transparent quality or in colours, for the making of these smart belts, may be secured from the protective wrappers now supplied on many household articles or in convenient rolls from any department, stationery or chain store.



"CELLOPHANE" is the registered trade mark designating cellulose sheets and films, manufactured in Canada under special arrangements with the duPont Cellophane Co., Inc.

Presentation Made Departing President

FENELLA, Dec. 20 (Examiner Correspondence)—Mrs. W. H. Curtis was hostess at a very enjoyable W.M.S. meeting on Wednesday last when the president gave a short address on how she enjoyed the work for the last three years, two years as president of Fenella group and the last year as president of Fenella Women's Missionary Society. She then called for reports from all officers.

Mrs. S. Leach read an address to the president who is leaving and Mrs. James Knox presented her with a life membership certificate. Mrs. Nill thanked the society and ladies for the honor they had bestowed upon her and hoped that the new president would feel that the ladies were at the back of her.

Mrs. J. Macklin and Miss Florence Macklin sang a duet which was greatly enjoyed and Mrs. John Cowling read the devotional leaflet.

The election of officers was conducted, Miss Ruth Knox and Mrs. M. Lonsberry acting as scrutineers, and resulted as follows: president, Miss Florence Macklin; 1st vice, Mrs. S. Leach; 2nd vice, Mrs. F. Talling; recording secretary, Miss Muriel Macklin; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. H. Mouncey; treasurer, Mrs. James Knox; secretary Christian Stewardship and finance, Mrs. H. Macklin; finance committee, Mrs. Bruce Macklin, Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs. Knox, Mrs. H. Macklin, Miss Florence Macklin; strangers' secretary, Mrs. J. Herrington; Supply secretary, Mrs. C. W. Macklin; Associate Helpers secretary, Mrs. W. H. Curtis; Missionary Monthly secretary, Mrs. James Curtis; secretary of Literature, Mrs. C. Jewell; Press secretary, Mrs. John Herrington.

The auditors, Mrs. R. Smith and Mrs. Lyle Curtis declared the books to be correct. Mrs. L. Hope is Temperance superintendent.

A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess and the meeting was brought to a close.

CATHOLIC SERVICES AT HASTINGS FIRST OBSERVED 85 YEARS AGO

Rev. Father Higgins is First Resident Pastor of Trent River Parish.

CHURCH BUILT IN 1865.

HASTINGS, Dec. 20.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—Eighty-five years ago the first resident pastor of the Roman Catholic Church came to Hastings parish, which is now one of the largest in the diocese of Peterborough.

The pretty little village in the Trent Valley, through which runs the Trent river, was known in the early days as "Crook's Rapids." To this little hamlet came in 1847 Reverend Father Higgins, the first resident pastor. He lived and also celebrated mass in what is now the lock house. At this time was included in the parish, also, the villages of Campbellford, Norwood and Warkworth. Here Father Higgins labored until 1852, when he was succeeded by the Reverend Father Farrelly, who built, on the site of the present one, a presbytery, in a room which the faithful attended mass.

Reverend Father Farrelly was succeeded in 1857 by Father Harty, who remained for a few months only, and was followed by Father Byrnes, who had charge until December 158, when Father Brophy came, remaining until February, 1862.

In this month, Reverend Father Quirk, of pious memory, was appointed to the parish. By him was built the present church, which was completed in October, 1865, and on the 15th of that month was dedicated to Our Lady of Mount Carmel by the late Bishop Horan, of Kingston. Father Quirk also inaugurated the Separate school. After many years of labor in his wide and scattered parish, he died in June, 1895, and was buried beside the church he had built, which now stands a fitting monument to his memory and zeal for the glory of God. His grave is an object of love and veneration to the people in whose hearts his memory is still green.

Father Michael Connelly succeeded Father Quirk. He built the present residence of the parish priest. He died in October, 1897, and was buried at Perth, of which place he was a native.

Reverend Father Peter McGuire, whose death took place in Peterborough a year ago, became pastor of this mission in April, 1898. With his well known zeal and energy he labored not only for the spiritual, but also for the betterment of the parish, and during the seven years of his pastorate many improvements were made, among which he mentioned the institution of the parish cemetery in its present desirable location, a short distance from the church.

The late Reverend Father Brethertion took charge in May, 1905. The present highly commendable condition of the church and its surroundings are due to his care and foresight.

It was during Father Brethertion's pastorate that the vault was built at the cemetery. The beloved pastor passed on to his reward in 1910.

Reverend Father P. J. Kelly, the present pastor, took charge in 1931, coming to Hastings from Victoria Road. Through the untiring efforts of Father Kelly the parish is now out of debt and is second to none in the diocese of Peterborough.

At the present time, sixty-seven years since the dedication of the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, the people of the prosperous parish of Hastings, looking back in imagination to the little lock house chapel, have reason to return fervent thanks to Almighty God that He has blessed the work of their good pastors and enabled them to carry on His work so successfully.

The following is a copy of the original document of the Dedication:

"On the fifteenth day of October, 1865, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, we, the undersigned bishops of Kingston have dedicated the church of the village of Hastings and placed it under the protection of Our Blessed Lady of Mount Carmel. Were present the Very Rev. Dean Brennan, Very Rev. Dean Kelley, Rev. Henry Buttagh, the Rev. John Quirk, pastor of the mission, the Rev. Michael Stanton, and an immense concourse of the faith—

Michael Nash.
Daniel O'Connell, Douro.
C. H. Gauthier, priest.
John Quirk.
C. S. A. McWilliams.
Michael Brennan, R.D.
Oliver Kelly, R.D.
H. Buttagh.
Michael Stanton.

The Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel has a beautiful memorial just at the entrance to the grounds, in honor of those who gave their lives in the Great War. This was erected by popular subscription, is a beautiful piece of art, and visitors from far and near greatly admire this remembrance to the departed members of the parish. The interior of the church is beautifully decorated with memorial windows, the interior fittings are all that could be desired. The grounds surrounding the church and residence of the parish priest are one of the beauty spots of Hastings.

"OLD BILL" BLUE AGAIN

LEICESTER, England, Dec. 17 (C.P.)—William Busby, "Old Bill" of the war pictures produced by Captain Bruce Bairnsfather, put his war-medal ribbons on the South African War Memorial here at the time the Remembrance Day services were prominent in people's minds and indicated that he intended leaving them there. To a small crowd who had gathered he said: "My country has forgotten me. I have no further use for these" (referring to the war-medal ribbons). In a newspaper interview Busby said:

"I served in the South African War and in the European War, and now it is hard to get a job." He added that he had been soldiering on and off since 1897, when he joined the Leicestershire Regiment. He said he was known amongst his friends as "Old Bill," because Captain Bruce Bairnsfather employed him as a model for his famous cartoons.

YOUNG'S POINT.

The members of the Women's Institute of Young's Point held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. William Brooks, when it was decided to have a pot luck supper and dance on January 4. The next meeting will be held on January 6 in the afternoon at the home of Mrs. Kidd, when the roll call will be answered by a favorite recipe.

TRIBUTE TO INSOMNIA

BERLIN.—A model of the Berlin City Hall, fashioned in plaster of paris with a razor blade, is Karl Hoeke's tribute to insomnia.

Noeke divided his sleepless nights between his curbstone stool, where he sketched the building, and his laboratory, where he laboriously cut out the model. Everything was exact, even to a small clock in the tower.

"Cup Cakes are delicious when made with Magic Baking Powder," says Miss Helen Campbell, Director of The Chatelaine Institute

"Good baking goes hand in hand with good materials," Miss Campbell will tell you.

That's why Magic Baking Powder is used and recommended by The Chatelaine Institute. Magic meets all the Institute's rigid requirements of fine quality—repeated tests have proved it absolutely pure, uniform and dependable.

The majority of dietitians and teachers of cookery throughout Canada plan their recipes for Magic. They use it exclusively because they know it gives consistently better results.

And 3 out of 4 Canadian housewives say Magic is their favorite. It outsells all other baking powders combined.

Miss Campbell's Recipe for Cup Cakes

¾ cup butter	2 cups pastry flour (or 1¾ cups bread flour)
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla extract	3 teaspoons Magic Baking Powder
¾ teaspoon salt	1 cup milk

Cream butter thoroughly; add sugar a little at a time, beating well. Add yolks of eggs and vanilla; beat well. Sift flour with baking powder and salt, and add, alternately with milk, to first mixture. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in greased cup cake tins, or in paper baking cups, in moderate oven at 375° F. about 25 minutes. Serve warm from the oven, sprinkled with powdered sugar. Or cool, and frost the tops. You will find many delicious frosting recipes in the Magic Cook Book.

Free Cook Book—When you bake at home, the new Magic Cook Book will give you dozens of recipes for delicious baked foods. Write to Standard Brands Limited, Fraser Avenue and Liberty Street, Toronto, Ontario.

The friends of Mr. W. J. Grady, popular store-keeper of Lock Street, will regret to learn that he is ill in bed with an infected foot. Mrs. Grady received word lately of the success of her cousin, Mr. F. H. Cooney of Missoula, Montana, who was elected in the recent United States elections as Lieutenant-Governor of Montana, on the Democratic ticket, with a majority of over 20,000 votes. Mr. Cooney, who was born in Arnprior, Ontario, is a brother of the late Mr. Percival Cooney who died recently in his home in California and who spent many years in this district as a student at schools in Norwood. The late Mr. Cooney gained international repute as the author of "The Kinsman" and other books with locale placed in Canada. Mr. F. H. Cooney has often visited this neighborhood and the city, and lately wrote to his cousin, Mrs. Grady, saying he hopes to come with his wife next summer, to spend some time at her home and in visiting his aunt, Mrs. James McNichol, formerly of Norwood, who now resides in Peterborough.

Bridge players of the city were interested participants in and spectators of, a Contract Bridge Tournament which is an innovation to the locality, and was introduced here last evening by Mr. Gerald W. Henry, son of Mrs. Myles Henry, Brock Street. The form of entertainment is styled as Indicator Card program, which combines tournament play with instructions for playing each hand. An enjoyable evening was spent by thirty-two players. Prizes were won by Dr. J. C. Green and Mrs. C. S. Browne, having high scores for north and south pairs, and Mrs. J. A. Stewart and Mrs. J. F. O'Brien, high scorers for east and west pairs.

The Toronto Telegram has this to say to the singing of local musicians, Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park and Mr. Hubert Eisdell, as soloists for the performance of "The Messiah" by the Mendelssohn Choir of Toronto, under Dr. Fricker, in Toronto on Saturday evening at Massey Hall: "Dr. Fricker was happy in his choice of soloists. Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park's bright, sweet, clear soprano might have been the voice of a boy echoing through a Gothic cathedral. A lovely impersonal voice, steady as the glow of a planet. And her enunciation is a joy, every word as pure and distinct as though spoken. It is impossible to exaggerate the beauty of her singing in every single number. Her 'Rejoice' was sheer ecstacy without cloying sentiment. Her 'Come Unto Him,' 'How Beautiful' and 'I Know That My Redeemer' had beautiful serenity and detachment. She realized the liturgical significance of Handel's 'Messiah' in every phrase of her lovely singing. Mme. Ethel Holland was most effective in 'He Was Despised,' her lower tones having deep sympathy. Her 'O Thou That Tellest' was brilliant. Hubert Eisdell is an oratorio tenor who shared with Dorothy Allan Park the characteristic of liturgical interpretation in all he sang. His voice is lightest, purest tenor without a tremor, and his diction and enunciation are a delight to remember. 'Thy Rebuke was a masterpiece of dignity and restraint, and 'Every Valley' and 'Thou Shalt Break Them' might have been object lessons in tenor vocalism for their delightful ease and artistry."

Augustus Bridle, in the Toronto Star, runs to superlatives in the following report: "There has probably never been, even in England, quite so great a performance of the 'Messiah' as that given by the Mendelssohn Choir on Saturday. Last season we had a wonderful performance of it by the Conservatory Choir and four church choirs, conducted by Dr. MacMillan. But, allowing for the dramatic advantage of divided and augmented choirs for climaxes, the stupendous tonal triumph of the Mendelssohn as a great united chorus was a greater achievement.

"So often the Messiah has its power in the soloists, who on Saturday were highly distinctive. Dorothy Allan Park's lyric clarity of tone had the fine thrill of ecstasy, especially in 'Rejoice Greatly' and 'Come Unto Me.' In My Redeemer she was at times a little over-expressive. Madam Holland's voice was unmistakably gorgeous contralto, lacking only perfect joy in 'O Thou That Tellest' and complete pathos in 'He Was Despised.' Hubert Eisdell displayed a perfect scholarly knowledge of all the tenor arias and admirable finesse in phrasing, diction and legato; but his voice is a little too dry for the humanism of Handel lyrics.

"Frank Oldfield was, as usual, vocal and dramatic master of the bass arias. He had the effective nasal resonance of the French school with the declamatory diction of the English.

"But the chorus was always the abiding joy, so gloriously adequate in every detail that no criticism is needed. The singers added to a wonderful vocalism a high quality of dramatic expression. Every phrase was complete choral conviction. Some of the climaxes were astounding. And even the most dynamic passages were always beautiful in tone."

BE BEAUTIFUL

By Gladys Glad

I'll bet some of you gals and boys haven't finished your Christmas shopping yet. It's a grand and glorious feeling to have everything all ready, the packages all done up, with gay paper with ribbons and tags and seals, and all the rest of it. Some people know exactly what to give each friend and relative, and some never know, and wait until the last minute for inspiration.

In case some of you are in the latter class, think of this: Beauty is one of the chief interests of womankind, so why not choose beauty accessories for the girl friend, wife, sister or mother? They are among the most delightful and acceptable of gifts.

There are any number of attractively designed compacts on the market now that will make charming gifts—single compacts, double compacts, triple compacts, loose powder compacts. Fragrant bath salts and powders are so daintily packaged that they're a treat to the eye as well as to the bath. Seductive, cleverly bottled perfumes are of a variety never before offered on this side of the big pond—smart make-up boxes—manicure sets—toilet sets for overnight bags—delicately scented sachets—and everything in the world for the dressing table, from powder boxes to elaborate toilet sets—at as large or as small a sum as you want to pay.

Such gifts are both useful and economical—and at the same time attractive. And every manufacturer has at this time of the year, any number of "Christmassy" articles that would appeal to the eyes and heart of any woman.

In purchasing such personal gifts, however, for your friends, be careful to select with care. The compact must contain the correct shade of rouge and powder. The perfume must be an odor that suits your friend and expresses her individuality. The bath salts, dusting powder and sachet must be the fragrance that she fancies. The dresser accessories must harmonize with the articles she already possesses.

You can put a wealth of thoughtfulness into the selection of such gifts for your personal friends.

Blonde Hair Rinse.

Marcia: The blonde hair rinse should consist of the juice of one lemon, one tablespoon of peroxide, one tablespoon of vinegar, and a pint of clear water.

Colors

Francis: I think that you will find shades of tan, brown, burnt orange, dark red, gray and green especially becoming to you.

Finger Nail Biting

Beth: Finger nail biting is a habit that you will have to overcome through your own perseverance. A bit of tincture of aloes applied to the fingertips will help to break you of this habit.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

JUST AT THIS TIME, a menu featuring snowballs is seasonable.

The white balls may be hot, fluffy balls of tasty, seasoned mashed potato, or little potato balls cut with a vegetable cutter, or some other hot dishes.

* * * * * * *

Or again, the snow balls will be as cold as ice and be of mousse or ice-cream. But in different forms and of varying temperatures the chief dishes will resemble snowballs.

* * * * * * *

Here is a menu for a supper or luncheon and the other for a Snowball Party. To-morrow will appear some more about the Party.

* * * * * * *

For Snowball Luncheon menu: Soup with snowball croquettes, snowball chartreuse with tomato sauce, green peas, stuffed celery stalks, round rolls with butter balls, snowball salad, frosted breadsticks, olives, frozen snowballs, iced cakes, bon-bons, and coffee.

* * * * * * *

For refreshments to serve at a snowball party, use this diminished menu: Snowball salad, frosted breadsticks, salted nuts, olives, frozen snowballs, iced cakes, bon-bons, iced lemonade, and hot coffee.

* * * * * * *

With consomme, have Snowball croquettes "handed round with the soup," to put it in French phraseology. To two cups of boiled hominy seasoned with salt, pepper, and one tablespoon of grated cheese, add two beaten egg yolks and a little cream to moisten if necessary.

* * * * * * *

When cold, form into little balls. Let stand for half an hour to dry a little on the outside. Roll twice in the egg whites and flour. Put in wire basket and dry in hot fat until a very light brown.

* * * * * * *

For Snowball Chartreuse: Butter a round mold or one with a rounded bottom. Line well with cooked rice. Fill centre with any well-seasoned chicken or veal mixture, having a creamy consistency.

* * * * * * *

Cover with a layer of rice. Put lid tight on mold. Steam in boiling water for forty minutes. Unmold and pour tomato sauce around, but not over it.

* * * * * * *

For Snowball Salad: Grind popped kernels of corn fine. Mix with ground blanched almonds and bind together with cream cheese. Form into small balls and roll in shredded cocoanut. Put on lettuce leaves and serve with mayonnaise.

* * * * * * *

For Frozen Salad: With an ice-cream scoup give out round servings of vanilla cream. Serve alone or with any preferred sundae sauce such as chocolate. Round white candies of any sort are suitable for bon-bons.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

INFORMATORY DOUBLE RULES

Proper hands for making informatory doubles contain strength in three suits, so that the doubler's partner may find support for any suit not double ((unless the doubler holds considerable high honor strength in the double suit, so that he may safely bid no-trumps in case his partner bids the suit in which the doubler is short). Obviously, to be proper support for any response, the doubling hand must contain an unusual number of high honors.

When one hand is srong enough to open contracting, as an adversary can make an informatory double, the partner of the doubler cannot be expected to hold much. In fact the doubler should not expect his partner to win more than three tricks in his own hand. If the doubler will not ask his partner to win more than three tricks, and if the doubler can count in his own hand probable ability to win all tricks except three, for any response made by partner, the whole subject of making proper informatory doubles is solved, without further rules. If I doubled one or either minor suit, I need hold only four tricks, as my partner has two out of three chances to respond with a major suit bid, and he needs to win only three added tricks to fulfill his contract of one. If I double 1-Spade, I ask my partner to take eight tricks in his responsive declaration. If I double 2-Spades, my partner must respond with three of a suit. As I must not expect him to win more than three tricks, I must furnish him six probable tricks. Any doubler has an easy task to calculate what he needs for a sound informatory double. Use your head and known facts, rather than fixed rules that may not even be correct.

Unless the doubler holds greater strength than required for his informatory double, he must not support the responsive bid, unless his partner responds with a bid of one trick more than required to overcall the bid doubled. This unnecessarily high response says: "Partner, If you hold what your double advertises we can go game at my call, provided you are not short of my suit."

If the doubler holds greater strength than advertised by his double he may at once assist the responsive calle, as a signal for the responding bidder to raise his own bid, provided he hold a trick more than his response shows (three probable tricks).

Of course, when not vulnerable, or when one will put the other side out, a weaker double than advertised may be made, and the doubler's partner must expect that the double may be weak in view of the score. Strategy justifies things not fully justified by what is held.

The following hands, at normal score, justify making the informatory doubles indicated. Double the declaration given below:

1-CLUB

♠ A 7 3 2 ♣ 9
♥ K J 7 6 ♦ K 8 5 2

1-SPADE

♠ 9 ♣ A 7 3 2
♥ K Q 7 6 ♦ K J 5 2

2-HEARTS

♠ A J 3 2 ♣ K Q 3 2
♥ 9 ♦ A J 5 2

3-HEARTS

♠ A K 3 2 ♣ K Q 3 2
♥ 9 ♦ A Q 10 2

Each of the above hands contains sufficient high honors to give just double vaues, and to support the unexpected response of 1-No Trump. If a suit is the response, each hand has supporting values to at once raise one trick, due to their ability to ruff the short suit that has been doubled. If the responding hand holds more than his expected three tricks, he may advance his own declaration.

HOLDS NO FEARS

TORONTO—"The soul is eternal. Our personalities survive death," said John Russell, well-known artist in an interview today declaring his conviction there is a life beyond the grave.

"As a man living more or less in the creative world I would say I firmly belive no man should be fearful of the hereafter," he said.

Form into roll and cut in slices with a sharp knife.

SKI SUITS ARE COMFY

Costumes Keep Wearer Warm For Any Active Winter Sport.

Left, Vera Borea ski suit with turtle-neck sweater; center, suit of cravanetted material with striped sweater; right, wool garbardine suit

All the talk there is about ski suits nowadays doesn't mean that everyone's planning to go in for that sport in particular. For people are buying these costumes for hiking and hunting and mountain climbing, too.

And ski suits are grand for any chilly or snowy winter sports. They're warm as toast and waterproof, to begin with. And they have roomy trousers, only fitted at the waist and ankles. Wearing them, even the most active of activities is possible. No need for worrying about tumble-downs and upsets, in skating and tobogganing.

The trousers usually come with a blouse or jacket top. Often the jacket's collarless, allowing for a turtle neck sweater underneath, as in the Vera Borea model at the left.

Sweater-Shorts

This sweater is so interesting that we really should have shown it in a separate sketch. It's made all in one piece with a pair of shorts! What an idea for warmth—especially since it's wool zephyr. There's a zipper running down to the waist so it can be climbed into easily.

The jacket buttons up with metal buttons. The trousers are the type we mentioned—and so are the others illustrated. These have ankle cuffs to match the sweater. They make nice accents in navy or black on a scarlet suit. Other sporty color schemes include brown and orange, rustic green and a lighter shade, as well as powder blue and navy.

Stocking Cap

The mitten cuffs are of the sweater color, too, and also that very original little cap, which makes the fourth part of the ensemble. Doesn't it look like a slice of ribbed woolen stocking? That really does describe it, as the top's actually open. And so your head won't be exposed with this opening, another very tiny cap comes with it, to wear underneath.

The suit is made of fulled wool—an underwater pounding process which shrinks and waterproofs a knitted wool. And leaves it soft and pliable—slightly fuzzy on the surface—without a knitted stitch in sight!

Stripes of Many Colors

The material of the next suit looks quite similar, but it's been waterproofed by cravanetting, instead. A striped rib knit in several contrasting colors makes the turned-over turtle neck, that nearly reaches to the ears. The cuffs and ankle bands, and that part circling the hips, are striped, too. What a gay effect it makes!

NATIONALIZED RADIO MAKES DEBUT ON CHRISTMAS MORN

First Program Under New System to Go on Air Across Canada.

SYSTEM REVIEWED

(By Clark Kinnaird, Central Press Canadian Correspondent.)

OTTAWA, December 20. — Canada's conversion to state-owned broadcasting, one of the biggest developments of the year in radio, will be an object of study among executives of American radio networks and newspaper publishers beginning this month.

The state-owned system, which is eventually, by government decree, to replace privately-conducted and commercialized broadcasting in Canada, will air its first Dominion-wide programs on Christmas morning when the speech of King George will be broadcast all over the world and picked up and rebroadcast across Canada.

Blurbless broadcasting of 10 per cent. Canadian origin will be the Christmas gift of Canadian listeners from the new broadcasting commission.

Thus on Christmas morn a nationalized radio network similar to the B.B.C. system in England, Scotland, and Wales, will enter into direct competition with an American advertiser-supported type of broadcasting, and battle for the ears of Canadian listeners.

Until the ultimate objective of the commission is attained and all of the more powerful Dominion stations brought under one direction into a trans-continental chain of 100 per cent. Canadian nature, the new state-owned system will have commercialized competition not only from the United States, but from privately-owned stations in its own territory.

The Canadian plan as it has developed so far puts control of Dominion broadcasting into the hands of newspaper men, for the 10,000-a-year chairman of the commission is Hector Charlesworth, Toronto Thomas Maher, publisher of a newspaper in Quebec. The third member of the commission is Lt.-Col. W. A. Steel, radio expert of the Department of National Defence.

The commission has been deliberating since its appointment in early October, and feeling its way slowly. Considerable of its time has been spent in studying the American programs, which it intends to displace.

The nucleus of the chain is the trans-continental group of stations operated by the Canadian National Railways, a Government enterprise. Where advisable, stations will be bought from their present owners, and where necessary, new stations will be started.

The money for operations, extensions, and programs is expected to come from a tax of two dollars upon every receiving set in the Dominion. Between 700,000 and 800,000 should pay this tax. In addition to this, $1,500,000 or more a year, the commission hopes to have revenue from closely supervised sponsored programs which are restricted to five per cent. of broadcasting time, and probable grants from the Dominion Parliament.

North-End Homes Gaily Decorated

The north end of Water street is putting out its Christmas signals. One notable example is the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George Benton at 782 Water, where elaborate preparations have been made for the festive season. The whole front of the house is almost covered with evergreens. Wreaths hang from the windows with red foliage and pointsettias as centers. Some of these have been whitened and stand out against the green background. Pots of green are on the verandah steps and the big bay window encloses a Christmas tree, placed inside, and some of the bright red electric candles which shine forth so gaily at night. The whole exterior is very Christmasy looking.

W. Gordon Hall's lawn is also blazing with color these nights from an electrically-illuminated Christmas tree.

ROBIN IS SEEN AT BAILIEBORO

Waters of Rice Lake Are Not Unusually High at Present.

WELL FROZEN OVER

BAILIEBORO, Dec. 20.—(Examiner Correspondence).—On Sunday afternoon a robin was seen singing cheerily in a tree in front of the residence of Mrs. M. Byers. The sporting little chap sang lustily his cheery song and was finally noticed singing in the orchard owned by Mrs. B. Dawson.

Residents of the village were greatly interested in the little messenger of spring paying a visit to the village and singing his Christmas carrols, and certainly it seemed an unusual occurrence for a robin to have wintered such severe weather as has prevailed for the past fortnight.

Although reports of continued rising waters are coming from the districts around Otonabee River, still the waters of Rice Lake are not unusually high. The water is higher than it was last winter, but is about normal. Ice has continued thicken on the surface and a splendid thickness, consisting of about eight inches of perfect blue ice, is now on the lake. A dangerous crack has opened across the centre of the lake, which may cut off lake to thicken on surface and a splen- of the lake.

Mr. James Eagleson, of Orono, was the week-end guest of his brother, Mr. G. Eagleson.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Jewlson and family, of Toronto, were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. H. Barnard.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Scruton and family, of Toronto, were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. B. Perrin.

Mrs. Tamscott, of Port Hope, has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. N. Thompson, during the past week.

RUSH POINT HOLDS SCHOOL CONCERT

Plays, Dialogues, Songs Make Up Program Credit to Teacher and Pupils.

RUSH POINT, December 20 (Examiner Correspondence). — The pupils of Rush Point Public School under the direction of their teacher, Miss Margaret Brown, of Millbrook, presented their Christmas program on Friday evening, December 16, to an interested and appreciative audience. The school was nicely decorated, emphasizing the Christmas spirit. Red and greer. streamers, bells, strings of popcorn, and wreaths, together with some artistic blackboard drawings in colors, made the school room a proper setting for the young performers. The entire program was the production of the youngsters of the section with the exception of some Spanish guitar and harmonica selections ably rendered by Murnie Barton. Mr. Barton also accompanied some of the youthful singers. Earl Pollock was chairman.

The Program.

After the opening chorus by the school, "Merry, Merry Christmas Bells," the children staged a dialogue called "A Christmas Visit." Much applause followed the recitation, "A Crippled Dolly," by Edith Davis, very suitably dressed for the doleful part. Ten of the younger pupils dressed as Christmas candy sticks in white gowns with red spiral trimming, then appeared in a drill, during which they acted some of the old-fashioned games, such as London Bridge, Here We Go Gathering Christmas Candy, and Farmer's in the Den, with realistic childish glee. A dialogue, "Squire Hawley's Christmas," in two acts, had the proper Christmas spirit, as also had a reading given by Mary Toms. Randie Ellis recited about "Filling the Stockings," and after a song with two-part chorus and the yoddling by Lloyd and Winston Petherick, assisted by Murnie Barton, a very cute recitation "Sleepy Head" was given by Ivan Ellis. Four-year-old Betty Gaynel Petherick then recited an amusing and typically childish "Grudge." A number of small pupils gave realistic accompaniment, while all the children sang "Jingle Bells," and a funny dialogue, "Trouble in Santa Claus Land," in several acts, was followed by a song, "When Santa Comes," sung by Leland Petherick, with a tiny banjo accompaniment.

"Miss December."

Miss Muriel Breckenridge looked lovely as "Miss December," dressed in red and green tissue paper gown, and presented with a wreath and verse by each of thirty-one youngsters personating the days of the month. A pantomime by a number followed by a Christmas reading nicely given by Jeanne Blakely and a chorus by the school, "Away in Judea," closed the program.

Many delightful gifts and bags of candy taken from the pretty Christmas tree were distributed among the young people.

BANDIT REMANDED

NORTH BAY. — Samuel Essa Ayoub, of Kirkland Lake, awaiting trial here on charges of robbing the Bank of Montreal of about $5,000, and of wounding with intent, was given a third eight-day remand today by Magistrate S. Weegar. The alleged bandit is practically recovered from bullet wounds received at the time of his capture and will, police say, be able to appear for hearing before the remand terminates.

MADOC IS VISITED BY SANTA CLAUS

Women's Institute Plans for Relief Card Party in January.

MADOC, Dec. 20. — (Examiner Correspondence.)— The community Christmas tree was held on Saturday afternoon, Santa Claus visiting the community for an hour or so, to meet all the school children of Madoc and vicinity, and present each of them with an attractive sack of Christmas candy.

In spite of the extreme cold weather, with the thermometer registering 6 or ten degrees below zero at two o'clock in the afternoon, there were between five and six hundred children of school age in the march from the Armouries.

Large numbers were assembled for the occasion, which was sponsored by the Community Club of Madoc. The beautiful Christmas tree, adorned by its many strings of colored lights, was placed on the post office corner, and will be left to augment the scheme of decorations for St. Lawrence and Durham streets during this week of Christmas shopping. Small evergreen trees have been placed at intervals along the business thoroughfare, making excellent decorations and adding much to the festive appearance of the village.

W. I. Meets.

Madoc Women's Institute held their December meeting on Friday, 16th, at the home of Mrs. George White, with an attendance of 36. Mrs. C. N. Whytock presided. Correspondence was read and discussed. It was moved and seconded that the letter from the Hospital for Consumptives be filed for later discussion.

Discussing finance, it was decided that the card party, whose proceeds are to be for relief, be held on January 12th, convenors of committees were appointed. Mrs. Wellman for refreshments, Mrs. Moorcroft for coffee, Mrs. C. Whytock for tables and chairs, Mrs. Moon and Mrs. Tanner to look after score cards, Mrs. White to look after prizes, the admission to be 25 cents.

Mrs. Moon reported for the relief committee that a bale valued at twenty-five dollars had been sent to St. Ola, and a letter of thanks received. She also reported that yarn had been donated for relief, and that anyone wishing to knit might be supplied by calling her. Some parcels had also been sent out in town.

Mrs. C. A. Anderson gave a very interesting talk on Christmas legends and told the story of "Why the chimes rang."

Fourteen girls of the Junior Institute sang a series of Christmas carols which were much enjoyed, and Miss Jean Phillips, president of the Juniors, gave a Christmas reading after which more carols were sung, and the meeting dispersed with Merry Christmas greetings to all.

Bennett Is Received By Prince Of Wales

LONDON, Dec. 20 (C.P. Cable).—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett was received by the Prince of Wales last night at St. James' Palace, the Prince's residence. Following the Canadian Premier's visit with the Prince, they proceeded to the House of Commons, where they dined with Hon. George Black, Speaker of the Canadian House of Commons, and Mrs. Black; Hon. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner, and Mrs. Ferguson; the Speaker of the British House of Commons, and other prominent Parliamentarians.

Dukes Stretch Winning Streak to Five Games

MARLBOROS DEFEAT SAILORS IN WILD CONTEST AT TORONTO

Johnny McNeil Scores Only Goal of Game in First Period.

SEVERAL ARGUMENTS.

(By The Canadian Press)

Bruised and battered, Toronto Marlboros and Port Colborne Sailors are to-day recuperating from possibly the roughest hockey game witnessed on Toronto ice this season. Marlboros lone goal in the first period of their game with the Ports last night gave the Dukes a 1-0 verdict and enabled them to stretch their winning streak to five games.

The loss, incidentally, was Port Colborne's fourth consecutive one and it prevented them from moving up into a tie for third place with Hamilton Tigers in te senior Ontario Hockey Association standing.

Scores Only Goal

Dapper Johnny McNeil, who was a standout, clung with Pud Kitchen for the winners, scored the solitary marker. Snaring a neat pass laid down by Jimmy Primeau, he took his time as he skated in on the net and picked the far side which was wide open.

High sticks, slashing and petty holding, combined with the furious pace set by both teams kept the crowd in a continual uproar. A rousing finish by the Sailors, who were striving desperately to get the equalizer was terminated with but half a minute to go when Teddy Olliver and Gordon Reed, tangled behind the visitors' net and went down in a heap.

Fists flew and players of both teams conferred upon the spot with Referee Johnny Jones in the thick of battling Puckster. Jones finally restored order and Reed and Olliver came out of the fray with bleeding scalps.

Just previous to this Reed, who was serving a penalty, stepped on the ice before his time was up, at moment when his team was in a good scoring position. The penalty timers' bell rang and play was halted. An argument then ensued, in which it is alleged the Sailors threatened to leave the ice. After a five-minute delay the game was resumed only to be climaxed by the free-for-all.

Harry Gray and Fan Heximer were just as speedy as any of the Dukes, but the rest of the Sailors fail to measure up to their pace. Dinty Moore played a brilliant game in the nets and had no chance on the one that beat him. Ben Peer did some nice shooting from his wing, and stuck to his hockey throughout.

Plays Brilliant Game

Pud Kitchen played a brilliant game on the defence for Marlboros and did more than his share of attacking. Whitey Farrant and Bob Davidson were dangerous when in possession of the puck. Primeau offset his good work by some dangerous stick swinging, clouting both Reed and Gray across the head with his hickory.

Shutting out the visiting Kitchener-Waterloo by a 7-0 score in a Senior "B" series game Indians duplicated their win of last week. The winners scored a goal in the first, two in the second and four in the last period. Knetchel and Zulauf each got two of the winners total.

LEICESTER AND A FULL-BACK

There is a probability that Wood, the young Anglo-Scottish full-back, who returned home a week or two ago, may join Leicester City.

He is supposed to be booked for Glasgow Rangers, but Peter Hodge is understood to be on the lookout for a back, and Wood may be his man.

A BLACKBURN FANCY

If it had not been St. Johnstone's policy to keep their players, Ferguson, their left half-back, would have been on Blackburn Rovers' list by this time.

From what I hear they may get him yet.

SCOT FOR CHELSEA

Chelsea has strengthened their resources by the acquisition of William Pollock, an inside right from Gambusiang Rangers.

They arrived on the scene just in time, otherwise Motherwell or Celtic might have had him.

ENTERTAINING SPPORTERS' CLUB

Coventry City Supporters' Club are pursuing an enterprising policy to increase the membership and gather in funds, the latest effort being a Christmas whist drive on attractive lines.

IRISH LEAGUE CHAMIONSHIP

Though the race for the Irish League championship would seem to rest between Derry City and Celtic, Linfield are by no means out of the running.

They meet the City at Windsor Park next Saturday, and three weeks later they appear at Celtic Park. These two games will have a big bearing on the destination of the honor.

The newly-organized referees' board must have but some stiff questions on their paper last week to those who wanted to become members of this association, for nearly half of them failed to pass the test.

Who said that St. Michael's were going to be the weak sisters of the "Big Five" cage circuit? After dropping two games in a row by big margins, the Irish came back with a great display against Riverdale Grads last night to win with ease.

Marks and Connolly, the football stars, were doing great guns on the defence, while Hynes and Hickey held up more than their end on the front line. They get their big test when they stack up against Lizzies next Friday at the Arena Gardens.

MURPHY OF WALES

It may sound a little too Irish, but the fact remains that "Pat" Murphy of West Bromwich Albion, was one of the stars for Wales in the soccer international against Ireland. He is Welsh by birth. Wales won easily enough and the worst the gallant little country can do is tie for the international championship. Wales beat Ireland and Scotland and drew with England. The Sassenachs beat Ireland, as also did Scotland. England has to meet Scotland in Glasgow in the spring of 1933, and England must win to force a tie with the Welshmen. Ireland's year has been decidedly lean.

Browns, Senators Swap Pitchers And Outfielders

CARL REYNOLDS

Six American League players have traded teams as the result of a big swap between the St. Louis Browns and Washington Senators. Outfielders Carl Reynolds and Same West and Pitcher Lloyd Brown have been traded by the Senators for Outfielders Goose Goslin and Fred Schulte and Pitcher Walter Stewart. The Browns also received a cash settlement in the transaction. Goslin returns "home" as the result of the trade, he having been with Washington before St. Louis got him.

NUMBER "13" HAS NO TERRORS FOR VANCOUVER BIKE GRINDER

Peden and Gus Rys Ride to Victory in Milwaukee Bikeathon.

4TH STRAIGT WIN.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 20, (CP)—The so called hoodoo 13 holds no terrors to-day for William 'Torchy' Peden, Victoria's gift to the six-day bike game.

When the mountainous pedaller from British Columbia and his Belgian partner, Gus Rys, started out in Milwaukee's second International ride-to-nowhere the fans pointed out it was Bill's 13th race since he started his record-breaking riding. But just as though they had never heard of sinister numerals, Peden and his mate rode home to victory last night over a classic field.

It was the fourth straight victory for Torchy and the tenth in his last 13 starts. Races at Chicago, Minneapolis and New York have been winners in the past six weeks as he pedalled to a record never equalled in bikeathon history.

All the power in Peden's muscular legs had to be called up as the pack pressed hard in the final wild spasm of riding last night. Two hours before the finish the Italian team of Saetta and Rebaldi were abreast of the Canadian and his partner. The final hour was one jam after another. The Italians were unable to keep up with the pace, but the ultimate winners were more than equal to it. In fact as though to show their superiority they stole a lap on the entire field in the last 15 minutes.

The sprint stars of the race, Bernhard Steubecke of Germany, claimant of the world's sprinting title, and Al Crossley of New Bedford, Mass, sprint champion of New England, finished in second place along with Polly Parrott and Lew Elder of Ireland. But the former team had a wide lead in points, 1,709 compared to 852 for Peden and Rys, and 549 for Parrott and Elder.

The Canadian-American team of Reggie Fielding, Toronto veteran, and Bobby Thomas, finished in the point standing with 905.

BRUINS' 'BAD MAN' GOOD

BOSTON, Dec. 20—He may be Boston's "bad man" on the ice for the Bruins, but Eddie Shore in his own home "is afraid to be offside, even."

That statement comes from little Eddie Jr.

"You want to know how Papa goes at home?" he asked. "Well, I say that my Daddy isn't a bad man around this ranch.

"He doesn't put the sign on any one around here. I can't remember him trying a poke check or a little stick work on anyone on our club. At home my daddy is afraid to be offside, even.

"If he comes home late from the garden, he goes around on tiptoe looking for the arnica and bandages in the medicine chest.

"My dad can't be a bad man. Why my pop can't get through the second line of "Little Boy Blue" without choking up."

HAMMOND SEEKING HOME FOR INDIANS

Springfield Players May Be Given Berths Elsewhere.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.— Fourteen Canadian hockeyists wandered disconsolately around Springfield, Mass., to-day as negotiations proceeded here to put them back to work.

The puckchasers, members of the Springfield Indians of the Canadian-American League, were left homeless following their game with New Haven on Saturday night. Difficulties between Colonel John Hammond and the Springfield rink management resulted in the Colonel announcing withdrawal of his farm team from the Dooley loop.

Since then Colonel Hammond has decided to try and place the boys elsewhere so they may continue their clever play. The team rests in third place in the league standing, two points behind the leading Providence Reds.

Their remain two possible locations where the Indians may be rehabilitated. One in Manhattan and the other in a suburban district.

Negotiations proceeded at top speed yesterday as Colonel Hammond sought desperately to get his farm team settled in a new home before their next scheduled game on Christmas night.

"Strangler" Lewis Scores Double Win

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (C.P.)—Ed "Strangler" Lewis had an impressive double-victory behind him today and the New York wrestling promoters somewhat of a solution to a perplexing problem.

The promoters, who had seen the veteran iron-man from Los Angeles readily dispose of the assorted opposition available in these parts, threw a pair of grapplers against Lewis last night, one at a time. Lewis defeated them readily enough, with the world's wrestling crown he claims at stake, but the 3,000 fans who looked on seemed to enjoy the twin-bill and the promoters smiled contentedly.

A 260-pound Pole, Leon Pinetzki, who stands six feet, eight inches, was the first to trade holds and locks with Lewis. He succumbed in 28.13 when the Strangler applied his favorite weapon, the headlock. Another such lock disposed of the second opponent, Sammy Stein, 200, of Newark. The second bout lasted 32.41, with Lewis using his 40-pound pull in the weights to good advantage in defeating Stein.

Campbellford Teams Hold Good Workouts

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 20 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The two Campbellford teams, the juniors and intermediates, staged a splendid work-out last evening in the Davidson Arena, when a mixed game with the teams divided played an exhibition game, going the straight three periods and giving the fans an idea of what can be expected this season in the way of hockey. Very evenly balanced the teams got under way with a good start and showed some real good form on fast ice, and despite the bad hockey season last year told the world that they have not forgotten the way to puck-chase.

The game, which was only a scratch, ended in a 9-9 draw but gave the intermediates a chance to try out three prospective goalies, Vassey, Hopping and Ted Owens, all three of whom got their first good work-out in preparation with the game in Peterborough this evening, although it is not known which of the three will guard the nets for the Maroons against the Petes.

Between the periods the Oddfellows and the Legion staged a match which was fought in good style even if the players were of a vintage long past. The Old Soldiers came out on top with a 2-1 count, but the exhibition was enjoyed and appreciated by the fans, even if the players were not so enthusiastic. The proceeds of the evening will be used for relief purposes.

MAROON WINGER HAS 17 POINTS

Haynes and Weiland Rank Second and Third in International Section.

BILL COOK TOPS U.S.

MONTREAL, Dec. 20.—Players of recent prominence and veterans continue to dominate the scoring in the National Hockey League, according to averages issued last night by President Frank Calder.

Laurence Northcott of Montreal Maroons—he of the full head of hair who has oddly picked up the nickname "Baldy"—leads the whole league, both in most goals, 12, and most points, 17.

At his heels are his teammate, young Paul Haynes, with 16 points, 6 goals and 10 assists, "Bill" Cook of the New York Rangers with 16 points, 8 goals and the same number of assists, and Marty Barry, Boston Bruins, who is second in actual scoring with 11 goals to add to his 3 assists for 14 points.

Rangers continue to show the most consistent scoring punch in the United States division. Immediately following Barry are four from the blue-shirted New Yorkers, "Bun" Cook, Frank Boucher, Cecil Dillon and Art Somers, all of whom have scored 11 points or more.

A triple tie developed for third place in the Canadian division with "Cooney" Weiland, Ottawa Senators; Howie Morenz, Montreal Canadiens, and Dave Trottier, Marroons, all having 12 points.

Eddie Shore of Boston was displaced by Earl Seibert, New York Rangers, as penalty king. Seibert has spent 36 minutes with the timers, one minute more than Shore and two minutes more than "Red" Horner, defenseman of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Aussies Were Wise To Britishers' Speed

When the Australians went in to bat in the first test match with the M.C.C. cricket tourists, five of their batsmen wore rubber chest protectors, which covered the heart especially. These were worn to withstand the bumping balls of the English shock bowlers. Harold Larwood, the Nottinghamshire player, is a very fast bowler and on hard wickets he bumps them quite high.

Edwards Will Run Against Boston U.

BOSTON, Dec. 20—Eligibility rules mean nothing to McGill University of Montreal and Boston University.

On March 11, B.U. and McGill compete in a dual track meet at Boston, but eligibility rules were not considered because in Canada all students, undergraduates or in graduate departments may compete.

As a result, Phil Edwards, former negro half-mile champion, while at New York University, now a student at McGill, will compete against the terriers.

Toronto To Meet Redshirts To-Night

TORONTO, December 20 (C.P.).—Section leaders clash with cellar-occupants in two of the National Hockey League games scheduled to-night, while a third brings an intersectional joust between injury-riddled Ottawa and the crashing Bruins of Boston.

Much-improved Canadiens, unbeaten in their last three starts, taken on the world champion Maple Leafs at Montreal, their second meeting of the season. Toronto took the first game 2-0 on their own ice, but will find a vastly improved flock of Red Shirts in front of them to-night.

Toronto, aided to first place in the section on Saturday by their opponests of to-night when they downed the Maroons, will probably draw on Syracuse for second-line scoring punch if they lose to-night's contest. Bill Thoms, former Toronto Marlboro centre now with the stars, may be brought back to pivot Ace Bailey and Harold Cotton.

Native Sons Defeat Oshawa Juniors 4-3

OSHAWA, Dec. 20.—Native Sons ushered in the O.H.A. junior season here last night by administering a 4 to 3 defeat to the Oshawa Blue Imps in an exciting "Big Four" game, featured by the tireless attack of both teams. The game was a nip-and-tuck affair from bell to bell, with little difference between the teams. The visitors outweighed the Oshawa team by a good margin, and found the Oshawa defense easy to solve, coasting right in for their four goals.

Cyclone Taylor—Greatest Hockey Star Of All Time—Say Smart Patrick Boys

By ARCHIE WELLS
Central Press Sport Writer

TORONTO, Dec. 17.—Cyclone Taylor, of Listowel, Ont., and now inspector of immigration in Vancouver, B.C., was the greatest hockey player of all time, in the opinion of Lester and Frank Patrick, famed hockey men.

Lester and Frank should know because they have watched every great hockey player in the last 35 years. The two Patricks have been actively connected with hockey longer than any other men alive. They were amateur stars, then Lester thrilled Montreal when he played with the old Wanderers, in 1906 and '07; they were members of the Port Renfrew Millionaires, of whom the oldtimers still rave; they have captained, managed and owned Stanley cup champions and they have developed hundreds of players.

When they say Cyclone Taylor was the greatest player of all time they have got to be listened to.

* * *

"Taylor had everything," says Les Patrick. "He had courage, stamina, speed, stick-handling ability, the power to give a pass and accept one, the ability to score goals, and above all these things, color, something an outstanding athlete needs to make a manager and owner especially pleased. If he were playing today in the National Hockey league I could hear the turnstiles clicking merrily. I'd like to own a team today with Taylor as our center."

Frank Patrick had Taylor as his center for several years in Vancouver. Here is what he says about the Cyclone:

* * *

"Cyclone was a wonder. The

nearest approach today to Taylor when he was in his prime, is Howie Morenz, of Canadiens. Morenz has the same style of skating, a sort of rocking motion at the hips, but he is not as fast as Taylor was.

"Taylor had man assets. He could skate backwards as fast as the ordinary player could skate forward. He could shoot six ways, high or low, fast or slow, and front or back.

"Taylor was five times scoring champion of the Pacific Coast league. If he were performing to-day he would be the greatest drawing card in hockey. After he had retired we got him to come back for a game or two at a stretch and when we announced it our attendance would early double. People came just to see him skate."

Jockeys Outlast Matmen, Says Veteran Who Knows His Riders

During the past few years Jacques Curley, tamer of pachyderms and the gentlemen who pays their feed bill, has been considered something of an authority on the subject of eating.

He has always claimed that wrestlers could eat more than any other group.

Frank Hawley, for several years one of the foremost trainers and developers of jockeys, insists that although the wrestlers may be good for a long stretch his jockeys are able to concentrate and put on short bursts of eating which would shame the most hungry wrestler.

"A jockey arises at 5 a.m.," Mr. Hawley reports. "He has breakfast of flapjacks, coffee and, if I'm not looking, a couple of eggs. He exercises a few horses and comes in exhausted. He has a light lunch about 10 a.m. of steak and potatoes. Now, he lies around waiting for the races to start and he always gets nervous just before post time. To allay this nervousness he inhales a few hot dogs and hamburgers. After the race he has dinner and finally he eats his way to sleep."

McLARNIN STOLE SHOW FROM GREB IN HIS FIRST U. S. FIGHT

Vancouverite Fought First Pro Fight in Oakland, California 8 Years Ago.

RECEIVED HIS NICKNAME.

(By Copeland C. Burg, Special to The Examiner.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—I'm just a young fella, but throwing myself against the ivories of this old mechanical alphabet to tell about Jimmy McLarnin's first fight in America really puts me in the class of Hype Igoe, one of the grand old men of the fistic commenting game.

McLarnin's early history is still somewhat clouded. He is said by some to have fought professional battles when about 15 in Vancouver, B.C., but it is believed his first professional fight in America was staged in Oakland, Calif., about eight years ago.

I'll never forget it.

California was in a fever state because the card was headed by the great Harry Greb. He was fighting some local palooka, who did not have a chance in the world, but the idea of seeing the human windmill throw his gloves about that Oakland arena was enough to set hearts and eyes aglow. In thoes days few champions came to California, where the four-round law was in effect.

But when the curtain-raiser bout went on, it proved a bigger thrill to many than the Greb main event. Out into the yellow glow of the ring stepped one of those small-for-his-age, mine-run "prelim" boys and then followed the sweetest little ring pal you ever saw. Just a flyweight, but what a physique, what boxing class, what a personality. He stole the show from Greb, some fans thought.

It was Jimmy McLarnin and he was about 16 or 17 at the time. He had the same manager he has today—"Pop" Foster; his hair was cut short just as now; he had the same pink and white skin—the same innocent pan that immediately won him the name of "Baby-Face" McLarnin.

Jimmy looked so harmless the crowd shuddered when his opponent put a glove on him, but it was only a few seconds until "Baby-Face" had registered a boxing lesson and coasted to a neat victory.

I don't think that California ever before had seen such a genuine little sportsman as Jimmy and what a fighter! I remember the next day I wrote Jimmy eventually would win the lightweight championship. He did not do it, but some folks still call him the "uncrowned champ."

EMPIRE CUBS

The Empire Cubs will held their first team practise this evening from nine to ten o'clock at the Sacred Heart rink. The following bantams, along with those who were asked previously, should be on hand: Andy Depellaro, A. Chartren, Jardino, Ken Johnson, Bill Lucas, Earl Williams, G. Whatman, Vitarelli, Ward Wright, Prete, J. Leith, J. Barnes and Collins. It is important for everyone to be out.

Australian Says U.S. Will Regain Davis Cup In 1933

Ellsworth Vines, holder of the Wimbledon and United States tennis singles titles, is the world's greatest player, according to Jack Crawford, ace of the Australian team. Crawford believes the United States Davis cup team can beat France's best nine out of ten times, and is confident that the cup will be returned to this country next summer.

ALEX. COOK LEADS CAN.-AM. SCORERS

Boston Cubs' First String Centre Travelling at Fast Clip.

BOSTON, Dec. 20. (AP)—Alex Cook, Boston Cubs' first-string centre, to-day found his clutch on the Canadian-American Hockey League's scoring honors a bit firmer. He jumped into the lead last week, ousting Ted Saunders, his teammate, and his goal and assist in last night's 3-3 tie with the Beavers at Quebec boosted his pointage to 17.

Saunders, who added an assist to his total in the Quebec clash, continued in second place with 15 points. The deadlock enabled the Cubs to increase their lead over the second-place Philadelphia Arrows to a full game.

Reports from the various league points to-day were more encouraging than on Saturday, when Col. John S. Hammond of the New York Rangers threatened to disband his Springfield Indians after a financial disagreement with the rink owners in that city. Those property holders have invited the New Yorker to return to their Western Massachusetts city and resume rental negotiations. Hammond however, has insisted that an attachement on the Indians be removed before re-opening the case.

To-Night's Line-Ups

BAMBINO LEADS HIS MATES WITH TOTAL OF 130

Jimmy Foxx Tops Gehrig and Simmons in Runs Batted in During Past Season.

SEWELL LOWEST IN S. O.

(By Paul Mickelson, A. P. Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Jimmie Foxx excelled Babe Ruth and the rest of the American League in the production of homers and runs batted in last season but the aging Bambino again was the most walked man in the circuit.

In 132 games, 22 less than Foxx participated in, Ruth was handed 130 bases on balls by pitchers who figured one bag was better than four. While this crop failed to come close to the record one of 170, collected by the Babe in 152 games during the 1923 campaign, it was enough to give the New York Yankees a new high mark for one club with a team total of 766 for the season. In 1934 the Yanks collected 748 passes in 155 games.

Leads Old Rivals

Foxx was second to Ruth in passes received, the final, official averages disclosed today, with 116 but he topped his closest rivals, Lou Gehrig of New York and Al Simmons of Philadelphia by 18 scores in runs batted in. Foxx drove in 169 runs while Gehrig and Simmons were credited with 151 each. Ruth ranked fourth with 137. Fourteen players batted in 100 or more runs, while only five—Ruth, Foxx, Gehrig, Mickey Cochrane and Max Bishop—received 100 or more bases on balls. Ten players got four passes in one game with Earl Averill of Cleveland and Ossie Bluege of Washington drawing five in one afternoon.

Leads Strikeouts

The easiest man to strike out in the league last season was Bruce Campbell, who was sent to St. Louis by the White Sox. Campbell fanned 104 times or eight times more than his closest rival, Foxx, who churned the air with his home run bat just 96 times. Campbell and Averill also were the easiest targests for wild pitchers, getting hit six times each.

Joe Sewell, New York veteran, ran his great record for strikeouts to the minimum of 110 for 13 years batting in the American League, striking out but three times in 124 games. Sam Rice of Washington struck out only six times in 106 games. Bennie Tate, Boston catcher, struck out six times in 85 games, Billy Sullivan, Chicago, nine times in 93, and Carey Selph, Chicago rookie, nine in 116.

"FAITHLESS."

Two glamorous stars are in this picture, Tallulah Bankhead and Robert Montgomery, in "Faithless," a picture whose title doesn't seem to fit exactly, and which has some acquaintanceship with the censor's shears.

Norman R. Jaffray, writing a nice little poem called "Hard to Find," printed in the last edition of the Saturday Evening Post, commences his poetical effusion thus: "What's happened to innocent girlhood, In books, on the stage and the screen? The heroines favored are pretty high-flavored In most of the movies I've seen." "Faithless" brings that sentiment to mind.

Miss Bankhead does a marvellous imitation of Greta Garbo, much better than the one that Joan Crawford has been staging for some time past. She has mostly everything to remind one of the Swedish actress, except that certain something that can't be imitated.

"Faithless" is the story of a very rich girl whose money went blotto in the great smash. She considered a seventy-dollar a week suitor as merely so much pitter-patter, but before life was through with her, she thought a great deal of the same amount. Tallulah Bankhead is the heroine, Carol Morgan, and Montgomery is Bill Wade, with a part that suits him to perfection and allows him plenty of scope for his wise-cracking talents. One landlady is Louise Closser Hale, and the second is Anna Apfel, who was the wonderful Jewish mother in "Symphony of Six Million," with Ricardo Cortez.

Charley Chase has a characteristically funny comedy in "First in War." —Jeanette.

Del Bissonette Is In Best Of Health

NEW YORK., Dec. 20 (A.P.)—So far as Del Bissonette is concerned, the Brooklyn Dodgers can stop negotiations with Joe Judge, Washington first baseman, any time now.

Bissonette, recovering from a series of operations that kept him idle all last season and part of the 1931 campaign as well, says he will be in first rate shape by the time the Spring training season comes around. He is sure he will do most of the Dodgers' first-basing in 1933.

Brooklyn has been trying to get Judge's name to a contract, fearing that Bissonette will not be able to play.

The intermediate Petes go into action at the Brock tonight at 8.30 against the husky Campbellford outfit. It's an exhibition game for practise, and also for some needed dough. The Petes aren't asking anyone for money this winter, though they need it badly enough. No, they're going to play a couple of exhibition games against real fast teams, and depend upon good crowds to cover expenses. It should be a smart game of hockey between these squads, both of which have been greatly improved over last year. Two bits' admission.

Here's a letter we got the other day from an East Citizen: It looks like a questionnaire: "Dear Sir—Why aren't the free rinks opened for use? Haven't we had enough cold weather? Yes. Aren't there any men around to do the job?. Yes. Don't the children want them? Yes. Does the softball players want them any more? I don't think so. Is every person wondering why the delay? Yes. When will there be ice?" The party is evidently referring particularly to the rink in East City. We can't answer the first and last questions, and East Citizen had answered the other ones himself.

* * * * * * *

Another party has asked for a brief outline of the ring career of John L. Sullivan. According to our record book, Jawn was born in Boston October 15th, 1858. He was 5 feet, 10½, weighing 195 in his prime. He died February 2nd, 1928, after having been the last of the London Prize Ring (bare knuckles) champions, a title he carried to his grave; and also champ with the gloves till Corbett licked him in 21 rounds in New Orleans, September 7th, 1892.

* * * * * * *

The Boston strong boy started fighting 1878, when he was twenty years old, and finished with an exhibition bout in '96. He had a record of 37 matches, winning 12 by kayoes, 20 by decisions, drawing 3, and losing 1. Of course he fought and K.O.'d about 150 men of which there is no record on his tours when he offered them purses up to $500 to stay with him four rounds. He won the bare knuckle title from Paddy Ryan in nine rounds in '82, his last fight under these rules being against Jake Kilrain in '89, winning that in 75 rounds. What a grand old battler he must have been!

Here's a point that should be of interest to local clubs and fans, as well as anywhere. We've often heard it discussed as to who was liable in case fans were injured at a game. It has been argued both ways, and several cases, tried in court where a fan sued for being hit with a ball and hurt, were thrown out, no damages being given. We'd like to have some local lawyer present his views on the matter. One never knows when it might come up for judgement here. What we started out to say was that the N.Y. Yankees were soaked plenty over a suit the past summer.

* * * * * * *

There were thirty-four injured in a jam at an exit of the Yanks' stadium when a sudden rainstorm came up. They sued the club for one million smackers. It was finally settled yesterday for $45,000, to be divided among the plaintiffs according to injuries received. The agreement was reached between counsels for both sides appearing before a Supreme Court Justice. You'd hardly blame the club for a jam arising out of a rainstorm—but that's the way the suit turned out.

* * * * * * *

The local O.H.A. juniors aren't being neglected these days. They're working out regularly and getting gradually weeded down and developed into a team. There is plenty of material here and we generally get a smart junior outfit lined up as long as there is ice for the boys to keep working on. We won the group last year, but the boys weren't in the pink even then, lack of ice being the cause. And then they were thrown in against a team of artificial-ice stars collected from near and far and wearing Toronto St. Mike's sweaters, and that was that. This is another and entirely different winter.

* * * * * * *

The junior grouping is still unsettled, but may be cleared up by tonight and a schedule meeting called any evening. The local club has been assured they would be welcome in the Lakeshore loop with Cobourg, Port Hope and Bowmanville. However, they've been put in with Fenelon Falls, Lindsay and Bobcaygeon. The first two are all right, but 'Caygeon isn't so popular with the Petes. It would be better for all concerned to put the Falls, Scugogers and the Bobcaygeon teams in one group, and the Petes in with the Lakeshore lads. We'll know soon.

There is a new National Hockey Guide and Record Book on the market now, compiled and edited by James C. Hendy of New York—with a number of prominent authorities contributing the material. In 1926 we had an excellent hockey pictorial and record book, giving the complete history of the game up to date, with pictures of every winning team, including three Peterborough ones. However, it was lost several years ago, and we've been unable to locate a similar one since. If any reader could supply this information, it would be appreciated. Hockey is one game whose history records have never been properly presented to fans. In fact, they should have a monthly like the Baseball Magazine.

Poor old Rajah, always in trouble; now, Hornsby's home is being sold for delinquent taxes . . . . Red Grange will quit pro football all right, having been badly banged up in the last game recently, three Portsmouth giants climbing his frame all at once, leaving little intact but that famous jersey number "77".

Carson Cooper Is Olympics' New Boss

DETROIT, Dec. 20. — George Hay dropped the managerial reins of the Olympics, Detroit International Hockey League club last night to become centre between Captain Larry Aurie and Johnny Sorrell on the Detroit National League entry.

Carson Cooper, who figured in the trade that brought John Ross Roach to the Redwings will arrive to-day to become pilot of the Olympics. Cooper, who led the scorers of the American division of the National League three years ago, was turned loose this season by the New York Rangers who had acquired his services in the deal involving Roach.

The switch also sends Gus Marker and Leroy Goldsworthy to the Olympics from the Redwings and they will line up under Cooper's management against Windsor Thursday night.

Hay managed the Olympics from the bench during the first six games this season then donned his uniform and bagged seven goals in the next eight teams. It is considered improbable that Cooper will be a playing manager for the next few weeks at least.

Hay left last night for New York where he will join the Redwings in time for to-night's game against the Rangers.

ABOLISHING OFFICE

NIAGARA ON THE LAKE Ont., Dec. 20. (CP)—This town's "uptown customs office" which has been in existence for 100 years, will be closed on April 30. Notification to this effect has been received from the Department of Customs. All business will be transacted at the wharf when the uptown office has closed.

HOCKEY SEASON OPENS TO-NIGHT

Local Intermediates Meet Campbellford in First of Exhibition Series.

HOME AND HOME GAMES.

The Peterborough intermediates open their hockey season at the Brock to-night in an exhibition game against the Campbellford O.H.A. squad, starting at 8.30. The 1933 edition of the Petes is a husky, hard-hitting and fast-skating bunch, mixing color, fight and effective playing that promises to put this town back on the hockey map. This exhibition game should be a fine opener as the strong battling Campbellford crew is confident it is in a stronger group than the locals.

Manager Eddie Wright, who piloted the Petes to a senior Ontario title in '26, figures he has a smart intermediate outfit this year that should go places. He will give them all a chance on the ice to-night, using three different goalies: Gillespie, Miller and Foley—a period apiece—Weir, Howe and LeBarr at defence, and some or all of these forwards: Ellis, Merrett, Jarvis, Maudsley, Cripps, Dallin, Creighton, Dundas, Hatton and Carroll.

The visiting team has several newcomers who are expected to round out a powerful and speedy Campbellford team this season. Buster Whitton, ice star and former firebrand of the lacrosse club with the Ingrams, MacArthur and other reliables, will all be on hand in this game to-night. The two teams play back in the Hydro town Friday.

The Petes will be wearing their new blue and white uniforms, and figure on giving them the proper baptism under fire. The new rules will also be used throughout, giving fans a first-hand idea of how they will work toward speeding up the game and cutting down on the bell-ringing. With the weather good, ice solid and both teams in the pink and anxious to show their stuff, a large crowd of hockey fans is expected. The game is being played not only for the practice gained, but also for needed finances.

SUSPECT CAPTURED

KINGSTON.—George A. Hendrie, 24, alleged deserter from the Canadian army, was arrested at Smith's Falls early to-day and brought to this city. He will be charged, police say, with assaulting Peter Davis at the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery barracks Sunday and stealing $60. Davis is in critical condition in hospital.

VICTORIA IS VICTOR OVER QUEENSLAND CLUB

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 20 (C.P. Cable).—Victoria defeated Queensland to-day in the Sheffield Cricket Shield Competition by an innings and 139 runs. The scores were: Victoria, 339 (Darling 128 and O'Brine 64, Oxenham four for 54). Queensland 126 and 74 (Ironmonger took seven wickets with the loss of only 13 runs).

In the other Sheffield Shield match being played at Adelaide, New South Wales defeated South Australia by three wickets. The scores were: New South Wales, 379 and 36 for seven, South Australia, 213 and 251 (Whitington 73, Tobin 31, Stewart three for 59, O'Reilly four for 47, and three for 55).

An especially made glass lined tank is used for scenes in "'Past Life" which show William Haines and Madge Evans under water. The story centers around motor-boat racing and the immersions occur during the mishaps and thrills which characterize this form of sport. They went under water more than 100 times during the filming of the picture. The water in the tank was chemically treated to make it transparent so they may be seen as clearly as though they were on land.

Many of the relics from the tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen were reproduced in faithful detail for use in Karloff's "The Mummy," a story of a mummy who comes to life. The replicas were made in Hollywood from enlarged photographs of the relics which are now in a Cairo museum. The make-up which Karloff wears as Im-Ho-Tep, the mummy, was fashioned after the mummy of King Seti II which is in this museum.

As each male member of the cast of "Ruby Red" was selected his first order was to report for a haircut. The story, which will feature Mae West, celebrated star of the stage, and of which Miss West is co-author with Harvey Thew and John Bright, is laid in the gay nineties. A barber shop has been installed on the set and old photographs will be studied so that the men's hair will conform with styles of the period.

DIDRIKSON IS LEADING CHOICE GIRL ATHLETES

Averages 81 Votes Out of Total of 215 Cast in Associated Press Poll.

FEMININE "FIRST TEN."

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (A.P.) — There is no doubt about Babe Didrikson's place as the outstanding girl athlete of United States in 1932, regardless of any doubt existing as to her future as an amateur competitor.

With some belated additions to the voting, Miss Didrickson to-day leads all rivals in the second annual Association Press poll, on the outstanding feminine athlete of the year, with 81 votes out of a total off 215 cast.

Here's the feminine "first ten" for tor the year, based on results of the poll among sports writers and editors throughout the country:

Winter Garden Adopts New Policy

The Winter Garden, 370 Water street, Peterborough's popular dance resort, wishes to announce to the public of this city and vicinity a sensational adaptation of a new policy for the winter months. Starting next Friday and Saturday, December the 23rd and 24th and continuing on the same days every succeeding week a new and novel idea will be tried in the form of a Floor Show, similar to those of cabarets in larger cities.

A great amount of time and money has been expended in making our first endeavor along these lines, a huge success, and we take great pleasure in announcing such well known stars of radio and stage as direct from sixteen weeks of broadcasting at the Embassy Club in Toronto;

ANNIE TRAYNOR

BETTY JUDD

featured Tap Dancer and late of Winnipeg Kiddies;

RUBBERLEGS HEWLETT

originator of the rubberlegs dance and featured on the Publix Circuit for twelve weeks.

Music for dancing is supplied by Stan Williams and his Band, late of the Golden Dome Cabaret in Montreal, but no strangers to the dancing public of Peterborough.

All in all it presents a combination of entertainment and music that would be very hard to surpass anywhere.

The acts will be presented at various time throughout the evening, and whether you are late or early you will have an opportunity of seeing an entire show, but we would advise you being on hand early in order to assure yourselves of accommodation.

A nominal charge of fifteen cents will admit any person to the Garden and taxi dancing will prevail throughout the evening. Dancing will start promptly at 8.30, and will continue until 12 p.m.

In the meantime the Winter Garden is open every night and you will find it an enjoyable place to spend an evening of dancing. There is also a check room and refreshment booth in connection for the accommodation of our patrons.

DENIES EPIDEMIC

NORTH BAY. — "There is no such thing as a 'flu epidemic at Moosonee, and according to direct and authentic information I know no deaths have occurred," said George W. Lee, chairman of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, to-day.

"Immediately I read a press report I called Moosonee by telephone and was told there isn't any evidence of 'flu in the new settlemen' " Mr. Lee said.

FARMER BROWN'S BOY FINDS YOWLER

All hail to him who in defeat
Resolves he'll ne'er again retreat,

That is the spirit that triumphs. That is the spirit of the truly brave. It is those who, beaten in one battle, return again and again to the fight whom we most respect. Bowser the Hound isn't this kind. When Yowler the Bob-cat won that fight in the Green Forest he won for all time from Bowser. Bowser's heart was not stout enough to make him willing to face Yowler again. So when, eagerly sniffing this way and that ahead of Farmer Brown's Boy, he came across the fresh trail of Yowler, the scent that filled his wonderful nose filled him with anger but still more with fear.

When Farmer Brown's Boy saw Bowser come sneaking back, his tail between his legs and his head hanging, he knew right away that Bowser had found traces of some one whom he feared. He had seen Bowser act that way before when he had come across the fresh scent of Buster Bear. Had he smelled Buster Bear this time or had he smelled Yowler, the Bob-cat? Farmer Brown's Boy wished he knew.

"Bowser," said he severely. "Bowser, I'm ashamed of you. I certainly am ashamed of you. I know well enough that you haven't found anybody yet. All you've found is the scent left by the feet of some one who has been along this way and here you are turning tail and sneaking back. I'm afraid you are a coward, sir."

Bowser crawled along the ground to his master's feet and feebly wagged his tail. Farmer Brown's Boy went on toward the place from which Bowser had just come. Bowser sneaked along behind him. What he wanted to do was to turn and run home, but he didn't dare do that. He knew that he would be soundly punished if he did. Farmer Brown's Boy watched sharply for tracks but there were none to be seen. Then he tried to send Bowser on, but Bowser wouldn't go. For the first time in his life he absolutely refused to obey Farmer Brown's Boy. He wouldn't hunt.

Farmer Brown's Boy sat down on a log to consider.

"Bowser," said he, "how do you expect I am going to find that Bob-cat, if you won't help? It's silly of you, very silly indeed, to be afraid when I am along with my gun. I know well enough you've found his tracks around here and I want to know which way he has gone. If I had a nose like yours I might find out, but I haven't and now you won't lend me yours. There's a ledge of rocks back here and that is the only place I can think of where he may make a home. We'll go over and see what we shall see. And, mind you, don't try to sneak away and run home!"

Now, this is just what Bowser wanted to do. It is just what he would have done, if Farmer Brown's Boy hadn't kept a sharp watch of him. But as they went on and Bowser found no more of the scent of Yowler he began to feel better. It wasn't in this direction that he had had that dreadful fight with Yowler. He almost forgot Yowler and began to run this way and run that way his nose to the ground hoping to find the trail of Jumper the Hare.

So they came to the ledge of rock and right at the foot of it Bowser suddenly stopped short, growled as he looked up for a minute, then turned with a little whimper and ran past his master, who called to him sharply. Bowser stopped, but Farmer Brown's Boy couldn't get him a step nearer that ledge. Farmer Brown's Boy chuckled.

"You've told me all I need to know, Bowser," said he. "From the way you act it is clear that Yowler is somewhere in this ledge."

With gun ready he climbed up and began to look for a cave. At a small opening among the rocks he stopped. Just in front were a few little bones. Farmer Brown's Boy stopped and tried to see inside the hole. A large growl, an ugly growl ending in a snarl, caused him to step back hurriedly, his gun ready to use. He had found Yowler at home.

"Bowser," said he, "how do you expect I am going to find Bob-cat if you won't help?"

Women "homesteaders" are quite in evidence in Alberta under the new provincial land regulations, a tabulation showing 2,392 homestead entries by women against 5,012 by men since July 2, 1931.

What Today Means to YOU

by MARY BLAKE

"SAGITTARIUS"

If December 20th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 1.15 p.m. to 2.30 p.m., from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. and from 10.15 p.m. to 11.30 p.m. The danger periods are from 11 a.m. to 12.30 p.m. and from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Forces active on this December 20th will tend to undermine your confidence in your own ability. Do not hesitate or hold back; push on strenuously with your usual vigor and attain your goal. Doubt will seek to creep into your mind, but rise above it, master it, and carry on. Guard against feeling distrustful towards "the one and only."

Born on December 20th, the child will appear to have a mean disposition, petty, and not as honest as might be hoped. The child can, if properly handled, outgrow these faults of character. A slight tendency towards laziness will prompt these little ones to take the easy way of doing things, and they will not be averse to employing deceit to gain their point. An active mind which retains details.

If December 20th is the date of your birth, you are a splendid person. You have an unusually sane outlook on life, you stand firmly on your own feet and you know right where you are headed at all times. Your are continually acquiring a great fund of information which always stands you in good stead. You are a good conversationalist; an interesting talker and a convincing one. You are a leader, natural born; you are equipped to mix with all kinds of people, and to meet them on their own ground; you are extremely democratic.

Born on December 20th, you should find little difficulty in finding your life work. Your interests in life are many and varied, and as long as you are making money, and see the possibility of making more, any line of work will appeal to you; what is more, you will probably succeed at whatever you are doing. You will not lean heavily on friends, though you will have many. They will play a minor part in your life. The right husband or wife will do much to help you maintain the stability and firm footing which early in life were yours. Should your mate deceive or disappoint you, it would probably prove an obstacle above which you could not rise. Your children will be a disappointment to you.

Who discovered oxygen?

What will dissolve celluloid?

How many rose leaves does it take to make an ounce of attar of roses??

Correctly Speaking—

The colon should be used after a word, phrase or sentence constituting an introduction to something that follows, such as a list, an extended quotation, or instances of a general statement preceding.

Words of Wisdom

An army abroad is of little use unless there are prudent counsels at home.—Cicero.

Today's Horoscope

Persons born on this day are fond of amusement and pleasure and like to have company on their excursions.

Answers to Foregoing Questions

1. John Priestley, an Englishman, who came to America in 1794, discovered oxygen.
2. It can easily be dissolved in denatured alcohol.
3. It is said that it takes two tons of rose leaves to make an ounce of this highly concentrated perfume.

Curlers Rejoicing For 1933 Schedule

Curlers are beginning to look askance at the signs of milder weather that are apparent to-day and are hoping that it will not inflict damage on the seven perfect sheets of ice at Charlotte Street Rink.

For a week now the roarin' game has progressed merrily and the boys are about contemplating launching off into the schedule. Members are reported to be enrolling for the present season at a sufficient rate to ensure at least as many rinks as last season. prospective curlers are urged to get applications in without delay to President Dr. N. H. Sutton, to J. T. Braund chairman of the games committee or to J. Mayneord, secretary.

HOOVER INDICATES HE MAY NAME COMMISSION TO STUDY DEBTS

Will Co-operate With Roosevelt to Insure Continuity on U.S. Foreign Policy.

"NO CANCELLATION"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(AP).—Co-operation with President-elect F. D. Roosevelt to insure continuity of American foreign policy, particularly as to war debts, the world economic conference and disarmament was proposed yesterday by President Hoover in a message to Congress.

Lacking congressional approval for revival of the war debt commission, the President declared it necessary for him to proceed independently of Congress to set up machinery for further debt discussions with those nations who have not defaulted.

He suggested an interlocking of the debt, economic and disarmament questions and indicated that a commission on debts would be appointed soon by him, some of the members of whih would also be delegates to the world economic conference set for next year, while others would have a liaison with the present disarmament negotiations.

Approached Roosevelt.

It is the assumption here that Mr. Hoover already has made some overtures toward Mr. Roosevelt and that the personnel of the group which is to handle the debt discussions will be submitted to the President-elect for his approval before appointment.

The President reiterated his views against cancellation or reduction without adequate compensations, and said it would "meet my hearty approval" if Congress should decide to re-establish the debt commission. Congressional opposition to any such step is so strong, however, that the chief executive voiced no hope that that previous recommendation of his ever would be fulfilled.

Mr. Hoover only negatively excluded from the proposed discussions those nations, including France and Belgium, which defaulted on December 15. After outlining again the views he has expressed many times against imposing further sacrifices on the American people in connection with the debts, he said: "In any event in protection to our vital interests, as good neighbors and in accord with our traditional duty as wise and fair creditors, whether to individuals or nations, we must honor the request for discussion of these questions by nations who have sought to maintain their obligations to us."

HUNDREDS OF TOYS READY FOR SANTA

Firemen Busy for Weeks Past Getting Ready For Christmas.

In shining array, the toys and dolls that have been pouring into the toy factory at the Fire Hall during weeks past, now lie in resplendent rows, their joints fixed to perfection, their faces washed and painted, their broken parts mended so carefully that they can hardly be perceived.

Anyone going into the big upper room where the display is arranged would think one was stepping into a toy shop. Glistening paint does wonders to old toys, after careful fingers have mended all their breaks. There are quantities of pretty things of all sorts to gladden the hearts of hundreds of the children of the city. To realize that most of this stuff is really salvage and represents toys and dolls that would have been thrown away had not the fire fighters fixed them up, is to gain just a little idea of the amount of painstaking labor and careful attention that has been put into the job.

There are dolls of all shapes and sizes, all of them dressed with the exception of about a dozen which still await garments to put them in proper kilter. There are aristocrats and plebians, haughty ladies dressed for a ball and little work-aday damsels fit for anything. There are blondes and brunette and platinum-haired ladies and redheads like Clara Bow. They are in velvet and silk and cotton and wool, with and without bonnets, but they are all whole as to eyes and fingers and toes, even though so many of them came into the Fire Hall lacking these useful parts.

Then there are toys of all descriptions: mechanical devices, bunnies, teddy bears, clumsy and huggable, little trains that run on tracks, tiny writing desks and miniature houses, jumping jacks and airplanes and games of chance. There are sleds galore, all freshly painted, doll carriages for the tiny mother, spick and span, rocking horses mended so carefully that no one can see the breaks, sleds and coasters and skiis. There are games for the frivolous and books for the literary-minded.

And every single last one of them is in the best possible condition, thanks to the painstaking efforts of the men at the Fire Hall.

2 KILLED IN CRASH

ANTHONY, Department of the Seine, France, Dec. 20. (AP)—Two pilots were killed and 10 other persons were injured to-day when an army airplane crashed through the roof of a house in this village.

STRANGULATION BLAMED ON SON

Arrest Follows Embalmer's Discovery of Cord Around Woman's Neck.

HUSBAND QUESTIONED.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Dec. 20.—(AP)—An embalmer's discovery of a possible murder there in the death of a 70-year-old woman previously reported to have died of natural causes, was studied by authorities today, while her 54-year-old son was held for questioning.

Coroner Theodore G. Schaeffer decided the woman, Mrs. Alice E. Swartout, was killed by strangulation, after the embalmer detected an 18-inch strand of cord wound tightly around her neck. It was embedded so deeply it escaped discovery in a previous examination of a physician.

Sheriff Charles W. Cartmell said Mrs. Swartout's husband, Albert, 72, was questioned at his home but was unable to throw light on the mystery.

Prosecutor Orville Wear then ordered the arrest of the son, William Earl Heindel.

RE-ELECT DUFFUS HEAD OF PLOWMEN

Mr. Duffus Enters Sixth Consecutive Year as Association's President.

In being re-elected president of Peterborough County Plowmen's Association for the year 1933, J. J. Duffus enters upon his sixth consecutive term as head of the organization.

For ten consecutive years he has also been director of the Ontario Plowmen's Association, of which body he was president in the year 1926.

Other officers re-elected by the local Association were: 1st Vice-President, Howard Quinn; 2nd Vice-President, William Thompson, Indian River; Secretary-Treasurer, J. B. Nelson; Assistant Secretary-Treasurer, Roland Dixon; Directors: Otonabee—Sid Bennett, Walter Thorne, Frank Graystock; North Monaghan—R. T. Lillico, Ira Robson; Smith—Thos. H. Graham, Gordon Hancock; Douro — Vern Campbell, William Hayes; Ennismore—W. D. Cavanagh, James Crough; Dummer—James Hawthorn, Alex. Carlow; Harvey—William Thompson, Archie Wilson; Belmont — Wesley Johnson, W. G. Barry; City—G. A. Gillespie, V. J. Eastwood, Sr., Walter Barns, Stuart Hall, C. S. Cummer, F. D. McIntyre; Asphodel—to be appointed.

It was decided that, providing the local support is forthcoming, next year's county match shall be held in the eastern part of the county.

Reports of this year's match at the farm of Ed. Corkery in Ennismore Township was decidedly encouraging. The event was an unqualified success. Entries reached a total of 55 competitors, while the total amount paid out in prizes was $342 for the match and $33 for the home plowing competitions.

Minor changes were effected in the rules governing next year's plowing match, one of which will require all Peterborough County plowmen to provide their own teams.

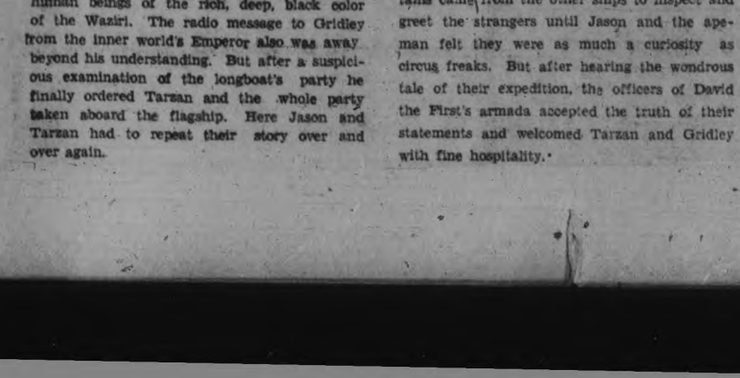
TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE No. 92

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service, Inc.)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs



"That fellow up there is turning the gun on us!" cried Jason Gridley, sharply. Presently another man appeared upon the bow deck of the enemy's ship. "Heave to," he shouted, "or I'll blow you out of the water." Tarzan ordered Lajo, the Korsar, to obey while Jason called up: "Who are you?" "I am Ja of Anoroc," replied the man. "This is the war fleet of David I, Emperor of Pellucidar." Then Gridley, as if out of his mind, shouted, "Hurrah, hurrah!"

For Gridley could hardly believe his ears. Here at last was communication with the man for whose rescue he had organized the expedition to the earth's core. Ja, suspecting Jason was crazy, asked, "Who are you?" The longboat had come about and lay beside the flagship. "Friends," replied Tarzan, as Gridley was too excited to speak. Bronzed Merop warriors gazed down in curiosity at the ape-man's party. "This man is Jason Gridley. His expedition came from the outer earth to rescue David I from the dungeons of the Korsars."

Ja, of Anoroc, was skeptical of the truth Tarzan spoke. The three Korsars in the longboat made him doubly wary. Never before had he seen human beings of the rich, deep, black color of the Waziri. The radio message to Gridley from the inner world's Emperor also was away beyond his understanding. But after a suspicious examination of the longboat's party he finally ordered Tarzan and the whole party taken aboard the flagship. Here Jason and Tarzan had to repeat their story over and over again.

Word quickly spread that two of the strangers were friends and from the outer world. Captains came from the other ships to inspect and greet the strangers until Jason and the ape-man felt they were as much a curiosity as circus freaks. But after hearing the wondrous tale of their expedition, the officers of David the First's armada accepted the truth of their statements and welcomed Tarzan and Gridley with fine hospitality.

YOUNG PEOPLE PRESENT PLAY AT MILLBROOK

Grace Presbyterian Church Young People Present "George in Jam."

APPROPRIATE COSTUMES

MILLBROOK, Dec. 20.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The Town Hall was well filled on Friday evening for the play, "George in a Jam," presented by the young people of Grace Presbyterian Church and sponsored by the Women's League, the three-act comedy requiring two hours and a half to complete its intriguing and humorous story, radio selections entertaining the audience during the time of gathering and between the story sections.

Dick Williams acted as chairman and welcomed the audience on behalf of the young folk who were putting on their initial play in a public hall, promising the formation of a dramatic club, possibly in the near future, when such entertainments might be looked for fairly frequently. The players were a bit handicapped by the fact that Mrs. Mervan Kinsman, who was taking one of the leading parts, unfortunately developed flu, and by doctor's orders was confined to bed the very day the play was to be presented. However, Miss Margaret Armstrong proved a capable substitute, deserving the highest praise since she undertook the study of the part after dinner, and carried its exacting demands out with exceptional ability, even having her lines amazingly well learned in the very brief time allowed for study and preparation.

The cast included the following George Forbes (George McKnight), who get "in a jam" because of his indebtedness to the tune of five hundred dollars which his guardian, Jim Gray (Norman Armstrong), refuses to advance him money to discharge, going off to Europe and leaving George to get out his trouble the best way he can; Jack Carson, George's friend (Dick Williams), whose impersonation of a German maid was "a scream" and literally brought down the house; Odessa, the colored cook (Mrs. R. J. McKnight), who filled a difficult role well; Miss E. Brown, George's foster sister (Margaret Armstrong), whom he is supposed to marry in order that they may inherit their uncle's wealth, but who is really in love with their joint guardian, Jim Gray; Miss Marie Morrow (Vanite Ingram), who has the task of teaching correct etiquette to Sarah ane Larkins (Ruth Thorndyke), daughter of the newly rich pair, Zachariah and Maria Larkins (Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Deyell), who come to the city to live; and the rural detective, Zeke Stebbins (Joe Thorndyke), all of whom have a part in George's life in helping him out of the "jam" as they come to live in the rooming-house which he opens up in his apartment to raise money to wipe out his bugbear of debt.

Apprporiate Costumes.

Costumes were approvriate and added not a little to the general enjoyment of the play, and every character was impersonated with marked success. Naturally all ends happily, Sarah Jane Larkins, the rural heiress, and Jack Carson being the first to announce their engagement, the former doing the proposing; George and Miss Morrow and Miss Brown and Jim Gray also have their tangles straightened out, and the marriage altar is well in view as the consummation of their happiness.

Visitors from Port Hope who were in the audience were so favorably impressed with the clever presentation of the play that an invitation was extended to bring the entertainment to the lakeside town shortly after the New Year. A repetition locally would also meet with popular favor.

HOOVER HOLDS MESSAGE, WATCHES FRENCH ACTION

WASHINGON, Dec. 19. (AP) — President Hoover took new account to-day of developments abroad, particularly in France, before deciding whether to send his special debts message to the U.S. Congress imediately or hold it several days.

The communication to which the chief executive devoted almost all of Sunday, lay virtually completed on his desk while his advisers made a swift appraisal of the situation in Europe which was changed yesterday by the formation of a new Paris government under Joseph Paul-Boncour.

This French development, viewed with keenest interest in administration circles, was seen as one of the few in the debt field which might influence Mr. Hoover to delay despatch of his message, hoping meanwhile for some possible early action by that nation in shaping its future course.

Admit Romance

Marilyn Miller, former stage star, and Don Alvardo, screen actor, say they plan to be married soon. They are shown in London at the end of their unscheduled trip to Europe. Bidding a friend goodby in New York, they were carried off to sea.

HOME OWNERS' PROBLEM.

WINDSOR.—"The little home owner in straightened circumstances" is creating a problem with peculiar angles here. As long as he retains ownership of the home, he is not considered an indigent and does not come under welfare aid, but if he lets the home go he can then continue to live in it and rent is paid from the welfare funds.

The Council was to-day told by a deputation that if some amount was allowed, the owner could retain his ownership and not lose his equity.

WHISKEY CACHE FOUND

QUEBEC.—Quebec Liquor Commission preventive officers arrived here over the week-end with a cargo of seized whiskey, consisting of 1,000 gallons which was placed in the Commission's warehouse here. The illicit whiskey, under snow and ice in woods back of Sault-au-Cauchon near Little River St. Francis, was shovelled up after two days' work. It is believed to have been discharged from an icebound schooner which was seen in the vicinity last week.

CANADA ENTERS WORLD FIELD MAKING RADIUM

Port Hope Refinery May Supply Empire and at Lower Cost.

ORE FROM BEAR LAKE.

Challenge to Belgian Syndicate is Seen—New Process Less Complicated.

PORT HOPE, Ont., December 21. —Thousands of cancer sufferers may look with renewed hope to-day to a humble factory in this quiet Lake Ontario town.

Opening a new chapter in Canada's crowded mineral history, the only radium refinery in the British Empire will be operating within ten days, and its product will go to all parts of the world.

Made from Canadian ore, shipped by Canadian airways to the all-Canadian plant here, the radium will prove Canada's challenge to the Belgian syndicate, which now controls the world's supply of radium. If present plans materialize, the radium will be so cheaply and efficiently produced that its price will be lowered. Even the poorest cancer patient will ultimately be able to afford the radium treatments which have proved most efficient in the treatment of the dread disease.

Fifty-six tons of pitchblende, of a richness almost unbelievable, is stacked at the Eldorado plant here. According to Canadian Government geologists, it averages between 40 and 50 per cent. uranium oxide, and will produce about 125 milligrammes of refined radium per ton. The present price of radium is about $70 per milligramme," which would average slightly better than $8,000 per ton.

Mineral Discovery.

Far up on the shores of Great Bear Lake, Gilbert Labine, veteran prospector, stumbled across the pitchblende veins which are regarded as Canada's greatest mineral discovery and contribution to medicine. Laboriously, the 56 tons were bagged. Twenty tons were sent to Ottawa. The rest were sent to Port Hope. Now all has been concentrated at the new plant.

Scientists the world over are watching this little factory. The closely-guarded secrets of a new radium-processing, discovered by Canadian scientists and expected to revolutionise the industry, have aroused tremendous interest, for under the Canadian process, the fullest possible recovery of radium from pitchblende is expected.

It required long, arduous toil, this new processing discovery. Hon. W. A Gordon, Federal Minister of Mines, announced its completion in laconic style.

"Chemists of the Department, under the direction of W. B. Timm, have been working for more than a year on a process of taking radium from Great Bear Lake ores. They have now succeeded in developing a method which they believe will be applicable to the various types of ore that may be found.

NO EPIDEMIC OF INFLUENZA

Quite a Number of Children Are Absent Through Colds.

Schools Close Thursday.

Reports that the number of school children ill with influenza had almost reached the proportions of an epidemic were stated to be greatly exaggerated to-day by Inspector A. Mowat, of the public schools.

"The last few days," he said, "quite a number of children have been reported absent from school on account of colds. This is particularly true in the lower grades. But the number of colds or "flu" are far from reaching the proportion of epidemic."

Some of the teachers have been affected with colds and have been forced to absent themselves from duty, he explained. Also there are a few cases of mumps. Mr. Mowat did not care to estimate what percentage of school children had colds but stated that there would not be more than four or five absent from class even in the lower grades.

To-morrow afternoon the children will start their Christmas holidays. They will return to the halls of learning on January 3.

MAX R. SLOAN IS OUT FOR COUNCIL

Will Be a Candidate for 1933 Municipal Council.

IS A NATIVE SON.

Max R. Sloan of the firm of George Sloan and Son, building contractors is coming into the municipal election arena, having declared his intention of seeking aldermanic honours.

Mr Sloan is a native son of this city, and he has resided here all his life with exception of three years overseas with the 93rd Battalion. He is at present senior Major in the 3rd Prince of Wales' Canadian Dragoons.

Always interested in sport in all its branches, Mr. Sloan has played on Peterborough Intermediate Rugby team and has coached a junior team for several years. More recently he has been actively identified with local softball activities.

As a resident of the south end of the city, the candidate feels that the taxpayers of that district should have representation in the council. He hopes to announce his platform in the course of the next few days.

Christmas Baskets To Aid Unemployed

Christmas baskets will not be sent out by the city, but it is expected the churches of the city will be organized in such a manner as to take care of all baskets for their respective congregations. Lists of names may be had from Mr. Metheral for each church. Those not taken care of in this manner, it is expected will be looked after by service clubs, societies, factory organizations and individuals.

To be sure there are no duplications and others left out, please check up with Mr. Metheral.

CHIEF QUESTIONS JOHN FAIRBAIRN

Chief Newhall Does Not Believe Jewelry Salesman Could Shoot Self.

STORY IS DOUBTED.

Questioned by Chief Newhall last evening, John Fairburn, local jewelry salesman, retold the story he had told Lindsay police that early Friday evening on the outskirts of Lindsay he had been held-up, shot and robbed by two thugs of $1,000 worth of watches.

Lindsay police are inclined to doubt Fairburn's story and claim they have several witnesses who state they saw Fairburn walking along the street at the time. According to his story, he was picked up by the hold-up men.

The wound in Fairburn's shoulder was examined closely by Chief Newhall. The bullet went clean through the fleshy part of the shoulder. Any suggestion that Fairburn might have shot himself is entirely erroneous, according to Chief Newhall, who said that in his opinion it would be impossible for a man to inflict upon himself such a wound as Fairburn has.

Two Men Fight Duel Both Are Found Dead

VERNON, Tex., Dec. 21 (A.P.)—Two men, one a defeated candidate for sheriff, were found dead on Main street here last night shortly after pistol shots were heard. Police said a pistol lay beside each body and the men apparently had fought a duel, but they could not ascertain a motive.

Police said one shell had been discharged from the pistol which lay near H. H. Hutto, 50, the defeated candidate. They said all five shells in the pistol near the body of David R. Farrar, 35, had been fired. Four or five bullets had struck Hutto; one had hit Farrar.

WATER LEVELS FALL STEADILY

As Long as Ice Jams Blockade River Bed Danger Still Exists.

WILD WEATHER DANGER.

As long as the ice jams blockade the bed of the Otonabee River as they do for 17 miles below the city, the flood danger exists, a canal official declared to-day in stating that it was too early as yet to be too optimistic concerning the continued fall in the flood level.

"About all we can say is that the water levels are falling steadily," he said. "The river is still high, but not extraordinary so in view of conditions."

Another flood of great proportions could easily result, it was explained, if the ice jams due to mild weather suddenly let go. The danger was that the ice might pile up together at another point.

25 Auto Licenses Issued On First Day

From noon on Tuesday until closing time of that day, twenty-five 1933 automobile licenses were issued at the offices of the Chamber of Commerce here; the first, L.S. 301 going to Mrs. Marion Whittington, 140 Morrow street. The new plates have a yellow background with letters and numerals embossed in black. The numbers for Peterborough and district run from L.S. 301 to L.Y. 500.

The issuer points out that it is contrary to the regulations of the Highway Traffic Department for license markers to be issued in any other manner than by strict rotation. It has been necessary to draw this regulation to the attention of the public by reason of the fact that in past years numerous requests have been made for special numbers. Similar requests cannot be granted in the future.

Slight change is noted in the operators' permits for 1933, in so much as they are of double width with provision on the back for application for renewal of permits.

WIDOW THINKS WOMAN SHOULD DIE IN CHAIR

Expectant Mother is Busy Sewing in Her Death Cell.

FEELS NO ELATION.

Widow of Dead Policeman Must Find Job to Support Family.

ROCK HILL, S. C., Dec. 21.—(AP)—This is the story of two women, one an expectant mother condemned to die for murder, the other a widow with four children, facing a life of labor to rear them.

The first is Mrs. Beatrice Ferguson Snipes, who shot to death Rural Policeman Elliott Harris. The other is Mrs. Eula Harris, widow of the slain York county officer, who believes Mrs. Snipes should die for killing her husband.

Mrs. Snipes, 29, the mother of one child, expects the birth of another next month. While women and welfare workers plead with Governor Blackwood to save her from death in the electric chair next April 7, she is sewing baby clothes in the woman's ward at the state penitentiary.

Must Find a Job

Mrs. Harris, left with $1,000 insurance money and $300 raised in a subscription fund by newspapers when her husband was shot, is studying shorthand and steno-typing in the hope that she may be able to support her children, the oldest of whom is six.

"I feel no elation over Mrs. Snipes' conviction and sentence," Mrs. Harris said, "but I feel if we are to have capital punishment that it shoud be administered to any deserving it—man or woman. She had time to consider it—she took all we had.

"I don't feel that if it were left to me that I would change her sentence. I do not think she regrets it. I don't see that her becoming a mother should alter the case. I have been a mother four times."

Shot In Self Defense

Mrs. Snipes contends she shot the officer in self-defense. "I don't think I should die this way," she said as she sat in her cell. "I am not prepared to go this way."

Harris stopped the Snipes' automobile last fall to search it for whiskey. Finding none, he sought to arrest the Columbia man on charges of reckless driving and driving without a license. Mrs. Snipes testified Harris struck her and she grappled

British Customs Authorities Give Official Decision

Wheat From Dominion Will Not Be Allowed Special Levy Unless Actually Consigned At Point Of Origin In Canada To British Destination.

RULING MEANS GRAIN CANNOT BE STORED IN BUFFALO ELEVATOR AND RESHIPPED.

LONDON, December 21 (C.P.). — British Customs authorities to-day decided against American lake ports, such as Buffalo, in the matter of wheat shipped through them from Canada to the United Kingdom.

Wheat so shipped cannot be admitted to the United Kingdom under the preference provided for in the Ottawa agreement unless it is actually consigned from an Empire point to a British destination.

The effect of the ruling will be to prevent wheat from being consigned from Canadian origin to a Buffalo elevator, where it would be stored until re-consignment and shipment to Great Britain.

The decision comes as a consequence of a test case provided by the arrival of the Steamer Laconia on Dec. 5 with three carloads of Canadian wheat which was shipped from a Canadian farm to a Buffalo elevator and subsequently by rail to New York where it was loaded aboard the Laconia and taken to Liverpool.

Health Board Head Success As Beggar

CHICAGO, Dec. 21 (AP) — For two days an old-looking man trudged about the cold streets, begging a dime here and a quarter there.

At night, tired from tramping, he sought refuge in flophouses, but he couldn't sleep, because he found the nightgowns were "terrible."

The "old man" was none other than Dr. Herman Bundesen, president of the Chicago Board of Health, who disguised himself as a tramp. He was out to feel the pulse of human misery.

The flophouses were clean and comfortable, he said, but the nightgowns were so big "they bothered me and I couldn't sleep."

And the panhandling business as rather a success—$2.32 to be exact.

URGE SEAWAY BE POSTPONED FOR PRESENT

Deputation Representing "Ship-by-rail" Groups Appeals to Perley and Manion.

"WAIT TILL GOOD TIMES."

Suggest Charges on St. Lawrence and Welland Be Toll Based on Tonnage.

OTTAWA, Dec. 21 (C.P.)—Urging postponement of building of the St. Lawrence seaway, collection of tolls on this international waterway when completed, and institution of a system of tolls on the Welland Ship Canal, a deputation waited upon the Dominion Government this afternoon. The delegates represented various "ship-by-rail" associations in Canada, who "in turn represent all railway employees in the Dominion."

Representations made to Rt. Hon. Sir George Perley, Acting Prime Minister, and Hon. Robert J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, on the St. Lawrence waterway were:

(1) The postponement of the development of the St. Lawrence waterway until such time as the prosperity of the Dominion warrants such a development.

(2) In the event of the St. Lawrence waterway project being completed that tolls be levied, on a tonnage basis, on vessels using the waterway, that will be commensurate with the amount of money expended, similar to the tolls now charged for the use of the Panama and Suez Canals, which are recognized as being self-supporting.

The Weather

It is so unusual for the customary well-behaved Otonabee River to get on the front page news, that another occasion when it went on a rampage, may well be recalled. It was in the spring of 1870—over 62 years ago. Some of the older residents have told me that there had been heavy snow during the winter, and some unusually heavy falls in March. Spring was late, but when it did come, the snow went in a hurry. The river rose higher than it ever did before—or since. The current was of such volume that it overflowed the Little Lake, and the river swept south over Crescent street. The Cemetery Point was an island. George street was navigable by canoes and punts from Dalhousie street south, and the southern part of what is now the city was under water. What is now the Quaker Oats dam was occupied by the Dickson Co. The high bank on the Ashburnham side below the dam was formed on this occasion. All the original shore line in this section was washed out, old citizens have told me. As a lad I remember being shown a board nailed to a tall elm tree on the farm of Robert Goodfellow, about seven miles down the river. This, he said, represented the height of the water at that place. It was possibly 15 feet above the normal level. By the way, did you notice the pronunciation of the word Otonabee by some of the radio announcers. Instead putting the accent on the second syllable, they called it Oton-AW-bee. Some of our American summer visitors do the same.—W.P.

PEACEFUL AND IDYLLIC GARDENS HIDE MIGHTY FORTS OF FRANCE

Machine Guns Will Pour Death From Behind Beautiful Rosebush.

ELABORATE SYSTEM

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Copyright, 1932.

METZ, Dec. 10—The No Man's Land of the future will look like a garden of roses. Barbed wire will be strung between bushes of lilac, plots of sweet peas and geranium beds. Machine gun nests will be camoulfaged behind little Christmas trees and other shrubs of deep-toned evergreen. Sudden death will come flying over tranquil ponds whose green surface is decked with water lilies and cress. Destruction will leap forward out of such idyllic spots as have a way of tempting romantic poets to their most tender evocations.

Pierre van Paassen

At first sight there is nothing to indicate the formidable character of the new line of French fortifications on the eastern frontier. In fact, in some places it is hard to locate the forts at all. There is no trace of them. Nevertheless, they exist. Hidden and camouflaged, out of sight and mostly underground, they represent the acme of military engineering skill, the most perfect defence system ever conceived in the world's military history.

A few miles east of this city I saw one of the completed sections of the vast ring of forts, with which

Wire Plant Manager Crushed Under Wall

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 21.—(CP) —Lieut. Col. Frank Partridge, president of the Crescent Wire Works here, was crushed to death today beneath the collapsing wall of the plant. His body was recovered from the debris two hours after the wall collapsed by a body of men including the local fire department.

A fire at the plant last week had damaged the upper walls and roof, and men were at work on the scaffolding on the floor of the top storey Col. Partridge entered the building on the lower floor to do some welding when the walls collapsed. Eight men on the scaffolding were thrown down, but escaped without injury.

PARIS, Dec. 21. (A.P.) — Dr. Georges Haret, eminent French radiologist and head of the Radiology Department at Lariboisere hospital, died last night as a result of x-ray burns incurred in a scientific career beginning with treatment of wounded soldiers during the war. He was 58 years old.

Previously the fingers of his right hand and then is right arm had been amputated.

FIRST DIVORCE IN LOCAL COURTS BEEN GRANTED

Marriage of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Watkins Dissolved by Justice Raney.

BETHANY ACCIDENT.

John Sisson of Bethany Settles Action Against Harold Bigelow.

The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Watkins, formerly of South Monaghan, was dissolved yesterday afternoon by Mr. Justice Raney who granted a decree nisi, which becomes absolute divorce at the end of six months.

Mrs. Watkins whose application was conducted by her counsel, W. F. Johnston, said that she was married on March 24, 1913, that her husband left her twelve years ago, and since then had contributed nothing to her support.

J. A. O'Brien, called as a witness by Mr. Johnston testified that on May 25, 1931, he had visited the defendant at his home in Nile, New York, where he was living with Agnes Horton. There were two children, one four years old, and the other an infant in arms. Mr. O'Brien served the defendants with the writ and statement of claim in this case, and on October 24th last also served them with notice of the trial.

Mr. O'Brien obtained from Mr. Watkins a photograph of himself which was identified by Mrs. Watkins and Alfred Nicholson of Wolfe Street.

"The female defendant was going under the name of Mrs. Watkins, and they said that the two children were theirs," witness testified. "I obtained a photostatic copy of the marriage record of Fred Watkins and Agnes Horton which took place at the village of Whitefish, N. Y., on October 30, 1930, and was registered at Albany. Watkins told me that he had been married in Canada."

Bigelow Case

"People do no realize their responsibility and the danger of driving cars on the highway", observed Mr. Justice Raney Tuesday afternoon in advising a settlement which was effected at $1,200 and $250 costs, abruptly terminating the action against Harold Bigelow of Bethany in which John Sisson sued for damages arising out of the death of his wife who was fatally injured by an automobile driven by Mr. Bigelow at Bethany, January 7 last at 6.25 p.m.

His Lordship said that he wished his statement to be applied generally and not only to this case.

Mr. Sisson was the only witness called to the stand, and, as his recital of the accident was completed, the procedure was interrupted by

HAVOC PLAYED IN COURT HOUSE

Ohio Officials Find Interior Wrecked After Safe Blowers' Visit.

MACHINE GUNS STOLEN.

LISBON, O., Dec. 21 (C.P.). — Dynamite blasts set off by safe robbers in the Columbiana County Court House wrecked the interior of the building, it was disclosed to-day when officials went to open their offices.

When Court House employees came to work they found the county auditor's safe had been blown open and that the knob had been knocked off the county treasurer's vault, but without gaining entrance to it. No estimate of the amount stolen from the auditor's safe was immediately available. The interior of the offices was 'completely wrecked,' and employees said it would be impossible to transact Court House business for to-day at least.

The robbers stole two machine guns and a number of other firearms from the sheriff's office.

Workmen's coats, which had been left in the engineer's office, were used to muffle the explosion.

Sleeping Families Buried In Debris Without Warning

Firemen And Police Brave Flames And Falling Timbers To Rescue Sixteen Seriously Injured—Several Occupants Hurt Leaping From Upper Stories.

FORCE OF EXPLOSION RIPS WALLS OUT WHOLE STRUCTURE TOPPLES IN RUINS.

CHICAGO, December 21 (C.P.). — Four or five sleeping families were trapped in the burning ruins of a building demolished by an explosion of undetermined origin here early to-day. The body of one man was pulled from the wreckage by firemen shortly after the blast. Lives of two babies were saved by parents, who threw the infants from second storey windows into the arms of spectators.

Firemen and police took 16 persons injured by the blast to neighboring hospitals, where several were said to be in serious condition. Several occupants of the structure were badly hurt when they leaped to the pavement from second and third floor windows.

The blast was so powerful that it blew two sides from the building, which then tottered for several minutes and collapsed.

Division Fire Chief Touhy and a hundred fire fighters turned a battery of hose on the blazing wreckage, and despite the flames entered the ruins in search of the entrapped families.

Among those injured was Fire Lieutenant Patrick Dawson who led a party of firemen in rescue attempts. Firemen said that four or five children and several men and women had been taken from the place in an injured condition. Others escaped as the building was about to collapse.

Children Among Missing

A hasty check of the occupants of the building showed that about 10 persons, including six children were still missing. The structure was a combined business and residence building in the northwest part of Chicago.

Chief Touhy said that the blast may have been caused by a gas meter in the vicinity of an overheated boiler in the basement.

HABOCO STORE ROBBED OF $44

Thief Believed to Have Hidden in Lindsay Store Before Closing.

TWO CHEQUES LEFT.

LINDSAY, Ont., Dec. 21 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Haboco Grocery on William street was robbed last night between 6.10 and 6.40 by a daring thief, who forced the cash register and made away with $44.00. The robbery was discovered by Manager Charles Boyle, when he returned at shortly before seven o'clock. It is surmised that the thief entered the store before closing time, hid in the cellar, or rear part of the store, and then smashed in the door between the rear and the front. He was forced to rob the register in a flood of artificial lights, as the front store lights were burning at the time. The thief then departed by the rear door.

Lindsay police are working on the case.

Two cheques were also purloined. As far as is known, no goods were taken.

World's Biologists to Converge at Lake on Albanian Border.

STUDY SCIENTIFIC FIND

BELGRADE, Dec. 21.— (C.P.)—Ochrid, the great inland lake on the Albanian frontier, will be the scene of a congress of biologists from all over the world next spring, scientists having discovered at that place unique forms of marine life which have aroused world-wide interest. Ochrid has been christened "the lake of living fossils" in con-

German and Yukoslav scientists

Germa nand Yukoslav scientists working at Ochrid this year revealed the presence in the lake of fishes, crustaceans and lug-worms identical wth pre-glacial forms of marine life, 50,000 years old, whose fossil remains have been found in the vicinity.

It is now believed that Ochrid is a hitherto undiscovered reservoir where extinct pre-glacial forms of life still survive.

The barrier of the Albanian mountains — part of the Dinaric system that stretches from Dalmatia to Greece—is thought to have cut off Lake Ochrid from the intrusion of later more advanced forms of marine life, thus preserving it as a unique museum of living fossils of the ancient world.

M.O.H. Requisition Is Cut To $350.00

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 21 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Following the request of the Campbellford Town Council, the local Board of Health held a special meeting yesterday afternoon to reconsider the requisition submitted by the M.O.H., Dr. W. F. Loucks, which the council thought was too high a figure and obtained advice of the Department of Health upon. The original requisition called for approximately $600, but after consideration this was cut to $350. John Gay, chairman of the board, presided.

Canada Owes Britain No Great War Debts

LONDON, Dec. 21 (C.P. Cable).—The Times to-day carried a letter fom Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, in which the Canadian High Commissioner to the United Kingdom referred to editorial praise of New Zealands offer to resume suspended war debt payments to Great Britain and pointed out Canada owed no such debts.

"Canada's payments were never suspended," Mr. Ferguson's letter said, "because she has no financial obligation to Great Britain in respect to war debts. She was in the fortunate position of being able to add the sacrifice of her sons on the battlefield to the lesser economic sacrifice of bearing her own financial burdens during the struggle."

Nova Scotia Mine Trouble Settled

HALIFAX, Dec. 21.—(CP)—Difficulties in two areasof Nova Scotia's fields appeared to be straightened out today, and 1,500 miners were set to go back to work.

Last night at Springhill, miners in three pits resumed operations to enable negotiations between their local of the United Mine Workers, and officials of the Cumberland Railway and Coal Company to proceed.

At reserve, in Cape Breton arrangements had been made for a temporary readjustment of the unemployment relief disbursements, and it was anticipated that some 300 miners would go back to the pit.

QUAKE SHAKES WESTERN COAST UNITED STATES

Shocks Extend From Canada to Mexico Through Salt Lake City.

WINDOWS BROKEN.

Tremors of Same Force as Those Which Destroyed Santa Barbara in 1925.

SAN FANCISCO, Dec. 21. (AP) A strong earthquake shook virtually the entire Western United States, embracing about a fifth of the country last night. Seismologists said it was the most severe in the area since 1925.

No serious damage was reported from the series of shocks which began at 10:10 p.m., (Pacific Standard Time) and continued with diminishing intensity until 11:15 o'clock. The quake centered in Nevada where windows were shattered.

Clocks were stopped in cities as widely separated as Salt Lake City, Utah and Fresno, Calif. Chandeliers swayed, pictures were thrown awry and some crockery broken.

At 10:10 p.m., western United States, bounded roughly by the Canadian and Mexican borders and extending from the Pacific coast to Salt Lake City, Utah and beyond trembled under the series of shocks. Needles were hurled from seismographs in Spokane, Wash., Berkley, Calif., and at the University of Santa Clara in San Jose, Calif.

No Serious Damage

Minutes later newspapers in the area were subjected to hundreds of telephone calls asking the source of the shocks. Most of the queries came from persons reporting swaying chandeliers or stopped clocks. Rumors of severe damage in remote areas were quickly investigated and discredited.

Seismologists agreed the quake centered in Nevada, where several minor tremors have been recorded in the last few years, Professor Perry Byerly of the University of California computed the epicentre or seismic vertical as "probably somewhere in Nevada." Seismologists at the University of Santa Clara agree.

The pens on the recording instrument at the University of California at Berkeley were thrown clear from the drum at 10:10 p.m., and were replaced seven minutes later when another shock threw them back into position. Professor Byerly said the record of his instrument was comparable to that of 1926 when the Major part of Santa Barbara, Calif., was destroyed by an earthquake.

Rumor Dr. Bell to Get Health Deputy Post

TORONTO, December 21 (C.P.).—"Dr. W. J. SEES TURN IN 1933.

Optimism Inspired By Fundamental Soundness of Old Country.

LONDON, Dec. 21 (C.P. Cable).—A gathering of distinguished statesmen and many Canadian residents in London was at Waterloo Station to-day to say good-bye to Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, whose short holiday in England has concluded.

"It has been a very brief but pleasant stay this time," declared the Canadian Prime Minister as he boarded the train which was to take him to Southampton, where he would embark on the Majestic for New York.

"My chief idea was to get some rest. There has been little real leisure; nevertheless I enjoyed the relaxation which comes with exchanging ideas with men imbued with the common desire to advance and improve the British Empire. I am more convinced than ever the foundations were wisely and truly laid at Ottawa during the Imperial Conference, and my conversations here this week have encouraged the conviction.

New Era

"Next year will see the beginning of a new era of prosperity. I sense a different simosphere in Britain even in the short time since my last visit, but there seems a determined optimism that cannot be denied. I return encouraged and inspired with the fortitude and fundamental soundness of the Old Country," concluded the Prime Minister.

J. H. Thomas, Secretary for the Dominions; Lord Hailsham, Secretary for War; Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, Secretary for the Colonies, and the personal secretaries of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and the Lord Privy Seal, Stanley Baldwin, were at the station to give Mr. Bennett a send off. Hon. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner to England, and Sir Edward Harding, Permanent Under-Secretary for the Dominions, were also present.

Prior to leaving London, the Canadian Prime Minister broadcast his expressions of appreciation of the kindness and hospitality extended to him in England.

JUSTICE RANEY AWARDS $3,500 IN DAMAGE SUIT

Stouffville Couple Are Awarded Damages in Accident Case.

DRIVING TOO FAST.

Buffalo Man is Blamed for Crash at Hatton Turn.

Judgment for $3,500 with costs was given by Mr. Justice Raney Tuesday afternoon in favor of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. MacDonald of Stouffville in their action against Joseph L. Fink of Buffalo for damages resulting from an automobile accident at 7.30 p.m., August 17 last at the curve on the Peterborough-Port Hope highway three hundred yards west of the city.

Mrs. MacDonald was awarded $2,500 for facial and bodily injuries which she suffered, and Mr. MacDonald receives $1,000 for damage to his new car, doctors' bills and other expenses.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., was counsel for the plaintiffs, and J. W. Pickup of Toronto for the defendant.

Mr. MacDonald is a commercial traveller and former resident of this city.

Fink On Wrong Side

"I was going west and Mr. Fink was coming east around the curve near Walkerfield House," Mr. MacDonald said. "He was on the wrong side of the road. His left wheel was on the north side of the road when he was about 200 feet away. I put on my brakes and was almost stopped when the collision occurred. I was out on the shoulder of the road. He hit my right lamp and fender and about the centre of the radiator. It was a head on collision. My right head light was smashed, the fender and frame bent, and also the radiator was smashed. My wife was removed to Walkerfield House and was attended there by a nurse for ten days. She was then taken to our home at Stouffville. She was in bed for seven weeks from the day of the accident."

Mr. MacDonald said he had bought his car two and a half months previously. It was repaired at a cost of $325 and he traded it in for a similar new one and lost $450 on the transaction. Expenses incurred by his wife's injuries amounted to $275 including a bill for $57 from Miss Marjorie Hatton of Walkerfield House and $140 doctor's bill.

A. E. Hornick, traffic officer, explained a sketch of the highway immediately west of the city where the crash occurred. Marks on the pavement which was wet indicated that the Fink car had skidded and had been going at considerable speed. Mr. Fink told the officer his car skidded.

Head Through Windshield

Mrs. MacDonald said that her head was forced through the windshield of her car causing cuts under her chin and over one eye. One tooth was knocked out and her lip was cut. Her weight had decreased from 142 to 112 pounds, she was unable to do housework and a nervous condition resulting from the accident and its shock affected her appetite and sleep, requiring use of sedatives to induce sleep. Social company and the radio were irritations which she could not endure since the accident. Mrs. MacDonald said the instrument board of the automobile had been pushed in against her chest.

Other witnesses were A. E. Hornick, traffic officer, Dr. H. V. Dobson and Dr. T. W. H. Young of Peterborough and Dr. W. E. Ferguson of Toronto.

The defendant was not present, and the only witness called by Mr. Pickup was Dr. Ferguson whose testimony related to the condition of Mrs. MacDonald when he examined her at Stouffville in the presence of her physician on December 2.

Mr. Justice Raney in disposing of the case said that the defendant had come roaring up to the curve on the highway at a speed that carried his car over to the wrong side of the road.

"Mr. MacDonald was probably scared to death when he saw the car coming full toward him, but he did what could be reasonably expected of him and had almost stopped his car when the collision occurred," Mr. Justice Raney said.

UNITED CHURCH ORGAN ATTACKS OXFORD GROUP

New Outlook Editor Describes Sex Discussions as "Hideous Memories."

LITTLE OLD LAND PRAISE.

Six Features of Movement Listed as Harmful by Dr. G. H. Stevenson.

TORONTO, Dec. 21.—Results of an examination of the Oxford Group movement by "The New Outlook," a paper published under the authority of the United Church of Canada, are given in the issue out to-day.

Introducing four articles discussing the movement, the paper states its belief that the work of the Church will be made more complicated and difficult in very many ways through the influence of the Oxford Group. "We have exposed ourselves to every phase of its work, attended all its meetings as far as that was possible, and attempted in every way open to us to understand and appreciate its methods and its significance," the editorial states. "And if it was impossible to say much in its favor before we saw it work, it is doubly and trebly impossible now."

The editorial continues: "The first meeting, where a dozen or more of the group gave their testimonies, each one without exception reflecting upon the Church and the service which organized religion is supposed to render and glorifying the Group movement, was the most unblushing piece of exhibitionism we had ever seen. What is happening in the inner consciousness of the younger members of the Group, manifestly sincere and compelled to go through such performances night after night, we shudder to think. But that first night, objectionable as it was, had some fresh feature to complain of added to it at nearly every other service. A meeting for ministers at which matters of sex were discussed will abide as one of the hideous memories of a lifetime.

"We know that there are a great many people, much wiser and better than we are no doubt, who will not at all agree with this judgment. But each man must bear his own testimony as it comes to him. We could go into lengthy detail and explain at what points this movement seems especially objectionable and dangerous, but what we would say would be largely a repetition of what is said in the articles to which we refer, and there is nothing lacking in clearness and definiteness in them.

Work Difficult

"The work of the Church is extremely difficult in this our time. Within the memory of none of us has it been so beset with hindrance and problems. But in our embarrassment and distress we must still be careful what instruments and methods we attempt to bring to our aid. That work for the greater part is a steady, every-day kind of job that requires faithfulness and persistence quite as much as it requires any other qualities. If the presence of the Oxford Group among us stirs some of us to new enthusiasm, or opens our eyes to see new duties and possibilities, that will be something to the good. But our work will be still with us when they have left, and we do not believe it will be made much easier at very many points by reason of their being here, but will be made more complicated and difficult in very many ways through their influence. And that will be a bitter experience indeed, for so many who were confidently expecting a great good through it."

In explanation of its previous silence with regard to what it terms the so-called Oxford Group movement, the paper states:

"Before the movement came to Toronto and we could see it in active operation we hesitated to say anything about it, either favorable or otherwise. Two or three things kept us from saying anything very enthusiastic about it before its arrival.

"In the first place we had a vivid memory of what happened to it in the United States a few years ago when it was known by the more correct but less attractive name of 'Buchmanism'. Then we notice this, that none of the leading religious journals in the Old Land, where it had been in operation for some time, had, so far as we had seen, given it anything like a hearty or enthusiastic approval. Knowing how ready the editors of such journals are to give countenance to any movement that seems to have any promise of real good, this fact was arresting.

Harmful Features

Six features of the movement are listed as definitely harmful by G. H. Stevenson, M.D., in an article headed "A Psychiatrist Looks at the Oxford Group Movement." Dr. Stevenson is a member and official of the United Church in Whitby.

These features he describes as:

"(1) Centring the thought of the individual on sin in his own life.

"(2) The inculcation of the most dangerous form of selfishness, morbid introspection."

"(3) Emotional orgies dealing with sex which might become almost a verbal form of sex perversion by 'sharing' with others.

"(4) The emphasis on discontinuing the use of intelligence in our relationships with our environment and substituting a purely emotional subconscious urging which the group regards as guidance from God."

"(5) The invitation to frank mental disorder by the insistence that one should listen to 'voices' even as so many of the mentally ill do."

"(6) A sustained indulgence in such emotionalism may produce ultimately emotional exhaustion and still further warp the personality of the individual."

Dr. Stevenson explains the grounds on which he submits his observations on the movement.

"It is the business of the psychiatrist to study all factors which may influence the mental health of the people, to encourage those which may lead to better mental health and to discourage those which appear to have an opposite effect. Moreover the psychiatrist sees so many mentally-ill patients where at leasto ne of the important causes of the trouble may have been religious difficulties, and still other patients with bizarre religions delusions that it is necessary for him to have made a fairly comprehensive study of the history of religion, comparative religions, the religious needs of the individual, and the psychological mechanisms by which certain religious behaviour is produced."

The Group's practice of seeking guidance is discussed at length in the several articles. "It is the more mystical aspect of its message, 'guidance,' as well as full confession of sin under the term 'sharing,' which accounts for its interest to the world at large," Dr. Stevenson states. "Both of these are well-known psychological mechanisms, which are operative without reference to a supernatural power."

SEE NO ELECTION FOR HAVELOCK

Reeve Leeson Announces He Will Stand Again But Opposition Unlikely.

NOMINATIONS DEC. 26TH.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 21.—The consensus of opinion in the village is that there will not be an election but that the council, school board and Hydro Commissioner will go in by acclamation.

At the meeting of the council last evening, Reeve Leeson announced his intention of running again this year. It is said that Richard Sanderson, former reeve will run this year if there should be an election, but that he will not enter the field and thereby cause an election. There has been some talk of Councillor Seeney as a prospective contender for the reeveship, but this has been discounted, he having announced that he will again be a candidate for the office of councillor. Meantime nominations will be held on Monday, Dec. 26th between twelve and one o'clock.

U. F. O. Meets

A joint meeting of the U.F.O. and U.F.W.O. of Belmont was held at the home of Mr. Thos. Bannon east of Havelock on Friday evening last, when about fifty members, including a number of visitors from South Dummer were present. Mr. Girven in charge of shipping for the Dummer group, gave a brief outline of the experiences of some of the farmer members. He stated that conditions in the live stock market at present are most discouraging, and it would be impossible for him to describe them just as they are. However the farmers from his district are still sending livestock to the market at intervals. He believed it would be possible to make arrangements with the railway company to have the car intended for the Norwood shippers placed on the siding at Havelock on a day that would be convenient to any intending shippers from Belmont, for their convenience, and obviate the necessity of their hauling their stock to Norwood to load there.

Mr. Girven will look after the interests of the local shippers also. It was decided to have inquiries made as to the feasibility of this plan, and the members will be advised as soon as possible after the information is obtained.

Mr. Clydesdale of Dummer, who was the delegate representing his branch at the convention recently held at Toronto, gave an interesting account of the meetings. After the business had been disposed of a very pleasant social time was enjoyed. Mr. Clydesdale Jr. gave a violin selection which was much appreciated. After the meeting the ladies repaired to the kitchen and prepared a delicious oyster supper. Afterwards the large living room was cleared for dancing and a period of square dancing was enjoyed, the music furnished by Messers Bannon and Clydesdale. Another meeting will be held in the near future.

A cow belonging to Mr. Garnet Rutherford, local dairyman, became mired in the floating bog at the head of the marsh on the property of Mrs. H. Brown on Monday, and when found was in an exhausted condition, apparently having been struggling to get out for about five hours. After extricating it from its miry prison the animal was conveyed to the stable on a stone boat where it is said to be in a fair way of recovery.

The local rink was opened on Saturday evening last, and the ice is said to be in excellent condition. The policy of the park board in admitting public school youngsters free is meeting with the approval of the skating public, especially as they have to be off the ice at nine o'clock, which leaves the hour between nine and ten for the older skaters to enjoy themselves.

Ex-Presidents Held As Rebels

Following the discovery of a plot to overthrow the government of President Augustin P. Justo, of Argentina, two former presidents and hundreds of other political leaders have been seized and thrown into prison at Buenos Aires. The jailed ex-presidents are Hipolito Yrigoyen (left), who ruled from 1916 to 1922 and from 1928 to 1930, and Marcelo T. de Alvear (right), who was president from 1922 to 1928. The plot was revealed by the accidental explosion of a bomb.

FIRST DIVORCE IN LOCAL COURTS

Mr. Justice Raney who suggested to R. R. Hall, K.C., counsel for the defendant, that the contesting parties should try to arrange a settlement.

"I can't think of any possible defence, Mr. Hall," His Lordship said. "Whether it was daylight or darkness, what defense is there? Mrs. Sisson was walking on the county road. The onus is on the defendant to prove that there was no negligence on his part. Either he was driving too fast or he did not use sufficient precaution. There should have been nothing to prevent him from seeing the woman."

Mr. Hall pointed out that a street light near the place of the fatality cast a deep shadow, and Mrs. Sisson was in that shadow when struck by the car.

His Lordship—Yes, but it is the driver's business to be careful.

Mr. Hall said that the lights of a parked car contributed to the conditions adverse to the defendant.

His Lordship—Either it was an unavoidable accident, or it was the defendant's fault or the deceased woman's. It was not hers. She had a perfect right to be walking on the road. Was it an inevitable accident? How could one say it was inevitable? Can't you get together and settle this?

Mr. Hall replied that unfortunately Mr. Bigelow had been caretaker at Nestleton on the Burketon line of the C.P.R. which was closed only a few days ago leaving him without employment.

"He is a young man with a wife and two children and has not independent means", Mr. Hall said.

Mr. Hall and G. N. Gordon, plaintiff's counsel, immediately assented to His Lordship's suggestion, and the proposed settlement resolved into the amount which should be assessed against the defendant.

Mr. Hall subsequently remarked that he quite agreed with His Lordship that it would be difficult to avoid sharing some degree of negligence.

Mr. Sisson Examined

John Sisson, the plaintiff, was examined by Mr. Gordon. He said he was 77 years old, and his wife 69 at the time of her death. His home is on the north side of the road on the west fringe of the village of Bethany.

"When my wife and I came out of our house on to the road we looked up to the west to see if there was any automobile coming. We had gone about 100 yards and came to Mallory's where there was a car parked on the north side of the road just out of curiosity I went over to see who was in it. As I started back and had taken several steps, Mr. Bigelow's car went by. The car parked on the north side of the road was pointing to the northwest."

Mr. Sisson said his wife was carried about forty feet down the road. When he reached her he saw blood flowing from a wound on her head. She did not recover consciousness.

Plaintiff stated that he could not recall what he said to Walter Thompson after the accident. He was so upset and shocked by the fatality that he had no recollection of the conversation.

To Mr. Hall, plaintiff said he could see about a mile and a quarter up the road from his house. There is a depression part way, but Mr. Sisson said that the beam of strong headlights of any car in that stretch could be plainly seen from in front of his house.

Walked In Wheel Ruts

The road was worn into two shallow ruts each about fourteen inches wide, that had been worn by automobile traffic. Mrs. Sisson walked in the south path or rut and Mr. Sisson in the north one.

The headlights of the parked car were on at full strength.

"I guess it was only curiosity, but I turned over to the parked car and went near to the hind wheel. I didn't see anyone in it, and I turned back to the centre of the road. I didn't notice Mr. Bigelow's car at all."

Mr. Sisson said he did not look to the west as he walked toward the parked car and back.

Walter Thompson, constable at Bethany, replying to Mr. Hall, said he questioned Mr. Sisson after the accident.

"I asked him if he wanted the man put under arrest, Mr. Sisson said, "No I don't want anything done. It was purely accidental." There was nothing said then about blame.

ST. ANDREW'S Y.P. ASSIST IN RELIEF

Collect Fruit and Clothing Which Are Handed to Canadian Legion for Relief.

CAMPBELLFORD, December 21 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Coming to the assistance of the community in the drive for relief collections and especially the Campbellford Branch of the Canadian Legion in the work they are doing along this line in the community, the Young People's Society of St Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Campbellford, featured at its regular meeting held on Monday a collection of clothes, fruit, and any article of apparel or food which the members could obtain. A very hearty response featured this appeal, the articles being handed over to the Legion for distribution.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. F. F. Long, president, two numbers being on the program, a piano solo by Miss Mary McGregor, and a reading, "Christmas Spirit," by Wilsey Phillips. The Rev. J. C. Robinson dismissed the meeting.

SCHOOL BOARD HAS TO LEAVE OLD BUILDING

Cornerstone Laid by Governor-General in 1845 Has Disappeared.

MAY "COME TO LIGHT"

MONTREAL, Dec. 21 (C.P.)—The Protestant Board of School Commissioners has held its last meeting in the old Belmont School, closeley linked with the educational life of this city for almost a century. The next place of meeting will be in the new building recently completed on the site of the old Congregational College on McTavish street opposite the McGill grounds.

There was no rejoicing among the commissioners at the thought of moving to new quarters but rather a feeling of regret which was apparent when the members sat around for some time reminiscing after the business session of the meeting was over.

Mr. Logan, superintendent of schools, in recounting the earlier history of the building said the corner-stone had been laid on July 15, 1845, by Baron Charles Theophilus Metcalfe, then Governor-General. No one know, however, just where that corner-stone was now, he said, although very likely it had been hidden under plaster as additional wings were built and would come to light when the building was torn down.

Some criticism had arisen when the school was first built and used as a private school, the new quarters of the old Bingham House on Lagauchetiere street, because it had no water supply. Later, Mr. Logan added, when they did get water a boy was drowned in a well in the basement. At that time the location of the school was looked upon as away out in the country and it is now in the heart of the city near the excavation for the proposed Canadian National Railways terminus.

After serving as a private school, the building was bought by the Protestant Board and became the High School of Montreal and later a public school named Belmont. The classes held there until the end of last year have been divided among neighboring schools.

Favorable Trade Balance.

If there are clouds on the horizon there are also many signs of a better day. There are evidences of improvement in trade and commerce already with us. Although we are passing through a period of great economic stress and strain we have met every financial obligation and our trade balance is favorable," said Mr. Bennett of Canada. "Seventy-five per cent. of our financial obligations are held by our own citizens, and with a population of only about 10,000,000 we remain one of the great trading nations of the world.

In conclusion, Mr. Bennett referred to the mutual helpfulness and advantages of the agreements of the Imperial Conference, and said with the aid of the conference the Empire people should look forward with faith and confidence for their difficulties and problems were not greater than those solved by their ancestors.

Obituary

I. W. PLOUGHMAN

CAMPBELLFORD, December 21 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Isaac William Ploughman, prominent Campbellford resident, and for many years bailiff of the 11th Division Court, died at midnight on Monday at St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, after a brief illness. He was in his 71st year. Born in Reach Township, Ontario, he has been for the past 40 years a resident of the town, and resided for about 15 years in the Marmora district.

The late Mr. Ploughman sustained the first illness of his life some weeks ago, and later was taken ot the Peterborough hospital for an operation. An ardent fisherman, he was well known and respected in the district. Surviving are his widow, one daughter, Mrs. E. Skinner of Toronto, his mother, four sisters, and two brothers.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon from the family residence, Richard Street, Campbellford, interment being made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

The Open Door

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—(AP)—The police told Mrs. Mary Ryan she should keep her front door closed, what with burglaries being committed on all sides. She said the trouble with the police was that they were altogether too suspicious.

"I know," said the sergeant, "you've been robbed. You've lost your jewelry and it's all because of that open door."

"You're wrong," said Mrs. Ryan, "somebody has stolen the door."

FANTASTIC PROPOSALS.

The refusal of France to make her war debt payment to the United States on the stipulated date has been responsible for considerable agitation among our American cousins and for the advancement of some decidedly foolish and fantastic proposals.

Thus we have Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, solemnly suggesting that a passport fee of $5,000 should be collected from every United States tourist intending to visit any of the defaulting countries, which would seem to be the utmost in folly.

Then in Cincinnati the spectacle is afforded of a group of four hundred girl clerks holding a meeting and deciding that until France pays the last instalment they would refuse to buy anything of French origin, and a coterie of North Carolina women agreeing not to visit France until that country has met her obligations.

It does not seem to have occurred to any of these ultra-patriotic people that what they are proposing would only make it more difficult for France to discharge her war debt.

The more French trade is injured the less chance there is of any debt payments from that quarter—and then again, this reprisal game has more than one angle and can be played by more than one country.

NO CASE FOR MERCY.

The remark of His Honor Judge Huycke the other day that he found it hard to understand the ways of some men and some juries, comes to mind again in the verdict of a jury at L'Original, Ont., which found two men guilty of murder and then strongly recommended the convicted men to the clemency of the court.

Under some circumstances a mercy "rider" might quite properly be added to a jury's verdict, but it is difficult to understand the mental attitude of the "twelve good men and true" in this particular case.

Briefly the circumstances allegedly were that one of the prisoners had induced the victim to take out a $5,000 double liability policy with the other prisoner as beneficiary, and shortly after, according to the Crown's case, the unfortunate man was foully murdered and then a team of horses was driven over his body to make the affair look like an accident.

The jury accepted the Crown's contention as correct, found the prisoners guilty, and then added their amazing recommendation for mercy.

If the jury was right in registering a conviction, why in the name of common sense should the guilty pair be accorded mercy?

The murder the jury said these men were guilty of was apparently a cold-blooded, callous, deliberately planned and mercenary killing in which the life of a young man was taken for no other motive than to line the pockets of the murderers.

Why a jury believing men to be guilty of such a sordid crime should ask for merciful treatment for them will be a mystery to most people.

THE PUBLIC IS INTERESTED.

A significant fact about the municipal elections already held in Ontario is the very large proportion of the possible vote polled in many municipalities, a condition that reveals a decided keen interest on the part of citizens generally in municipal problems and issues.

That interest, The Examiner believes, is inspired by the fact that the combination of heavy tax burdens and lean incomes has caused a great many people to see what they have ignored in more prosperous times, namely that it is a matter of great importance to nominate and elect the best citizens available for public office.

There was a great deal of apathy, a tendency to let-George-do-it when everybody was more or less prospering and taxes were just an inconvenience and not a crushing obligation.

To-day the situation is vastly different; the taxpayers have been doing some earnest thinking, and they are wideawake to the necessity of curbing public expenditures, of cutting our sails to suit our cloth.

That is a condition that should make it easy for capable candidates to win the confidence of the electorate who are anxious now that the best training and experience that can possibly be obtained should be enlisted for municipal service.

It will not be an easy task to cut down expenditures; it will require judgment and backbone, but it can be done and should be done, and the call at present is for men big enough to offer themselves as candidates.

A REST CAMP—BUT THEY STRIKE.

In one section of the Border Cities Star of Saturday we read a glowing account of the manner in which the men in the Point Pelee relief camp have been treated, and in another a news story of the camp workers going on strike because they were asked to work on Saturday afternoon.

All things considered, it would seem that these unemployed single men did not know when they were well off.

True, they were only paid a nominal wage, but the work was light, they were comfortably housed, warmly clad and handsomely fed.

Here is a specimen menu as given by the Windsor paper:

Breakfast: Oatmeal porridge, corn flakes, hot griddle cakes and corn syrup, fried bacon and fried potatoes, currant cake, stewed prunes, tea coffee and milk.

Dinner: Vegetable soup, roast beef, brown gravy, green peas, boiled potatoes, raisin and pumpkin pie, pudding cake, bread, butter and tea.

Supper: Vegetable soup, chopped beef and onions, cold roast beef, fried potatoes, green peas, stewed prunes, cake, cookies, bread, butter, tea and milk.

And here is what they received free in the way of clothing:

An overcoat, a pair of gum shoes, felt inner soles, four pairs of socks, two suits of heavy, woollen underwear, a pair of suspenders, a winter cap, two work shirts, a pair of heavy trousers, a pair of overalls, a pair of leather mitts and a pair of woollen mitts, and a sweater.

Two towels, soap and bedding are also provided.

This clothing is not cheap stuff.

In so far as work is concerned, the main consideration is that the men spend eight hours a day outside, the Star declares. If they feel like taking it easy, on the job, no one is going to bark orders at them to "get going." They may work as leisurely as they wish.

If this policy requires any justification, Eccles J. Gott, M.P. for Essex South, stands ready to give it. It was on Mr. Gott's recommendation that the work was undertaken.

"This," he explains, "is not an emergency job. It is not absolutely necessary that it should be done. This is really a relief job to take care of homeless, single men for the winter."

Under such circumstances these men were decidedly better off than thousands of transients, and there does not seem to be any excuse for their decision to strike.

TOO LARGE A SPREAD.

The tremendous gap between what the farmer gets for his primary products and what he pays for the same product after it has been processed remain unclosed.

A Central Ontario farmer has addressed an open letter to the Prime Minister in which he points to some particularly glaring instances of what he terms "the unduly or exorbitantly wide spread between the produce of the farm and the price the consumer has to pay for these products."

He mentions wool. All he gets to-day for his fine wool is seven or eight cents a pound. But members of his family are knitting sweaters, he says, and buying their wool out of a mail order catalogue at 20 cents an ounce, or $3.25 per pound. He thinks that there is no reason whatever for any yarn to be sold higher than 80 cents a pound or, say, five cents per ounce.

It is the same, he says, with hogs. When the price of the latter recently fell three-quarters of a cent per pound, the price of pork jumped about three cents a pound. Hides, too, are so low that it is difficult to find any market at all for them. Yet men's gloves cost just about as much as they have cost in other years and shoes have not declined radically.

"It looks as if our traders were looking for too large a margin and still trying to get wartime profits," says this man, who urges upon the Prime Minister that something be done either by a conference with the manufacturers or by educational means to reduce the spread.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

COCKSURENESS OOZING OUT.

(From the Detroit News)

For a long time Canada and the United States have been the best of neighbors. For the greater part of that time there has been a tendency on the part of a good many in the United States to feel that Canada got a lot of benefit from being alongside of the United States. Of course, every sensible person knew that the benefits were mutual, but there was a tendency to assume that everything in the United States was strictly correct and should be imitated by all other countries. Of late it seems some of that cocksureness has oozed out.

And in this curative spirit of humility some people are mentioning that the Canadians know something about banking that might be worth considering in this country. Throughout this period of economic stress, while so many disastrous things were happening everywhere, not a single Canadian bank has closed its doors.

This is the more remarkable for the Canadian system because of its intimate relationships with financial circles of London and New York has suffered tremendous strain. When England went off the gold standard, Canadian dollar quotations dropped in New York to 80.

What this meant to Canadian banking recently was explained by C. P. Gordon, Commissioner of Finance and City Treasurer of Ottawa: "For a number of years Canada had carried out a large part of its financing, public and industrial, in New York, and it was usually provided that interest and principal of its bond issues be payable in United States funds. These obligations had to be met in a considerably depreciated dollar."

Thereafter, with such conditions closing the markets of London and New York to Canadian financing, the Canadian banks had to carry the burden of Dominion, provincial and municipal financing in their own country, amounting to millions of dollars. And under all these difficulties there have been no runs on Canadian banks and no failures. It is a demonstration of correct principle and system worthy of study.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It is too late now to do your Christmas shopping early, but at least you can do it early in the morning and help to that extent.

Nomination day is almost here. Prospective candidates for municipal offices will soon have to come out in the open.

Remember this community must play Santa Claus to over 600 families, victims of the present depression. It is a situation that should enlist the co-operation of all generous-minded citizens.

The Otonabee is coming back to normal, and is doubtless ashamed of all the publicity gained by her recent escapade.

Thousands of cases of influenza are reported through the province, and while the authorities refer to the type as "mild," it would be difficult to convince the victims of the truth of that description.

In Florida this winter, it is said, girls will play golf in bathing costumes. It will be a case of picking peaches on the fairways.—Ottawa Journal.

THE CITY'S FUTURE

Dear Mr. Editor:—

Your editorials on "Petty Fault Finding" and "Good Men Are Wanted," supplemented by the letter of a citizen on "Tax Exemption," raise issues of major import to an awakened Peterborough. The highest integrity of character and administrative ability are needed now more than ever and you deserve the warm thanks of the community for emphasizing their value to the city's progression.

In Britain that is common usage and is traditional; consequently the highest form of municipal government extant has been achieved. In the United States it's the reverse and, as a result, hundreds of communities, great and small, are bankrupt morally and financially. Since the world war Canada's trend has, fortunately, been toward British ideals of nationhood and government. Whatever changes may eventuate will radiate from the centres throughout the national community. The future will be in degree as the people understand and exercise the principles, policies and tenets of good government.

Peterborough is already a city of distinction and its future was never more promising than it is at this time. It is not enough to make the city government a topic of private conversation: opinion should have positive expression publicly, else it is useless in the process of development. It may be worth while for our young men and women to survey their civic inheritance and look closely into the city's future.

The growth of population and local commerce is the guage and reflex of progress, but expenditure, taxation and debt have been multiplied out of proportion. During the last decade and up to this year the gain of population was below 1600, yet more than eight million dollars were added to the valuation of taxable property, while the tax levy was increased by $347,000. The per capita proportion jumped from $795 to $1106. The tax per capita from $26.86 to $40.25.

Since 1905 the assessment has been more than quadrupled. The taxes levied are more than eight times greater. The debenture debt is more than six times what it then was. The tax rate has been more than doubled and the per capita tax is five times greater. The Sinking Fund is an excellent protection, but it does not properly account for the existing situation or lessen the immediate tax burden. Retrenchment, reparation and economy are obligatory to enable the city to hold its high fiduciary position as a distinctive community.

In examining the annual reports and week-to-week payments, some surprising facts and figures are disclosed. In many instances liberal additions to departmental costs have been made. Debatable grants and allowances have been continued that should have been decreased or discontinued within the last three years. A precedent, once made, seems to have run into a sort of routine and retrenchment has seldom if ever been exerted.

"Tax Exemption," granted only by vote of the people, when renewed from period to period, is more than a simple economic problem. Why tax one business and exempt another? Differences have to be paid by the workers or workless, the tenant or owner.

Respectfully,
Ryerson Ritchie.

EXPLOSION FROM MR. GRUMPY

"PERHAPS I AM a grouch, but I can't abide those people who are sure they understand human nature. If a man gives away a dollar, if he quits his job, if he marries, if he gets into trouble, if he loses his temper, they can tell you just why he did it....They know everything, they're smart, life's an open book to them. They've read all the psychology books, they understand all about glands and neuroses and psychic lesions, and you can't fool them at all. They can see right inside of you and explain just why you did this and why you think that, and they aren't a bit backward about telling you.

"If you were about to fall into a mudhole or on the point of making a bad investment, they wouldn't do a thing to stop you. They'd say it wasn't any of THEIR business and that, anyway, a man must be allowed to make his own mistakes. But after you have fallen in the mud—and after you've lost your money—then they open up with the big guns and tell you how you happened to do it....Because they 'understand' you.

"I know a fellow who 'understands' me. At least, he says he does, and he's always explaining ME to MYSELF. You'd think, to hear him talk, that he knows more about me than I do myself....Maybe he does. Trouble is, though, that he's always digging out the dirt on me. When I do something he can always prove to me that my motives were low and selfish and discreditable. I'm kind because I want to feel virtuous. I'm generous to relieve my own suffering. I make a sacrifice because I'd feel mean if I didn't do it.

"He may be right, but what's the use of telling me? It may be true, but I'd rather not know. What's the advantage of always having my actions interpreted against me.

"If that's wisdom, if that's 'psychology,' give me a little stupidity, let me have a little more dense and benighted stupidity.

"I'll admit I'm stubborn and blind and grouchy and a 'foe of enlightenment.' But let ME do the admitting, and it will be more effective....I'll get myself into a corner some day and call myself a selfish old grub who never does a thing except from a selfish motive and never does a decent thing without a thrill of pride. But I'll do the 'interpretin,' I'll wrestle with my darker self, all myself, all alone in the dark.

"And if YOU want to tell me something, tell me something I don't know, something I WANT to know.

OLDER MEN SHOULD RETIRE

KENTVILLE, N.S. — Thirty or thirty-five years of honorable service should entitle any man to retire, in the opinion of W. H. Eager, retired Wolfville radiologist.

"Most companies and governments have an age limit for retirement, but in my opinion this often is too high," he told the Kentville Rotary Club.

"We in Nova Scotia perhaps are inclined to hog the jobs of youth and this adds one small point to the unemployment situation."

Quotations For To-Day

There is no greater sign of a general decay of virtue in a nation, than a want of zeal in its inhabitants for the good of their country.

Christmas Meeting Janetville Branch

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, December 21. — A very delightful gathering of the Women's Institute of Janetville was held at the home of Mrs. Charles McNeil recently. An unusually large number of members attended, and the hostess presided.

The several items of business transacted were concerned chiefly with the spirit of Christmas. It was arranged for the Institute to follow their usual good custom of sending Christmas meats to certain families. Mrs. E. Bradburn and Mrs. Charles Deyell were appointed a committee in charge of buying Institute gifts for brides-to-be who have assisted in promoting the interests of the Janetville Institute.

A program committee for the New Year was appointed as follows: Mrs. Albert Heaslip, Mrs. Joe Capstick, and Miss Celia McGill.

An interesting Christmas program was given: Reading, "Star of Bethlehem," by Mrs. William Sanderson; piano solo, "Moon Winks," by Mrs. George Heaslip; reading, "Which is Worth Most to You," by Mrs. Joe Capstick; reading, "Twins," by Mrs. Will Hanna; vocal duet, "Holy Night," by Mrs. (Rev.) Walker(and Mrs. Celia McGill.

Santa Claus then made his appearance and liberally distributed gifts from a well loaded and profusely decorated Christmas tree. Refreshments were served by the hostesses and a social evening enjoyed during which progressive euchre was played followed by dancing for the younger set.

This annual event was thoroughly enjoyed, and a sincere vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. McNeil for her hospitality, a hearty clap of the hands being the response of all present.

(Mr. and Mrs. McNeil were former Cavan residents.)

LARGE MAIL SHIPMENT.

LONDON, Ont.—The heaviest shipment of Christmas mail London has ever received from Great Britain—297 bags of it, is piled in the Post Office here. It is consigned for delivery in both the city and the Western Ontario district, for which London is the distributing centre.

Pre-War Lady

A ROMANCE by Margaret Widdemer

Presently she saw Esther whisper up into Roger's ear, saw him stride into the house. She crouched lower in the corner of the veranda. Uncanny little sorceress that she was, Esther might have sen him—yes, she had; he was knocking on her own door, he was calling, "Emilia, Emilia! Esther wants you."

The commonplace words, devoid as they were of love or personalness, shook her so that she had to grip the scrolled bars of the veranda not to answer, not to run to him. She heard him moving through the house, throwing on lights, calling her; finally giving up and going into his own room, she supposed, to dress for swimming himself. She waited where she was until he had gone down again soft-footed, and ran to her own room. She undressed hurriedly and tried to sleep.

She might have made herself, finally, if it had not been for the sound she heard beneath her window. Someone on the front veranda, talking and laughing. She knew that laugh, unmistakable, a little hysterical on its highest note. Dick Stoddard was here as well as Roger.

"Of course," she whispered. "All of the men of the old regiment were asked. He's suggested to Roger to put him up."

She sat upright in bed for a moment. Then she sprang out, threw a wrap around her, as once before, and ran down the deserted upper hall to telephone Manny at the other house.

"Manny," she said urgently, without preface, "you were talking nonsense tonight. I want you to take me down to Pelham with you tomorrow. I want you to marry me now."

"Dear, don't make it harder for me."

"Yes, you will," she said. "Dick Stoddard is here. You don't want me tormented."

"I'll attend to that. But I can't talk here."

"Then see me, at least, tomorrow. Yes, you must. Please."

"Don't you suppose I want to? Don't you suppose it's hell not to?"

"It's foolish, all this. Manny, please——"

"You could always do what you liked with me. . . . Very well. I've promised them here to stay, to talk to them at luncheon. You drop a hint to young Esther, she'll keep Stoddard off till then."

"When and where? There are too many people here, it'll have to be over there."

"The arbor's the only place, then. It won't do any good. Let me off seeing you, Emilia."

"No."

"At three, then."

She thanked him and went, satisfied. She knew, as a woman does know who is entirely loved, that face to face with him by daylight, she could persuade him to take her with him, and even perhaps to marry him immediately. She did not think of her own feeling at all, only of her unchanging purpose.

The voices under the windows had dropped now. Most of the house party had gone to bed, or drifted in pairs out of sight. Along the river, over in the arbor, the summer house, the verandas. She rose and went to take one more look at the lawns and river beneath the full moon. A single couple were on the edge of the pool, lying on the gra s, a slim brown boy stretched out with his head in the lap of a slim brown girl. They were exquisite silhouettes against the dusky green, in the silver. She wished she could have been born ten years later. Most of these freed confident children seemed to her to live in an Arcadia none the less full of sweetness and freedom for being mechanized. As she watched them, the girl laughed out, sprang up and beckoned to the boy to follow. He sprang to her; the two figures clasped, kissed, laughed again with gay slow freedom. They ran fleetly across the lawn and in. It had been like an interlude in a pageant; Daphnis and Chloe, Stephon and Phyllis.

"It was I and mine who were overcivilized," she thought, "not th se."

And suddenly none of all the things she had been weighed down by seemed so important. After all, wasn't the code of this generation as good as her own? Life fled so fast, the generations passed so swiftly. Honesty, freedom, fair dealing, goodness, right meaning—these were the important things, after all; perhaps the others didn't count as much as she'd thought. Perhaps the Arcadians were right, after all.

She did not think it out any further. Yet somehow she felt, suddenly, as if things would be right. God would give her strength to marry Manny, to love him and make him happy, and be happy in so doing. With the simplicity of the eighteen-year-old that much of her was, even yet, she said her prayers and went to sleep.

CHAPTER 46

The feeling of strength and safety was with her still next morning. She found herself able to greet Roger and Dick as quietly as if she did not love the one and dislike the other. Nobody else was down but Esther. Such of her tribe as hadn't rushed cityward were asleep or having trays. Miss Myra never came down in the morning any more. Roger, seen by daylight, looked tired. She spoke to him and he to her as quietly and courteously as guest and host must. To Dick she was civil, no more; after all, she was not his hostess. Indeed, she scarcely thought about him, Roger was so imminent a cause of emotion. So dear Esther, talking with more than usual fluency to Dick, kept him, against his will, deflected. The other two slid, imperceptibly, into a quiet familiarity of speech, of remembrance, that was more a betrayal of love than embarrassment or silence would have been. The like-accented voices, man's and woman's flowed on in a "Do you remember?" and "In that summer," their faces more and more intent, their manner more and more absorbed.

"They look as if they'd always belonged together," Esther murmured. "Well, of course, they do."

"I should think too darn much for Rose's taste," said Dick, a little roughly.

"Oh, well," Esther said, offhanded, "it's not our funeral. He's my uncle and you're engaged to Mrs. Gardner. Let's go."

She swept him from the room and the oblivious others as deftly as any hostess of forty could have done.

The maids, looking in to clear the table, went away impressed. Miss Emilia was still sufficiently an excitement without this. They, too, wondered what Manuel Rose would say.

"Well, I s'pose Mr. Scarlett's a sort of cousin," said the younger.

"Distant," said the older. "She lived next door when she was little."

"Oh, yeah?" said Annie pertly. "Say, I think I can clear around them. they won't never know."

The process never awakened Roger from his absorption, but it did Emilia.

"Roger, the maids want the table!" she exclaimed in housewifely fashion, springing up.

He smiled. "So they do. We'll go outdoors."

They crossed the lawn together. He looked at her, in the white she wore so much, moving slow and fresh and lovely in the bright morning sunshine. The light caught the great unfashionable knot low on her neck.

"You never cut your hair," he said irrelevantly.

"Nobody was fashionable in little Brianne. And now of course I can't, because of my act."

"It seems so strange—your act. And yet it's natural. I suppose you are to be made into a big actress. But you were so lovely and so young that I never thought about you except as someone to want for myself in the old days. Men are selfish when they're young—always, perhaps."

"Oh, Roger, you were never selfish!"

His strong fair face deepened its color from pleasure.

"You must have thought I was selfish, coming back here to disturb you. I promised Esther to stay away. She had some wild idea I disapproved of—never mind that. But—I can't tell you much—there was rather a mess about one of the Balkan states. I went over to be a sort of watchdog, I'd done my relief work there. Suddenly I had to get back and go to Washington. It wasn't the sort of thing to handle by cable. And then——".

"And then?" She said it lightly. This aura of happiness around her made her scarcely care what they talked about. This afternoon and its promise to Manny were in the future. She would be dutiful to him all her days. But this one morning, with its innocent closeness to the man who mattered to her more than anything else, was here, and wronged no one.

"And then," Roger said steadily, "knowing you belonged to Manny, you were marrying him soon, I thought it wouldn't wrong him, and would be something for me to keep always—always—to see you and speak to you, and walk here with you as we go now, as if you would always belong to me, as if you were my wife."

Before she knew what she said she had looked up at him with a betraying face and said, "Did you pretend that, too?"

She saw him whiten, then flush.

"Emilia, you do love me!" He caught her hands, he made her stand still there in the sunshine.

She faced him helplessly and honestly. "I think I always did, Roger. But it makes no difference. I can't marry anyone but Manny——".

Footsteps behind them made them turn. Dick had found Emilia again.

"Come on out in a canoe with me," he said. "Say, Roger, old bean, you're as stingy as hell with Emilia. Come on, Milly, there's something very important I want to talk over with you."

Esther, lightfoot behind them, interposed as deftly as usual.

"Emilia can't, she promised Manny she'd put in the rest of the morning working over some new songs. I'll go with you, I paddle better than she does."

"You're simply planning to leave her with Roger," said Dick in a voice not so low that Roger did not hear it. To save trouble, he said pleasantly: "I'd like to be out on the water myself. We'll all three go, and abandon Emilia to her work."

There was nothing for Dick to do but go, without open rudeness to his host.

Emilia, a little downcast, went back to the music room. Such a little while out of a whole life, and to have it cut short, this way. Strange to have Dick so crazy to marry her still. Strange to have stepped back in this circle again. Some people said life was a spiral, you were always coming back to the same thing on another plane. She would do well to talk to Manny, go back with him, be married to him before another week. She knew she must not stay here longer. Her tense height of resolution would snap.

She practised an hour. Then she looked at her wristwatch. Nearly two, and she had thought it still morning! Of course—breakfast had been very late, and she had sat over the table with Roger, it must have been hours. She hurried upstairs. It would be less trouble if Miss Myra didn't know she was packing. She went at it silently. She thought she was being cool and hard and without feeling; she was brushing, folding, laying away with swiftness and efficiency. But as she passed the long mirror in the wardrobe door she saw that tears were running down her face.

She wiped them off and worked on. . . . Everything locked and packed and arranged. One look in the mirror to be sure she looked happy for Manny; take off the white wool morning frock, put on the dark tailored chiffon for the city; lay hat and gloves on the bureau by the pink ribboned cologne bottles; be gone.

POLICE ARREST OWNER OF GUN

Prisoner Also Wanted for Violation of Mann Act—Involved in Legal Battle.

FIGHT OVER ESTATE.

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 21 (CP)—Held on a nominal charge of illegal possession of a dangerous weapon and also booked for investigation Russel Morgan, giving a Detroit address, was remanded in custody for eight days when he appeared in police court to-day.

According to an agent of the United States Bureau of Investigation Morgan's arrest ends a lengthy search for the man who is allegedly wanted for violation of the Mann Act.

His arrest recalls a lengthy legal battle over the estate of Thomas W. Corby, Crosse Point Park, Mich., in which Morgan figured. In May, 1919, Corby, aged 75 married Madeline Deals and a child was born in September. Corby filed suit the following year claiming he was not the father of the child. Later the suit was withdrawn and Mrs. Corby got a divorce. She then married Morgan and the child's right to the part of the estate of Corby, who died in 1924, was upheld by the Probate Court. On June 10 last, Morgan filed suit for custody of the child, claiming he was the father.

To-day Windsor detectives declared they found a .38 calibre revolver in Morgan's apartment, and the charge followed.

TARIFF BOARD SOON BE FORMED

Delay in Appointment Has Been Justified Declares Thomas.

CONSULTED BENNETT.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—(C. P. Cable)—J. H. Thomas, secretary for the dominions, told the House of Commons today he understood the Canadian tariff board would be formed shortly He had been in discussion with Prime Minister R. B. Bennett on the subject and said he had gathered the appointments for the board would be made in a short time.

W. Mabane, a National Liberal member, suggested the lapse of four months from the Imperial Conference until the present had been a long time before the appointment of the tariff board was made, but Mr. Thomas disagreed. He added he would have very much deplored any hasty decree concerning the tariff board which might have resulted in the Board not giving satisfaction to both Canada and Britain he felt the delay in appointment had been justified.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce, said in a speech in Canada a few days ago that the new Canadian Tariff Board personnel would be announced shortly and that a prominent Canadian judge was being considered in connection with the chairmanship. The Board is to be established to hear representations by British and other industrial representatives in connection with the working out of the tariff changes agreed on at the Ottawa Conference.

CATTLE IMPORT BARS ARE EASED

Britain Allows Canadian Stock to be Marketed Directly on Arrival.

CONCESSIONS EXCHANGED.

OTTAWA, Dec 21 (C.P.).—New regulations designed to greatly facilitate the import of pedigreed breeding stock from the United Kingdom, and the export of live stock, particularly cattle from Canada to the United Kingdom, will come into operation within two weeks, it was announced by the Department of Agriculture to-day.

On the recommendation of Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, an Order-in-Council has been passed amending Canadian quarantine regulations under the provisions of the Animal Contagious Diseases Act, to facilitate the importation of pedigreed breeding stock direct from the quarantine station at the London docks on certificate by the British Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries, following a fourteen-day quarantine, to a quarantine station in Canada for a further period of fourteen days. This marks an important extension in the application of the agreements concluded at the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa last summer.

What Britain Allows.

In return for this concession Canada receives from the British authority the following concessions:

Elimination of the previous requirement that a veterinary inspector must accompany shipments of store cattle from Canada to England—this means a saving to the Canadian Government of $2 per head of live cattle exported.

The requirement with respect to isolation just prior to embarkation is reduced from a three-day period to 24 hours.

The requirement with respect to branding stores is eliminated, the metal ear tags only being required.

The limitation as to sex requirement are eliminated.

Canadian cattle on arrival in England may be marketed directly, enjoying the same rights and privileges as those extended to Irish cattle.

FACES SERIOUS CHARGE

LONDON.—The criminal negligence charge laid against George McNeil, 18, was raised to manslaughter in police court to-day as the result of the death this morning of Mrs. George Webber, struck by a car allegedly driven by McNeil last night. Accused is the son of Dr. George McNeil, well-known X-ray expert.

King Broadcasts Christmas Day

OTTAWA, Dec. 21 (C.P.)—The Christmas broadcast during which His Majesty will address his subjects throughout the Empire, will commence at 8.55 a.m. on Dec. 25, when the opening announcements will be made. At sharp nine o'clock, or five minutes later, London will go on the air. At 9.45 a.m., His Majesty will take over the microphone and his address will conclude the broadcast.

Owing to errors in transmission some confusion of times was contained in a story describing the broadcast, published this morning.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, December 21 (C.P.)—The stock market moved sidewise in the late trading to-day, the level of prices showing little change. U. S. Steel Preferred and Allied Chemical gained a point or more, while American Tobacco B slipped a point. U.S. Steel Common, American Can, General Motors, and the Standard Oil issues moved a shade higher. American Telephone was steady. Transfers approximated 700,000 shares. The closing tone was steady.

WINNIPEG EXCHANGE.

—WINNIPEG, December 21 (C.P.)—Moderate buying for Continental accounts held wheat prices to an even keel in early trade to-day. Values during the initial hour moved within a range of ⅛c with operations rather mixed and trade at times dull.

At mid-session quotations rested ⅛c higher to unchanged, with December quoted at 39⅞c, May at 42⅛c, and July at 43¼c.

Elevator interests were credited with the bulk of the offerings.

Spreaders were buying our July against sales in the southern market, but only in a small way. The United States Government crop report issued yesterday had little or no effect on North American markets.

Liverpool wheat displayed an indifferent tone and the quotations shortly after mid-session were ¼d lower per 100 pounds. Wheat prices at Buenos Aires at noon were ¼c lower per bushel.

STANDARD EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, Dec. 21 (C.P.).—Eldorado came sharply into prominence to-day through announcement of the early opening of their plant at Port Hope and the news brought many buyers of the stock into the market. The price advanced on the Standard Mining Exchange to 1.31, up six points.

With the single exception of Siscoe, which firmed to 96, accumulation was not heavy among the golds to-day. Lake Shore held firm at 33.60. Dome was a little stronger, Hollinger was unchanged at 5.50, and McIntyre about steady at $23.

The Standard Exchange will be closed on Saturday as well as on Monday.

Will Oust McFadden For Hoover Attacks

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(A.P.)—The Pennsylvania Republican, United States' House of Representatives' delegation, to-day voted to oust Representative McFadden as secretary of the delegation because of his attacks on President Hoover.

The immediate cause of the action was McFadden's recent unsuccessful attempt for impeachment of the President, after which the delegation met and requested his resignation as secretary. McFadden failed to comply, so to-day's recourse was undertaken.

Long a foe of Mr. Hoover, the Pennsylvanian lost his impeachment attempt in the House by 361 to 8 votes. He had charged the President with several sorts of high crimes and misdemeanors, concentrating especially on the moratorium and handling of the war debts problem.

Ammunition Dump Blast Kills Two

ROME, Dec. 21 (C.P.).—Two soldiers were known to be dead and many injured, some seriously, in an explosion at the airforce ammunition dump at Fort Appio, on the Appian way outside Rome to-day.

Soldiers from nearby barracks were fighting the fire which started after the explosion, in order to prevent its spread to additional dumps.

It was believed several more soldiers were buried in the ruins.

TORONTO TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION OFFICERS FAVOR FIVE DAY WEEK

Claim Report Unfair to Say All Men Affected Organizing Against Move.

EXPLAIN POSITION.

TORONTO, Dec. 21 (C.P.)—Declaring officers of the Toronto union of the International Typographical Union are in sympathy with the inauguration of a five-day week, William R. Lucas, President of the local body, declared to-day there had been considerable misunderstanding since the international body passed its five-day week resolution last week.

"While it is true there has been a great deal of opposition among newspaper printers to certain aspects of the recent five-day referendum, the officers of Toronto union are in accord with the mandates of the International Union," he said. "It is unfair to say all the men affected on the newspapers are organizing against the shorter work week.

"The grievance of the men rests in the fact that in Toronto the majority of the newspaper men voted against the proposition principally because it is believed only about one-third of the unemployed would be absorbed. It might necessarily follow the newspaper men would be asked for an additional assessment after the inauguration of the five-day week to enable the union to pay benefits to the remainder of the unemployed. The newspaper printers feel that when a full day is sacrificed for unemployed, they have contributed their full share, and they will oppose an additional assessment after the inauguration of the five-day week to enable the union to pay benefits to the remainder of the unemployed. The newspaper printers feel that when a full day is sacrificed for unemployed they have contributed their full share, and they will oppose an additional assessment or any other proposal which might tend further to lower their income."

Plain Beatrice

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. Dec. 21.—(A.P.)— Beatrice believes in laying her cards on the table. She wrote a letter to Santa Claus and it found its way to a relief organization.

"Dear Santa," it said, "I'm only 12 years old and very hard-boiled, skip school when I get a chance and get a strappin' most every day at school, but just the same I'd like a $2 wrist watch and a doll and wardrobe, please. You won't turn me down for a little thing like this for Christmas, I'm as ever, just plain Beatrice."

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO CHEESE.

TORONTO, Dec. 21.— (C.P.) — The Toronto wholesale cheese market was steady with dealers buying large, colored, paraffined and government grades at 9¾c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 21 (A.P.) — An upward trend showed itself in wheat prices early to-day. A bullish construction was generally placed on the Washington official crop report, emphasizing the low condition of new domestic winter wheat. Many traders, however, challenged the accuracy of the government estimate of 1.3 per cent. reduction in acreage. Opening unchanged to ⅜ higher, wheat afterward held near the initial limits. Corn started at ¼ off to ⅜ up and subsequently altered little.

HUNGER ARMY GIVEN WARNING

Premier Brownlee Replies to Impossible Demands, Explaining Situation.

35 HURT IN MELEE.

EDMONTON, Dec. 21 (C.P.) — Coupling forgiveness for misguided farmer members and a warning to radicals the law permits no flouting, Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta to-day replied to "impossible demands" of disgruntled marchers who gathered here yesterday against police edict.

At least 35 of the several hundred "hunger marchers" suffered bruises when police broke up an attempt to parade to the Legislative buildings. A Royal Canadian Mounted Police Constable was slightly injured in the melee. Two of the alleged radicals are awaiting arraignment in court.

To those who participated under false impressions and in the hope of protecting property and earning a living, Premier Brownlee said their problems had been considered by the government.

The Demands

Non-contributory unemployment insurance, large weekly cash grants to single and married unemployed, and stoppage of all taxation were the demands of the "hunger marchers," the Premier said.

"I have frequently stated on the public platform that the hardest task the Provincial Government is facing is to convince people that there is no possible way for Provincial Governments, with no control over banks or currency, to provide service without taxation," he said. "And it would seem to be clear to any reasonable resident, the extreme demands of the Canadian Labor Defence League and the Communist Party for non-contributory insurance and large cash payments to unemployed could only result in increased taxation on all elements of our population."

Three Are Nominated As Toronto's Mayor

TORONTO, Dec. 21. — (C.P.) — Three men were named for Toronto's Mayoralty and 10 for Board of Control at the nomination meeting here to-day. Those named for the highest position were the present Mayor, W. J. Stewart; R. M. Tuthill and Robert R. Leslie.

Controllers named were: James Simpson, C. F. Ramsden, A. E. Hacker, Mrs. Alice Buck, wife of the Communist leader who is now in Portsmouth penitentiary; Mrs. James Cottos, W. J. Haire, Samuel McBride, William Millen, W. D. Robbins, and H. W. Hunt.

WILL FACE TRIAL.

OWEN SOUND. — Preliminary hearing of Melville Wilkie on charges of murdering his girl-wife and their six-month-old baby by setting fire to gasoline he allegedly sprinkled in the bedroom in which they slept will take place here today before Magistrate H. C. Sperman. The hearing is expected to last less than an hour.

TRANSACTIONS IN SECURITIES REVIEWED AT HARPELL TRIAL

Court Commission's Findings From Insull Treasurer in Chicago Unfolded.

$250,000 TO SYNDICATE:

MONTREAL, Dec. 21 (C.P.) — Transactions in the securities of the Middle West Utilities Corporation, one of the promotions of Samuel Insull, were under review at the trial of James J. Harpell for criminal libel here to-day. A commission from the Montreal court went to Chicago and heard evidence of Patrick J. Fallon, treasurer of Insull, Son and Co., Inc., covering the formation and dealings of syndicates organized to trade in Middle West stock.

Harpell is accused by Thomas B. Macaulay, President of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada on the basis of statements published in his magazine, The Journal of Commerce."

Fallon told the commission Mr. Macaulay subscribed $250,000 to a syndicate organized to deal in Middle West stock, and produced the syndicate agreement which showed four other Sun Life officers as subscribers of $100,000 each. Six per cent was paid on account of the subscriptions, and Mr. Macaulay paid $15,000. On the transactions, the syndicate reaped a profit of $1,738,879.19 or 25 per cent on the amount of money paid in by subscribers. Mr. Macaulay's profit on his $15,000 was $3,760.62.

No Details of Sale

The witness was unable to give the commission details about the sale of six per cent convertible preferred stock in the Middle West company to the Sun Life, as negotiations were carried on by A. J. Thomas of Montreal, and the Canadian subsidiary, Insull Company of Canada. So far as he knew, however, none of the shares held by the syndicate were sold to Sun Life.

Cross-examination of Mr. Fallon by counsel for Macaulay brought the statement, "Some of the most prominent financiers of this country and England were members of the syndicate." The names of Owen D. Young, Gerrard Swope, and Lord Thurston were mentioned as examples.

COL. JOHN S. HAMMOND RESIGNS AS HEAD OF NEW YORK RANGERS

Understood William F. Carey, President of Madison Square Garden Fill Vacancy.

PATRICK PROMOTED.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (C.P.).—A report was current in hockey circles to-day that Col. John S. Hammond, president of the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, had resigned and that his place would be taken by William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden.

Hammond could not be located and Carey was reported to be en route to Springfield, Mass., in an attempt to straighten out the affairs of the Springfield club of the Canadian-American League, a Ranger "farm," which Hammond had declared he would withdraw from the Massachusetts city.

A Long Feud.

The New York Sun, commenting on the situation to-day, said it was the culmination of a long feud between Carey and Hammond, dating back to the weeks immediately following the death of Tex Rickard when both were aspirants for Rickard's place and control of Garden affairs. The paper also says that Lester Patrick, manager of the Rangers, is reported to have been elevated to the vice-presidency of the Rangers and placed in general charge.

Colonel Hammond has been identified with hockey since its introduction to New York in 1926, first serving as president of the New York Americans and then going with the Garden and organizing the Rangers. He had helped Rickard finance the construction of the new Garden.

Refused To Lower Prices.

To Hammond, the Sun says, is given credit generally for doing most to create the social atmosphere at hockey games. Indeed, the final stage of the row between him and Carey is said to have developed from Hammond's refusal to cut the admission prices on the score that to do so would lower the tone of the sport. Carey is reported to have insisted on this at a meeting yesterday which finally became so heated that he demanded and got Hammond's resignation.

'FLU

The 'flu epidemic is not abating, but you can do much to reduce the risk of infection.

1. Avoid crowds as much as possible.
2. Be careful of your diet. Partake freely of fruit, vegetables and milk, which are alkaline in their re-action.
3. Avoid draughts, but see that fresh air is freely admitted to home or office.

Last and most important. Get a bottle of BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE and take a sip several times a day. BUCKLEY'S is a highly alkaline, germ-destroying mixture, that rids the system of cold-giving acids, invaluable as a preventive. If you should take 'flu, go to bed at once, and call your doctor. As likely as not he'll tell you to carry on with BUCKLEY'S. Many doctors do. But be sure it's BUCKLEY'S — the original, genuine, creamy WHITE MIXTURE.

The 'flu is too dangerous to experiment with unproven preparations and worthless imitations. BUCKLEY'S became famous during the 'flu epidemic of 1918 and has been famous ever since.

ject, the delegation urged the government:

(1) To inaugurate a system of tolls, on a tonnage basis, on vessels operating through the Welland Canal.

(2) That such tolls would materially assist in providing the required revenue essential to meeting the capital investment expended on the Welland Ship Canal, thus alleviating in some measure the taxes now levied on the people of Canada, also assist in reducing the national debt of Canada.

(3) If necessary, the government to arrange with the United States of America for the necessary amendment to the existing treaties between the two countries relative to the equality of rights and of commerce of the two nations in the use of the canals.

Too Heavy Taxation

Composed of H. B. Hudson, London, H. Wigglesworth, Stratford, W. J. Brakner, Toronto, W. J. Meagher, Niagara Falls and Norman Dowd, Ottawa, the deputation said:

"As citizens of this Dominion our main objection to the proposed development of the St. Lawrence waterway is that it will throw a very heavy burden upon an already overtaxed people, having in mind that the population of Canada is not sufficient density to warrant the expenditure of such an enormous amount of money as will be needed to complete the work of this project, also that the present transportation facilities, viz: railways, waterways, highways and airways, are far in excess of the needs of the country for some considerable time to come.

"Speaking as railway employees our second objection is that the deepening of the St. Lawrence waterway will not only divert a large volume of business now carried by the railways—as is evidenced by the results of the completion of the Welland ship canal which has already caused a considerable loss of revenue by the railways to the shipping interests—but will also materially aggravate the present acute unemployment situation by eventually throwing a large number of railway employees out of work. It is admitted that the construction of the St. Lawrence waterway will relieve the unemployment situation a little, but this will only be temporary."

The deputation represented that works of such nature usually cost much more than the original estimate, and that this would occur in the case of the St. Lawrence scheme, cost of deepening and enlarging harbors of Kingston, Toronto, Hamilton, Port Colborne, Windsor, Sarnia, Sault Ste. Marie, Port Arthur and Port William would have to be added to the total estimate of $870,000,000,000 as the cost for the St. Lawrence scheme, the deputation claimed.

Inflation: How Would it Help the Farmer?

The Condition of Farmers is Serious. Inflation is Being Suggested as a Remedy. The Dominion Government is Opposed to It. Farmers Are Asking for Information. What Does It All Mean? A Simple Statement Dealing With a Difficult Problem.

H. B. COWAN, Editor-in-Chief, Farm and Dairy.

The United Farmers of Ontario having decided in favor of the inflation of Canadian money, and to circulate a petition asking the Dominion Government to desert the gold standard, means that the farmers of Ontario, and of Canada, during the next few months are going to hear much about this important proposal. The fact that the movement in favor of inflation is supported by the organized farmers in Western Canada, and by such experienced and well informed farm-leaders in Ontario as former Premier Hon. E. C. Drury, of Barrie; W. C. Good, ex-M.P., of Paris, and Miss Agnes McPhail, M.P., of South Gray, shows that such a suggestion must have much to commend it.

The chief argument in favor of inflation is that it will assist farmers to meet their obligations. A farmer, who, four years ago, incurred debts of say $3,000, when wheat was selling at $1.50 a bushel, butter at 41c a pound and cheese at 21c a pound, had reason to believe that he could pay off that indebtedness in due time and without difficulty with the price of farm commodities at that level. Since then, however, he has seen the price of farm commodities drop to a point where wheat on the farm is worth 35c to 40c a bushel, butter 19c and cheese 7c and 8c a pound. His indebtedness, however, remains at the same high figure. At that time it would have involved the sale of only 2,000 bushels of wheat to pay his debt. At to-day's price levels, however, he must sell 8,571 bushels at 35c a bushel to pay the same debt. That, with most farmers, is beyond their power. Their farms are not capable of such production—above their own needs—unless over a long period of years. In the meantime their taxes and other necessities must be met. It is claimed that inflation will make money more plentiful and will increase the price of farm products and asist farmers to meet their obligations. If this is true, then it is a matter of great importance to farmers.

A Big Problem.

Whether or not we Canadians shall follow the example of Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand, as well as of some other countries, and inflate our currency, raises many difficult problems. It is one of the most complicated questions the public has ever been called upon to consider. A member of parliament told us recently that for months he had been reading everything relating to inflation that he could get his hands on with the result that he had concluded that he knew almost nothing about it. The trouble is that inflation affects so many other interests, some favorably and others unfavorably, and it is so wrapped up with questions of credits and debits, stocks and bonds, international methods of finance, international debts and other issues, that it becomes most confusing and makes it impossible to give any off-hand decision as to the value of such an important proposal. Inflation, in the past, when carried to extremes, has resulted disastrously to many countries. Such might be the ultimate result to Canada. The danger is, however, if we do not adopt it, with conditions drifting as they are, that chaos may soon develop under existing conditions. Hon. Arthur Meighen has warned us that this condition is at our doors making it impossible for even the Dominion Government to continue borrowing as in the past.

Farm and Dairy Favors Inflation.

Should Canada decide in favor of inflation, and Farm and Dairy favors such action, the question immediately arises, "How far in that direction should we go?" Ex-premier Drury claims that we should inflate to even below the value of the British pound, as owing to the high Canadian tariffs our money has not the purchasing power in Canada that British money has in Great Britain. This is true. He would favor inflation to the approximate level of Australian money, or to about 25 per cent. below the British pound.

While Farm and Dairy supports the arguments for inflation, we do so with grave misgivings and for the same reason advanced by Hon. R. B. Bennett for opposing inflation. That is, once we begin to inflate ourmoney there is no assurance how far the policy may be carried. As Sir Thomas White has pointed out, there is no assurance that were we to do so, Australia, New Zealand, and other countries—which have profited by our remaining on the gold standard (or trying to)—would not immediately still further inflate their money. Already in Australia, which has carried inflation to a considerably lower level than Great Britain, there are voices now calling for still further inflation. Inflation by Canada, therefore, might influence Australia, and possibly other countries, to decide upon further inflation. That constitutes the great danger in such a policy.

Inflation has some resemblance to the taking of a drug. At first the effects may be pleasant, but it may easily develop into a vice with disastrous effects. Hon. Mr. Bennett and others do well to point this out. The public should pay heed to their warnings. Unfortunately, however, Hon. Mr. Bennett, Hon. Mr. Rhodes and others are not able to show farmers how they can pay their debts with the price of farm commodities at their present levels. It is the necessity for finding this remedy that leads Farm and Dairy to feel that under existing conditions we are justified in incurring the risks involved by adopting inflation. But, we recognize it is a dangerous step to take.

What Is Involved.

Among the many questions farmers are beginning to ask, in fact many have been asking them for some time, are: What is the gold standard? What is inflation? Why is it necessary? How can we be sure it will help farmers? How will it hurt them? What will its general effect be?

It is not possible to answer the foregoing questions fully in a short article such as this. As briefly as possible, however, we will try and throw some light upon them.

What Is Money?

Before we can understand what is meant by inflation we must understand what money is. Many people—in fact most people—do not understand this important matter. They think that money is wealth. It is not. It is simply a medium of exchange. There is a vast difference between wealth and between a medium of exchange. (Even Sir Thomas White, as we will point out later, does not appear to clearly understand this difference.) Wealth is always the same. Anything that we need for the purpose of living and pleasure is wealth. Farm products, clothes, furniture, agricultural implements, machinery and automobiles are different forms of wealth. They are what people want and need. Money is only a means of enabling people to exchange articles representing wealth for other articles with the greatest ease.

At different times and in different places many different things have been used in place of money. In Northern Canada, Indians have used muskrat skins for money. So many skins were exchanged at the Hudson Bay stores for so much flour, guns, and other things needed. Under such conditions fox and bear skins were worth so many muskrat skins.

In the South Sea islands the natives have used rare shells for money. So many different kinds of shells were used to help in the exchange of this or that article of wealth. As long as people have confidence that when they receive any of these forms of money they will be able to use them with which to buy something they need, they will be willing to use them for that purpose. The moment, however, that they fear that if they take the money it will lose its value and they may not be able to use it to procure the things they want, that moment they refuse to take it. Such money then loses its value. From this point it will be seen that it is of great importance that people shall have confidence in the value and purchasing power of the money they use.

What Is the Gold Standard?

This raises the question of what is the gold standard? At one time most countries were using different kinds of money. This made it difficult to conduct trade between one country and another. It became necessary to try and standardize the value of money. It was recognized that it was not possible for countries to print all the paper money they wanted because if they did money would become so plentiful it would become cheap and lose its value. Therefore, it was finally decided that what is known as the gold standard would be adopted. The theory was that for every dollar of paper money printed each country would set aside a certain amount of gold to guarantee the value of the money they printed. It has been understood for years that if any person wanted to exchange a dollar bill for a dollar in gold they had the privilege of doing so by asking the bank to give them gold money instead of paper money. The purpose of this, of course, was to create confidence in the value of money printed by the different governments. Gold was taken as the standard because it was a product that fluctuated the least in value from year to year. The idea was good and for many years it has worked well. Conditions have changed, however, with the result that they are vastly different to-day from what they have ever been before.

Money Changes in Value.

Just here it should be explained that money changes in value, just as does wheat, dairy products or any other commodity. If the world has a large supply of wheat the value of wheat drops. For the same reason if a country prints a lot of money this money becomes cheap and loses its purchasing power. Keep that thought clearly in mind. That is what is meant by inflation, or by the devaluation of money.

What Has Happened.

During the past 15 or 20 years or more modern inventions have so promoted the production of wealth the world's supply of wealth has increased much more rapidly than has the supply of gold. The production of money has not kept pace with the production of wealth. The effect, therefore, has been for money to become dear and hard to get. We now have to offer a lot of wealth, like farm commodities, in order to get a little money. This—only in part, however—explains why farm products are so low in value and why money is so hard to get. It in part explains also why it is urged that more money shall be printed by the government in order that money shall become cheaper and the value of farm and other products become greater.

Where Danger Lies.

It should be understood, however, that if we begin to print money without setting aside something like gold as a standard of value the public will begin to wonder just how much real value our money has. Confidence in the value of money will be undermined just in proportion as we continue to print paper money. To offset this danger it has been proposed repeatedly that the government shall issue only enough paper money to bring the value of the Canadian dollar down to the value of the Britjsh pound. During the war most countries in Europe, including France, Russia and Germany, deserted the gold standard and printed such large volumes of paper money that this money lost its value. This ultimately resulted in enormous losses to the people of those countries who could not use it for exchange purposes. It has contributed to the bankruptcy of a number of those nations.

Great Britain's Example.

Before Great Britain went off the gold standard last year great fear was expressed that it would bring on a financial panic and that much harm would result. Nothing of the kind happened. This was because the government guaranteed the value of the pound at the lower level and the people had confidence in the government's guarantee. Had the people not had confidence in the government British money would have lots its value and very serious things would have happened.

The effect of inflation in Great Britain has been very beneficial. Let us take a simple example. Farm and Dairy has been in the habit of ordering certain books from New York, largely because of the quick delivery. At present our Canadian dollars are worth only about 83c in New York. But a Canadian dollar in Great Britain is worth $1.25. This means that it pays us to send our orders to Great Britain. This, we have been doing. Thus, the United States has lost trade and the British have gained trade, because of the difference in the value of the money in the two countries. Millions of people all over the world are doing the same as Farm and Dairy. Instead of buying from the United States as they formerly did, they are now buying from Great Britain. This has helped Great Britain and reduced the trade of the United States. When, however, we try to sell our farm products in Great Britain it works the other way. For every dollar's worth of butter, cheese and bacon that we send there we are paid in their money and we receive back only about 75c in our money. This is the main reason why we have not been able as yet to take advantage of the British preference, granted as a result of the recent Imperial Conference.

Helped Other Dominions.

Because Au tralia and New Zealand have inflated their currency below that of the British pound they have a great advantage over Canada in the exporting of their farm products to Great Britain. When an Australian farmer sends wheat to Great Britain worth $1.00 in his money, he receives for it not 75c, as we do, but about $1.25. The result is that Australia has been shipping out practically all their wheat to Great Britain and has no surplus on hand. We have been holding back our Canadian wheat and have a year's supply in our elevators. The same condition applies to dairy products such as butter. Were we to inflate our money to a point below the British pound we would be in a better position to hold our own with New Zealand and Australia in the export trade with Great Britain.

Effect in Canada.

What, it will be asked, would be the effect of inflation in Canada? First of all there would be a decided increase in the value of all farm and other products. Farmers would get more money for their wheat, butter, poultry, and other products. This would enable them to buy more goods which would greatly improve business conditions. On the other hand, farmers would have to pay more for their agricultural machinery, clothes and other supplies. Because they would handle more money it would be easier for them to pay all debts incurred before inflation took place. In other words, inflation would bring conditions back to a point nearer what they were in 1929 when the slump in values commenced.

All people with money in the bank, or holding notes and bonds and mortgages, would find that these had depreciated in value in proportion to the extent of the inflation. This is because a dollar would not have the same buying power after inflation as it has now. Thus, when payments were made them on their notes, for mortgages, or when they sold their bonds, the money they would receive would not have the buying power it now has. However, most mortgages and bonds were taken when things were better and when the buying power of the dollar was not as great as it is to-day. Thus, the apparent injustice to such people of inflation is not as great as it might seem as they have been profiting unduly by existing conditions and would not be any worse under the change than they were when they first invested their money.

Increased Exchange.

One of the apparently unfavorable effects of inflation would be that all debts of Canada to the United States would be greatly increased as long as the United States remains on the gold standard. This, however, would apply only to those debts on which it has been specified that they must be paid in the equivalent of United States funds. Hon. Mr. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, has pointed out that we would have to pay the United States $150,000,000 a year more than we must now pay. Hon. Thomas White, a former finance minister, claims that we would have to find $375,000,000 in Canadian dollars to pay a debt of $250,000,000. At first glance that seems dreadful, but really it does not mean so much after all, as we would have proportionately that much more money available with which to pay it. It all comes back to the question of the meaning of wealth and of money. After all we have got to pay the United States so much in wealth, not in money. If we inflate our money we will not have to pay them any more wealth, but we will have to give them more money. Inflation would provide that extra money.

Were Canadians to pay debts to the United States with their depreciated currency there would be strenuous objection by our creditors who would feel that they had been flimflammed by such action. This, however, brings us back to the point that already has been emphasized, that they are now being paid a greater value in the money they receive than the debtors agreed to pay them at the time the debts were incurred.

Sir Thomas White, in his public statement opposing inflation, contends that inflation would be of little real value because whatever excess dollars some citizens—including farmers, lumberman, fisherman and others—would receive would have to be paid by others as by governments, municipalities, railway firms and corporations, we have to buy New York exchange to meet their United States obligations, and by certain importers. He says: "There can be no national gain because exporters who obtain temporarily an excess price in terms of Canadian dollars must do so at the expense of others in the community who buy foreign exchange to meet their obligations abroad." But that is just where the rub comes in with the farmers. They contend, and with reason, that they are being forced—through the low prices of their commodities—to make it easier for other classes in the community to pay their obligations. Naturally they want to know why the position should not be reversed, even if some other classes for a while have to pay more. Farm and Dairy believes that business will not improve until farmers are in a better position financially and, therefore, that they are entitled to receive first consideration.

This Would Help.

Were Canada to go off the gold standard it would seem to be inevitable that the United States would have to follow our example within a few months. Otherwise the United States would be the only country remaining on the gold standard and its foreign trade would be so affected by its isolation it would have to adopt inflation. Thus, if they inflated their currency to the same extent as Canada—it immediately would make it unnecessary for us to pay them any more money than we are now paying them, even of our inflated money. This further means that we would have to pay them that much less wealth.

In brief, then, inflation should increase the value of all farm products and should promote the export of farm products. Thus, it would help us to get rid of our surplus production. It would make it easier for farmers to pay their debts. For a while, at least, it would stimulate trade and should go far to restore public confidence in existing conditions.

Inflation, however, would not provide a cure for the greatest evils of the day. People enjoying special privileges would still be able to accumulate an undue share of the wealth of the country. As long as we maintain high tariffs, permit the overcapitalization of industry, allow monopolies of natural resources, facilitate gambling in the stock exchanges, and make other similar mistakes, we will have to pay the piper as we are doing now. Inflation therefore, is only an expedient. The danger is that we will refuse to look on it in that light, that we will once more let things drift until we face another depression, when, should further inflation be attempted, the results might be as disastrous as they have been in other years in other countries.

Inflation would create a quick—even if only temporary—improvement in current conditions. Thus it would allow us more time to face and deal with other pressing problems of the day. That is what we most need at the present. If we adopt inflation with that object in view the benefit would prove lasting. Otherwise we had better let it alone.

NOTICE

IN THE MATTER OF A PROPOSED BY-LAW FOR FIXING THE ASSESSMENT OF THE PROPERTY OF THE CANADIAN RAYBESTOS COMPANY, LIMITED.

The said Proposed By-law provides that for the period of ten years, commencing with the First Day of January, 1933, the following Lands of The Canadian Raybestos Company, Limited, namely:

FIRSTLY—Lots Numbers Ten (10) and Eleven (11) North of Perry Street and West of George Street and the South Halves of Lots Numbers Ten (10) and Eleven (11), South of Rink Street and West of George Street, all in the said City of Peterborough.

SECONDLY—That part of Stewart Street lying between the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's right-of-way and Perry Street in the said City of Peterborough.

THIRDLY—All those parts of Lots Numbers Twelve and Thirteen (12) and (13) North of Perry Street and West of George Street, in the said City of Peterborough, lying South or South-Easterly of the said right-of-way of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

FOURTHLY—That part of the North Half of Lot Number Eleven (11), South of Rink Street and West of George Street, in the said City of Peterborough, and which Parcel may be more particularly known and described as follows: That is to say: COMMENCING on the South side of Rink Street at a point thereon distant Thirty (30') feet Westerly from the North-East angle of said Lot Eleven (11) said point being the North-West angle of the portion of said Lot heretofore conveyed by The Canadian Pacific Railway Company to the Peterborough Shovel and Tool Company, Limited, under deed dated 6th November, 1906, thence Westerly along said limit of Rink Street Two (2) feet Nine (9) inches more or less to a point at a normal distance of Thirty-three (33) feet South-Easterly from the centre line of the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company; thence South-Westerly parallel to said centre line of Railway One Hundred and Twenty (120) feet Four (4) inches to the centre line of said Lot, being the Southerly limit of the said Railway Company's land; thence Easterly along said centre line of said Lot Sixty-eight (68) feet Eleven and a Half (11½) inches more or less to the South-West angle of the said land conveyed aforesaid to the Peterborough Shovel and Tool Company, Limited; thence Northerly along the Westerly limit of the said lands Ninety-six (96) feet to the point of commencement, containing 3,442 square feet more or less, as shown edged in red on the plan attached to conveyance from the Corporation of the City of Peterborough to The Canadian Raybestos Company, Limited, dated the 8th Day of June, 1921, and registered in the Registry Office for the Registry Division of the City of Peterborough on the 29th Day of September, 1924, as Number 21,934 for the City of Peterborough, and having the limits, dimensions, and bearings shown on such plan.

Together with the Buildings, Plant and Machinery now upon all the said described lands or hereafter placed thereon, shall be assessed at the sum of $25,000.00, including Business Assessment, but such fixed Assessment of $25,000.00 shall not apply to or affect taxation for school purposes or local improvements.

TAKE NOTICE, That the foregoing is a synopsis, containing a concise statement of the purpose of a proposed By-law of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough to be submitted to the votes of the qualified Electors of the City of Peterborough at the same times and at the same places as for the next ensuing annual election for the Municipal Council of the City of Peterborough, and the Deputy Returning Officers appointed to take the votes at such annual election for the Municipal Council shall take the vote on the proposed By-law. And that Friday, the 30th Day of December, 932, at Ten o'clock in the Forenoon, at the Clerk's Office in the said City of Peterborough, has been fixed as the time and place for the appointment of persons to attend at the Polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk.

FURTHER TAKE NOTICE, That if the assent of the electors to the said proposed By-law is obtained, it will be taken into consideration by the Municipal Council of the said City of Peterborough at a meeting thereof to be held after the expiration of one month from the date of the first publication of this notice, which first publication was made on the Seventh Day of December, 1932.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE, That a tenant who desires to vote on the said proposed By-law must deliver to the Clerk of the City of Peterborough, not later than the Tenth Day before the day appointed for taking the vote, the declaration provided for by Sub-Section 3 of Section 274 of The Municipal Act, that is to say, a declaration under The Canada Evidence Act, that he or she is a tenant whose lease extends for the time for which the said special Assessment is fixed under the said proposed By-law, or for at least twenty-one years, and that he or she has by the lease covenanted to pay all municipal taxes in respect of his or her property other than local improvement rates.

DATED at Peterborough, this 6th Day of December, A.D. 1932.

Stars Strike Up Friendship

These two daughters of the dominions are (Left) Judy Kelly of Australia and (Right) Molly Lamon of South Africa, both debutante stars who won film contracts after winning beauty competitions in their respective countries. Drawn together by the similarity of the circumstances by which they left home, to seek fame in the Mother Country, the two girls have struck up a firm friendship.

Hastings

Rev. S. H. Hill of Kinburn who has accepted the call to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at Hastings will be inducted on December 29th. Rev. Mr. Todd of Bowmanville will preside and induct, Rev. D. Sutherland of Keene will preach, Rev. J. C. Robinson of Campbellford will address the minister and James Dutton of Peterborough, the people.

This will be the first time in over fifty years that a minister has been inducted at St. Andrew's and it is expected that a large attendance will be present.

Messrs. Fred and George Jones of Endicott, N.Y., are in the village owing to the serious illness of their brother, Mr. C. E. Jones.

Mrs. E. McMillin left for Peterborough on Saturday where she will make her home for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Sutherland of Peterborough spent Sunday at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Brinkton.

OPERA TO LOSE ANTONIO SCOTTI

Best Loved of Operatic Villians to Retire "Before He Breaks Up."

FRIEND OF CARUSO.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (C.P.).—Antonio Scotti, who knows what it is to be pelted with roses 12 whole minutes, also knows now what it is to be heart-broken.

The best loved of operatic villains, dean of the singers at the Metropolitan Opera Company, announced last night that on January 20 he will make his final appearance on the same stage where he made his local debut 33 years ago.

"I am an old man," said Scotti, who is 66. "It breaks my heart, but I want to retire in time; retire before I break up." He was the closest friend of Enrico Caruso. They had twin suites in the old Knickerbocker Hotel in Times Square. Later when Caruso was desperately ill, Scotti would rush from a performance to the bedside without taking his make-up off, and spend whole days there.

One of his memories is the gala performance of "Tosca" in 1924, when the city celebrated his 25th anniversary with the "met." The audience showered him with roses during a 12-minute ovation, and the Mayor gave him the flag of the city.

For his farewell Scotti will sing his favorite role, the sinister Chim-Fen, the opium den proprietor in Franco Leoni's "L'Oraccolo." Then he will go back to his native Naples, where the people have never heard him sing.

WARSAW.

The members of the Anglican Ladies' Guild, members of their families, Rev. J. T. O'Conor-Fenton, Mrs. Fenton and their son, and a few invited guests, spent a most enjoyable social evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vivian Jackson, who kindly gave their home for the evening's entertainment. Mrs. Jackson gave a reading, "Mrs. Candid Entertains the Ladies' Aid." Refreshments were served. The interest of the evening centered on a Christmas cake, which contained 557 raisins. The one who guessed nerest the number of raisins got the cake. Mr. Fenton got the cake. Mrs. Albert Cooper president of the Guild had made it.

The Anglican Christmas services will be held on Christmas Sunday, at three o'clock p.m.

Santa Claus (impersonated by George Moore) arrived in the village at Mr. Drain's store, about 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, and remained until about four o'clock. He danced around for the amusement of the children and distributed about one hundred and fifty bags of candies and peanuts, to the children and calenders to the adults.

Miss Dora Tedford was home over the weeke-nd.

Miss Higgins is visiting her brother and the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tedford.

Mr. William Aitkens is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Payne, Peterborough.

Mrs. Cherry (formerly Helen Bowen), Buffalo, and Mr. and Mrs. John Lillie (formerly Laura Bowen), and child, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowen. Mrs. Cherry will remain about a month, Mrs. Lillie for the holiday season.

The United Church Sunday School entertainment will be on Friday evening of this week; Cottesloe on Thursday evening, and Forsythe school on Wednesday evening.

NOTICE

IN THE MATTER OF A PROPOSED BY-LAW FOR FIXING THE ASSESSMENT OF THE PROPERTY OF THE DE LAVAL COMPANY, LIMITED.

The said proposed By-law provides that for the period of ten years, commencing with the First Day of January, 1933, the following Lands of The De Laval Company, Limited, namely:

ALL those parts of Park Lots Numbers One (1), Two (2), and Three (3) in Township Lot Number Thirteen (13) in the Twelfth Concession of the Township of North Monaghan (now within the City of Peterborough) lying South-east of the right-of-way of the Midland Branch of the Grand Trunk Railway, except the North-eight (8') of said Lot Number Three (3), and the Buildings, Plant, and Machinery now upon the said Lands or hereafter placed thereon, shall be Assessed at the sum of $60,000.00, including Business Assessment, for the period of Ten Years commencing on the First Day of January, 1933, subject, however, to the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth, but such fixed Assessment of $60,000.00 shall not apply to or affect taxation for school purposes or local improvements.

This fixed Assessment of $60,000.00 is to be granted to and enjoyed by the said, The De Laval Company, Limited, on the following conditions, namely:

(a) That the said The De Laval Company, Limited, for the ten-year period above mentioned shall continue the manufacture in its factory in the said City of Peterborough of its Mechanical Milkers for export, including export to the United States, and as well for the Canadian trade

(b) That the said Company during the said ten-year period shall manufacture in its said Peterborough factory its new combined milking equipment for large dairy farms developed within the last year in its United States factory, and also another article of manufacture now in process of development by the said Company.

(c) That by the 31st Day of December, 1934, the said Company shall have employed in its Peterborough factory a sufficient number of employees as will make the factory employees' total weekly pay-roll at least fifty per cent. greater than the amount of the said factory employees' total weekly pay-roll as at the 3rd Day of November, 1932, and that for that portion of the said ten-year period commencing with the 31st Day of December, 1934, the said Company shall always keep employed in its Peterborough factory a sufficient number of employees as will make the factory employees' total weekly pay-roll always at least fifty per cent. greater than the amount of the said factory employees' total weekly pay-roll as at the 3rd Day of November, 1932.

(d) And that during the said ten-year period the said Company, whenever requested by the Council of the City of Peterborough, shall furnish a statutory declaration made by an officer of the Company setting forth the amount of the factory employees' total weekly pay-roll as at the time of the request for such information, and also whenever requested the amount of the factory employees' total weekly pay-roll as at the Third Day of November, 1932. The said By-law further provides that in the event of the said The De Laval Company, Limited, making default in carrying out the terms and conditions above set forth, or any of them, by the 31st Day of December, 1934, then the said fixed Assessment of $60,000.00 shall cease as of the 31st Day of December, 1934, and from and after the said last mentioned day the said Lands, Buildings, Plant and Machinery and Business Assessment shall be assessed at their full assessable value, and all taxes and rates payable in respect to the said Lands, Buildings, Plant and Machinery and Business Assessment shall be levied on their said full assessable value notwithstanding any By-laws, Contracts, or Agreements to the contrary; and in the further event that the said Company should at any time after the 31st Day of December, 1934 make default in not having in its employ in its Peterborough factory the requisite number of employees as provided for above, then the Corporation of the City of Peterborough may by notice in writing to the said Company determine the said fixed Assessment of $60,000.00 as of the 31st Day of December, next following the giving of the said notice, and from and after the said last mentioned date the said fixed Assessment of $60,000.00 shall cease, and the said Lands, Buildings, Plant and Machinery and Business Assessment shall be assessed at their full assessable value.

TAKE NOTICE, That the foregoing is a synopsis, containing a concise statement of the purpose of a proposed By-law of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough to be submitted to the votes of the qualified Electors of the City of Peterborough at the same time and at the same places as for the next ensuing annual election for the Municipal Council of the City of Peterborough, and the Deputy Returning Officers appointed to take the votes at such annual election for the Municipal Council shall take the vote on the proposed By-law. And that Friday, the 30th Day of December, 1932, at Ten o'clock in the Forenoon, at the Clerk's Office in the said City of Peterborough, has been fixed as the time and place for the appointment of persons to attend at the Polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk.

FURTHER TAKE NOTICE, That if the assent of the electors to the said proposed By-law is obtained, it will be taken into consideration by the Municipal Council of the said City of Peterborough at a meeting thereof to be held after the expiration of one month from the date of the first publication of this notice, which first publication was made on the Seventh Day of December, 1932.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE, That a tenant who desires to vote on the said proposed By-law must deliver to the Clerk of the City of Peterborough, not later than the Tenth Day before the day appointed for taking the vote, the declaration provided for by Sub-Section 3 of Section 274 of The Municipal Act, that is to say, a declaration under The Canada Evidence Act, that he or she is a tenant whose lease extends for the time for which the said special Assessment is fixed under the said proposed By-law, or for at least twenty-one years, and that he or she has by the lease covenanted to pay all municipal taxes in respect of his or her property other than local improvement rates.

PAST SIX YEARS' ACTIVITIES OF THE UTILITIES COMMISSION ARE REVIEWED BY E. R. SHIRLEY

Never Been Time When Commission Enjoyed Greater Prosperity.

THREE DEPARTMENTS

Community Can Boast of Most Economic Service From Commission.

(By E R. SHIRLEY)

It is a source of satisfaction to look back over the past six years of activity of the Peterborough Utilities Commission.

There has never been a time when the Peterborough Public Utilities have enjoyed greater prosperity or when they have been enabled to give such efficient service. There is not another community anywhere which can boast a better or more economic service.

The growth of the electric department has been very noticeable. Twice in the past six years it was found necessary to add to the capacity of the Aylmer street station.

During the past year a new 44,000 volt incoming line was completed from Auburn to this station. This was constructed along a different route from the previous existing line. This assures duplicate incoming service over two different routes and is one of the most important additions made since the station was first constructed.

The lightning arrester on the first 44,000 volt incoming line has been rebuilt and lightning protection has been installed on the 2,300 volt main and transfer buses. This, together with the policy which has been followed of installing lightning arresters at the various service transformers has given remarkable results in continuity of service during times of lightning and like disturbances. It has also resulted in keeping the replacements of service transformers and other equipment due to damage from lightning, to the lowest point of any community in the country. This represents a saving to the commission running into thousands of dollars yearly.

A centrifugal oil filter was added to the sub-station equipment. This issued for filtering and reconditioning the oil of the oil circuit breakers and the large power transformers. By this means the oil is at all times kept filtered and clean and of the necessary dielectric strength. This is accomplished without interfering with service. This feature has been a very considerable factor in keeping down the maintenance charges of the station and in assuring continuity of service.

Interruptions to service have been limited almost entirely to failure of primary power delivered to the Commission by the H.E.P.C. and, of course, beyond the control of the Commission.

The distribution system is being gradually reconstructed along the most modern lines. As much of this work is being carried out each year as finances and conditions will permit.

The reconstruction of the distribution system has resulted in a very In spite of the economic depression great increase in the domestic load, which has existed for the past two years, during which time the commercial and power loads have fallen off to a very large extent, the domestic load has steadily increased.

The street lighting has been reconstructed to a very large extent and very noticeably improved. The magnetite arc lamps have all been removed and replaced by high candle power incandescent lamps with special reflectors and diffusers. The districts surrounding Peterborough have been taken over by the H.E.P.C. during the past few years as a part of the rural system. These are operated for the H.E.P.C. by the Utilities Commission.

The rural districts have been extended greatly since the H.E.P.C. started the rural system around Peterborough. The rural construction work is carried out by the Utilities Commission for the H.E.P.C.

Extra Revenues

The operation of the rural system and the construction work carried out for the H.E.P.C. has resulted in considerable extra revenue for the Utilities Commission and has also been the means of giving considerable extra employment.

Six years ago an increased schedule of rates for light and power was imposed on the Utilities Commission by the H.E.P.C. This was to take care of the establishing of a sinking fund for the Central Ontario system. The increase was very strongly opposed by the Utilities Commission and certain concessions received.

Two years later the Utilities Commission succeeded in having the rates reduced. During the past year a further reduction was secured in power users in the form of an increased discount. The power rates in Peterborough are among the most favorable in the province. In addition the fact that we use 60 cycle power as against 25 cycle power in the Niagara district gives Peterborough an advantage from the view point of power, which cannot be too highly stressed.

Peterborough is in a very advantageous situation for a continuous and adequate supply of power. Some five years ago the H.E.P.C. held conferences with the local Utilities Commision and representatives of other municipalities of the Eastern district, relative to a large supply of power from an outside source.

As a result of this conference the H.E.P.C. completed negotiations for a large supply of power at a very favorable price. This power is delivered from the Ottawa district to Smith Falls. From there the H.E.P.C. transmits it to Kingston where it is fed into the Central Ontario system.

In addition the Eastern section of the Central Ontario System is paralleled with the St. Lawrence System and with a number of plants including Cedar Rapids.

The large power supply from the Ottawa district and the paralleling with other large plants in the East means that provision has been made for a uniform and continuous power supply for this district which is ideal. With power feeding in from a number of widely separated plants it is almost impossible to ever have conditions which would affect all the plants at any one time.

Waterworks Department

We are justly proud of our waterworks system. Plant, equipment, buildings and grounds are in splendid condition and well and efficiently operated and maintained. Everything is a model of neatness, cleanliness and efficiency.

Filtration Park is one of Peterborough's beauty spots and is very popular, particularly when the electric fountain is in operation. The electric fountain which was the first in the province was installed by the Commission a few years ago and has been visited and admired by thousands each season.

The waterworks system has operated at a profit each year. The rates charged consumers have been consistently reduced accordingly, including the removal entirely of the frontage rates.

It is interesting to note that the debentures covering the original purchase of the waterworks system were retired on December 30, 1931. These amounted to $230,000.

In June of the same year an item of $947,000 for the filtration plant carried originally at 6½ per cent without sinking fund, was refinanced at 4½ per cent with sinking fund. These debentures were sold to one of the Canadian banks at slightly above par. This was a remarkable tribute to the public utilities as the re-financing was on a par with the refunding loan which was floated at that time by the Dominion of Canada.

Saving to Ratepayers

The retirement of the original purchase debentures and the favorable refinancing of the filtration plant debentures will result in a considerable saving per annum.

A renewal of the lease for the surplus water at the waterworks dam was made to the C.G.E. at an increased yearly rental. This means a further saving per annum for the waterworks department.

The ice refrigerator in use in the laboratory at the filtration plant where the daily water tests are carried out, was replaced by an electric refrigerator. This resulted in a marked saving and greater efficiency for that department.

The chlorination apparatus at the pumping plant was replaced by new equipment. This renders the last link in the sterilization process which is demanded by the Provincial Board of Health, as nearly perfect as possible.

A duplicate discharge pipe was added at the pumping plant from the duplicate pressure mains outside the plant right to the pressure pumps. This gives a complete duplicate pressure system and assures continuity of service under almost any conceivable condition.

The large force main was completed down Monaghan road to Chamberlain street thus completing the loop around that district. A large amount of work has been done in eliminating dead ends on the system.

Relaid Old Services

A great many old services have been relaid, particularly where the City Council has been carrying on paving operations. Considerable of the work just mentioned was carried out as unemployment relief work.

Excellent service has been given and an adequate supply of pure, filtered water at proper pressure has been supplied at all times.

During the summer season the water is treated with a small percentage of alum and matter in suspension precipitated out prior to filtration. In winter filtration only is carried on. In addition the water is treated with a small amount of chlorine gas as a final safety measure.

Daily samples of water are taken from various parts of the system and daily tests conducted in the laboratory which is maintained at the filtration plant. These tests prove that absolutely pure, safe water is supplied at all times. The tests are further checked and proved by independent tests made by the Provincial Board of Health.

Gas System

The gas plant was handed over to the Utilities Commission to operate on June 1, 1929. The purchase dated back to the end of the H.E.P.C. fiscal year previous.

The gas plant and system are in splendid condition and the operation of the same has been most gratifying. A reduction in rates charged consumers has been made each year and a steady gain in gas consumption has been shown.

The plant has operated at a profit each year and in addition a sinking fund is being set up for plant depreciation and obsolescence.

Consolidation between the gas and other departments has been effected. The stores has been removed to the Aylmer street plant and consolidated with the water and light departments.

The meter repair department has been removed to the Aylmer street plant and is there operated very efficiently.

The trucks and tools are all located at the Aylmer street plant and all work for all three departments is directed from that point.

An iron firemen was added for automatic stoking of the gas generator. This has resulted in a very considerable economy and has, of course, helped very materially in abating the smoke nuisance.

The service given has been excellent. The B.T.U. value of the gas has been considerably kept above government standards. Pressures have been kept regulated in accordance with service demands.

The few service interruptions have been due almost entirely to the presence of naphthaline.

Investigation is being made at the present time of equipment to alleviate the difficulties experienced with this bye product. This, if successful, will improve service and effect a considerable saving.

In this department as well as that of the waterworks a great deal of work has been done in eliminating dead ends and in relaying old services, particularly where the City Council is carrying on paving operations.

An aggressive program has been carried on each year in adding valves to the distribution system, so that small areas can be isolated for repairs or other work without interfering with the service of a large district.

The personnel of the Commission has been ideal, consisting as it has of a business executive, a retired banker and an engineer. There has been the fullest and most cordial co-operation at all times between the commissioners and the staff. All have worked together to give the best possible service.

MADOC C.G.I.T. GIRLS SING CHRISTMAS CAROLS

MADOC, Dec. 21. — (Examiner Correspondence.)—The C. G. I. T. Girls of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church met in the Sunday school rooms on Monday evening after school for practice for the Christmas Tree. Following this, they partook of a basket lunch and then went out under the management of their instructor, Miss Loreen Connor, of the Madoc Public school staff, to sing carols and Christmas hymns at several of the homes where there are infirm and elderly people who would otherwise be deprived of this great source of Christmas cheer.

After this part of the program they gathered at the home of Mrs. W. J. Hill, where they were entertained with games and contests, after which a very dainty lunch, with fruit and candles was served to all by their hostess and Miss Connor. Small gifts were received by the girls, and all joined in presenting a beautiful little gift to Miss Connor, and wishing her and their hostess a very Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

CHRISTMAS IN GREAT BRITAIN WILL BE THREE-DAY HOLIDAY

King and Queen With Royal Family Will Go to Sandringham.

RAILWAY FARES CUT.

(By Thomas T. Champion, C.P. Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Dec. 21 (C.P. Cable)—The Christmas season, that season when all good Englishmen read at least one of Dickens' Yuletide novels, is being celebrated with all the old spirit. For Great Britain as a whole, Christmas will be a three-day holiday. Sunday is Christmas Day, Monday is Boxing Day, and Tuesday has been declared an additional holiday by royal warrant.

The King and Queen will leave Buckingham Palace on Thursday, Dec. 22, to spend Christmas as usual at Sandringham. Their Majesties will remain in Norfolk until the end of January. They will have with them on Christmas Day all their children with the exception of the Princess Royal, who with the Earl of Harewood is spending the holidays with her own children at their Yorkshire home.

Elaborate preparations have been made by the railways to give the ordinary holiday-maker generous facilities for cheap travel. Cheap tickets will be available for a longer period than ever before. They will be ready for issue on Thursday, and it will be possible to make the return journey any time up to Jan. 9. Nearly 800 trains will leave Paddington on Friday and Saturday, and 170,000 people are expected to travel by them.

Cruising Holidays

The fashion for cruising holidays will be in evidence, ranging from three weeks in the Mediterranean to a mere week-end down the English Channel. This idea has rapidly grown in the past decade, aided by the lessening of steamship rates. While there is no accounting for the weather ahead of time there are many who do not care to risk having to put up with one of those raw rainy days that are no respecters of festive occasions. Journeys to Switzerland and the Riviera are also on the books for many, but being rather more costly will probably not be quite so popular this season.

The ordinary Sunday papers will be published as usual on Christmas Day, but there will be no publication whatever of morning or evening papers on Monday. Tuesday has been declared an additional holiday by royal warrant, but newspapers will be published as usual.

Shortest Day

Winter begins Wednesday, Dec. 21, at time shown above. Shortest days—all the same length, nine hours, 14 minutes—extend from Dec. 17 to 27, inclusive.

France, in the opinion of experts, will have rendered herself impregnable in a few years' time. About a hundred thousand laborers are still at work, and have been for the better part of ten years on other sections. They will not be through, until the latter part of 1936, the "danger-year" in Europe, so-called because in that year French reserves in manpower will have fallen to their lowest ebb. This is due to the death in the war of a million and a half young men who otherwise would not be fathers of sons reaching military age by 1935 and the following years.

Nothing Can be Seen

In the foremost front line of the fort system nothing is visible on the surface except a small reversible turret of grey steel. This turret may be planted in a clump of bushes, right by the side of the road like a milepost. In one spot I saw one of those turrets sticking out of the bank of a pond. They are much smaller than the turrets of submarines. No bigger in fact than to hold the head and shoulders of one single man.

The whole garrison of those turrets consists of two men. The turret has a small aperture through which the machine fires. I said it operates on a reversible principle so that the aperture with the machine gun can face and spew death in all directions. Inside there are two storeys, the better part of the whole buried underground. The interior consists of two narrow cubicles of reinforced concrete, the one on top of the other. They connect with a steel ladder.

While the upper storey contains the machine gun and offers just about space enough for one man to move about, stand or sit, the storey beneath contains boxes of ammunition, tools for the repair of the machine gun, food boxes, one collapsible bunk, a small electric stove, a tap with running water, an electric light and a box containing some first aid articles.

In the wall of the lower storey there is a steel door. Behind that door, a cement stairway and at the end of the stairway which goes down twenty yards into the bowels of the earth, a tunnel. The tunnel leads to a larger subterranean redoubt. Tunnel and stairway are electrically lighted.

Guns Fire Automatically

The larger redoubt which resembles a spacious room lies underneath a deep concrete pit with walls of steel. It is topped again by a steel turrent, but of much greater size than the first. In this turret are a battery of rapid-firing cannons. These guns are fired automatically. After the range has been found through periscopes, a lever is turned and they fly upward with dizzying speed in the concrete pit or shaft. They fire a round of shrapnel and slide down again. When at rest, they are absolutely invisible from the surface, as they are covered by the roof of the turret, which in turn is smeared with camouflage paint.

Ten or fifteen of those machine gun posts as I mentioned earlier connect by individual tunnels with this artillery redoubt. The large room beneath the reversible cannon chamber or artillery redoubt is an assembly place for the machine-gunners and munition reservoir both for the machine guns and the artillery. There are also steel elevator shafts with lifts to convey men and munitions to the firing chamber above.

Another tunnel, much broader than those leading to the machine gun posts, connects the gun emplacement with an again much larger underground chamber. Along this broad tunnel runs a small double-track electric railway. This railway is a feeder for the outposts, both machine guns and gun emplacement. Munitions and supplies are to be transported forward along this course, while wounded men can be cleared away to the rear.

Above this larger chamber is again an emplacement for disappearing guns, but of a much heavier calibre. Now again a broad tunnel and one arrives in a huge subterranean depot. Here are kitchens and hospitals, barrack rooms, baths, stores, repair shops, electric generating stations, all heated and ventilated by electric sucking fans.

No less than five thousand men can be quartered in these underground depots. There are stairways leading to the surface. They are forty and in some places fifty feet below ground. The exits on the surface are cleverly concealed, covered by steel trap doors, which are broad enough, nevertheless, to emit a storming party of bombers and infantry.

There are even greater underground assembly places further back, nearer to the surface, some of them ten or fifteen miles in the rear, that is to say, back of the first outposts of machine guns.

This entire underground system is gas-proof. The temperature underground and in the turrets is kept at a certain degree which prevents the intrusion of poison gas fumes through the firing holes.

Besides this elaborate defence system, there are mobile forts, that is to say, forts which can be moved forward over the frontier as spearheads of attack. No information as to the composition of these mobile forts is available, but I was told that they consist of whole batteries of supertanks, some carrying light artillery.

DWARF TRIBES ARE LESSENING

Austrian Missionary Believes Pygmy Race in Africa Soon Disappear Entirely.

DEPENDED ON NEGROES

LONDON, Dec. 21 (C.P.)—Returning from a lengthy study of the pygmy race in equatorial Africa, Father Louis Shebesta, noted Austrian missionary, believes this tiny race will disappear entirely.

According to Father Shebesta, there are not more than 20,000 pure pygmies left in Central Africa and these, together with semi-pygmies called Batshwas, totalling some 50,000, inhabit a territory covering some 100,000 square miles limited by the Ituri, Lenda and Lindi rivers and distributed among some 333 tribes.

Little by little, he says, these dwarf tribes have come under the dependency of Negro tribes with whom they exchange game against cereals, fruits and arms.

The Negro has come to look upon the pygmy as an inferior race and as slaves, Father Shebesta says. Also the meeting with the Negro and subsequently the white man has rendered the pygmy familiar with alcohol and infectious diseases.

Nothing short of governmental or private initiative is able, in the opinion of Father Shebesta, to halt the downward trend of the dwarf races, which science and civilization are equally interested in preserving.

THE HIGHWAY TO PROSPERITY BLOCKED BY THE SPECTRE FEAR

By PATERFAMILIAS

No doubt the greatest enemy to economic improvement and a return to prosperity is that demon FEAR who, like Sinbad the Sailor's Old Man of the Sea, sits astraddle the shoulders of his victims, throttling the life out of both individuals and nations. Undoubtedly there is practically the same amount of money in Canada as in 1929, balancing importation against exportation and still depression seems to dominate all Economic and Industrial interests.
